Impractical Proposals

Senator Flanders of Vermont has proposed two unusual riders to the ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty. His motives are not suspected, for there is nothing in his voting record to indicate that he would wish to kill the pact. Yet he would have the pact members form a sort of UN within the UN. He also suggests a leaflet "bombardment" of Russia to bring about peace.

Flanders' "little United Nations" would be formed by the 12 members of the alliance inside the UN framework. It would abolish or drastically modify the veto power against aggression. And it would consider important matters outside the treaty's scope which affect the UN as a Something certainly needs to be done about the veto. Its abuse by Russia has made the organization an extremely | lame duck, if not a dead one. But it is hard to see how this proposal would be of much benefit.

In the first place, the veto power remains in the UN Charter. The proposed smaller group apparently would have to abide by the charter in order to be a part of the UN. Yet it would be operating contrary to a basic charter rule.

Any attempt to determine aggression and act against it, while excluding both Russia and the veto power, would be wholly without authority under the present setup. The only way the group might function would be as a competing organization. For, however wrong the veto may be, the 12-nation organization could not act as a UN subsidiary unless it played according to UN rules.

The only practical use that we can see for such an organization would be a quick action in case Russia attacked gressman Clare Magee has warned troops, trained by Russians, would a UN member which is not a signatory of the North Atlantic Treaty—Sweden or Turkey or Iran, perhaps.

Such action certainly would be desirable. The question is whether it would be desirable enough to excuse wrecking the UN. For that is undoubtedly what would happen. The very formation of a "little UN" would be a tion for congressmen. But Conment among the Germans. severe blow to the world organization, whether or not gressman Magee, a down-to-earth there was danger of attack on a non-treaty member.

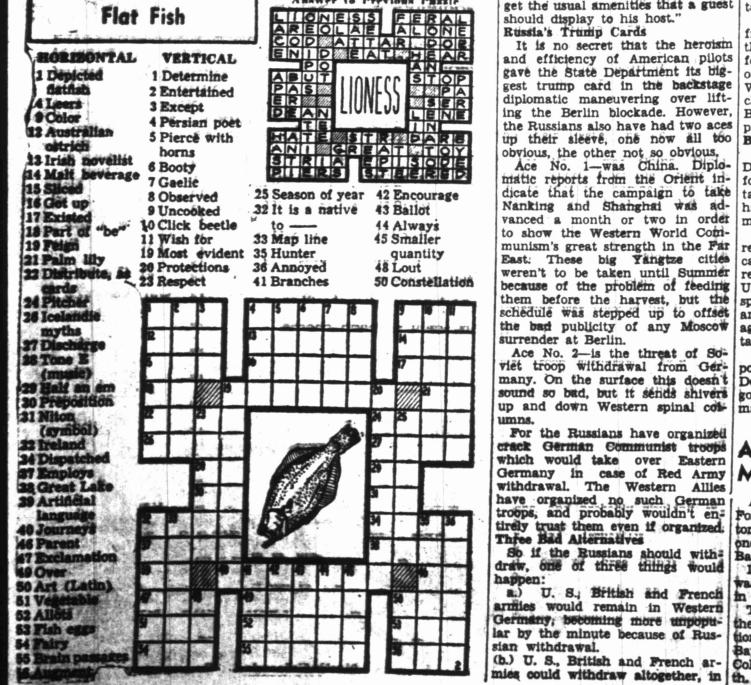

Russia has very nearly destroyed the UN's peacekeeping effectiveness by overworking one of the organization's rules. But could 12 nations restore that effectiveness by assuming the Security Council's function while ignering that rule? It doesn't seem likely.

Soviet charges that the North Atlantic Treaty is out to destroy the UN have been unimpressive. But those charges might get more attention if the treaty members went on from their regional security agreement, which the charter permits, to become a policy-making and policyenforcing arm of the UN, which the charter did not fore-

Russia's Trump Cards

It is no secret that the heroism and efficiency of American pilots gave the State Department its biggest trump card in the backstage diplomatic maneuvering over lifting the Berlin blockade. THE MAN WHO WANTS a finer motor car than the 1949 Cadillac, will have to wait.

He will have to wait until the science of motor car manufacture has reached a higher level. For here—in this gorgeously beautiful creation—is to be found the embodiment of all that is currently good and desirable in an automobile.

It is, in every way, as fine and splendid a motor car as it is practical to produce.

As is true of each succeeding Cadillac model, the advancements in the 1949 car are manifold, and encompass every aspect of the car's goodness. But the year's greatest advance is in the power plant-a wholly new V-type engine which easily ranks as Cadillac's creative masterpiece.

The power flow is so smooth, and so seemingly inexhaustible, that many say the car seems to move by automatic propulsion. Performance is really a challenge to the imagination.

If you wish to know how truly wonderful a motor car can be, you are cordially invited to call at our showrooms for a look and a ride.

You are welcome at any time-regardless of the price class from which you expect your next car to come.
