School Notes

(This department is edited by students of the Sanderson High School.)

Monday morning, the new minister Reverend Eickley, gave the school assembly a short talk which everyone enjoyed.

The manual training boys have put shelves in the school rooms and in the halls.

Miss McGuire entertained the school assembly Tuesday morning, with a reading in a negro dialect and a song in Spanish.

The high school basketball team played the town team Tuesday evening. The score was a 32 to 21 victory for the high school team.

In physics class discussing diffusion of gases:

Mr. White: "I'll lay two rotten eggs on the table and crack the shell."

John: "Wait, I'll bet you five dollars you can't."

Mr. Mac: "Clyde classify a chair."

Clyde: "Well, it's something with four legs, a back, and a bottom—at this there was an out burst of laughter."

Batteries overhauled $12.00; see Parker Auto Co.

D. L. Duke, a brakeman from El Paso, happened to a very painful accident while switching in the yards here Thursday night. His foot was very badly mashed and he was taken to El Paso to the hospital. Mr. Duke is a brother of Mrs. Edmiston.

CARD OF THANKS

Through the columns of the Sanderson Times I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the voters of Terrell county for the magnificent support given me at the polls last Tuesday. The confidence and trust you placed in me by electing me to the office of Sheriff and Tax Collector will be my guide and it will be my aim to so conduct the affairs of the office as to merit this faith and confidence. In taking over the office it will become my duty to enforce the law, and this I will endeavor to do impartially, without fear or favor.

Again thanking you one and all, I am
Very sincerely yours,
F. N. Harrell.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank my friends that stayed by me in the recent election, though they could see that I was bound to be defeated. To those that was for me at one time and turned to the other side at the last moment, I want them to know that I do not consider them as a friend. I again thank and appreciate those that voted for me.

John M. Edwards
CARD OF THANKS

It is with pleasure that I take this opportunity to thank each and every voter of Terrell county, for their assistance in re-electing me to the office of Tax Assessor. Trusting that my work in the future will be satisfactory. Thanking you again for your vote and support.

W. J. Ferguson.
CARD OF THANKS

I sincerely thank every voter who supported me at the polls on the 7th.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank the people of Sanderson and Terrell county for the wonderful support and large vote you gave me in Tuesday's election. I also thank you for your faith in having me take the office as County and District Clerk for another term, which is appreciated, and will always be remembered. I will gladly serve you in the future as I have always done in the past. Again I thank you, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
Luella Lemons.

CARD OF THANKS

At this time I wish to express to the citizens of Terrell county my sincere appreciation for the magnificent vote given me at the polls last Tuesday. And altho I had a deep and earnest desire to be elected to the office I sought, yet I cannot feel despondent at my defeat, for far and above my personal feeling arises the glorious picture of the sincere loyalty and devotion of my friends who stood so faithfully by me. This I can never forget. And to those who voted against me I have only the kindest of feelings. Again thanking you one and all, I am,

Very sincerely,
Henry Gates.

CARD OF THANKS

I take this method of expressing my thanks to the people of Terrell county for the large vote given me in Tuesday's election. Your expression of faith in returning me to the office of County Treasurer is appreciated and will be long remembered. It will be my earnest endeavor to serve your interests in the future as I have done in the past. Again thanking you, I am,

Sincerely yours,

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the citizens of Terrell county for the splendid support given me in the general election last Tuesday and especially do I wish to thank those who voted for me. During the time I have served you as County Judge, I have made many mistakes, and I am sure that I shall make many more, and yet I feel that the Great Teacher, as well as the school of experience, has taught me many things the better qualifying me to serve you in a more efficient manner. It shall be my earnest effort to so conduct the affairs of the county coming under my supervision that I may ever be worth of the confidence shown in returning me to the office which I now hold. I earnestly solicit your co-operation in every laudable undertaking and especially the upbuild of our Public Schools. It is a great pleasure to be remembered thus by one's friends and I again thank you greatly for it.

Sincerely,
G. J. Henshaw.

MOTHER, CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will quickly start liver and bowel action and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Fig Syrup" because it never fails to work the sour bile and constipation poison right out of the little stomach and bowels without cramping or overacting. Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

CONSTIPATION

Take a good dose of Carter's Little Liver Pills—then take 2 or 3 for a few nights after. They cleanse your system of all waste matter and Regulate Your Bowels. Mild—as easy to take as sugar. Genuine bear signature—Small Pill. Small Dose. Small Price.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and averting kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

DEPOSITORY BANKS WILL REPAY STATE

There Will Be Due Approximately $1,000,000 On Or Before December 31.

Austin, Tex.—It now transpires that of the approximately $1,000,000 of state funds tied up in depository banks, which obtained an extension within which to repay the state, not one dollar of it belongs to the general revenue or to the school fund. A statement to this effect was made Wednesday by State Treasurer Terrell. The $1,000,000 belongs to various other state funds, of which there are quite a number.

It was further announced by the state treasurer that the state depository board has decided not to extend the time for these banks to repay the state funds because of the possibility of the next legislature repealing the present law, which authorized such extension.

None of the extensions go beyond December 31 and a number expire before that date. Most of them will be able to repay all or part of the state's money, Mr. Terrell said. Some will no doubt ask for a further extension.

"Our policy," declared Mr. Terrell, "will be to hold these applications in abeyance until the legislature can indicate its policy, either by repealing the present law or permitting us to make further extensions. However, since the legislature does not meet until some time in January some of these banks may be able to pay out before action can be taken. We have no intention of crowding or embarrassing the crippled depository banks, but only to wait for legislative declaration."

At the close of business Tuesday the deficiency in the general revenue fund had gone close to $2,000,000. The half-million-dollar state pay roll for this month is what caused the deficiency to mount high.

A number of transfers are to be made and a small payment will soon be made on the unpaid part of last year's scholastic apportionment, which is due $1 per child. The sum of 50¢ per capita will easily be paid some time in November. After that there will be another 50¢ payment and both must be made before any payments are made on the 110 apportionment for the current scholastic session. It is already behind. The local district taxes are now supporting the schools as no money has come from the state.

Mr. Terrell thinks it will easily be the middle of February or possibly March before the deficiency is wiped out.

Murguia Executed By Federal Firing Squad

Mexico City.—General Francisco Murguia, the rebel leader, was executed by a firing squad Thursday, at Tepic, Jalisco, Durango, after a brief court-martial, it was announced Friday from the presidential offices. Murguia, the announcement said, met death calmly.

Surprised by federal forces while asleep in a tiny room behind the high altar of the Catholic church at Tepic, Murguia, a follower of President Carranza, and one of the most persistent of President Obregon's enemies, was given a hasty court-martial and sentenced to pay the penalty of death.

Thursday morning he was led over a hill and, in the presence of the native population was shot by a detail of men who had been chosen to execute the order of the court.

According to reports Murguia for the past few weeks had been a fugitive. Following the dispersal of his rebel gang at Guadalupe, Durango, and with less than a dozen adherents remaining with him, he had been living the life of a hunted man. He was definitely located at Tepic, Jalisco, when an Indian maiden, friendly to the federalists, slipped into the federal camp and divulged his hiding place to General Abraham Carmona, who immediately surrounded the village.

Carmona was told by the girl that Murguia was being sheltered by the village curate, Father Cazares, and the soldiers silently took possession of the church when the priest was saying his office. Father Cazares at first disclaimed all knowledge of Murguia.

September Taxes Show Decrease.

Washington.—Classified government taxes received for September showed a decrease of more than $276,000,000 as compared with the same month last year. The internal revenue bureau announced this week. Teethina Ends Babies' Colds In a Twinkling

Mothers all over the South are fast learning that Teethina, the wonderful prescription of a famous physician, is the best remedy on earth for breaking up a baby's cold almost overnight.

Thousands are testifying that Teethina stopped their children's colds while they slept and scores of others say whenever their baby starts sneezing or the nose begins running, they just give them Teethina and that's the end of the cold.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the necessity of breaking up a child's cold before it gets a hold and thereby preventing serious troubles, such as bronchitis, tonsillitis, the terrible mastoiditis and many other dangerous troubles of children. Wise mothers know this and always keep Teethina on hand.

Your druggist sells it or the Mofett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., will send you a regular size package and a valuable booklet on the care of the baby, if you will send them 30c.—Advertisement.

R.R. LABOR BOARD ON "LIVING WAGE" PLEA

Two Groups of Rail Labor Board Declare Idea Communistic.

Chicago, Ill.—Attacking the theory of the "living wage" as a basis for determining the wages of railroad workers, the public and railroad groups of the United States railroad labor board in an opinion made public Monday declared that such a course "if carried to its legitimate conclusion would wreck every railroad in the United States and if extended to other industries would carry them into communistic ruin."

The opinion in the form of a rejoinder to a dissenting opinion filed by K. O. Wharton, labor leader in the recent decision, increasing the payment of maintenance of way employees two cents an hour, declared that if the employees were granted a 72 to 75 cent minimum wage for common labor with corresponding differentials for other classes, an increase of 125.7 per cent in the nation's railroad wage bill would be necessary. This opinion, he said, would add $3,112,952,287 to the annual payroll, bringing it to $5,589,445,993, which would mean, it added, an annual deficit to the carriers of $2,341,639,518.

Even if the 48-cent minimum wage requested by maintenance of way union men were granted and corresponding changes were made for other classes of employees, the opinion said an increase of 50.45 per cent in wages would be necessary, adding $1,249,390,994 to the annual wage bill of the roads, bringing it up to $5,725,844,540, thus forcing the carriers to face an annual deficit of $378,078,125.

The phrase "living wage" was termed in the opinion as "a bit of mellifluous phraseology, well calculated to deceive the unthinking."

"If the contentions were that the board should establish a 'living wage,' the majority would readily accede to the proposition," the opinion said. "As a matter of fact, the board in this instance, as all others, has granted a living wage. But the abstract and elusive thing called the 'living wage,' confessedly based upon a makeshift and a guess, can not receive the sanction of this board, because it would utterly be impracticable and would not be 'just and reasonable' as the law demands."

Mr. Wharton's dissenting opinion, and the supporting opinion in reply are attached to the formal decision increasing the pay of the maintenance of way employees 2 cents an hour, establishing minimums ranging from 25 to 37 cents. The United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers held a strike order affecting 400,000 men in abeyance last July after the board had reduced wages pending a request for an increase based on the contention that living had advanced and wages in other industries had been raised.

When the case came before the board, the maintenance of way employees asked the board to subscribe to the principle of the "living wage" based on a budget of what was required for an average family of five persons to live in health and reasonable comfort. A majority of the board refused to subscribe to this principle, asserting that the transportation act calls for establishing a "just and reasonable" wage and that a just and reasonable wage was in effect a living wage.

The maintenance of way organization asked the board to establish minimum rates of pay of 48 cents an hour to replace rates then in effect ranging from 25 to 35 cents. After a deadlock lasting several days the board made public its decision handed down Sunday increasing rates of pay 2 cents an hour and adding about $20,000,000 to the railroad payroll.

U. S. Cotton Crop Placed At 10,135,000 Bales

Washington.—The world production of all kinds of commercial cotton for the current year will approach 16,750,000 bales, according to figures compiled by the census bureau and made public Friday. From present indications, a statement by the bureau adds the world crop will be about the same as last year. American production for this year has been figured by the department of agriculture at 10,135,000 bales.

Consumption during the year ending July 31, aggregated 20,647,000 bales of the world's supply, according to the bureau's reports. The world stocks on hand on that date were given at 9,546,000 bales.

Funds Are Available.

Austin, Tex.—There is available in the general revenue fund $129,740 and all warrants on that fund up to No. 750, inclusive, will be paid when presented to the state treasury, Treasurer C. V. Terrell announced Saturday. The total deficiency is close to $2,000,000.

Cotton Receipts Reported.

Beckville, Tex.—Up to date 3,200 bales of cotton have been received at Beckville. The crop in the surrounding country is 95 per cent gathered. Cotton has been marketed at Beckville from Harrison, Rusk and Jasper counties.

Bonds Approved.

Austin, Tex.—The attorney general's department has approved a $50,000 sewer bond issue for the city of Iowa Park. These bonds mature serially and bear 6 per cent interest.

MATERIAL HINTS IN BUYING AUTO

Ten Important Points Should Be Given Full Consideration Before Making Purchase.

ECONOMY IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Power to Go Anywhere at Any Time is Desirable as Well as Safety and Convenience—Comfort Must Not Be Overlooked.

A most important investment is the purchase of a motorcar. If the prospective buyer is to get the most out of his investment it is necessary that he be grounded in the essentials of motorcar knowledge beforehand.

Ten Big Points. There are ten important points that the purchaser should consider carefully before making his selection. They are (1) economy, (2) power and flexibility, (3) durability, (4) comfort, (5) safety, (6) convenience, (7) easy riding, (8) beauty, (9) style.

It would be a safe plan if these points were studied in the order named. Economy heads the list because it is the important question of the times. Buy a car having an economical record, one which will give you a maximum amount of mileage for each gallon of gas. This is governed by the type of motor, the bearings, lubrication and weight.

Power is the next important essential to be considered. You do not want to be bounded by any limitations in this respect. You desire to be able to go anywhere and at any time, and for this reason you want power in your automobile.

An asset which we all seek in buying a motorcar is durability. When one considers the amount involved in the investment this is very important. This feature of a car depends upon the character of its maker; his honesty, his wholesome ideals, his standards, his long experience and his successes in the automotive industry. His car is usually as durable as his record.

Make Motoring Enjoyable. Convenience and comfort must not be passed by lightly. Purchase a car which affords those little conveniences which make motoring really enjoyable and free from care.

Follow these rules of selection and the car you eventually purchase will be just a real good one for your purpose.

PROPER MANAGEMENT OF CAR

Running Expenses May Be Reduced by Making Stops Gradually—Also Start Slowly.

When making a stop, close the throttle and withdraw the clutch at a distance from the stop, allowing the momentum to carry the car forward until a very slight pressure on the brake brings it to a standstill. Constantly practicing this little saving will subtract a nice margin from the running expenses. In accelerating, do so gradually, as the engine then uses the entire quantity of fuel fed it, whereas in quick acceleration it gets more than it can employ for the moment.—Farm Life.

PROPER CARE OF REAR AXLE

Lubrication and Correct Adjustment Are Most Important—Avoid Excessive Use of Oil.

The two most important items in the care of the rear axle unit are proper lubricating and correct adjustment. The unit includes the differential, axle shafts and their housing. The gears comprising the differential must turn continuously in oil, usually a very heavy kind, but too much oil should not be used as the excess may work along the axle shafts to the brakes and cause slipping.

TRAVELING HOME IS CONVENIENT

Charles and Helen Polley, playing on the vaudeville circuit, find it cheaper to travel in their own bungalow motorcar than to pay high prices for railroad travel and hotel accommodations. The Polleys have traveled all over the country in their car, a marvel of convenience, while their son David, known as the "Auto-Bungalow Baby" has never known any other home.

You Auto Know

That if the car stops dead in the road the first thing to do—after looking to see if there is a sufficient quantity of gas, oil and water—is to crank the engine, taking care that the gears are in neutral. If the engine turns over hard, this indicates trouble with either the lubricating or cooling system. If it turns over fairly easily, it is not necessary to search for troubles along either of these lines.

The next point to be taken into consideration is that of compression. This can be determined by opening the petcocks on all the cylinders save one and turning the crank two revolutions, noting if there is a resistance during one-fourth of the revolution. In the two complete turns, each cylinder should be tested in this manner and, if one is very weak, the trouble will generally be found in the exhaust valve, or in the inlet valve. The vacuum system leading from the gasoline tank should next come under suspicion and finally the ignition system and the spark plugs should be examined, remembering that, after all, the trouble may lie in such a "trifle" as a loose or wet wire or a speck of dirt in the carburetor. (© by the Wheeler Associates, Inc.)

WHY BATTERY BECOMES WEAK

Drop in Voltage Occurs When Plates Have Absorbed Sulfur, Retarding Acid.

The drop in voltage or the discharged condition of a storage battery occurs when plates within the battery have absorbed the acid in the battery solution. When a battery is discharging this acid goes into the plates and forms a compound of acid and lead, called lead sulfate. It is when this sulfate fills up the pores of the plates, retarding the acid in its circulation into the plates that the battery becomes weak.

Finger Extension

Where the fingers cannot reach, a tool with jaw clamps will. This is a pencil-shaped instrument with a rod running through it holding four jaws at one end. At the other end a spring is compressed, which forces out the jaws. When the jaws are placed over the inaccessible nut or bolt the spring is released and the jaws take a firm hold.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

- Avoid overlubrication.

Pretty Home-Made Gifts

Among Home-Made Toys

Among the things that delight little folks are dolls and small animals made of elderdown flannel or Turkish toweling, and painted with water color paints. The doll and dressed-up kitten pictured here, are among them. The doll's face may be made of a piece of ribbed stocking and the kitten's face and clothes are painted on.

Pretty Neckwear Sets

Every woman loves dainty neckwear and it is twice welcome when the donor herself has made it. There are many pretty sets this year made of white or colored organdie and other sheer fabrics. A collar, vest and cuff set is shown here of white organdie cross-barred with black. Little flowers in red, green and purple floss are embroidered on the pieces in lazy-daisy stitch. For girls Peter Pan collars and cuffs to match are made of checked tissue gingham, edged with ready-made, scalloped trimming of platted organdie, or other edging.

To Frame Fair Faces

Every Christmas brings new breakfast caps. Here are three of them made of net, lace and ribbon in different shapes and decked with tiny ribbon flowers. Each has a short, elastic tape set in a casing across the back, to fit it to the head, and they are among the welcome gifts that can be made by their donors.

Cardboard Doll Cradle

Little girls get much joy out of dolls' furniture. A Dutch cradle and the pieces that make it are shown here, in heavy cardboard. The tabs on the side pieces (Fig. 2) are perforated and slip through slots in the bottom piece (Fig. 1) and through the head and foot boards (Fig. 3). Little wood pegs, thrust through the perforations, hold the pieces together. Fig. 1 is 8 1/2 inches long and 4 inches wide. Fig. 2 is 9 1/2 inches wide at top, 8 1/2 inches at bottom, 2 1/2 inches wide at head, 2 1/2 inches at foot. Fig. 3 is 5 1/2 inches high and 5 1/2 inches wide. The rocker measures 6 1/2 inches across. The cradle may be finished with painted decorations.

Lovely Ribbon Gifts

Some one you know is hoping to find a new pair of garters or a rich ribbon bag in her Christmas stocking and here are garters and bags that are guaranteed to please. One pair of the garters is made of narrow silver ribbon finished with tiny ribbon roses. Satin ribbon and narrow black lace make the other pair. Black moire ribbon with silver filigree mounting and ring handles serve for the handsome bag lined with rose colored satin. The other bag uses black and silver brocade with a tortoise shell mounting.

A Graceful Lantern

No decoration will be more effective in dressing up the house at Christmas time than lanterns and candle shades of crepe paper and tinsel. A graceful lantern is illustrated here, made on a wire frame over which the paper covering is pasted and cut-out figures are pasted to the sides. The long tassels may be of tinsel or crepe paper. Festoons of flower petals, strung on cords, finish this pretty decoration.

Things That Men Like

Here is a decorative bag, of printed cotton challie 25 inches long and 17 inches wide. A scalloped edge turns up over a straight edge at the bottom and each scallop has a buttonhole, fastening over a glass button. The bag is supported by a coat hanger, faced at the top and bottom with plain challie and French knots made of heavy zephyr decorate it. Hung in the closet it makes a handy receptacle for folded collars and handkerchiefs, which are thrust in at the top and fall out at the bottom when the bag is unbuttoned. Men like such conveniences.

Rich Table Scarfs

Very handsome scarfs for the library table are made of black velvet with an applique of wide brocaded ribbon down the center. They are a little shorter than the table and have fish-tail ends with a silk tassel pendant from each point.

She Loathed Extravagance

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Everybody knew Miss Jessie Kapper for a person of the highest principles; that was not so well known was that her thrift, which was alike hereditary and habitual, forbade use of the principles for every day. She spoke eloquently of the larger vision, world humanity, harmony with cosmic law, above all, the crying need of the uplift. She was, further, more than generous of her time and her breath for all manner of causes that might serve as pedestals. Notwithstanding, there were chuckles from the unregenerate mass over the washerwoman's verdict: "Hit ain't only that she wants to be bell-wether or no sheep—somebody else must pay for the bell."

She looked exceedingly well to the ways of the household—her mother was an invalid, her father away half the time in congress. That gave her added prestige, if she didn't go to Washington with the general. Her mother was excuse quite sufficient—and daughterly devotion was thus an added asset. She paid cash for everything save her subscription to church and charity—for them she set apart the increment of her small economies.

She loathed extravagance—especially the Carroll Beaton sort. Carroll also kept house for a rather helpless family—a pretty, frightened, incapable mother, and a scientific father, who lost himself in his work. Luckily they had a fixed income—a fairish one—but Carroll wore clothes it pained Mrs. Grundy to see, admittedly because she could not afford better. Yet she bought the best of everything in market—not always the costliest rarities, but the best of its sort. She kept a maid for her mother, and a man-cook, who also looked after the lawn and the laboratory both, at wages that seemed fabulous to Allentown, the while doing her own sewing, and even making over her hats. She had little parties, too—very simple—cake and ice cream or tea and sandwiches in cherry or strawberry time—the fruit serving in place of sweets. There was dancing, too, on the piazza or the grass, to the phonograph that was Mamma Beaton's consolation. New records for it, costly ones at that, further jarred Miss Kapper's amiability. So badly, indeed, she said outright to her gossip, Miss Susan Effe: "If ever anybody needed a guardian it is Carroll Beaton—unless she gets one of some sort, she'll die on the town."

"She can get a mighty fine one, any minute she'll say 'yes,'" Susan returned smiling slyly.

Miss Kapper bridled, saying acidly: "You don't really believe John Huntly has serious intentions? I know he goes there right along—but it's to see the professor, same as it has always been."

"Maybe he's saltin' the old cow for the calf—but I have my doubts," from the gossip. Miss Kapper opened her lips to speak, but shut them with a snap of the jaws on what she had meant to say, running on after a minute to her fall clothes—which meant making some few new ones and making over many that had seen service. Dried, re-cut and refurbished they would look new and wear just as well—and such a saving! Jennie Britt, the little old maid dressmaker, charged so moderately even Carroll Beaton could afford her—if only she would, and so obliging—always ready to turn, and contrive, make the most of every scrap of lace or trimming—and never send in a bill till the end of the quarter. Jennie was an institution, said Miss Kapper, and "John Huntly'll agree to that," said Miss Susan. "He goes there every little while to hear her tell about his mother—they were little girls together, and went to the same school. She gave him his first case when he started law-practice—I shall always say she'd never a-gone and saved the Prices on that last land note if she hadn't wanted to show folk what John could do."

"The land money safe in a 7 per cent mortgage, Jenny Britt felt she could let it ride, a sure provision for age or illness, meanwhile earning a trifle more than she spent to live if she did work so cheap. She had rooms downtown—two, shabby but clean always and rather cheery by lamplight. John Huntly found them so upon a rainy October evening, whose early lack had somehow made him lose relish for work. Aunt Jennie would brace him up—she was so birdlike, always cheery, no matter where the wind sat. She would give him tea, just the sort he liked—not too strong—clear and very hot, with rose leaves she had candied herself, floating in it, dark blurs against his single eggshell cup. They were in the kitchen brewing it when there came a merry rattle upon the outer door.

Miss Jennie smiled to hear it. "Sit still here and don't you peep," she adjured her first visitor over her shoulder as she vanished, leaving the door ajar.

Next minute he heard Carroll saying gaily: "Ah, ha. Keeping blind Jack's holiday, Miss Jen! Don't blame you—rain always makes me lazier than usual. So I had to rush out in it to bring you these—just a few late peaches, and some pears not yet melow. Mother said you must have some the minute she saw them. No—can't sit down—company coming to supper tonight—give back my basket—I'll want to fill it for somebody else." Word rushed on word—Huntly could picture the speaker's vivid face. He had known her all his life. He had never dared tell her his hopes—and fears. Possibly because having still his way to make, he had felt her beyond his reach. Miss Kapper, of whom he saw a good deal, both in business and socially, was perhaps to blame for the feeling. He liked her cordially—she was so sensible, likewise so kindly—always interested in his prospects, and overflowing with woman-sympathy for cases of need. She had shed the balm of her sympathy even upon Carroll—such a pity, the dear, brilliant girl was hampered as she was—no chance to train herself for a career—what would become of her when her mother died, and the annuity with her, Miss Kapper could not guess, unless Carroll were wise and lucky enough to make a good marriage.

All this was nebulously at the back of Huntly's mind, when he heard Aunt Jen, saying briskly: "You've got a new frock child—never mind how I know—so you bring it here tomorrow. I'll make it in time for the Allen's party if I have to sew Sundays."

"Get these behind me, Britt—you know I can't afford it," Carroll interrupted.

"There'll be nothin' to pay—I'd love to do it—good as you are to me," from Miss Jennie.

"Bless your heart, I can't afford that any more than the other thing, you angel-sparrow," from Carroll. "One reason I've never come to you for work was—it hurts me to see you get so little—you cheat yourself in every stitch you set."

With that she rushed away, heedless of Aunt Jen's protest. But that lady was scarcely settled to tea cups before another knock, solid, precise but imperative. Half a minute later Miss Kapper was saying softly: "You put in that lining so beautifully, Miss Britt. I've brought another job of the same sort. And I shall tell everybody how reasonable you are. Why, the tailor asked eight dollars to reline the coat—and you did it for three. Now, if you'll put the old lining—it is perfectly good except at the neck, and there's plenty of it, in this other coat, I'll be quite willing to pay you the same price."

"You ought to be!" Miss Britt said firmly. "But—I don't put in old linings—they never fit. If you're in a hurry I've some stuff would answer—"

"Not for my purpose," from Miss Kapper frostily. "You may like to practice extortion—I'll be no party to it. Either you use the old material—or I'll take the work to somebody else."

"Good riddance!" Miss Britt ejaculated. A half minute later the door slammed—hard.

At the sound Huntly came from the kitchen saying with an angry laugh: "Aunt Jen—my coming tonight was purely providential—"

"I reckoned so myself," from Aunt Jen. "Gave you a chance to see the difference. I've been scared you'd marry that smooth-tongued skinkfin; now, you let her slide—and do your best to make a match with Carroll."

"Just what I shall try to do—with your good help," Huntly answered, giving her a hearty hug.

SMELL CARRIED BY CURRENTS

Experiments Have Been Made to Show the Time Taken for Various Scents to Travel.

The rapid propagation of smells noticed in the open air appears due entirely to currents, since in small tubes, where currents do not exist, the rate is found to be very small. Experiments along this line were first undertaken in England, and additional data have been reported in this country.

With ammonia diffusing through a tube a meter and a half long, more than two hours elapsed before the smell could be detected at the other end of the tube. Using different lengths of tubing, it was found that the time required for the diffusion of the smell was roughly proportioned to the square of the length.

Ammonia and hydrogen sulphide were used for these experiments. The presence of ammonia could be detected chemically at a point in a tube after about the same time as when the sense of smell was used for a detector. The rate of propagation of the smell of ammonia was not markedly different when this had to pass along the same tube either horizontally or vertically downward. With camphor, however, while the rates horizontally and downward were about the same, the speed upward was about twice as great. The smell given to iron and brass by rubbing these with the fingers was also tried, but gave no definite results.

Queer Sheep. You are so used to seeing our domestic sheep with tails which are "nothing to speak of," that you will hardly believe that there are sheep in some parts of the world with tails which weigh as much as 40 to 80 pounds!

These "fat-tailed sheep" are found in northern India and Egypt. The tail is considered a great delicacy, and the Arabs cut it in slices and fry it. But someone who tasted this delicacy said it was very much like fried tallow. In Shanghai there is a breed of sheep which has no external ears, and neither sex has any horns.

NADINE LA VITTE

SYNOPSIS.—The time is the late '80s or early '90s and the scene a steamboat on the Mississippi river. All the types of the period are present and the floating palace is distinguished by meretricious dancing and gaudy music. There are the customary drinking and gambling, also. Virgil Drace, a young northern man, is on his way south on a mission of revenge. He meets an eccentric character in the person of one Liberty Shottle, who is constantly tempting the goddess of chance. They agree to a singular pact. Drace, seeing an opportunity to use Shottle, confides to him that his mission is to find a certain guerrilla, Stephen La Vitte, who had murdered Drace's father. It is his determination to hang La Vitte as high as Haman. Drace falls in love with a striking young beauty on the boat. The steamer reaches New Orleans, at that time in the somewhat turbulent throes of a pecking government. The young men attend the French ball and Drace unexpectedly meets the girl. She is accompanied by one Boyce, apparently her fiance. Shottle learns that the name of the girl is Nadine La Vitte. Drace passes an uneasy night torn by the suspicion that Nadine is the daughter of old Stephen La Vitte, now an admitted outlaw. Now, more than ever, is he resolved to find and hang the girl. Drace finds the place abandoned. Shottle discovers that a case of wine on the steamer is addressed to Stephen La Vitte at Farnum's Landing, Mississippi. It is the next stop below Bethpage's Landing and General Bethpage is Liberty Shottle's uncle. They decide to visit him. Liberty goes back again and swears off again on betting. They are cordially received by the General and his wife.

"Oh, not very much. I am fond of him too, and I believe he is going to be of much help to me."

"Well, I've lost five hundred this morning, but I can stand it. I have ordered the mules hitched up, and am going to drive with you about the plantation. I am going to show you a government here in the delta."

During the drive the old gentleman was talkative, sometimes with the school man's hesitating precision, but more often as the free companion, agreeable rather than discursive. Drace evinced in everything a keen interest, but it was not real. His heart was not with him. It was in New Orleans, in a narrow street where boards were nailed across a door.

From what he had been able to gather from the General and by talking in seeming idleness to boatmen and to men along the River, Drace confirmed the information snatched by Shottle from the label on the Frenchman's wine case—namely, that old Stephen had a haunt somewhere in the neighborhood. A shrewd old negro had said that the outlaw lived in the swamp, in a house built of periwinkle shells. On the opposite shore, and several miles below the General's home, there lay a great wood of cypress and a thick tangle of salt cedar, a sort of everglade, a marsh with hundreds of knoll-islands here and there rising among the bayous. Here was indeed an outlaw's paradise, for Drace was told that not nearly all its lanes and crooked byways of brown water had been explored. Herein he began his search for old Stephen, day after day penetrating farther and farther into this moss-hanging wild. He did not confide in General Bethpage, for his mission was sacred unto himself alone, and by himself alone must it be accomplished.

At his feet in the canoe lay a rope, one end of it a hangman's noose, and he smiled at it, grim and firm of faith. Sometimes his canoe would stall in the carpet of scum. But he forced his way through into a narrow and unobstructed channel. Now he paddled swiftly. In front of him a great alligator arose and sank, the canoe grilling his scaly back. With a shriek great birds flew, flapping low, their long legs stretched out behind them. Drace was armed with a revolver, but did not wish to fire it, caution warning him. When he ceased for a time to paddle, how still everything was!

The adventurer liked to feel that no one had ever been there before. But now suddenly something caught his eye. In the green tangle on a low bank he saw a pole with vines strung to it, a sort of gate. The vines were covered with vines, trained about them. But for what purpose, here in this bushy tangle? He caught hold of a weed and pulled the canoe up closer, took hold of the pole and now he found a lower slit to which the vines were also attached. Farther along he discovered a sort of hinge attached to a snag almost hidden by briars.

"I'll open this gate and see what lies beyond," he mused, drawing the canoe back to the other end. He pulled at the pole, and it yielded. The gate opened, and through the weeds that appeared to have been bent by the pumping of a boat, he saw a narrow channel of water.

It was easy enough to shove through the weeds and to enter the new canal.

Soon it broadened, winding about among the enormous cypress trees. Now he came upon a widening that looked like a millpond, except that in the midst of it arose an island of tall cane. It was an attractive sight, and he ceased paddling to look. Slowly he drifted toward the island's shore. He took hold of a cane root and pulled the nose of the canoe hard into the bank. Then he got out, parting the stiff and stubborn cane in a shade as dense as night. But now through this parting hallway he could see sunlight beyond, and knew that he was about to come into an open space. And out into it he looked with a start; for there, a few feet from the edge of the fringe of cane, stood a small house made of minute shells cemented—periwinkles. Its roof was of thatch, the long rushes gathered from the swamp; and about the door was a cypress vine, its red blooms dazzling in the sun. And then a banded cane Drace held was crushed in his hand, for through the door and out beneath the vine came the barbaric rose-maid, Nadine La Vitte.

CHAPTER VII

She did not take fright when she saw him. She was startled, but did not run into the house; she stood dazed, her marvelous eyes in wide stare. Slowly he came forward, gazing, his hat in his hand. He dropped the hat, stooped, caught it up and now stood before her.

If she were agitated, he could not discover it. She stood where he held forth his hand, and slowly she shook her head.

"Monsieur, how foolish to come! If you do not go now, in a short time you will die. My father! He will shoot you. I should like it not to see you dead, you are so brave. My father, he will think you come for him."

"But I will tell him that I did not."

He moved nearer, but with her hand raised, palm toward him, she motioned him away.

"You do not know what you talk. Nothing could you tell him, for the gun fire, and you will be no more. Please go away now."

"Oh, it is because you want to get rid of me."

"No, no, no. It is not that. I like you much. You are so brave—and handsome. It is because I fear for you. My father would be angry to have me talk with a northern man. Go now, and for my sake, come no more."

"Mr. Boyce," said Drace then, "is not a northern man?"

She shot a sudden startled look at him. "Mr. Boyce—but he is my father's friend. My father expects me to marry Mr. Boyce. And if my father should come back and find me here talking with you, he would—Please, Mr. Drace, go at once, before it is too late. See, the sun is almost set. The stars come soon, and then through the cane he come. Oh, won't you please be kind to me and go at once!"

"Kind to you? God bless you, I would die for you."

"Oh, you make love soon! But won't you please go now! Quick! I hear something."

"You hear my heart. Let me stay ten minutes, and then I go."

"Ah, but why would you give me ten minutes of fear?"

He saw that her anxiety was real, and his heart smote him for cruelty to this dazzling creature whose father he would hang with a rope brought from the North.

"Yes, I will go. I wanted to tell you something, but my regret at going is so deep that I forget what it was. But I must come again when the sun is not so low. No, tell me please, when that shall be?"

"Never would a man before talk like this to me. . . . But if you must come when I beg you no, let it be next Thursday. My father then will be in the hills to buy cattle."

"This is Friday, and that will be a week, lacking one day. You have not done for my return."

"If you come before, you will not find me. And now it is the good-bye."

She drew back quickly through the door, and down into the fringe of tall cane he went, parting his way to the canoe that lay nosing the mossy bank.

Only now that she was gone and night had come did he remember—remember that the girl who had bewitched the swift minutes with him was the daughter of his sworn enemy Stephen La Vitte.

A voice called him as he was cursing himself for a traitor to his father's memory. On a point of land he saw three men standing. One of them beckoned him, and he turned in toward them. One of them spoke:

"Would you be kind to set us across? The night he comes, and we would not be lost in the swamp. We will get to the river. Would you, please?"

"Yes, but I don't know that my canoe will hold four. We may get a ducking."

He pulled alongside and steadied the canoe while they got in. Now he paddled carefully. The man who had talked, and whom the other two addressed as Toney, requested to be set on a bushy shore where the water was so shallow that the canoe was almost stuck in the ooze. With his paddle Drace propped his craft steady, for them to get out. Toney got out—and with the quickness of a cat snatched a rope from beneath his coat and threw a noose about Drace's arms. Then the two men in the boat threw themselves upon him. There was a hard struggle in the canoe and then out into the water, but they brought him ashore, wound about with the rope.

Now they made haste to tie him securely. The canoe was dragged ashore; Drace stretched out in it, and now they took it on their shoulders and hastened through the tangled underbrush. He had fought hard, but he had not cried out. But as he was carried along, he swore bitterly at himself for not looking at first with suspicion on the brutes who now had him in their power.

"Ah, you would steal about and spy," said Toney. "But you steal about no more. The carpenters, they say, 'You brave?' and you say, 'Yes, I am brave.' Then they say, 'You find old Stephen.' And you go to find him. He is not at home. But his men, they come just in time."

"You are liars. I was—"

"Ah, you come with the joke. Tomorrow, they will laugh. Will you? No, you will not laugh."

Drace lay quietly tugging at the ropes that bound him. If he could spring out free, what a scattering he would make of them! They stopped, entering some sort of doorway, and rested the canoe on the ground. Toney lighted a candle, and Drace saw that he was in an old cabin, almost ready to fall. They rolled him out on the floor, face down, and beneath his arms they passed the paddle of the canoe, so that he could not turn over. Then the others went out, leaving Toney holding the candle.

"Does the kind gentleman know why they gone? They go to get the dry rushes and the dead bark. For why? To make the fire. It is not cold, no! But they will make the fire of the cabin, and when the morning come, there will be the ashes of the kind gentleman, and the people they will say: 'Ah, he lie down to sleep, and burn up!'"

Drace heard them piling their murderous fuel into a crater. Again he appealed to them, cried threats, told them that his friends would hang them; but they laughed, Toney bending over him with the candle.

"In a few minutes I light the blaze and take the candle away. . . . You talk of Stephen's daughter. Remember she may love me some, too."

"You Spanish devil!"

"The kind gentleman be come close. I'm Portuguese, but no matter. When Stephen come, we tell him what we do, and he put us on the back and give us money. But the light would hurt the kind gentleman's eyes when he lie that way on his jaw. I will not stoop so low with the candle. . . . Oh, what a fine pile they get! It will make the blaze beautiful. All ready, yes? I will touch it off."

Drace could not see him, but he heard the first crackle of the dried rushes, saw the flame dim the candle light. Now he cried aloud, the men laughing, the mounting flame crackling louder. Toney came back to him.

"We leave you now. You will not need this candle to light you to bed; so I blow it out, see? And I take it with me."

They hastened out, and he heard them laughing as they ran through the underbrush. With all his harnessed might he strove to break the paddle so that he might roll toward the door, but it was strong, and he broke only the tip of the blade. A louder crackling told him that the dry boards above were catching. Soon the roof would fall in; great sparks would fly upward, fall and hiss in the water.

Why should he lie there, seeing all this in his mind, he wondered. He had read that men approaching death sometimes speak foolish words, and here he lay, with his mind on trivial things. Soon he would writhe in a furnace. How all about him glared! He wondered how long it would be before a tongue of flame should lick him with its agony. . . .

"And then he spoke: 'God bless you, Nadine!'"

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Will Hit the Enemy at Thirty Miles

WASHINGTON.—Two instruments which, it is declared, will revolutionize the art of coast defense, are being exhibited in the ordinance department here, and later will be installed at Panama to control the fire of the big guns in the canal defenses.

The instruments comprise a system of ranging and following a moving enemy ship. They are operated electrically and adjusted automatically. They add, subtract, multiply, divide and make allowance for many factors controlling the flight of a big shell.

Visitors to the larger coast defense stations often wonder how it is possible for the gunners to hit a ship with a five or six-foot projectile shot from a gun 70 or 80 feet in length, when the enemy is as far off as 30 miles. In the days of the Civil war when small cannon shot iron balls weighing 15 or 20 pounds, the range was usually point blank, the enemy ship loomed large as a target and the gun-pointer sighted by gazing along the barrel.

These two new instruments are called the target computer and battery computer. They are directed by two high-powered telescopes located at fixed observation stations in the vicinity of the harbor defense. On sighting an enemy ship the observations are transmitted electrically to the two calculating instruments, where the exact location of the enemy ship is computed.

These new instruments, the fruit of several years' constant work and experiment, predict the advance location of the moving enemy, make allowances for the temperature of powder, type of shell, atmospheric pressure, direction and velocity of the wind and the drift of the shell caused by the big gun's rifling. Under the present system all these factors are added, subtracted and otherwise checked up and accounted for by human range finders.

Uncle Sam to Keep Tab on Sun Spots

UNCLE SAM and the Western Union Telegraph company, which was damaged to the extent of a quarter of a million dollars by a sunspot in May of last year, are now developing a system of precautions against sunspots like that of the mariner and farmer against the weather.

The sunspots shower the earth with excess electrical current, producing the electrical storms which now and then paralyze telegraph, cable and telephone service. Arrangements have been made with the United States Naval observatory for a regular bulletin service on the condition of sunspots. Whenever a new one appears on the rim of the sun and starts to move around where it will be in a position to volley the earth with electrical showers, notice is sent from the observatory to the Western Union of fields. In return for this service the Western Union is preparing to collect information on a large scale on electrical currents, their strength and direction, and their apparent connection with sunspots.

Sunspots occur in eleven-year cycles. The present year is near the middle of the cycle, or in the period when the sunspots are fewest. Last year was a time when few sunspots were normal.

It burned out fuses and short-circuited apparatus all over this country, caused fires in Europe, and probably caused one in a railroad yard in Washington. It damaged cables so badly that the Western Union had to send out a repair shop to put them in good order.

Where Science Will Tell All About It

HAVE you ever seen the sun's spots? Have you ever seen demonstrated Foucault's celebrated pendulum experiment to prove the rotation of the earth? Have you ever watched the antics of minute Infusorians swimming in water?

With the completion of the new home of the National Academy of Sciences at Washington, these things will be a regular part of the interesting exhibits open to the public.

It is hoped to have the building completed by the fall of 1923. It will be located near the recently dedicated Lincoln memorial and will be three stories high. The first floor will be given over to the public and museum purposes, where many scientific facts will be demonstrated. The two upper floors will be devoted to offices.

The main demonstration feature will be under a dome in the central lobby, where the sun-spot phenomena will be demonstrated.

Foucault's experiment demonstration will be embodied in a 65-foot pendulum swinging in a wide arc. The swinging pendulum will mark an invariable direction in space, and as the earth revolves beneath it rotation will be plainly shown by the steady change in direction of the pendulum's swing over the divided arc. Here the pressure of light, earthquake action, magnetic storms, the gravitational pull of small masses, the growth of plants, living bacteria and other phenomena will be the subjects of other exhibits.

In the seven exhibition rooms surrounding the central rotunda, the latest results of scientific and industrial research will be demonstrated.

One week there may be displayed the latest forms of radio telephony and the next perhaps a set of psychological tests or a new find of fossils or a series of synthetic compounds.

The building, designed to cost $5,000,000, was the gift of the Carnegie corporation. The ground was bought with a fund of $200,000 collected by donations throughout the country.

The building will be of marble in classic simplicity.

"Dead Letter Sales" a Popular Sport

ATTENDING "dead letter sales" is a popular sport in Washington. A local auction house is crowded to the doors when the government puts up at auction an accumulation of several months' unclaimed and unmailable parcel-post matter.

Some people have an idea that a dead letter sale is conducted along lottery lines. A glimpse into the auction room would bear out this impression. No other goods are in sight. The auctioneer, high above the crowd, is rattling off as fast as he can:

"Lot number twelve—at $5, at $5, $6, at $7; yours for $7, Mr. Brown."

Then without a pause for breath, the auctioneer is rattling off the next number and calling for bids. The bidders in the crowd are closely following the sale by their catalogues, but these give only the most general description of each lot of goods. Apparently they are buying in the dark.

This is not the case, however. The day before the sale the articles to be sold are on display. Long rows of packing boxes with labels between them range the length of the auction room. Each box contains one lot of goods. Scarcely any articles are disposed of singly at these sales when

FASCISTI NOW IN CONTROL AT ROME

Benito Mussolini, the Fascisti Leader, Names Members of New Cabinet.

Rome.—The triumphant entry of Fascisti troops into Rome Thursday was the apotheosis of Italy's bloodless revolution. Old Romans who witnessed the entry of the soldiers of the King of Italy into the capital of his newly welded kingdom on September 26, 1870, wept for joy and vowed that October 31, 1922, will forever mark a great epoch in Italy's national life. For today she has been saved from bolshevism.

The younger generation, which in a few days accomplished this tremendous change in Italy's political aspect, will look back upon their youthful leader, Benito Mussolini, as those veterans with dimmed eyes Thursday recalled Garibaldi!

Rome.—Fascismo now governs all Italy. With completion of his cabinet Tuesday Benito Mussolini had rigorously carried the first objective of the fascist's program—selection of only such men of the highest technical competence.

"Not a ministry, but a government," he had promised a great throng earlier in the day and the personnel of his cabinet, overwhelmingly fascist, indicates his intention to make that government fulfill the ideals of fascism.

This is completed one of the most amazing "bloodless" revolutions in modern history. Twenty-four hours ago thousands of fascist, armed and well supplied with ammunition, were concentrated at the gates of Rome and other strategic points, ready to act on a signal from their leader. But King Victor Emmanuel, overruling the Facta action, which insisted that a state of siege be declared, summoned Mussolini and asked him to form a government. At this moment revolution, possibly civil war, was averted.

With scarcely a drop of blood having been spilled, Mussolini is the new premier and has formed his government.

Meantime the fascist generalissimo, Balbo, issued general orders to fascisti concentrated at Monterotondo, Santa Marinella, Folligno and Tivoli, not to abandon or leave their present posts, but to await final orders. Mussolini is expected either to give these squads permission to enter Rome for a final demonstration or else order them to return to their home cities if their presence is no longer necessary to the fascist cause.

The new cabinet was announced Tuesday as follows:

Premier minister of the interior and foreign affairs, Benito Mussolini; minister of war, General Armando Diaz; minister of marine, Vice Admiral Thaon di Revel; minister of the treasury, Prof. Luigi Einaudi (nationalist); minister of industry, Theophile Rossi (nationalist); minister of finance, Signor de Stefani (Fascisti); minister of colonies, Luigi Federsoni (nationalist); minister of liberated regions, Signor Guirriati (Fascisti); minister of justice, Aldo Oviglio (Fascisti); minister of education, Signor Gentile (democrat); minister of agriculture, Luigi Capitanio (Fascisti); minister of public works, Signor Carnazza (nationalist); minister of posts and telegraphs, Signor di Cesara (nationalist); minister of social welfare, Stefano Cavazzoni (catholic). Four Fascisti and one democrat were appointed sub-secretaries.

Prior to the selection of his cabinet and directly after his interview with King Victor Emmanuel Mussolini, addressing the great crowds from the balcony of a hotel, declared with great emphasis:

"We have not accepted the form of ministry, but have accepted the form of government." He laid great stress on the word "government," at which the crowd cheered. "And," he added, "Italy will have a government from now on."

Mussolini then called upon the crowd to acclaim "Long live the king!" "Long live Italy!" "Long live the Fascisti!" The fact that the former revolutionist, now Italy's premier, placed the king first was commented upon and cheered by the multitude.

Rev. B. M. Bridges Gives Facts in His Case

It is doubtful if there has ever been a medicine endorsed by so many ministers of the Gospel as has Tanlac. Indeed, there is scarcely a faith, creed or denomination in all the land in which one, or more, of the clergymen has not publicly expressed their indebtedness to the Premier Preparation for the benefits they have derived from its use.

One of the latest to speak out in this connection is Rev. B. M. Bridges, a widely known and beloved Baptist preacher, residing at Mooresboro, N. C., whose statement follows:

"Tanlac has given me a good appetite, toned up my system and renewed my strength in such a gratifying way that I am glad to recommend it to anyone who is in a run-down condition. For ten years just I have had such a severe case of indigestion that I could not find anything to eat that agreed with me. Finally I came very nervous and could get but very little sleep or rest.

"It seems that I took nearly everything trying to get myself right, but nothing helped me until I ran across Tanlac. My nerves are so much better now that my sleep is sound and refreshing. I enjoy my meals and have also gained weight. I can say from experience that Tanlac is a splendid medicine and tonic, for it has built me up wonderfully."

CALOMEL GOOD BUT TREACHEROUS

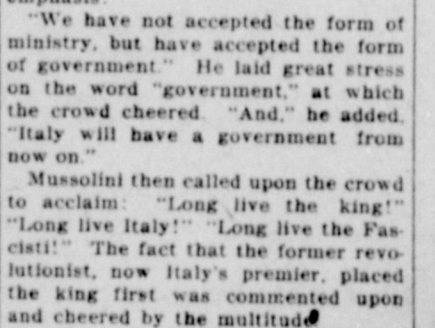

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your system like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

Texas News

An active campaign has started to carry the road bond issue of $1,500,000 to be voted on by citizens of Anderson County on November 21.

The contract for 13 1/2 miles of hard surface road between Huntington and Zavalla, a part of highway No. 7, was let this week.

Building permits issued in Houston during 1922 passed the $12,000,000 mark, the month of October closing at $12,003,155.

Twenty-two hundred bales of cotton have been ginned by the two gins at Livingston. The total number of bales last year ginned was only 750.

Approximately 20,000 bales of cotton have been gathered in Williamson County up to date, with a possible 5000 or 6000 more before the season is over.

Shipping reports for the month of October show a total of 106 arrivals and departures at Port Houston, an increase of 29 over the preceding month.

An issue of $35,000 Milam County's road district No. 5 bonds, payable serially and bearing 5 1/2 per cent interest, has been approved by the attorney general's department.

The war trophy committee appointed by Governor Neff met at Austin recently for the first time and discussed means and methods of distributing Texas' share of the war relics.

The city officials of Lockhart have lately installed four large motor gravel trucks, in addition to the large number of wagons in use for many years, in keeping up 16 miles of graveled streets.

At a meeting of the commissioners court at Angleton at which stock men of Brazoria County were present it was decided to continue dipping in all cases where the cattle were not clean of ticks.

A total of 282 foreign and coastwise vessels entered and cleared the port of Galveston during the month of October, showing an increase of 55 vessels entering and clearing over the total number of vessels for the previous month.

Wheat exported from Texas City during the month of October amounted to 665,000 bushels, according to the monthly statement of the Texas City board of trade. Of this amount 213,000 bushels went to Italy, 332,200 bushels to Antwerp and 120,000 bushels to Rotterdam.

During month of October 1,567,000 bushels of wheat were loaded at the port of Galveston. These figures indicate a decrease of 335,600 bushels as compared with the total of 1,902,600 bushels exported in September. Wheat and rye loadings for the month of October total 1,601,285 bushels.

The military camp at McAllen will be abandoned October 31, according to information made public at Fort Brown. The detachment stationed at the camp will be transferred to Fort Ringgold. Camp McAllen was the last of the national guard camps erected on the lower border during the guard mobilization.

A wolf club has been organized at Killen with a number of sheep men as charter members. A bounty of $25 minimum was adopted for each wolf killed and this was paid during the first meeting to Wilsie Mitchell. The county will become larger as the membership increases, as it is planned to assess each member $1 for every wolf exterminated. Wolves are a growing menace to sheep and turkeys in the Killen section and a determined effort will be made to bring about extinction.

Twenty-five vessels cleared from Beaumont during October, carrying a total of 37,836,908 gallons of oil and 4,799,798 feet of lumber, more than 85,000 pockets of clean rice, 300 tons of flour, around 100 tons each of packing house and refinery products, 30 head of live stock and much miscellaneous cargo.

As an inducement to get natural gas piped into Tyler the chamber of commerce at a recent meeting offered a bonus of $25,000 to a Shreveport firm to build a pipe line from Marshall to Tyler, a distance of about 75 miles. The proposition gives the company 10 days in which to accept and 30 days to work out all details of the contract and agreement.

An effort is on foot at Brownsville to promote purchasing of home grown products in preference to those which are produced elsewhere. A number of business houses are behind a movement designed to encourage the use of local products as an aid to the farmer and grower of the Brownsville section who are sometimes without a profitable market for their products.

According to the federal tick inspector stationed at Columbus, the systematic dipping of cattle in Colorado County will be continued through the winter. This, however, applies only to herds that have not been rid of the ticks during the past summer. The work will be lightened up during the winter by lengthening the dipping periods from two to three weeks. The herds that are declared clean will not be required to dip during the winter. Only a few herds in the brushy section of the county are now infested with ticks.

DAUGHTER HAD TO HELP MOTHER

Now Can Do All Her Household Alone Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Jasper, Minn. — "I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took it because I was having such pains in my stomach and through my back that I could not do my work. I had tried other medicines, but none did me the good that your Vegetable Compound did. Now I am able to do all my work alone while before I had my daughter staying at home to do it. I have told a number of friends what it has done for me and give you permission to use my letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. JESSIE PETERSEN, Route 1, Jasper, Minn.

There is no better reason for your trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound than this—it has helped other women. So if you suffer from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or are passing through the Change of Life remember this splendid medicine. What it did for Mrs. Petersen it may do for you.

The Vegetable Compound stands upon a foundation of nearly fifty years of service.

Novel Alarm Devised by New Yorker to Discourage Depravations of Nocturnal Visitors.

Exasperated by nightly raids of small boys on his grape arbor, a Sheepsherd Bay (N. Y.) resident has stopped their depredations by attaching cowbells to the vines. The slightest pull at the tempting fruit jingles the alarm and puts the intruder to flight.

The sandy soil near the bay is particularly adapted for grapes and most of the other houses have large arbors in the back yard. Boys from the newer houses, which have no arbors, began to call under the cover of darkness even before the grapes were ripe. They not only took the fruit, but ruined the vines by crawling and stumbling over the arbor.

But the cowbell alarm brings the owner to the door and a second source is generally avoided by the boys. Several neighbors, noting the efficiency of the system, have also installed cowbells among their grape vines.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE CLUB

The Wednesday Bridge Club met with Mrs. J. C. Green, at her home. Patriotic colors and idea prevailed, a basket of the red and the white chrysanthemums was lovely, and other vases of red roses, and the red zinnias were there.

Five games were played, Mrs.
 Bogusch having high score, Mrs.
 Roy King second high. Miss Sybil McKee out low and won consolation prize.

Two courses were served,
 chicken salad, olives, bread and butter sandwiches, crackers, and salted almonds, hot coffee,
 then a fruit gelatine with whipped cream, and an elegant piece of cake. Clever little favors of vari-shaped caps added fun and a laugh to the afternoon.

RED CROSS PUTS UP $9,739,872

Year's Budget Stresses Relief and Services at Home and Overseas.

MILLIONS FOR VETERAN AID

Over $3,000,000 Allotted to the Disabled—Foreign Work
 Lessens.

Washington—Expenditures totaling $9,739,872.47 for carrying through its program of services and relief during the fiscal year in the United States and overseas are authorized in the budget of the American Red Cross, effective July 1, 1922. This total is $2-735,975 less than the expenditures for the last fiscal year, when disbursements reached $12,475,847.03, it is announced at National Headquarters in a statement emphasizing the necessity of continued support of the organization by enrollment during the annual Roll Call, November 11-November 30 inclusive. This total for the budget is exclusive of the large financial operations of the 3,300 active Red Cross Chapters, which, it is estimated, will more than double the total.

War Veterans Have First Call

First call on Red Cross funds is for the disabled ex-service men, of whom 27,487 were receiving treatment from the Government on June 1 last. This work for veterans and their families in a wide variety of service that the Government is not authorized to render and for which it has neither funds nor facilities has the call on $3,000,000 during the current year, or about $300,000 more than was expended last year for soldier service.
 Adding the funds disbursed in this humanitarian work of physical reconstruction following the World War by the chapters throughout the country will approximate a total for the current year approaching $10,000,000.
 This work, in the opinion of the Surgeon General's office, will not reach its peak before 1924.

Through its Chapters the American Red Cross is equipped to find the individually ex-service man, help him in his problems and difficulties, provide immediately for his necessities, and open the way for him to the Government compensation and aid to which he is entitled. The extension of this work to the families of such men proves to them that the Red Cross has not none of its sympathy nor will service unaffected in wartime. Similarly the service goes out to the men still in the Army and Navy, 11,057 of whom were under treatment in Government hospitals on June 1, 1922.

Greater Domestic Program

This year—after five years of constructive effort during the war and after the armistice—brings with it a greater responsibility for domestic service to the American Red Cross.
 The budget for foreign operations, however, totals $3,000,000, but of this amount $1,834,000 is for medical relief and hospital supplies for Russia, which is a part of the gift made by the American Red Cross in 1921 to the Russian famine relief work of the American Relief Administration program. The 60th health service in Europe continues, moreover, and $554, 000 is appropriated for this work un-derlain in 1920. Other items in the stringently diminished foreign program include $200,000 to support the League of Red Cross Societies, $22, 000 for nurses' training schools established by the Red Cross abroad, and $650,000 for liquidation of the general
 Red Cross foreign relief program.

Prepared for Emergencies

For disaster relief the Red Cross has set aside $750,000, and for emergencies in Chapter work $500,000 to be available for domestic, insular and foreign demands. This is more than $300,000 above last year's expenditures. For service and assistance to the 3,300 Chapters and their branches $1,250,000 is provided by the National organization.

Other budget items of importance in the domestic program include $250, 000 for assistance to other organizations and education institutions for training Red Cross nurses and workers; $150,000 for Roll Call assistance furnished to Chapters; $100,000 for unforeseen contingencies.

Of the total budget less than $500, 000 is allotted for management in the National organization. No cash estimate, of course, is possible to weigh the value of the service by volunteers in the Chapters.
