Christmas Announcement

We wish to announce to our patrons that we will have a NEW Line of Christmas Goods to arrive in a few days and it will pay you to wait and see them before purchasing elsewhere.
We will also have Fireworks of all kinds on display. We will have many other articles but space will not permit us to quote at present.

School Notes

(This department is edited by students of the Sanderson High School.)
We had several visitors at school last week. Mr. MacCalmont and Harry Sharp found a rattle snake down in the laboratory while in search for some lumber for the manual training boys. Monday morning Manton Thomas captured another visitor which was a nice little mouse. The boys entertained the girls for several minutes with the new visitor.
John Perner says he is in need of two bits in which to get him a shave or hair cut on the face.
The basket ball boys hauled dirt all day Saturday to put on the basket ball court. They worked very faithfully because they thought they might find some tequilla, as the dirt was brought from the lower part of Mexico.
The Seniors started practicing on their play Tuesday night, which they expect to present in a short time. Mr. White is the director of the play.
Mr. White entertained the assembly Monday morning with a few selections from Robert W. Service.

Oil People in Town

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McPhee were in town several days this week from the Watkins oil well. Mr. McPhee is secretary and treasurer of the Southwest Texas Oil and Gas Company. All the regular workmen at the Watkins well are taking a lay-off in order to go deer hunting, and extra workmen have taken their places until the boys return from their hunt.

Dr. Selfridge, President of the Board of the Home Mission (Presbyterian) of West Texas, preached here Sunday morning and night at the Presbyterian Church.

"HARD-TIME PARTY"

The class of boys and girls represented by the Overland car in the auto race at the Presbyterian Sunday School, won the first party by reaching El Paso, the first point on the highway.
Their teacher, Mrs. Dave Pollard, entertained them with a "Hard Times Social." This was a very unique affair. The invitations requested that each participant "wear his old clothes and come prepared to tell his hard luck story." The ones who had the hardest luck story and told it in the most pathetic manner, won a prize. John Perner and Clyde Newberry, a pair of "non-professional hobos," won this prize, an immense turnip.
Mrs. Pollard's home presented the appearance of hard times but was soon transformed into a scene of merriment. Many games and old fashioned stunts were enjoyed.

SUBSTANTIAL refreshments consisting of baked sweet potatoes served piping hot with butter to be eaten with a tin spoon, with punch from tin cups, and old-fashioned ginger bread refreshed these hard luck people. The favors brought a look of surprise to the guests as they were apparently raw turnips, carrots, and small cabbages, but upon examination they were found to be filled with molasses kisses.

At a late hour the guests departed, expressing great appreciation for the good time afforded them by their teacher and hostess by words of gratitude, each and everyone voting Mrs. Pollard an ideal hostess for young people.

Commissioners Court

Commissioners Court met in regular quarterly session last Monday and transacted the following business:
County Treasurer's quarterly report was examined and approved.
Quarterly report of Justice of the Peace received and approved.
Tax Collector's monthly report for months of July, August, and September, received and approved.
It was ordered that the county buy a Ford car from W. J. Ferguson, for use of the highway crew.
All regular bills were ordered paid.
All highway bills were ordered paid.
It was ordered that Engineer Stovell buy oil and gas by the barrel and keep same secure.
It was ordered that $800 be transferred from the court house and jail fund to the jury fund.
It was ordered that the County Judge make an investigation of the jail and if there be no stoves up stairs, then the stoves down stairs are to be placed up stairs, and if there be no stoves down stairs, then stoves are to be bought and put up stairs. This is made necessary from the fact that the county is liable to damage suit if stoves are not furnished to prisoners up stairs; and from the further fact that it is stated that it is not the intention of the county to furnish stoves to those living on the lower floor of the jail.

Christmas gifts of Oakwood are sure to please, and certain to be different from "his" or "her" other gifts.
Sold at Bogusch's or MacCalmonts.

The day and hour of meeting was selected as Monday of each week at 8:30 p. m.
An interesting talk followed by Mrs. Rachal on the object and possibilities of the Auxiliary.

Sec. and Treas.

Summoning Witnesses

Sheriff J. J. Nance was out on the Pecos several days this week summoning witnesses for the Willis Johnson case which comes up for trial on next Tuesday, November 21, at Del Rio. This is the case wherein Willis Johnson is charged with theft of sheep. The Terrell county grand jury at its July session returned an indictment against Johnson and the case came up for trial at the July term of District Court but was transferred to Val Verde county.

The other case against Johnson, charging him with operating a still, came up before the Federal grand jury at Del Rio last month and the grand jury failed to return any indictment.

The Caldwell Brothers Go Hunting

Frank Caldwell is here this week on a visit to his brother, Ray Caldwell and wife. Mr. Caldwell's home is in Kentucky, but he came from San Antonio here, where he had been for several days on business. He and his brother Ray went out in the hills Tuesday to look for the fleet-footed deer. However, up to the time of writing this article we had not heard as to whether the gentlemen had bagged their "limit" or were still at "zero."

ATTEMPTED HOLD UP IN SANDERSON

Last Thursday night, a tall man wearing a white hat and with a black handkerchief tied over the lower part of his face, attempted to hold up Pink Glasscock in the railroad yards. As Mr. Glasscock stepped from behind a boiler at the roundhouse the highwayman suddenly appeared in front of him and slapping his hand on his pistol pocket ordered Mr. Glasscock to "throw up your hands." Up went Mr. Glasscock's hands immediately, but at that moment two Mexican laborers appeared on the scene and the hold-up man made a quick get-away in the darkness.

Kill Two Bucks

Chas. Chandler and Mr. Davis arrived in town Wednesday morning from the Big Bend country where they had been for several days on a deer hunt. They brought back two bucks, one a ten-pronger. They also captured a small javelin pig and brought it along for the children to have for a pet, but shortly after arriving in town the pig jumped out of the car and disappeared and Mr. Chandler was unable to find it. Mr. Davis, who accompanied Mr. Chandler on the hunt, is teaching the school at the Chandler ranch.

PRESCRIPTION FOR LONG LIFE

According to This German Physician, It is Easy to Add to One's Years of Usefulness.

The gathering of centenarians which took place the other day recalled the case of the eminent German physician, Doctor Fischweiler, who died recently at the age of one hundred and nine. He often declared that he possessed an infallible rule for securing longevity, which he would reveal to the world in his will. Upon his death, then, this formula was disclosed:

"Put your bed, orienting it by means of a compass, so that you will have your head placed north, and lie in a horizontal position. Sleep solidly with closed fists."

This is the whole secret. This position, it is asserted, brings the body in communication with the great tellurian currents coming from the north, and insures an extremely happy blood circulation.

They Often Do.

"There's a fellow who has nothing to do." "Well," "And he gets very tired of the job."

It's hard to get money and it's harder to keep it.

Do you hear the clock strike the night hours?

HOW often you have heard people say, "I can't drink coffee; it keeps me awake nights!" They've learned from experience; have you?

If you are a coffee drinker and fail to get sound restful sleep, it means that your nerves are over-stimulated and that health needs protection from coffee's drug, caffeine.

There's no sacrifice in making health safe, as so many thousands have found who have turned from coffee to Postum. It has a delightful coffee-like flavor, and is free from any element that can harm you. As many cups as you like, and no regrets.

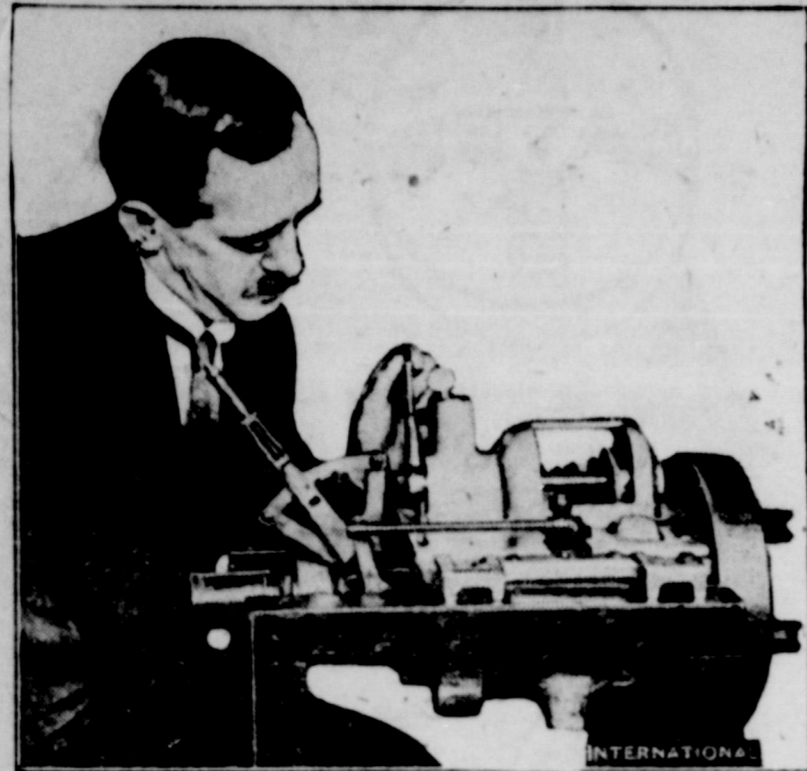

Your grocer has Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

PREVENTS STEALING OF MOTOR CARS

Mr. D. D. Oyle, member of the institute of Automobile Engineers of England, is showing his "Tamproof" device, which is attached to the gear box of the automobile, and which is locked by means of a key, making it impossible for anyone to steal the car by attempting to release the brakes. Should a car in "neutral" while on a steep grade, begin to slip down hill, the safety device automatically prevents the car from running wild, as it locks the gears and brakes. English automobile manufacturers are applying the device to all new cars.

Tips for Motorists.

Slow down at crossings. The temperature of a battery should be below 110 degrees. Tires wear better in cold weather than in summer months. Give all vehicles, especially loaded trucks, a good half of the road. Because new cars are stiff and rigid, they are found to be hard on tires. The favorite outdoor sport of some drivers appears to be taking a chance at crossings. To clean brass castings of greasy deposits, boil them in a solution of potash or lye. The endurance of an automobile is unlimited; it is simply up to the operator for service. Two drops of oil in the starter and generator cups every 2,000 miles insure perfect lubrication.

PROPER CARE OF NEW AUTOMOBILE

Much Trouble Can Be Traced to Neglect in Making Adjustments Essential to Start.

DRIVER OFTEN IS CARELESS

Owner Should Start His Motoring Career With Fixed Idea That His Car is a Piece of Machinery Requiring Attention.

The life of an automobile depends considerably upon the care which it receives. Most of the motor-car trouble can be traced to putting off adjustments that can be regularly attended to. Carelessness of the owner has been the cause in many cases, hence he is to blame for the short service of his car.

Begin Care With Purchase.

Proper care of the car should begin with the purchase. Right then the owner should start his motoring career with the fixed idea that his automobile is a piece of machinery, subject to wear and requiring just as much attention as you would bestow on a dynamo, a grandfather's clock or a radio outfit.

Keeping this in mind will offset the common impression that many motorists possess. Not a few drivers have sentimental thoughts concerning their cars, believing that they will always stand up without proper attention. Such men are usually disillusioned just when the service of their car means most to them.

Regular attention and care prolongs the service of the car to a vastly greater extent than periodical complete overhauls. Get the habit of inspecting your car before making a trip, just the same as the far-sighted horseman will rub his hand over his animal before mounting.

Inspect Vital Parts.

A glance under the hood with the motor running, attention to any sound not in tune, a measurement of gas, water and oil, a test of the wires and tires will be well worth the slight delay in starting. Such an inspection of vital parts will offset unnecessary annoyances and greater delay later on the trip.

The motorist should study the complete instruction book as supplied him by the manufacturer in order that he will know the proper care of all the parts of his car. As he becomes familiar with as many parts as possible, he will fully realize that service rests primarily upon the attention the car receives.

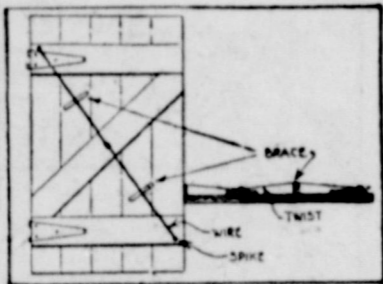

SAGGING OF GARAGE DOOR CAN BE CURED

Supported by Tension Wire It Will Hang in Place.

Illustration Shows Easy Way to Effect Permanent Repair—Few Lengths of Strong Wire and Three Spikes Needed.

Garage doors have a habit of sagging after a time, making it difficult to close them properly or else necessitating their removal and planing off the bottom. Unless the door is small or exceptionally well made, planing the bottom affords only temporary relief.

An easy way to effect a permanent cure for this trouble is to drive two spikes in opposite corners of the door as shown and connect them with a few lengths of strong wire. Place two blocks of wood under the wire, forcing it out a few inches from the door. Take a third spike and insert it between the strands of wire and twist the wire with the spike. This will act as a turn-buckle and draw the bottom of the door up. When sufficient clearance is obtained, drive the center spike into the door and you have a permanent repair. In cases where the door has sagged to a great extent, it is better to give the wire only a few turns every day until proper clearance is obtained.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Keep battery terminals clean.

The lubricating of the working parts of an automobile is to prevent any two pieces of metal that are working one against the other from touching.

Don't permit your engine to keep running while you and others are away from it for any length of time. In stopping your car always stop at the right hand curb.

A monthly inspection should be made of the brake rods and connecting parts. Clean off all the accumulated dirt and rust so that they will act as freely and efficiently as possible.

Use a heavier grade of lubricating oil in the motor, transmission and differential in summer than in winter. The oil should be drained from the motor at intervals not to exceed every 1,000 miles.

When the cooling fluid is kept in motion by thermo-siphon action, it is quite important that the radiator be kept reasonably full in order that there be a back resistance to aid in forcing the water forward.

A magnetized screwdriver is a great convenience for the man who works about his car. The magnetized tool will pick up screws, nuts, bolts or other metal objects that have dropped into inaccessible places.

LATEST ELECTION RETURNS IN TEXAS

Mayfield's Lead Over Paddy Substantial—Middle West Split Over Issues.

Dallas, Tex.—Earle B. Mayfield's majority over George Paddy for United States senator in the recent election probably will be under 120,000. Totals given out by the Texas election bureau November 8 gave him a majority of 112,818 out of 284,614 votes counted. In 329,340 votes tabulated this week he had a majority of 114,340, gaining only 1,522 in the 26,999 additional votes accounted for. This week's tabulation showed: Mayfield, 217,621; Paddy, 103,281. Mayfield's majority, 114,340.

Returns are from 161 counties incomplete, 69 complete, 20 counties unreported.

The count in the governor's race stands as follows: Neff, 224,748; Atwell 53,497. Returns are from 149 counties incomplete, 60 complete, 42 counties unreported.

Earle B. Mayfield, democratic nominee, Tuesday overhwhelmingly defeated George E. B. Paddy, independent democrat and republican nominee, for the United States senate from Texas.

By reason of a ruling of the attorney general and the secretary of state Paddy's name was not printed on the ballot in any county, and by reason of the persistency of the legal proceedings to keep Mayfield's name off the ballot, this got on in comparatively few counties.

Governor Neff and the rest of the democratic ticket won by a large majority.

Chicago, Ill.—A division of opinion as to the advisability of permitting the sale of beer and light wine was recorded in two states of the Middle West at last Tuesday's elections, while all four states in which the soldiers' bonus was up returned favorable majorities according to figures available today.

Ohio opposed a proposed constitutional amendment legalizing the sale of wine and beer, while Illinois cast a heavy vote in favor of a modification of state and federal laws to permit the manufacture, sale and transportation of beer and light wine.

The question of Sunday amusements was raised in only one state in the Middle West, South Dakota, which, according to available figures, put the ban on Sabbath festivities by a vote of about 2 to 1.

In Illinois, Iowa and Kansas an overwhelming vote in favor of the bonus was polled. In Oklahoma the soldiers' compensation proposal, however, received only a slight majority, that an official count may be necessary to determine the issue.

Questions of taxation, submitted in various ways throughout the central states, also showed differences of opinion without any pronounced drift in public sentiment toward greater economies of government.

Harris County Election Returns. Houston, Tex.—Complete election returns from Harris County, compiled this week, showed results as follows: For the road bonds, 11,509; against, 8,274. For Mayfield, 14,036; for Paddy, 5,961. For Neff, 16,508; for Atwell, 3,647.

Earthquake in Chile.

Santiago, Chile.—With partial re-establishment of communications, Chile's earthquake catastrophe is revealed in even greater magnitude than first reports indicated. It is estimated that at least 10,000 are dead, and many thousands are in distress, needing food and shelter. A curious feature of the earthquake was the tidal wave which occurred two hours later, indicating a terrific disturbance beneath the Pacific. The waters were first sucked away from the coast and then hurried back. The phenomenon was repeated five times at Antofagasta before the equilibrium of the seas was restored.

Congress of Mothers to Meet.

Austin, Tex.—The fourteenth annual conference of the Texas congress of Mothers' and Parent Teacher Association will be held in Waco Nov. 20-23. Mrs. Boyes D. Smith of Austin, chairman of the program committee, has issued a tentative program for the meeting.

The Turkey Trot at Cuero.

Cuero, Tex.—Turning out 20,000 strong, people of DeWitt and surrounding counties lined the streets of Cuero Friday to witness the biennial turkey trot parade, featuring some 3,000 gobbling turkeys strutting through the streets and to observe Armistice Day.

Lausanne Peace Conference.

Paris.—The French foreign office Sunday announced that the Greco-Turkish peace conference to be held at Lausanne had been tentatively set for not later than November 20.

New Orleans Rice Market.

New Orleans, La.—Trading on the local rice market was somewhat lighter Friday. There continued to be a fair demand from the export trade of which the greater part was for fancy Blue Rose. Deft Fingers Help Santa

To Screen the Phone

Little conveniences that adorn the house carry messages of good will at Christmas time. A phone screen covered with plain and figured cretonne, and providing a place for records of telephone numbers and calls will be welcome to men and women alike.

Ever Welcome Bags

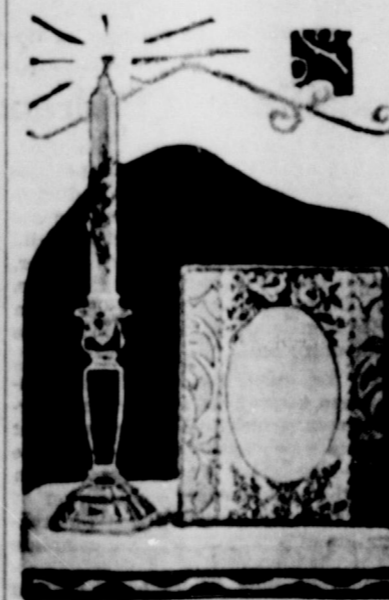

Christmas time is the springtime of bright cretonnes when they blossom out into all sorts of ingenious and beautiful gifts. The picture shows a work or shopping bag folded and unfolded. It is merely a capacious oblong bag of cretonne, with small envelope, bound with braid, sewed to outside, and by means of snap fasteners it can be folded and converted into a pretty shopping bag.

This Year's Camisoles

Every Christmas brings its camisoles and this year's are the daintiest ever. Many of them are made of net and lace, like the model pictured here; others, less transparent, of crepe de chine satin, wide ribbons or georgette. Baby ribbon adjusts them at the bust line and flat elastic at the waist. They are easily made and are lovely gifts from woman to woman.

For Men or Women

Christmas brings its pretty candelabra decks out this year with sea-ling wax flowers, or painted and gilded. They make lovely gifts for men or women, and so will the ribbon or cretonne-covered picture frame, fastened to a glass front and cardboard back with gold braid binding. The cardboard back is cut out to form an easel support.

Gay Little Pin Trees

We can help start the new year right by giving Christmas gifts of little pin trees to our women and girl friends. Two corks and a florist's pin, sharpened at both ends, make the foundation for the pin tree illustrated. The large cork—of wood—is painted green and the smaller cork is gilded. They are joined by the long pin, and into the gilded cork many pins, with colored heads, are thrust, to form a tree. A band of baby ribbon, tied about the larger cork, holds small safety pins.

Smart Nanette Fans

These brilliant little Nanette fans began their careers humbly in France, one of them, as a plain, small palm leaf and the other as a plaited fiber fan. By means of paint, satin ribbons, organdie or millinery flowers they have graduated into the smart set and will accompany any frocks to bonnet parties. One of the fans pictured has a shirred binding of ribbon in green. It is bound with ribbon, finished with a loop and organdie roses in soft colors adorn it. Painted flowers or millinery flowers and foliage adorn the plaited fan and ribbon covers its handle.

Among House Slippers

Most people look to Santa Claus to provide them with house slippers and he always carries a generous supply of all kinds in his pack. This year you will find among them beautiful bedroom slippers, like those shown above, that are made of ribbons and adorned with little ribbon flowers.

To Remember the Baby

Everyone wants to remember the baby and here are two bibs for him, one of them made of pink and white Turkish toweling and the other of honeycomb cotton. The square bib is bound with tape which provides the ties and the edges of the smaller bib are finished with a shell crochet of mercerized cotton.

A Touch of Realism

By JOHN PALMER

(Copyright 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Anything to oblige," said Bill Jasper, the foreman. "If that darned little snoop, Mr. Oddington, wants to see rent movie life in Shawnee Camp, I guess we can furnish it."

"That's what th' boss was sayin' yesterday," said Hans Luke, the Sawyer.

"Sure, an' that's what Mabel Jones was a-laughin' over," said Pete Blanc, the top-loader.

The foreman frowned. Mr. Oddington, the young novelist, had come to Shawnee Camp in search of material, and had been looking for battles with wolves, desperate villains, kidnapings, and so forth, and had openly expressed the opinion that a lumber camp was about as quiet as a country town.

The foreman and Mabel Jones, the boss' daughter, had not been quite so friendly of late, and the foreman had wished that Oddington fellow out of the way. Once or twice Bill Jasper had seen the pair together.

"It's up to you, Bill," said Mr. Jones. "There isn't a man I'd rather see Mabel marry than you. But you've got to settle your own account with Mr. Oddington."

It was framed up in the bunk-house. All the men were sore on Mr. Oddington. They didn't mind the little man coming to camp to study their life; but they did resent his sleeping out under a patent tent because he was suspicious of the bunk-house, a new structure as clean as any hotel in the country.

So the stunt was to be pulled off the following Sunday. French Charley and Bill Jasper, muffled in furs and masked, were to be the villains. They were to dash into camp, hold up the place, and kidnap Mabel Jones. The stableman, Herman, had kindly consented to the loan of two of the horses.

Of course there was to be gunplay. There were several guns and rifles in the camp, and the boss had a revolver, which he used for target practice. Two more were dug up from the bottoms of trunks.

If Mr. Oddington didn't rise to the occasion, Mabel Jones, it was anticipated, would swiftly lose whatever interest she had in him. If he did—well, there was Bill Jasper's hope of settling an old score.

Mabel, of course, was not to be told what was transpiring. She couldn't be trusted not to tell that Oddington fellow. Her father swore that he would keep the plans secret.

"I bet ya dat Oddington fellow showe de yellah streak, all right, all right," opined Hans Luke.

There was little sleep that Saturday night. Into the small hours the lumberjacks waited for the appearance of Bill Jasper and French Charley in the sleigh.

It was four o'clock in the morning when Mr. Oddington was awakened from his patient rest by howls, onths and blood-curdling screams.

Dashing out, he perceived a sleigh drawn up in front of the boss' house. In it a ferocious furred and masked figure, with a revolver in either hand, was holding at bay a score of lumberjacks, who, with hands high above their heads, were edged against the bunkhouse wall.

"Keep 'em up!" yelled Bill Jasper. Then from the boss' house appeared French Charley, carrying the apparently unconscious form of Mabel Jones in his arms.

"I got the gal!" French Charley yelled. "Kiss her good-by, boys; I'm takin' her to God's country, where a he-man's got red blood!"

Somewhere, in the momentary pause that followed, all eyes were turned on Mr. Oddington.

Run? No. The little man leaped forward—and as to what happened next all the various accounts only agreed that it happened quicker than any one had expected.

Bill Jasper awakened a few minutes later with a lump the size of a pigeon's egg on his jaw. French Charley opined that one of the horses must have kicked him. But anyway, the two were on the ground, and little Mr. Oddington was in the sleigh with Mabel, driving like fury along the road, and pausing every now and then to fire a shot toward the camp.

"Half an hour passed," opined Hans Luke. "I seen it take a man that-a-very sometimes! Makes 'em act klinder reckless."

An hour passed. Morning came. It was middle afternoon before the sleigh came back and drew up in front of Mr. Jones' house.

"Did you get rid of the bandits?" asked Mr. Oddington.

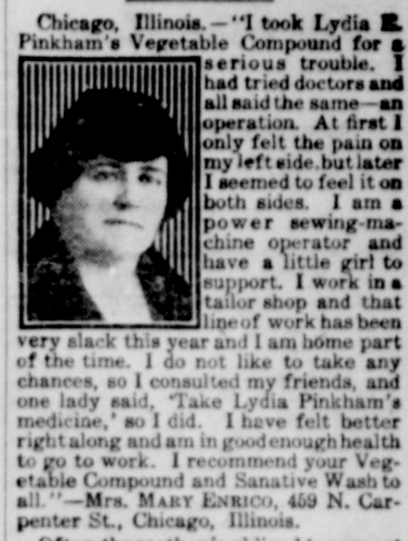

"Why—yes, I guess they're all gone now," said the boss. "Where have you folks been all this time?"

"Why, I guessed Mabel ought to have a better protector against those blood-thirsty ruffians," said Mr. Oddington, "so we got married over at Shawnee. You see, I used to be the amateur featherweight boxing champion for the state, only I've been a little out of practice. Where's the ruffians? You didn't let them get away again, did you?"

"YOU SCORPION!"

SYNOPSIS.—The time is the late '80s or early '90s and the scene a steamboat on the Mississippi river. All the types of the period are present and the floating palace is distinguished by merriment, dancing and gallantry. There are the customary drinking and gambling, also. Virgil Drace, a young northern man, is on his way south on a mission of revenge. He meets an eccentric character in the person of one Liberty Shottle, who is constantly tempting the goddess of chance. They agree to a singular pact. Drace, seeing an opportunity to use Shottle, confides in him that his mission is to find a certain guerrilla, Stepho la Vitte, who had murdered Drace's father. It is his determination to hang La Vitte as high as Haman. Drace falls in love with a striking young beauty on the boat. The steamer reaches New Orleans, at that time in the somewhat turbulent throes of carpetbag government. The young men attend the French ball and Drace unexpectedly meets the girl. She is accompanied by one Boyce, apparently her fiance. Shottle learns that the name of the girl is Nadine la Vitte. Drace passes an uneasy night torn by the suspicion that Nadine is the daughter of old Stepho la Vitte, now an admitted outlaw. Now, more than ever, is he resolved to find where the girl lives and to find Stepho. Drace and Shottle begin a search of the city. Drace takes a hand in a carpetbagger riot. He catches a glimpse of one he is sure is Nadine. Drace and Shottle get into bad standing with the authorities, and are given until the next day to board a steamer bound north. Returning to the house where he thought he had glimpsed the girl, Drace finds the place abandoned. Shottle discovers that a case of wine on the steamer is addressed to Stepho la Vitte at Paxon's Landing, Mississippi. It is the next stop below Bethpage's Landing and General Bethpage is Liberty Shottle's uncle. They decide to visit him. Liberty goes back again and swears off again on betting. They are cordially received by the General, and his wife, Drace concentrates into the wilderness, discovers Periwinkle House and finds Nadine alone. She is much alarmed and warns him her father will shoot him. He makes love to her and to get him to go she agrees to meet him again the following Thursday. On his way home Drace is accosted by three men who ask to be set across the river. They overpower him and bind him with ropes. Led by Toney, they throw Drace into an old cabin. Toney taunts Drace and avows his love for Nadine, while the others collect fuel. Toney sets fire to the cabin and the three go off laughing.

And then something touched his hand, something cold and swift. A knife cut the ropes that bound him; and in his great and sudden joy Drace almost lost his reason. But he did not cry out; no word was spoken. Just one look, and then he screened her from the flames as they fell through the door, out through the light, into the shadow of the trees. And then he spoke: "God bless you, Nadine!"

He had held her hand, leading her as they ran, but now in the shadow safe from danger, she withdrew it from him, and when he reached again to take it, she shook her head.

"No, it must not be. I told you to go quick, but you did not go quick enough. Then Toney he see your boat, and with the others, he wait for you. I run around and I watch him, with the knife to stab him if he hurt my brave friend. Then in dim light I see them carry the boat, and I think they have killed you; and I steal along to stab, but then I know you are in the boat. All I do then was to watch till they go, and then I go in. It was not hard to do, no."

"You are an angel."

She laughed, shaking her head.

"Angels do not go into the fire. They do not belong there. Now, I tell you. I show you the crooked way, through the woods and out to the river. The moon has come, and we can see. If you know the way, you are safe; but if you do not, you mire down and die in the ooze, and not in the flame. You would please follow me now."

He followed her, hoping that she might be slow, to prolong the joy of his being with her, but she was agile, walking swiftly. Sometimes she would turn slightly about to warn him of a dangerous place, and once she smiled, the moon full in her face. "Tell me," he inquired then: "What has passed tonight, I hope, does not change what was set for Thursday?"

The land was beginning to rise, and she was walking faster.

"Thursday you may come."

She halted in an open space and pointed toward the river.

"The bird, I hear him sing now. The magnolia trees are, over there. And now it was again good-night."

She gave him no chance to detain her, for in an instant she was running; and he stood looking till in the deep shade her form was lost.

Old Stepho had not come home when the Creole girl reached the house in the swamp. She sat down to think and to listen to his footstep. He did not come; and undressing, she lay down, mused a long time and slept. . . . A knocking on the door and Stepho's voice called her:

"The sun he was high, but the leetle gel she sleep."

Soon she came out, and he drew her to him and pressed his sandpaper cheek against the coil of her hair. They sat where the house threw its cool shade. Slowly he rocked in his big chair, looking up at the cane that hid his home.

"This air, he good. He come through salt marsh from the Gulf, with not the malaria. You bloom always like the flower."

"But, Father, when do we leave here? It must not be that we are here to live all the time?"

"Ha! The little bird wish to leave the nest, to try her wings? That is the way of birds and women. Soon, I suppose, you will wish to marry some fine man and leave your old father."

"No—it is not that. I love you. . . . But it is lonely here, and—"

"Mr. Boyce, he is a fine young man. If you marry him, you would not so much leave me. I see him often. He buy from me the mules and cattle which I bring down from the hills. Why you no wish to marry him?"

"But I do not love him."

"You would soon learn; he is a fine young man. I owe him much; and he know much about my business that he would keep quiet about if—if he was of the family. And he would take you often to the city and give you rich dresses and diamonds."

"My dresses they are fine enough. I have the diamonds, too. But you must know that I get lonesome here. I cannot play with the book all the time. You are going again to buy cattle in the hills, are you not?"

"I will buy them, yes."

"And you must on Thursday go to the hills?"

"Yes, on the Thursday, I will go. He fell asleep, for he was tired; and when the sun came out, she drew his chair into the shade. He opened his eyes, patted her hand and slept again. She heard a slight sound, and looking, saw Toney coming through the case. Swiftly she advanced toward him, with hand upraised, cautioning him.

"You must make no noise. He is asleep."

"But I have come to tell him that the carpetbagger spy he come to come back not again."

"Go away, and you can come back and tell him."

"No, I stay and talk to you."

Stepho's voice called out: "Toney, come. I am here."

She did not wish to hear them talk. She looked at the Portuguese and mused as she walked away: "You do not know, you scorpion, how close you come to the stab. Your time will come, and I watch you."

CHAPTER VIII

It was a long time before Drace found a boat to set him over to the opposite shore. It was so late when he reached the Bethpage place that he did not go up to his room. The house was so quiet, the hounds themselves asleep, that he stole into the garden to pass the remainder of the night on a couch in the summer house. The air was heavy with roses breathing in through the lattice, and as he straightened out, grateful for repose, this thought came to him:

"Paie they call death, but to me it will ever be red. And I have looked into its red countenance, and was not afraid. I thank God that He gave me that strength. . . . But what a melodrama!"

Black Hawk and reach there early in the morning."

"I'd like very much to go," answered Drace. "But can we get back before Thursday?"

"Easily by Wednesday morning. Anything important for Thursday?"

"Oh, no. An old fellow down at the ferry wants me to go fishing with him Thursday, and I gave him my word that I'd be on hand. Most remarkable old man, full of fun; quite a character."

"You must mean old Spence. But are you sure it is not that pretty daughter of his that attracts you? You'll have to be a little careful, my son. We may associate with men out of our social running, but not with women. . . . Ah, Tyle! Mr. Drace has just consented to give me his company to Natchez."

The Black Hawk's hand played a welcome, and the captain came down the plank to conduct the General on board. From a quiet, lazy and almost deserted landing the place leaped into the full throeb of life. Negroes and shiftless whites came from their hovels to gaze upon the magic splendor of this journeying palace, and the three-shoel man stepped ashore to gather up dollars.

Dinner was a state occasion, and after it, the ball. Then their state-rooms—then morning, and Natchez.

The address was to be delivered in the afternoon, and when the time came the General led him over to the hall to hear the speech, imprisoned him without ball in a corner, and there he had to sit. The address was long, academic and dull, and the sufferer mused:

"I don't see why Shottle ever called you a remarkable character."

Everybody came about the General to take his hand. Young women told him that they had never been so thrilled. Drace lied to him, too, swore him an orator.

"Let us walk off alone," said the General.

Slowly they walked at first, but after a time the old gentleman struck a brisker pace, toward the River.

"Now, my boy, as we've got through with those beaters of dust out of old carpets, we'll have some fun. Old Colonel Pemberton wanted me to go home with him, and he has a delightful house, a gracious wife and handsome daughter, but I had to decline. I've stood about as much now as I can. We'll go down to old Tobe Mason's tavern, under the hill. Tobe is a gentle old fellow, never killed but three men."

The tavern was as tough a place as a river man could make it. Built of logs, bricks, stone and clapboards, it looked like an architectural stagger, trying to climb the hill. In the main room was the bar.

"Well, I'll be knocked in the head for a steer!" old Tobe cried out, stumbling toward the General. "I haven't seed you since the River tuck fire. Well, well! Thinkin' about you the other day. . . . Glad to shake your hand, Mr. Drace. Set right down."

"Tobe, I'm glad to see you," said the General. "And fetch us about two quarts of that summer-grape wine. Let me tell you about it, Drace. We have a wild grape here that gets ripe along in August. It's much larger and is not sour like the foot-grape, and its vine likes to climb about a sassafras sapling. And then you see a word till you've had a good taste of it. Tobe makes it himself, and he'll fetch us some that's at least twenty-five years old. Here we are."

The wine was as red as blood, cool and yet warm. Its flavor was the ripened sweetness of the spirit of autumn. It was as mellow as the scent of the apple at harvest time.

"What do you think of it, hey?"

"Cue Howard, are you sure that this was not made by Bacchus instead of Tobe?"

"Good, my boy! Enjoying yourself?"

"Yes, I'm doing fine, General. You see, I can't express myself as well as you can. I haven't as much to draw from. You've not only book-knowledge but experience, worth more socially than all the libraries in the world."

"You hit it off well. But what is better than it all? Moral freedom. This table here is rough, with one rheumatic leg slightly drawn; these chairs we sit in, bottomed with strips of hickory bark, would be sobred at a sheriff's sale; but sir, Mark Antony, in his first triumph, his chariot drawn by lions, was not more regal than we are at this moment, enthroned and sceptered with moral freedom. Pour out, for as that same Antony said: 'Scant not my cups.'—Tobe, where's that old scoundrel who used to play 'The Arkansas Traveler'?"

Tobe stamped his way over from the bar.

"You mean old Silters?"

"That's the man. What's become of him?"

"Nothin'. And I reckon he's playin' right now down at Cadman's Joint, that ought to be wiped off the earth. Want him?"

"Need him, Tobias. Send a boy after him."

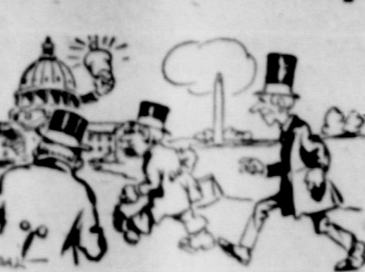

Old Silters, bald and wrinkled, came with his home-made fiddle. The General greeted him warmly, introduced him to Drace; and the most comfortable chair in the house provided him, he sat down to play the famous old tune and to recite the dialogue, improvising where his memory failed him.

"That, my dear Drace, was Stepho la Vitte."

Now for the Ship Subsidy Legislation

WASHINGTON.—Following a conference with President Harding, Representative Campbell (Kan.), chairman of the house rules committee, announced at the White House that congress would be convened in extra session November 20.

As chairman of the rules committee, Mr. Campbell has much to do with establishing the order of legislative business in the house, and he said the first matter to be taken up would be ship subsidy legislation.

President Harding recently told Speaker Gillett that he wants to avoid calling the next congress in extra session after March 4. Mr. Harding believes the country would welcome a legislative holiday of nine months next year.

Legislation Changing the Revenue Law

LEGISLATION materially changing the present revenue law is unlikely at the coming session of congress, although recommittees along this line will be incorporated in the annual report of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, to be made public early in December.

The feeling among Republican leaders is that the time is not quite ripe for pressing revenue legislation. Some changes are considered desirable in the present law, which was placed on the statute books in November, 1921, but it is the consensus that from a practical standpoint it would be unwise to attempt anything of a comprehensive nature at this time.

Passage of a bill amending the revenue law could be accomplished in the house without serious difficulty, in all probability. When the bill reaches the senate, however, it would be open to amendment, and in view of an agitation for radical measures, such as the restoration of the excess profits tax, higher estate taxes, and publicity of tax returns, it might be loaded down with provisions which would be more obnoxious to the present administration than the law as it stands.

Big G. P. O. Cafeteria Is Something New

THREE o'clock in the morning may suggest the end of a festive evening to some people, but it is simply lunch time to 300 workers in the government printing office. At that dim hour, when most of us would prefer dreaming about pie to eating it, the women who get the Congressional Record ready for the early morning mail stop folding and addressing operations to eat lunch.

The big government printing office has gone in for humanized efficiency. The G. P. O. Cafeteria and Recreation association is functioning. When the 3 a. m. lunch bell rings the Congressional Record workers hurry into the elevators that will carry them to the new cafeteria on the top floor of the

Healthier Children; Better Growups

THE story of efforts to make a nation of better growups by perfecting the health of its children and making them happier was told at the annual convention of the American Child Hygiene association by Harry Hoover, its retiring president. It is the hope, Mr. Hoover said, that eventually "ten policemen may be replaced by one community nurse."

At the same time, Mr. Hoover announced virtually a completion of arrangements consolidating the two great voluntary societies engaged in the work—the child hygiene association and the child health organization of America. He also informed the convention of a plan by which a complete demonstration in every avenue of protection of child health is to be had through the munificence of the Commonwealth foundation which has guaranteed, for a term of years, funds aggregating $200,000 yearly for the work.

The merger of the two great health societies was declared by Dr. L. Emmett Holt, president of the child health organization, to be an event of significance and importance. He predicted more efficient effort, better administration and a greater opportunity for service would result from the combine.

To the new and stronger agency, Doctor Holt said, both professional and public groups interested in the work would look for help and expert guidance in matters relating to the health and physical development of children.

Regarding the demonstrations to be had under the assurance of funds by the Commonwealth foundation, Mr. Hoover said that three cities would be selected for the work. One will be in the Far West, one in the Middle West and the other in the South, the secretary said. The plan would be in line with the society's educational purpose, he added.

CALOMEL GOOD BUT NEXT DOSE MAY SALIVATE

It is Mercury, Quicksilver. Shocks Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug; besides, it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.—Advertisement.

PLEAS ARE MADE FOR TEXAS TREES

State Being Fast Denuded of Its Great Forests of Trees.

Houston, Tex.—"Build your homes now, for in ten years all the lumber of Texas will be used up, and we will face the greatest lumber shortage this state has known since the days when our homes were made of logs," W. Goodrich Jones, founder and president emeritus of the Texas Forestry Association, told the women of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs who attended the conservation conference at Houston Thursday.

"Fifty years ago," said Mr. Jones, "Texas was a land of milk and honey. We had 10,000,000 acres of virgin pine. Today 85 per cent of our inheritance has been used."

Mr. Jones declared the only remedy which we can have is to replant trees, just as the countries of Europe have done. There are 4,000,000 acres of good, rich tree soil in Texas, he told the women, and it is the duty of the people of Texas to be busy about planting that soil.

"The climate of Texas has changed in the last ten years," said Mr. Jones, "because of deforestation in the state. Not only do we have colder winters and hotter summers, because the trees have been cut down and we have no windbreaks, but the droughts and floods have been made more serious for the same reason."

"The Texas Forestry Association hopes that the state will buy 100,000 acres to be reforested. The state today does not own a single acre of forestry land."

Mr. Jones closed his address with a plea for aid from the women's clubs in the fight which his organization will make before the next legislature.

E. O. Sieke, secretary-treasurer of the Forestry Association, who makes his headquarters at A. and M. College, spoke on the resolution which they hope to present to the next legislature. He declared that there is a changed attitude in the state of Texas toward reforestation. It has come out of the fad class and has been recognized as a constructive program for the good of the state as a whole, he said.

"The most educational program presented to the last Texas legislature," he said, "was that presented by the Texas Forestry Association. We could never have accomplished anything if it had not been for the women of the state. We now want your help on the threefold program which we now have:

"First, we want an adequate state appropriation for our work; second, we want to stimulate the planting of trees; third, we want to help reduce forest fires in East Texas."

"We need also a sensible tax for forest land. The tax which is now imposed increases each year. It is on the same principle that would tax a cotton farmer every month for the increased value of his cotton crop as it grows a little and gets a little nearer the picking season."

Mrs. Maggie W. Barry of College Station scored the county commissioners who cut down trees for roads. She urged that county commissioners make roads go around the trees. She also advocated better roads for the rural schools of the state. The one-teacher rural schools can not function on a par with other schools as long as the roads of the state continue in their present miserable condition, she said.

CORN, POTATO, TOBACCO CROPS ABOVE AVERAGE

Washington.—America's corn crop for 1922 will total 2,893,108,000 bushels, the department of agriculture estimated this week.

Last year the crop was 3,080,372,000 bushels, while the average for the five previous years was 2,830,942,000.

The average yield per acre was estimated at 28.1 bushels as compared with 27.1 for the last five years.

The production of potatoes was estimated at 433,905,000, one of the largest crops in recent years, being nearly 50,000,000 bushels above last year, and 60,000,000 above the five-year average.

Tanlac Put Him Back on Job, Says Davis

"I had a bad case of ptomaine poisoning and it came pretty near laying me out altogether. For three months I was in an awful condition and suffering constantly from diarrhea. I became weak all over and was going from bad to worse. I tried everything I knew of, but it was beginning to look like nothing would ever reach my case.

"Then, a friend of mine recommended Tanlac to me. And it's a fact, four bottles have made a clean sweep of my troubles and built me up to where I feel like a new man. I am working every day now and when it comes to recommending Tanlac I can't put it too strongly."

"Oh, that's all right," was the answer, "we've got so many at home, mamma said: 'What'll we ever do with all these blotters? Why don't you take 'em to your teacher?'"

Who's Got It?

Say! none of you folks have seen anything of a stray car running around anywhere, have you?
 No, not an "automobile," but a sure-enough car, a freight car.
 Looks like a pretty big thing to lose, don't it; nevertheless the Van Noy-Interstate people have lost one and have been unable to find it. The car, loaded with groceries and other supplies for the Van Noy restaurant, was started from Houston several days ago and is now sometime overdue. Mr. Glover has telegraphed several times down the road to different places in an effort to locate the "lost" car, but so far has been unable to get any trace of it. Manager Callaway of the Van Noy restaurant has been doing a lot of hard thinking the past few days trying to study out some scheme to make the supply of grub now on hand last through the crisis. He has also offered a reward for the lost car, so if you find it anywhere, just
 "bring it in" and deliver to Mr.
 Callaway and get your reward.

Striking New Red Cross Poster

Riveting the attention of the beholder on the fact that the American Red Cross is chartered by Congress as an official volunteer relief organization the dome of the Capitol at Washington, upon which is superimposed a large Red Cross, is the central figure of a new poster for the Annual Red Cross Roll Call. The poster, which has been pronounced one of the most striking of innumerable representations of the famous dome, is the work of Franklin Booth, a New York artist of wide renown. It will be displayed throughout the country during the Roll Call period, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, when the Red Cross membership for 1923 will be enrolled.

Peerless
No Sag-No Bulge- it's Peerless

Stock can't bulge or sag Peerless fence. It's "Stiff-Stay Fence. The cross bars are one piece and are fastened to the line wires by the famous Peerless circular tie. All this keeps the fence rigid, is proof against sagging from the fog by being rooted from below.

When you put up Peerless wire fence you can forget all about the fencing question for years to come. And you can buy Peerless quality at the same price that you would pay for the cheapest fences on the market.

Red Cross Roll Call Heard World Around

The Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross for registration of the membership for 1923 will begin on Armistice Day, November 11, and close on Thanksgiving Day, November
 30. The ground work for this stupendous task of re-enrolling the membership throughout the world has been laid in a plan for the first complete and comprehensive system of registration of the Red Cross membership in all its 3,300 active Chapters at home and abroad.

An important feature of the round-the-world Roll Call campaign will be a universal effort to re-enlist the service of war-time Red Cross workers in the peace program by their participation in the Roll Call. In this way the vast army of volunteers will once more affiliate with the work of the Red Cross in its manifold phases. Cooperation also has been assured by Government and private maritime interests in a deep-sea Roll Call that is designed to reach every member or potential member in every part of the world who may be en voyage or temporarily in any port.

Thousands of Chapters will adopt the home canvass plan of enrollment which originated in Pittsburgh, where last year it resulted in a membership increase of 50 per cent. All records in this year's campaign will be kept in standard size cards to be filed by each Chapter for future use.
