Doctor Harrison Has Broken Leg

Dr. D. A. Harrison, who accompanied the Ozona football team to Sonora, happened to a very painful and serious accident while in that city. He was on the sidelines watching the game and one of the Sonora boys, who had possession of the ball, ran out of bounds at the place where the doctor was standing. He was being pursued by Neville Davis, of the Ozona squad, and all three ran together. In the resulting mixup, one of the boys stepped on Doctor Harrison's leg and broke it just above the ankle. Although rather painful, Dr. Harrison stood it on the way back to Ozona, and at present is installed in his home here, and is doing nicely. The Doctor has a desk telephone and says he intends to carry on his practice over the telephone until such time as he may be able to be up and about again.—Ozona Stockman.

The Doctor's many friends in Sanderson regret to hear of his accident, and wish for him a quick recovery.

A telegram was received yesterday by Harry Ketchum from relatives in Atlanta, Ga., stating of the serious illness of his sister, Geneva. Mr. Ketchum left at once for Atlanta, and was joined by Mrs. Ketchum in San Antonio.

Texas News

A $50,000 issue of city of Ennis water works and sewer bonds have been approved by the attorney general. These bonds mature serially and bear 5 per cent interest.

The Jackson County cotton crop is just about gathered. The Edna gins have turned out 3,000 bales, which is about 60 per cent of the total ginned in the county.

Live stock raised by farmers of Liberty County was assessed last year at $700,000. Six dairies care for the cream produced by the dairy herds of the farms.

Plans are under way for resuming the work of graveling the streets of Yoakum.

There are seventy-two miles of gravel roads in Jasper County, built at a cost of about $15,000 a mile. The cost was covered by a bond issue of $400,000 voted in 1922.

The state junk law, providing that purchasers of junk must demand an affidavit of ownership from the seller, was declared unconstitutional by the court of criminal appeals at Austin recently.

An election for the issuance of $50,000 in bonds for the improvement of the East San Antonio highway, known as the king's highway, in the Bolcott, Creath and Weches communities, near Crockett, has been ordered by the commissioners court. The election will be held November 24.

The largest bond issue for roads in Brazoria county was carried the past week when the Columbia and West Columbia district voted bonds to the amount of $350,000. This amount will be used for the improvement of 11 1/2 miles of highway, together with the additional amount allowed as aid by the state.

While a few weeks ago it was believed the pecan crop in Bastrop County would be practically a failure, it now develops that the yield in some parts of the county will be good. The trees in some of the groves are barren of pecans, yet in other places the yield is unusually heavy, the nut large and of splendid flavor.

One hundred and twenty-five state and national banks in Texas were designated Saturday as state depositories for the next two years, beginning December 1, by the state depository board. State funds to the amount of $5,000,000 will be placed in those banks. State Treasurer C. V. Terrell, secretary of the board, has sent out blank bonds to be executed by these banks not later than November 25.

The center of the rice industry in Wharton County is on the west side of the Colorado River, 25,000 acres being under irrigation from wells, some of them forming 2,000 gallons per minute. Each farmer has his own pumping plant, the investment ranging from $1,000 to $3,000. Water in abundance is found from 40 to 200 feet. Rice valued at $1,000,000 is marketed annually at El Campo and a rice mill is operated there. The rice is recognized generally as of the best quality of any grown in the United States.

Matagorda County is undoubtedly the sportsman's dream of what a county should be. Bear are in the impenetrable thickets of Caney Creek and more deer than in any part of Texas, while wolf hunting on the prairies may still be indulged in. Doves, quail, snipe and plover are in the county in large numbers. Squirrels are numerous in the woodlands, while open and open upland sport for those who like it. The biggest sporting proposition is in the hundreds of thousands of ducks and geese and brant wintering in the marshes along the coast and fattening in the rice fields of the county.

Principal crops of Washington county are cotton, corn and hay. Irish and sweet potatoes, peas, sorghum, cast and peanuts are also raised in considerable quantities. The cotton crop last year was 25,000 bales and the figure for this year is expected to come to 30,000 bales from 100,000 acres. A million bales of cotton were made last year and this year's crop should be equally as good, the county agent, W. A. Yates, reports.

Five million dollars is being spent in Jefferson county for roads and drainage, divided as follows: City construction bonds, $2,000,000; county road work, $2,000,000; and county drainage, $1,000,000. At the present time one of the heaviest of the county is sixty-five miles of paved roads and 125 miles of shell and gravel roads in splendid condition. Connecting with seven miles of cement highway between Beaumont and Amelia, a new stretch of seventeen miles is being paved with concrete to the Liberty County line. This work is on the main Houston-Beaumont road and a greater part of the culvert work was completed during the summer.

Farmers of Jasper County are paying more attention to stock raising and the assessed value of live stock in the county last year was $234,984. Brahmas are being crossed with the native cattle, while purebred Jerseys are being introduced in the dairy herds. The farmers receive considerable revenue from the sale of butter, poultry and eggs, estimated at a total of $100,000 last year. Boys' and girls' clubs have been organized to encourage interest in better agriculture and raising of live stock and are meeting with success.

Wreck survivors tell how tobacco kept them going

When food and water gave out on third day, they smoked until rescued

Perhaps they were only pirates of the sea, and deserved no great charity from the hand of Fate. Nevertheless, they were very much human beings when they found themselves miles out to sea adrift in an open boat.

With two days' supply of food and water, they confidently expected to be rescued in plenty of time. But when the third day passed and no friendly sail appeared on the horizon, it began to look like a case for Davy Jones's locker.

One of the victims, crazy with thirst, suggested that they divide a bottle of iodine and end the agony quickly.

"The tobacco hasn't given out yet," said another. "Let's stick it out a while longer." And they did.

Late in the afternoon of the fifth day a tramp schooner saw the distress signals and came valiantly to the rescue.

"The only thing that kept us going all that tobacco," one of the survivors admitted when he was safely deposited on dry land again. "We smoked and chewed, and that sort of kept us up."

Tobacco is certainly a poor substitute for food and water—but under the stress of trying circumstances smoking a pipe is a big help.

Pipes filled with Edgeworth probably have no more soothing effect than pipes filled with other tobaccos, but most Edgeworth smokers somehow feel that they need Edgeworth to get complete pipe satisfaction.

If you have never smoked Edgeworth, send your name and address on a postcard to Larus & Brother Company. They will be glad to send you free samples—generous helpings both of Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed.

Smoke a few pipefuls and judge for yourself whether or not you wish to become a permanent member of the Edgeworth Club.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome humidor holding a pound, and also in several handy in-between sizes.

For the free samples, kindly address Larus & Brother Company, 67 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va. If you will also include on your postcard the name and address of your regular tobacco dealer, your courtesy will be appreciated.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by post, one or two dozen cartons of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

ELECTION REDUCES G. O. P. MAJORITY

Maryland and Kentucky Elect Democratic Governors— Election in Other States.

Complete returns from Tuesday's election show that former Representative Dale, republican, was elected a senator from Vermont to succeed the late Senator Dillingham, also a republican. This was the only senatorial election in the country and gives the republicans a majority of six in the senate.

Complete returns also show the election of William J. Fields, democrat, as governor of Kentucky, and give Governor Ritchie, democrat, of Maryland, a lead for re-election. In the only other gubernatorial election, H. L. Whitfield, democrat, was named governor of Mississippi without opposition.

Seven of nine vacancies in the house were filled, the only possible upset being the apparent election in the Twenty-fourth New York district of former Representative Fairchild, republican, who was defeated a year ago by J. Vincent Ganley, democrat, now dead.

The democrats retained congressional seats in the Eleventh and Sixteenth New York, Second North Carolina and Fourth Illinois districts, while the republicans held their own in the Thirty-second New York and Second Vermont districts. On the face of the results the lineup in the next house will be: Republicans 225, democrats 205, socialist 1, independent 1 and farmer-laborer 1, a republican majority of seventeen, with two vacancies still to be filled.

The republicans retained their majority in the New York assembly. Complete returns indicate that the democrats had lost at least six seats upstate.

In a number of states majority contests shared in the public interest with various statewide referendum proposals. In Philadelphia the republicans elected W. Freehand Kendrick mayor by an overwhelming majority, while in Detroit Mayor Doremus, formerly a democrat member of congress, was re-elected.

Pennsylvania voters looked with favor on a proposal to issue $10,000,000 in bonds for highway improvements, while in Virginia a similar measure was rejected.

LUDENDORFF PROCLAIMED AS CHIEF IN BAVARIA

Munich.—The Bavarian government has been declared overthrown by Adolf Hitler, the fascist leader, and the administration placed in the hands of General Ludendorff, as commander-in-chief.

The reich government has issued a manifesto to the German people saying it has refused to recognize the overthrow of the Bavarian government and announcing that all measures have been taken to stamp out the insurrectionary movement. The manifesto declares these steps will be carried out with ruthless energy.

The proclamation issued by the German government to the people regarding the Bavarian coup d'etat says: "An armed band has overthrown the Bavarian government, arrested Premier Von Kulling, arrogated the right to form a reich government, made General Ludendorff chief of the German army and made Adolf Hitler, who has only been naturalized a few days, arbiter of Germany's destinies."

"Whoever supports the movement is guilty of high treason. All measures to resist the coup d'etat have been taken and will be executed with the utmost energy."

The Brown Mouse

By HERBERT QUICK
(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

"A BROWN MOUSE"

SYNOPSIS—Jennie Woodruff refuses to marry Jim Irwin. Young man's hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of school teaching and farming, for which he is ridiculed by many. In short, Jim is an ox. He flunks by himself and reads books and has a philosophy of his own. But there are latent powers in him unsuspected even by himself and Opportunity comes knocking at his door. Jim is nominated for school teacher, as a joke.

The president followed usage when he said: "If there's no objection, it will be so ordered. Prepare the ballots for a vote on the election of teacher, Mr. Secretary."

There was no surprise in view of the nomination of Jim Irwin by the blarneying Bonner when the Secretary smoothed out the first ballot, and read: "James E. Irwin, one." But when the next slip came forth, "James E. Irwin, two," the board of directors of the Woodruff Independent district were stunned at the slowly dawning knowledge that they had made an election! Before they had rallied, the secretary drew from the box the third and last ballot, and read, "James E. Irwin, three."

President Bronson choked as he announced the result—choked and stammered, and made very hard weather of it, but he went through with the motion, as well as run in our grooves.

"The ballot having shown the unanimous election of James E. Irwin, I declare him elected."

He dropped into his chair, while the secretary, a very methodical man, drew from his portfolio a contract duly drawn up save the name and signature. "His he calmly filled out, and passed over to the president, pointing to the dotted line. Mr. Bronson would have signed his own death-warrant at that moment, not to mention a perfectly legal document, and signed with Peterson and Bonner looking on stonily. The secretary signed and shoved the contract over to Jim Irwin.

"Sign there," he said. Jim looked it over, saw the other signatures, and felt an impulse to dodge the whole thing. Then he thought of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"—and he signed!

"Move us adjourn," said Peterson. "No objection 'tis so ordered!" said Mr. Bronson.

The secretary and Jim went out, while the directors waited.

"What the Billy—" began Bonner, and finished lamely! "What for did you vote for the dub, Ez?"

"I voted for him," replied Bronson, "because he fought for my buck this afternoon. I didn't want it stuck into him too hard. I wanted him to have one vote."

"An' I wanted him to have one vote, too," said Bonner. "I thought meself the only dang fool on the board—an' he made a spache that aimed wan vote—but fr the love of hivin, that dub fr a teacher! What come over you, Hankon—you voted fr him, too?"

"Ay wanted him to have one vote, too," said Peterson.

And in this wise, Jim became the teacher in the Woodruff district—all on account of Jennie Woodruff's "Humph!"

CHAPTER III

What is a Brown Mouse?

Immediately upon the accidental election of Jim Irwin to the position of teacher of the Woodruff school, he developed habits somewhat like a ghost's or a badfella's. That is, he walked of nights and on rainy days.

On fine days, he worked in Colonel Woodruff's fields as of yore. Jim's salary was to be just $200 for nine months' work in the Woodruff school, and he was to find himself—and his mother. Therefore, he had to indulge in his loose habits of night walking and roaming about after hours only, or on holidays and in foul weather.

The Simms family, being from the "mountains" of Tennessee, were rather startled one night, when Jim Irwin, homely, stooped and errandless, silently appeared in their family circle about the front door. They had lived where it was the custom to give a whoop from the big road before one passed through the pailin's and up to the house. Otherwise, how was one to know whether the visitor was friend or foe?

From force of habit, Old Man Simms started for his gun-rack at Jim's appearance, but the Lincolnian smile and the low slow speech, so much like his own in some respects, ended that.

"Stranger," said Mr. Simms, after greetings had been exchanged, "you're right welcome, but in my kentry you'd find it dangerous to walk in this-way."

"How so?" queried Jim Irwin. "You'd more'n likely get shot up some," replied Mr. Simms, "unless you whooped from the big road."

"I didn't know that," replied Jim. "I'm ignorant of the customs of other countries. Would you rather I'd whoop from the big road—nobody else will."

"I reckon," replied Mr. Simms, "that we'll all have to accommodate ourselves to the ways here. Evidently Jim was the Simms' first caller since they had settled on the little brushy tract whose hills and trees reminded them of their mountains. Low hills, to be sure, with only a footing of rocks where the creek had cut through, and not many trees, but down in the creek bed, with the oak, elms and box-elders arching overhead, the Simmses could imagine themselves beside some run falling into the French Broad, or the Holston. The creek bed was a withdrawing room in which to retire from the eternal black soil and level cornfields of Iowa.

The soil was so poor, in comparison with those black uplands, that the owner of the old wood-lot could find no renter but it was better than the soil in the mountains, and suited the lonesome Simmses much more than a better farm would have done. They were not of the Iowa people anyhow, nor understood, nor their equals—they were "pore," while the Iowa people all seemed to be either well-to-do, or expecting to become so.

Jim Irwin asked Old Man Simms about the fishing in the creek, and whether there was any duck shooting spring and fall.

"We git right smart of these little panfish," said Mr. Simms, "an' Calista done shot two butterball ducks about 'inter-plantin' time."

Calista blushed—but this stranger, so much like themselves, could not see the rosy suffusion. The allusion gave him a chance to look about him at the family. There was a boy of sixteen, a girl—the duck-shooting Calista—younger than Raymond—a girl of eleven, named Virginia, but called Jennie—and a smaller lad who rejoiced in the name of McGeehee, but was mercifully called Buddy.

Calista squirmed for something to say. "Raymond runs a line o' traps when the fur's prime," she volunteered.

Then came a long talk on traps and trapping, shooting, hunting and the joys of the mountings—during which Jim noted the ignorance and poverty of the Simmses. The clothing of the girls was not decent according to local standards; for while Calista wore a skirt hurriedly slipped on, Jim was quite sure—and not without evidence to support his views—that she had been wearing when he arrived the same regimentals now displayed by Jennie—a pair of ragged blue overalls. Evidently the Simmses were wearing means to work with and new fashions do not suffer because of their uniformity in outline.

In the illustration two new dresses are shown that display a great deal of individuality, though their lines are almost identical. The dress at the left is of georgette with a woven design of cheville which gives a broad effect. The draped sleeve fashions at the shoulder and elbow with tiny bows of velvet ribbon and a huge velvet poppy is posed at the waistline. There is a slight drape to the skirt, which falls in two points at the side.

The model shown at the right is made of blue georgette crepe and has broidery. A narrow gold ribbon is used as a band about the crown.

The jeweled mode makes its bow in the little hat shown below, at the right. In this model jeweled pins are used against a background of heavy corded cloth of gold. The sectional crown is also piped with the same gold material.

The hat shown below is an attractive off-the-face model, in which the trimming takes the form of gold stitching over the entire crown and brim. The tabs at the sides are finished with loops of gold beads.

Metallic brocades and all metal hats are very popular for evening wear. Sometimes the metal cloth combines two colors, such as gold and blue or silver and purple. Materials of this kind appear to the best advantage in little oriental wrapped turbans, trimmed with a simple ornament of celluloid or jewels.

To Avoid Spotting Furniture. Place a piece of waxed paper a little larger than vase or jardiniere under centerpiece or dolly used, and this keeps any moisture from going through to furniture. Sometimes a few drops of water will be unnoticed and a spot appears on your table.

what they had and not what they desired. The father was faded, patched, gray and earthy, and the boys looked better than the rest solely because we expect boys to be torn and patched.

Mrs. Simms was invisible except as a gray blur beyond the rain-barrel, in the midst of which her pipe glowed with a regular sibilant and flow of embers.

On the next rainy day Jim called again and secured the services of Raymond to help him select seed corn. He was going to teach the school next winter, and he wanted to have a seed-corn frolic the first day, instead of waiting until the last—and you had to get seed corn while it was on the stalk, if you got the best.

No Simms could refuse a favor to the fellow who was so much like themselves, and who was so greatly interested in trapping, hunting and the Tennessee mountains—so Raymond went with Jim, and with Newt Bronson and five more they selected Colonel Woodruff's seed corn for the next year, under the colonel's personal superintendence.

In the evening they looked the grain over on the Woodruff lawn, and the colonel talked about corn and corn selection. They had supper at half past six, and Jennie waited on them—having assisted her mother in the cooking. It was quite a festival.

Jim Irwin was the least conspicuous person in the gathering, but the colonel, who was a seasoned politician, observed that the farm-hand had become a fisher of men, and was angling for the souls of these boys, and their interest in the school. Jim was careful not to flush the covery, but every boy received from the next winter's teacher some confidential hint as to plans, and some suggestion that Jim was relying on the aid and comfort of that particular boy.

Newt Bronson, especially, was leamed on as a strong staff and a very present help in time of trouble. As for Raymond Simms, it was clearly best to leave him alone. All this talk of corn selection and related things was new to him, and he drank it in thirstily. He had an inestimable advantage over Newt in that he was starved, while Newt was surfeited with "advantages" for which he had no use.

"Jennie," said Colonel Woodruff, losing the party had broken up, "I'm losing the best hand I ever had, and I've been sorry."

"I'm glad he's leaving you," said Jennie. "He ought to do something except work in the field for wages."

"I've had no idea he could make good as a teacher—and what is there in it if he does?"

"What has he lost, if he doesn't?" rejoined Jennie. "And why can't he make good?"

CHIC AFTERNOON GOWNS; HATS OF SILVER AND GOLD

The efforts of designers, in all manner of costumes, at present, seems to be to achieve the greatest degree of simplicity and still advance novelties in trimming and materials. The early tendency toward intricate lines and drapes has apparently been put aside in favor of the straight silhouette, the very long skirt giving way to ankle lengths or even shorter styles. Naturally, with these restrictions, the novelty of each costume must depend on its material, its color or its trimming, but there is such a variety in these that the designers do not lack some form or other. In the group of dressy small hats shown here, each model boasts the sheen of metal.

If a hat is of velvet a most attractive trimming is gold lace, such as ornaments the hat at the top of the group. This model is of green velvet and is further ornamented with a brilliant gold pin. The hat at the right is of silver cloth with crown and upper brim of black velvet. The little cloche shape at the left shows the influence of the Chinese fashion in its decoration, which takes the form of a conventional Chinese design in gold embroidery. A narrow gold ribbon is used as a band about the crown.

The jeweled mode makes its bow in the little hat shown below, at the right. In this model jeweled pins are used against a background of heavy corded cloth of gold. The sectional crown is also piped with the same gold material.

The hat shown below is an attractive off-the-face model, in which the trimming takes the form of gold stitching over the entire crown and brim. The tabs at the sides are finished with loops of gold beads.

Metallic brocades and all metal hats are very popular for evening wear. Sometimes the metal cloth combines two colors, such as gold and blue or

FAVORS UPHOLDING LUSITANIA CLAIMS

Principles to Govern the Awards by Tribunal is Announced.

Washington.—Four decisions determining German liability for American claims resulting from the war, including those growing out of the Lusitania's torpedoing, were announced this week by the mixed claims commission.

While upholding broadly the Lusitania claims, numbering 278 and aggregating approximately $22,600,000, the commission dismissed 3,190 claims totaling about $345,000,000 for the recovery of insurance premiums paid by Americans for protection against war hazards.

General principles governing the assessment of the American claims were laid down by the committee. Three of the decisions, including that on the Lusitania claims, were unanimous, but in the other interpreting treaty obligations, Edwin B. Parker, umpire, concurred with Chandler P. Anderson, American commissioner, over the dissent of the German commissioner, Dr. Wilhelm Kisselbach.

An important feature of the Lusitania decision was the refusal of the commission to assess exemplary or punitive damages. It held that such damages were penal in their nature, not compensation, and, therefore unauthorized by the treaty of Berlin.

No specific awards in the Lusitania cases were made by the commission, its decision merely announcing the principles to be applied in determining each claim. In this connection it held that actual damages for mental anguish and suffering of relatives of Americans lost on the Lusitania would be compensated for, but that "sentimental and vague" mental suffering would not be considered.

In dismissing claims for war risk premiums paid, the commission held that they were not a class for which Germany was financially liable.

Liability against Germany generally, another decision of the commission declared, must be for proximate and not remote acts of her agents or allies.

Ultimatum to Bulgaria. Belgrade.—Jugoslavians, in a note presented at Sofia Wednesday, gave Bulgaria forty-eight hours in which to fulfill three demands for reparations in consequence of the attack on the Yugoslav military attaché in Sofia last Friday. The conditions are: First, the Bulgarian government must present its excuses and regrets to the Yugoslav representative in Sofia; second, the Bulgarian minister of war must express his personal regrets to the Yugoslav military attaché, and third, a detachment of 250 Bulgarian soldiers, with a flag, must render honors before the Yugoslav legation.

CIRCUS TALK

"There is going to be a week set aside of every year," said one of the horses in the circus, "when people will go about with their pockets full of lumps of sugar and horses will all be given a special treat."

"It will be called something like being-kind-to-animals week. And it will show people how nice it is to be kind to animals and how much better they will feel for being kind."

"Then it is hoped people will continue being kind all the time, of course. But this week will show people the nice things there are to be done."

"And anyone seeing people unkind or cruel to animals will stop them and make them feel ashamed of themselves for bullying and ill-treating and being thoughtless and unfair."

"It sounds like a wonderful idea," said another circus horse. "The other circus horses said, 'Neigh, neigh,' which was their way of saying, 'Yes, yes!'"

"It began a year ago, I believe," said the first circus horse, "and this year will be the second year of it."

"Neigh, neigh, good, good," said the other circus horses.

"Some can't tell me from Neighbor Rhinoceros," said the circus Hippopotamus. "People come and stand before me and they say, 'Is that a rhinoceros or is that a hippopotamus? It's one of those big animals, anyway.' Now, did you ever hear of anything so unintelligent?"

"Never," said the circus rhinoceros. "Of course, it is true we're big animals, but such ignorance is absurd. It is as though we saw a boy and a girl coming along and we said, 'Which is the boy and which is the girl? One or the other is the boy and the other one is the girl.'"

"Just as absurd," said the circus hippopotamus.

"They say that the people in charge of us answer questions about us all the time and that the ignorance shown toward us is very great," the hippopotamus continued. "And it is also said by those in charge of us that grown-ups know far less than children, yet they're supposed to be bigger and wiser."

"Of course grownups may know more about other things; but, alas! they don't know as much as they should about the hippopotamus and the rhinoceros."

"People don't know the difference between us half the time," said the leopard and the tiger together.

"Sometimes, all the time," said the leopard.

"Sometimes, three-quarters of the time," said the tiger.

"It is said," the leopard continued, "that that is one of the reasons the hyena laughs so much. Yes, a wise man known as Dexter Fellowes, who has much to do with the circus, said that was the reason. And I'm sure he must be right. For Dexter Fellowes is very wise, very wise, indeed."

"So they all say," the tiger remarked. "I must say I have never talked to him long enough to tell for myself, but I'm sure every one must be right."

"So many couldn't be wrong, especially when it is about one of their own kind."

"People know more about people than they do about animals. Well, I would like it if Dexter Fellowes would come and have a chat with me some time. But I don't believe he will. He said to me once, 'Tiger, you're a handsome fellow, but I wouldn't choose you for my pal!'"

"So I think he prefers to keep a respectful distance from me. But certainly everyone thinks the 'world and all,' as they say, of him. And I'll tell you one thing, leopard."

"Yes," said the leopard, "pray tell it to me."

"And that is," the tiger went on, "that he most certainly has the most marvelous and the most patient disposition I've ever seen in all my circus life. And he can tell most beautiful stories of the circus. Oh, they sound so grand and so magnificent, and he can tell them so easily. He's just a born story-teller, and he tells the truth, too. Oh, my, yes, he tells the truth!"

Dishes Were Too Small.

Helen was at her first party. When refreshments were served she refused a second helping of ice-cream with a polite "No, thanks," although she looked wistful.

"Do have some more, dear," the hostess urged.

"Mother told me to say 'No, thank you,'" the little girl explained naively. "But I don't believe she knew how small the dishes were going to be."

CITIZENS AID IN CHILD WELFARE AND FLOOD RELIEF

Red Cross Rendered Much Volunteer Assistance in Southwestern Division.

Volunteer work in the Southwestern Division, American Red Cross, has been unusually active during the last year, according to reports which have come into the division office in St.
Louis recently. The volunteer committee of the Port Arthur, Texas, chapter is regarded as one of the mainstays of the service which the chapter at Port Arthur renders the community. Through this committee garments are collected, sorted and kept in order to be used whenever needed.

In Independence, Kansas, the volunteer committee of the Red Cross chapter has co-ordinated better baby contests and children's clinics with marked success.

Volunteers in the six towns of Texas County, Oklahoma, also have been holding child welfare clinics and conferences and have been able to accomplish much good towards the better health of the community by calling the parents' attention to slight physical defects of their children, which corrected now amount to nothing but which if permitted to run on might become serious for the child.

In Little Rock, Arkansas, dancers have been able to play an important part in reconstructing the impaired brains and nerves of the patients in the U. S. Veterans' Hospital No. 78 in that city, by teaching them to dance and thus assisting the other occupational therapy work in stimulating the dormant mental faculties of the veterans.

Volunteer members of three chapters in the Southwestern Division also have had ample opportunity to demonstrate their enthusiasm in the administration of flood relief during the last summer and fall. Thirty-four hundred dollars was raised by the Winfield, Kansas chapter to take care of the recent victims of the floods of the Walnut and Arkansas rivers. At Ft.
Smith, Arkansas, the Sebastian County chapter handled the acute needs of the refugees of the floods of last June in the district between the Arkansas and Poteau rivers and at Tulsa, Oklahoma, volunteer Red Cross workers conducted relief headquarters where 148 persons were fed, clothed and furnished with sleeping quarters for six days until the water subsided sufficiently for them to return to their homes.

INTERNATIONAL AIR MEET

Ambulances, Nurses and Physicians on Duty for First-Aid Work.

That the Red Cross never overlooks an opportunity for service was evidenced in the recent International Air Meet in St. Louis when aviators from all over the world, representing both military and civic organizations, competed for world famous trophies. With a daily attendance of close to 100,000 in the way of spectators, and a literal
army of flyers, mechanics, attendants, laborers and the necessary personnel of such a gigantic undertaking, there was real work to be done by the Red Cross.

A first-aid station was established on the field under the direction of one of the Field Directors of the Southwestern Division of the Red Cross, and ambulances with nurses and physicians were on duty all day. A territory of 175 acres had to be covered and ambulances had to be ready on instant call in case of an accident to the flyers, so that a real first-aid service was maintained, with first-aid dressing station and similar activities.

The citizens was under the direction of the Women's Overseas League of St.
Louis, and while the service of the First-Aid station and its personnel was given free to the public, the center charged for its service and the money thus raised was used for the disabled members of the league.

The St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross also furnished motor cars and other transportation to bring the World War veterans from local hospitals to the field to witness the flying.

Although the percentage of accidents and other casualties was remarkably small, there were enough of them to keep the Red Cross workers constantly busy for the entire week of the meet, and to gain the thanks not only of the individuals who were given attention but of the officials of the meet and the representatives of the United States and other governments taking part in the contest.

ARKANSANS ESTABLISH CORRECT WEIGHT RECORD

More than 1,500 men, women and children had been weighed and measured for health at the Red Cross booth at the Washington County fair held at Payetteville, Arkansas. Best records for proper weight for age and height were found between the ages of 20 and 30, and astonishingly few were found to be over or under weight.

Washington County people made a remarkable showing in the matter of health as indicated by weight and measurement, according to experts who have looked over the records.
Children between the ages of 8 and 9 were especially satisfactory in their weight and measurement. All persons showing defects in weight were given information as how to correct them.

Rob's Calomet of Nausea and Danger

Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Dangerous and Sickening Qualities Removed.
Perfectly Tabled Called "Calotabs."

The latest triumph of modern science is a "de-nauseated" romet tablet known to the drug trade as "Calotabs." Calomet, the most generally useful of all medicines thus enters upon a wider field of popularity,—purified and refined from those objectionable qualities which have heretofore limited its use.

In biliousness, constipation, headaches and indigestion, and in a great variety of liver, stomach and kidney troubles calomet was the most successful remedy,
but its use was often neglected
on account of its sickening qualities. Now it is the easiest and most pleasant of medicines to take. One Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water,—that's all. No taste, no griping, no nausea, no salts. A good night's sleep and the next morning you are feeling fine, with a clean liver,
a purified system and a big appetite. Eat what you please.
No danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original, sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, trial size. Your druggist is authorized to refund the price as a guarantee that you will be thoroughly delighted with Calotabs.
