JUSTICE COURT.

Justice Henry Jordan's Court has been very busy this week grinding out justice to law breakers. Thursday morning a man who has been here only a few weeks and who claimed to be a "body-guard" to Father Robles the Catholic Priest here, was tried on a charge of simple assault, and the jury after being out only a few minutes brought in a verdict of guilty and assessed the fine at $100 and costs of Court. Thursday evening three or four other cases growing out of this same affair were tried and the defendants discharged as not guilty. One other case, that of Father Robles, connected with the affray above mentioned, was brought up for trial Friday evening and was postponed until Monday.

Friday morning the examining trial for the two men in jail, was held. One of the men, John Roco, charged with assault to murder and carrying a pistol, was bound over to await the action of the grand jury which meets in January. His bond was placed at $1500. The other man, John Delaney, charged with carrying a pistol, was bound over to the County Court and his bond placed at $300.

WHITE-LEMONS

A pretty home wedding was solemnized last Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Luella Lemons, when Miss Elouise Lemons and Mr. Carlton White were united in marriage. Rev. Adams of the Baptist church officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The bride, a daughter of county clerk Luella Lemons, is a very popular and well liked young lady. She has been employed as stenographer in the County Clerk's office the past two years.

The groom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. White, has been an employee of the G. H. & S. A. for the past five years. By his genial ways he has won a host of friends.

The happy couple left on No. 110 Sunday morning for San Antonio, Lytle, Houston and other Texas points on an extended visit. They will be at home to their many friends upon their return, at the J. S. Nance residence.

The Times joins in with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes to the young couple.

NICHOLS-McMEEN

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise McMeen of Spring Hill and John F. Nichols of Sanderson, Tex., took place in Nashville Wednesday, Dec. 12th, in the study of the West End Methodist Church. Dr. George Stoves officiated. Only a few friends were present.

The event is one of interest to a large number of friends in this section and in the home of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a street suit of poiret twill, and her close fitting hat was an early spring model in the beige color; the accessories were also in this color and the furs worn were of beaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left immediately after the ceremony on their bridal tour which will take them through the West, after a visit to the groom's parents at Lenoir City, Tenn.—Nashville Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols will remain in Lenoir City until after Christmas.

The bride is related to the Henry and Chandler families of Maryville and Knoxville and has frequently visited in East Tennessee.

Mr. Nichols is the owner of Riverside Ranch, containing 11,000 acres, on the Rio Grande River near Sanderson, Tex., and after Jan. 15th he and his bride will make their home there.

He is receiving the congratulations of his many Lenoir City friends on having won a charming bride.—Lenoir City (Tenn.) News.

Mr. Nichols hails from Sanderson and the news of his marriage came as a surprise to his many friends here and they all extend their congratulations to he and his bride.

Misses Allene and Ollie Beck of Marathon spent several days in the city this week visiting Mrs. M. A. Boling. They left Thursday to visit on the J. E. Carter ranch.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE CHRISTMAS ELEPHANT

Jessie had had a beautiful Christmas. Early Christmas morning they had all gone down the stairs and into the big living room below, in single file, and there before them were presents and presents upon a beautiful tree.

The tree was so tall that it bent over at the very top, but it looked so handsome and took up so much room.

Oh, what a great shout Jessie had given when she had seen it all. And she had had such lovely things. There had been just the dearest little bed for her dolly, with real springs, and there had been a little toy kitchen and so many, many more things.

Besides, her mother had made her dolly some lovely new knitted clothes; oh, such very stylish clothes!

Her dolly had been beautifully dressed up on Christmas day.

And it seemed so suitable, too, for her to be so dressed up on a holiday.

Then the tree had been trimmed with popcorn and cranberries—they had begun eating the popcorn, while the cranberries were for decorations only, of course.

Jessie had had a splendidly fitted stocking. Such good things as had been in it.

For days after Christmas it was such fun to look over all the presents. When they first were opened it was so exciting it was hard to properly enjoy them.

But after Christmas she could enjoy the gifts and the cards and the decorations on the trees, and the toys and nuts and raisins in her stocking.

Most of all, she enjoyed the candy canes and the candy baskets and the candy animals which hung from the tree.

She had always liked hard candy better than any other kind. And the candy animals were so fine, with such sweet expressions, as, of course, it was quite natural for candy animals to have.

A candy lion had looked as though, if met by an enemy, it would be as sweet as ever. And even he willing to give sweetness to its enemy!

A candy tiger was made of red candy, and didn't look at all like a real tiger, and didn't seem to be upset by this in the least.

But her favorite of all was a pale yellow candy elephant.

He was a perfect beauty. And while Jessie gave candy canes and candy baskets away, and shared her candy bags, which were made of such pretty colors and tied with different-colored pieces of worsted, the candy elephant she saved to eat on the very last day of the year.

There he hung from the tree, waiting in his sweet, patient way for the last day of the year to come.

He was glad that Jessie was the kind of little girl who saved something to enjoy later on.

He was, indeed, very glad of this.

And at last came the last day of the year, and in the morning Jessie said:

"Today I eat my candy elephant. First I shall take a nibble off his ears."

"Oh, how good he looks!"

But his ears were very slippery, so she decided to bite off the whole head, which was a very pleasant thing to do.

That afternoon she ate his four legs and a portion of his body, and that evening she ate the rest of him.

She had other pieces of candy for the others, but the elephant was hers.

And oh, how glad she was she hadn't made herself sick eating too much at first, as some of her friends had done, for, by eating a little each time, she had really been able to eat a great deal more, and here she was, still enjoying the Christmas goodies!

It was such fun to have the elephant as the last good thing to eat of all.

And that night, when Jessie had gone to bed, she had a dream sent to her as a New Year's Eve gift by the Dreamland King. In her dream she visited the candy animal land, where all the candy animals told her how sweet it made their dispositions to be loved so much by boys and girls.

The Dearest Little Bed.

Adding Machine

A schoolboy at lunch time entered a grocery store and said to the clerk, "Take this order: 10 pounds of sugar at 6 cents, 11 pounds of coffee at 25 cents, 8 pounds of tea at 30 cents. Add that up. How much is it?"

Clerk—$5.75.

"Are you sure?" asked the boy.

"Of course, I'm sure."

"Thank you very much. That's my arithmetic lesson for tomorrow."
