For School Trustee.
The Times is authorized to place the name of W. E. Stirman before the voters for their consideration as trustee of Common School District No. 1 subject to the election to be held Saturday, April 7.

New Building Going Up.
Construction work was begun the past week by C. M. Breeding, contractor, for a new business building. The building is being built on Oak Street just two doors east of the Sanderson Mercantile Company store. Mr. Nance, who is having the building constructed, has not decided as yet just what he will lease the building for but in all probability a restaurant will occupy it. The building will be of hollow tile.

Senior Play to Be April 6.
Due to several other things on hand the seniors have changed the date of their class play to Friday, April 6. A comedy-drama of the sunny South entitled "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose," will be the play given. It is an interesting play from the very beginning and will keep one guessing as to what will be the outcome. The seniors have picked a strong cast for this play and offer the public a good treat. So don't forget the date, Friday, April 6, at the high school auditorium.

Bridge Party.
Mrs. A. E. Creigh Jr. was hostess to her bridge club at her home last Wednesday afternoon. The high score for the afternoon was made by Mrs. Ed Downie; Mrs. W. H. Savage making second high score. A salad course was served. Photo favors were Easter baskets.

TRUSTEE ELECTION TO BE HELD APRIL 7th

On April 7 the annual election for trustees will be held at the courthouse and the various voting places designated in the county. At this time the place of two trustees of the common school district No. 1 will be vacant. These places have been filled by W. E. Stirman for the past several years and by John Stovell, who was just recently appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from the county of M. A. Cavender. Both of these men have consented to place their names before the voters for their consideration as trustees for another term. Both men are qualified to be trustees and are to be highly commended for their interest shown in the school and asking for the thankless job.

The trustees for a school have a job on their hands and it is one in which there is no pay attached to it. Yet it is one of the most important places to be filled.

It is to be hoped that our citizens feel interested enough in this election and in our schools to come out and vote at this election to be held on Saturday, April 7.

For School Trustee.
The Times is authorized to place the name of John Stovell before the voters for their consideration as trustee of Common School District No. 1 subject to the election to be held Saturday, April 7.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lochausen and children were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lochausen in Marathon.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR GOOD WILL TOUR OF MEXICO

Del Rio, Tex., March 27.—Approximately 125 prominent citizens of this section of the State will leave Del Rio for Mexico City Saturday afternoon, April 14, at 5 o'clock on the Goodwill Special. The train will go by way of Spotted and Eagle Pass and will enter Mexico at Pasirue Negro. Stops will be made at Spotted and Eagle Pass if any passengers wish to board the train at either place instead of at Del Rio.

Literature about the trip is being sent to Chambers of Commerce in this section of the State and, since many people have already written to Del Rio for information, it is expected that many applications from neighboring towns will be filed. The entire cost of the trip, including rail-way fare, Pullman fare and meals will be around $143 per person, the cost to depend upon the kind of accommodations wanted. The train will be used throughout the trip, thus saving the expense of hotels.

The tourists will be royally entertained in Mexico by the various cities where the train will stop, according to Leandro Pena, Mexican consul at Del Rio. Applications to make the trip must be filed with A. B. Ewing, secretary of the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce. The application will be acted up by a committee.

Those making the trip will not be bothered with any red tape and this is considered one of the advantages of the trip. Mr. Pena will attend to all passports.

The Goodwill Special will leave Del Rio at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, April 14. The days will be spent as follows: Sunday, April 15, in Monterrey; Monday, April 16, in Saltillo; Tuesday, April 17, in San Luis Potosi; Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 18, 19 and 20 in Mexico City; Saturday, April 21, in Aguas Calientes; Sunday, April 22, in Torreon. The Special will leave Torreon for Del Rio, though there may be a short stop at Sabins.

SCOTTISH RITE REUNION DATES SET.

The reunion committee of the El Paso Scottish Rite announce the dates for the spring reunion for April 16 to 19. A hundred applications for these degrees of Masonry are now on file according to Ethan Allen Wells, 33 degree, secretary. Mr. Wells is the new secretary succeeding Berry B. Cobb, who is well known in Sanderson.

Stephen C. S. Bodkin KCCH of Sanderson, district chairman of Terrell and Brewster Counties, stated that he expected a large representation from his district. William H. Savage is local chairman and stated that all degrees from the fourth through the thirty-second will be conferred in full form, and that all Master Masons are eligible to become members.

Special railroad rates of one fare and one-half for the round trip have been granted. This is an open rate and applies to all attending the Scottish Rite Reunion and the Shrine Ceremonial.

On April 5 all Scottish Rite Masons in Sanderson and surrounding towns will observe the annual obligatory Maundy Thursday ceremonies. This observance will be held at the Kerr Hotel at 7:30 p. m.

S. C. BODKIN, KCCH.
F. H. TALBOT, KCCH.

Sunrise Easter Services.
A Sunrise Easter Service will be observed on Easter Sunday, April 8, the services to be held at Big Hill, at 6:30 a. m. A special song service will be held, the Rev. J. A. McMillan having charge of the devotional services.

The public, regardless of religious faith, is invited to attend this service. In case of bad weather the services will be held at the Presbyterian Church at the same hour, 6:30.

—Sanderson's vacation week, Chautauqua, April 17-20.

Methodist Church
The pastor will deliver sermons Sunday, both morning and evening. The subject at 11 a. m. will be "The Resurrection." This will be our Easter sermon as we can't be there on Easter Sunday.

Subject at 8 p. m., "The Barren Fig Tree." Prof. Wood of Marathon, director of the school orchestra, will render a violin solo at each service.

The public is cordially invited to worship with us.

CHAS. H. ARMSTRONG, Pastor.

Judge C. C. Belcher of Del Rio was a business visitor here the first of the week.

WOMANLESS WEDDING A SUCCESS.

A crowded house was the response to the announcement of the "Womanless Wedding", which was held last Friday evening at the Princess Theatre. The play was given under the direction of Mrs. C. H. Armstrong, wife of the Methodist pastor, and a neat sum was realized by the various church organizations. Immediately following the wedding a supper was served at the Masonic Hall by the Presbyterian ladies.

It was hard to decide who was the best dressed one at the wedding. Each one taking a part did fine. There was a continuous laughter from the time the wedding guests arrived until it was over. Judge Henshaw was the groom and Joe Nance the "blushing bride."

TO THE FATHERS AND MOTHERS OF SANDERSON HIGH SCHOOL

Are you a good and wise parent? If you are, we need your help in our work.

Is your child a problem? Do you lack wisdom in dealing with him? If so, then you need us and the organization of which we are a part. Let's co-operate.

On the first Thursday of each month at the school where your boy or girl spends three-fourths of his time, there is a meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Sanderson High School. This meeting is attended by both mothers and teachers; co-operation between home and school is the keynote of the program; it is here that we discuss and learn of various matters connected with our children.

Has it occurred to you, mother, who has never yet paid a visit to your child's school—that there is a place waiting for you in our organization? We need your viewpoint and we need your encouragement. Perhaps we can help you, and together, perhaps we can help some child. Your job and ours is that of studying the needs of the child; then naturally a union is formed in a Parent-Teacher organization which forms a perfect link between the home and school.

The Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Association is the only educational one that functions purely for the welfare of the child. Everyone in it is working for the common good. Will you accept your share of responsibility of the home and school as partners in the rearing of children to manhood and womanhood?

We have 200 students in the Sanderson school and we have 44 paid up membership in our association. What is wrong with the Sanderson school parents? Fathers, if you can't lend your time send your dollars.

Next meeting April 5, new officers will be elected for next term. You should be present and show your interest in the election of a good corps of officers.

MRS. J. W. MCKEE, President.

MOVES INTO NEW CLEANING SHOP

Sanderson's newest and most up-to-date cleaning shop opened Monday morning when Frank Robertson, owner of the Empire Cleaners and Dyers, moved into his new building on Oak Street, which has just been completed by C. The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Frequentness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on cure and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Peace of World Can Only Be Brought About by Universal Right Thinking

By DR. JOHN HERMAN RANDALL, World Unity Movement.

MODERN man is a citizen of the world, but he is not yet aware of it. In our economic life we already are internationalized, but in our political life we have not been able to see our complete interdependence. We make such slow progress toward world peace because we are trying to fit this new world into the old obsolete framework of the Sixteenth century.

Psychologists know the relation of the physical and mental and the reaction on each other, that thoughts of fear, distress, remorse, jealousy, envy and hatred all have a destructive influence on the individual, while thoughts of hope, good cheer, love, good will and kindness are constructive in their influence, and that if we can control thoughts we have solved the great problem of life. What is true of the individual is true of society and the world. As an age thinketh so is it.

We need to think today, and think habitually that there is unity underlying the life of mankind in spite of the strife and bitterness and hatred we see on the surface, and creative thinking will bring people to see each other in new relationships of harmony, unity and co-operation. There is no longer any insurmountable distance between nations and governments today, but all have been brought into physical and geographic unity, so that there is no such thing as an independent nation or race. All are bound together, and are coming to an understanding of each other as the old barriers of prejudice break down, and the consciousness grows that all are of a spiritual unity, all one human family.

Out of this unity comes a common purpose to bind more closely all the human family together, progressing toward a common goal, the good of all humanity, with love as the great motivating force.

Federation of Labor Eager to Further Commercial and Industrial Arbitration

By WILLIAM GREEN, President A. F. of L.

Organized labor welcomes efforts being made by the American Bar association to arrive at a basis of understanding on which labor and capital can meet peacefully to solve its problems, and stands ready to do all within its power to further the cause of commercial and industrial arbitration.

I realize how big and broad and comprehensive this subject is. Industrial relationships touch so many phases of human life and bring us into contact with so many conflicting interests that it is manifestly difficult to arrive at solutions of problems that will be immediately acceptable.

We have many men who believe there is no common ground upon which contending factors can stand in the settlement of disputes between capital and labor. The American Federation of Labor does not subscribe to that line of reasoning. We believe the relationship between men can be established on a rational and just basis through the application of common sense, sound judgment and reasoning. The Bar association is still in an investigating stage to see whether we can arrive at the point where an understanding can be reached, and they can rely upon us to assist in a reliable and sympathetic manner.

What Really Is a Pagan Invasion Threatens Extinction of the American Home

By DR. W. S. BOVARD, Methodist Episcopal Church.

There is convincing evidence that the family, as an agency for the Christian education, is tottering before a pagan invasion that threatens its extinction. This dangerous situation already has permeated the home and one has only to read popular books and magazines today to discover a rather pronounced repudiation of prayer, of faith in personal spiritual reality and all the moral sanctions of religion.

The salvation of the home from this influence lies in a movement of religious education that in the next twenty years will record a development unparalleled in the history of Christianity. Social service, evangelistic efforts, missionary education, vacation Bible schools and co-ordination of the educational aims of the church with those of the public school are all a part of this development, to be widely expanded in the next two decades. I believe that the future holds greater triumphs for the church in making education effective in multiplying Christian personalities than any period has yet witnessed.

Problems of Race, Together With Conflicting Ideals, in Way of World Peace

By DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, President Columbia University.

Of a representative group of 1,000 undergraduates 800 assumed a passive attitude toward religion, 100 were agnostic or atheistic, while the remainder might be called "religiously minded." The latter group is not readily reducible to type, and the irreligious class either simply prefers the way of physical and mental vice or throws over religion as a matter of mental excitement, but the passive percentage, despite its indifference, is afforded by an undercurrent of unselfish desire to do things that are worth while.

I should like to bear witness to the fact that fairly extensive and intimate contact with college men in recent years has given me an increased confidence in their native idealism, and I must confess that the college, in my opinion, is not adequately maintaining and developing that idealism.

Religion Must Take on Color for Purpose of Leadership and Inspiration

By REV. S. M. SHOEMAKER, New York.

It is quite clear that a great section of youth does not know what it wants, and therefore the first need is for leadership and inspiration. Much of youth does not believe in the intellectual integrity of many of us in the ministry; they believe science has pushed religion to the very edge of the world, and may shove it over the rim entirely. They think we are the transmitters of an inherited system of ideas which are all mixed up with the institution of the church and keeping conservative laymen pacified and holding our jobs down.

The lure of the liberty and the sin of the world is a deep red. The religion of the churches is a pale pink. Youth wants color. Either youth will take what the world has to give, or the religion of the churches will have to find a deeper hue.

TRACES OLD RACE FOR FREEMASONRY

Briton Trails Ancient Symbols of Order.

Amarillo, Texas.—The trail which he has followed for 22 years in quest of proof of the existence of an ancient race to which he believes the foundations of the modern Freemasonry may be traced has brought Dr. John Winthrop Sargent to the United States.

He is in Texas to continue his research, which has taken him through Mexico, Central America and most of the South American countries.

Doctor Sargent is an explorer and director of the Dr. W. H. K. Staver expedition of the British Royal Society and a nephew of the late John Singer Sargent, the painter.

By tracing the culture of this race through pottery and monument designs, Doctor Sargent says he has become convinced that its civilization was of even a higher order than that of the ancient Egyptians. He says he found proof that that race had a knowledge of irrigation superior to that of modern times.

First evidence of the race in the United States was found at Three Rivers, N. M., he says, and the trail was continued to this vicinity.

The two cultural motifs which he especially seeks portray a man standing with arms upraised, one arm at right angles with the other, and a deer with three arrows piercing its breast.

"These two motifs," he declares, "have a decided bearing on an ancient society which has come down to the present and which is found in the Masonic lodge."

Doctor Sargent hopes to go on to Nicaragua to continue explorations which were terminated last December 18, when Sardino, the rebel leader, ordered him out of the country within six hours.

Discovers New Vitamine

Assists Normal Growth

San Francisco.—A new vitamine, the sixth now known to science, and held capable of stimulating normal growth in underfed animals, has been discovered following long research with rats in the laboratories of the University of California.

Dr. Herbert M. Evans, chairman of the department of anatomy at the university, made the announcement. The vitamine, he said will be known as "Vitamine F," to follow after "Vitamine X," which was also discovered at the University of California.

The vitamine, said Doctor Evans, is essential to normal growth in animals, "which attain scarcely more than Lalf their size and remain sexually immature without it." The experiments resulting in the discovery were entirely with rats, but would bring similar results in other animals, he said.

"When a food mixture consisting of highly purified casein and recrystallized cane sugar was employed," Doctor Evans said, "with the addition of necessary salts and the five known vitamins, the rats were scarcely more than half the normal size. Growth stopped altogether and the animals remained sexually immature. Natural food was necessary to awaken their growth and convert them into healthy animals."

"Among the natural foods, lettuce and liver were the most potent, and they therefore almost certainly contain the new sixth member of the vitamins."

Will Request Ashes Be Spread on Clean Ground

New York.—The will of Hector Tyndale, lawyer, died recently, directed that "after it has been determined that I am dead beyond any doubt, my body shall be cremated and the ashes shall not be preserved, but spread upon or under the surface of clean ground in the open country, or on the open sea."

The estate, valued at "over $10,000," included 143,000,000,000,000 German marks. Of these the testator wrote: "In the belief that the German people eventually will require the redemption of all paper marks of wartime issue, I direct that my executors hold my marks of those issues until they can be sold at their cost to me, about $6,000."

Pronunciation Brings Cycle Thief to Grief

London.—A bit of snappy detective work has just been accomplished by a Northamptonshire policeman, who evidently also is a student of phonetics.

"The 'bobby,' on duty near the village of Towcester, had a hunch that a man who passed him, wheeling a bicycle, might not be the machine's legal owner.

"Where do you live?" the policeman asked.

"Tow-ester," the man replied, pronouncing the word as it is spelled.

"No, you don't," the policeman retorted, and arrested him. At the police court the next day the man pleaded guilty to the theft of the bicycle. The "bobby" explained that no resident of Towcester ever referred to the town's names as other than "Towster," and that it was the mispronunciation that confirmed his "hunch."

And when we looked at her, even in the dimly lighted interior of the limousine, her appearance was different, too. The difference was as subtle as it was unmistakable. What we saw was another—radically new personality. It was as if the partition walls which had separated the personality of the stupidly respectable chambermaid from that of the untrained savage of the South seas were breaking down; as if these two widely sundered persons were merging into one. Neither Jane Perkins nor Fanenna could have uttered the word "murder" in just that accent of half-apprehended horror.

We were nearing our journey's end. Our road lay alongside the railroad line, and already we could see the one light in the Oak Ridge station window. There was no time to tangle with the new problem.

Then the chauffeur spoke to us through the little speaking tube which connected the chauffeur's seat with the interior of the limousine:

"There's a house on fire, up ahead there."

We all looked, and instantly saw a sudden lurid light, which was piling up the sky; saw it pierced the next moment by angry orange-colored flames.

"He's set fire to the house!" the doctor cried; and added, into the speaking tube, "Put on all the speed you can! We've no time to waste!"

The chauffeur obeyed, and within two minutes we were at the scene of the fire. The cold air of the winter night was already resonant with the shouts of the firemen and the excited exclamations of the crowd of half-dressed citizens who had gathered to render what assistance they could, and to enjoy the spectacle at the same time.

Mallory had already swung the door open and was half way out of the car, when an exclamation from the doctor stopped him.

"Hold on!" he cried. "This isn't the house. The Morgan house is two blocks further on down the street. Drive on!" he shouted to the chauffeur. "We mustn't waste a minute!"

Mallory sprang back to his seat, and once more the car lurched forward. The doctor held the door with one hand and leaned far out, scanning the road ahead with eager eyes.

"Drive slow," he cautioned the chauffeur.

Then he turned and spoke to us inside the car. "I've an idea that we better not drive right up to the house. There's no need of giving any more warning than necessary of the fact that we're coming. Look out ahead here. Phelps. Isn't that white gate half way down the next block the gate to the Morgan yard?"

I peered out over his shoulder. "Yes, I couldn't mistake that," said I. "Good," said the doctor. "Stop here."

The four men clambered out of the car, the girl still fast asleep, still leaning back against the cushions in the corner, undisturbed by the confusion of our dismounting from the car.

"What shall we do with her?" I inquired. "I suppose she's safe enough where she is. She'll hardly wake up until you tell her to, will she?"

"No. The sleep is hypnotic," said the doctor. "She'll be safe enough here so far as that goes."

"It comes down to this," said Ashton. "If Wilkins is in the house, we shouldn't wait the girl. She'd be in the way, for if he's cornered, he'll make a stiff fight. But if he's been to the house and done his work and already got away, and we're too late for him, as I fancy we are, then we'll have to use the girl again to track him. There's no other way."

"Then the thing to do," said the doctor, "is to make a reconnaissance. If he's already been here and searched the house for what he wanted and gone away, that fact will be easily apparent, and, as you say, it's the first thing to find out. Come, we've wasted time enough. The girl will be perfectly safe here."

"Hold on," said Ashton. "Why should we all go? We might defeat our purpose that way. Send Mallory. He's worth all the rest of us put together at fence and locks, and that sort of thing. He can find out in five minutes whether that house has been entered or not, and he won't attract one-twentieth part of the attention that four of us will."

The doctor nodded.

Without waiting for any further bidding, Mallory rushed off in the darkness up the street toward the white gate. The rest of us stood just where we were, on the sidewalk, twenty paces or so from the automobile. We had nothing to do but wait for Mallory's return, and under such circumstances, as a rule, drift heavily but long before we expected his return, almost, it seemed, before he could have reached the house, we heard, coming toward us, the footsteps of a man running.

The three of us shrank back into the shadows, tensely alert for whatever this unexpected development might mean. But as the approaching figure emerged into the zone of light cut by the great gas lamps of our automobile, we saw that it was Mallory himself, Mallory hurrying toward us in an agony of haste, beckoning frantically, his eyes blazing with excitement.

We sprang forward to meet him.

"He's there!" he gasped. "Wilkins himself! He's up in the study! There's a light, and the blinds are down; but I saw his shadow on the blind!"

"As we drew nearer the gate, our pace slackened cautiously. Ashton was a little in advance of the rest of us, and was the first to peer around the mass of shrubbery, which screened the house from the view of the street, except at the one point where the gate made an opening. I saw him stop and stiffen, and heard him catch his breath with a gasp.

"That's him," he whispered. "We've got him."

The next moment I saw it, too—the silhouette upon the blind of a figure in cap and ulster, bending studiously forward over the desk, in the chair in which Henry Morgan had sat when he met his death.

"Yes," I heard my chief say in a piercing whisper; "yes, we've got him—unless, in some way, he's counted on making us think we had him—when we hadn't."

"Why do you think that?" Ashton demanded under his breath.

"It's—it's a little too obvious," said the doctor in uneasy hesitation. "Why should he court discovery in that way?"

The Three of Us Shrank Back into the Shadows.

Why should he be sitting there with his shadow on the blind, when he knows that half the town has been roused by this fire?"

Ashton started forward impatiently. "This is no time for theories," he muttered.

But the doctor laid a detaining hand upon his arm. "No," he said, "that's a valid question. If there's no trick about it, the man can't get away. If there is a trick, it's success will depend upon our doing the very thing that you propose to do—pushing ahead without stopping to think."

"Listen a minute," said Ashton, still in a whisper, but speaking with fierce impatience. "He must have set fire to that other house himself. He cannot have thought of a better scheme for drawing my men off the job. Once Wilkins saw them out of the house, he knew he had nothing to fear. He could make his search at leisure. And now he's found the things he wants, has found that map that he's been dreaming about for years, he's not thinking about his shadow nor the blind it falls on."

To me it seemed that the doctor's question had been fairly answered, and I moved forward, as Mallory and Ashton did. My chief hesitated an instant, then gave a nod of assent.

Mallory pulled open the gate. We all followed through it. Then I glanced up once more at the lighted window blind.

"Look!" I cried. "He's gone!"

One glance was all they needed. The silhouette of that figure had disappeared.

Ashton turned to Mallory and spoke so fast that the words trod on each other's heels.

"You stay outside," he commanded. "He may try the windows if he's cornered."

Who would have expected that Goliath's antagonist would emerge from the quiet pastures? Genius hatches her offspring in strange places. Very humble homes are the birthplaces of mighty emancipations, once said the late Doctor Jowett.

There was a little farm at St. Ives, and the farmer lived a quiet but unsensational life. But the affairs of the nation became more and more confused and threatening. Monarchical power degenerated, the people's liberties, and tyranny became rampant. And out from the little farm arose Oliver Cromwell, the ordained of God, to emancipate his country.

There was an obscure rectory at Epworth. The doings in the little rectory were just the quiet practices of simple homes in countless parts of England. And England was becoming brutalized, because its religious life was demoralized. The church was asleep, and the devil was wide awake! And forth from the humble rectory strode John Wesley, the appointed champion of the Lord, to enslave, to purify, and to sweeten the life of the people.

On what quiet farm is the coming deliverer now laboring? Who knows?—Exchange.

Revealed by Microscope

It was possible to identify any piece of timber, however old, by shaving off a slice of minute thickness and studying it under the microscope.

Cop Driven Mad by Fear of Gang

"Bravest" Officer Becomes Violently Insane.

Hoboken, N. J.—A few months ago Sergt. William Delaney was known as a policeman who feared nothing. Time and again his courage had been tested.

About that time he came across a gang of silk robbers in the act of holding up the driver of a silk truck. He gave battle without hesitation, shot it out with the gangsters, killed two of them, regained the truck, and made the robbery a sorry fizzle.

For his bravery he received an award of $1,000 from the Silk Association of America, honors from the police department and civic organizations, and much acclaim.

Then he went back to work, apparently the same Sergt. Bill Delaney. But, gradually, fear began to creep into his thoughts. He heard other officers tell stories of vengeance by gunmen. He read of such things in the paper. He began to express a feeling that vengeance would be meted out to him.

He changed and became nervous. About a week ago he heard that the widow of "Frenchy" Genese, one of the silk robbers he had killed, had come to Hoboken announcing she wanted to see the man who killed her husband.

He went home and doctors said he was nervous collapse. But rest did not help and the other morning he began babbling incoherently. Finally he became violent, smashing furniture and bric-a-brac.

Physicians pronounced his condition as serious. A squad of officers and a physician later left for a sanitarium, taking with them Sergt. Bill Delaney, the bravest policeman in Hoboken—gone insane through fear.

Stowaway Rivals Tale of Jonah and the Whale

Miami, Fla.—Government agents here have placed their official stamp on one of the strangest fish stories ever brought to light on that section of the Florida coast. They say they have reported to the Immigration bureau, at Washington, D. C., that a school of porpoises carried the little form of Gustav Danielzik, nineteen-year-old German boy, for three miles and cast him on the beach at Dania, Fla.

Border patrol officers the other day began a watch along the 25 miles of coast between Fort Lauderdale and Miami after they had received a radiogram from a steamer bound from Norfolk, Va., to Mobile, Ala., that two German youths, stowaways, had jumped overboard.

One youth, Wilhelm Kierschling, twenty-four, was found drifting aimlessly at sea, supported by a lifebuoy. That night some fishermen passing along Dania beach, near Fort Lauderdale, saw the figure of a man sprawled in the surf, making feeble efforts to crawl ashore. Revived, he told his rescuers:

"I could not swim. I tried for hours. The waves kept carrying me farther away. The water I swallowed made me sick. I gave up. Then some one pushed me. I do not care. Again I pushed, and I see—I was saved. I think I was in a boat. Then I know. Porpoise. They do not want to hurt me, just push me like I am in the way. They force me to shore. Now, I am glad, that I have been captured. I am sorry I jumped overboard and lost most of all. I tried to swim."

He said he had been in a boat with another boy, but they were separated. He said he had been in a boat with another boy, but they were separated.

Balks Bandits After They Dig His Grave

Orense, Spain.—A tale worthy of a Poe was unfolded concerning a country merchant who from a place of concealment saw robbers digging a grave for him.

Francisco Rodriguez Alvarez, the merchant, was on his way to inspect his farm when two masked highwaymen robbed him of 150 pesetas (about $25).

Stopping at an inn for the night, Alvarez told the innkeeper he had a much larger amount in the lining of his hat.

Near midnight he awoke and overheard the highwaymen addressing the innkeeper as "father."

He arranged his bed so as to make it appear occupied, and arming himself with a razor, hid behind the door.

Through the window he could see the two highwaymen digging a grave in the courtyard.

Soon the door creaked, and the innkeeper, cautiously entering the room, clung to his dagger into the pile of bedclothes.

Alvarez threw himself upon the innkeeper and overpowered him.

Hasten to a police station, he returned before the grave had been completed, and the men were arrested.

Rabbits, Easter Eggs, Etc.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

EASTER means many things to many people. To some it means new frocks and new millinery. To some it means the end of Lent, a period of self-imposed abstinence from worldly pleasures. To others it means the beauty of the white lily. And to still others it means rabbits, Easter eggs and joys of childhood. But back of all these superficial symbols is the one essential fact toward which all of them point—Easter day is the anniversary of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, and the spirit of Easter is the reassurance that there is life after death, that the soul of man is immortal.

Easter customs, like the customs which have come to be associated with Christmas, St. Valentine's day and other holidays and special dates of observance, are a mixture of the Christian and the pagan. To the Christian, conscious of the true meaning and religious significance of Easter, it is a matter for regret that many persons are seemingly more familiar with the pagan symbols, which have become associated with Easter incidentally, than they are with the true symbols of that day. They regard the emphasis upon these symbols as responsible for the statement often made that "Easter, Christmas and other Christian holidays are merely adopted pagan festivals," and point out that this is a fallacy similar to an assertion that the American Fourth of July is a festival in honor of Chinese dragon gods, adopted by the superstitious Yankees and associated in their superstition with the idea of their independence. Of course, every one knows that the use of firecrackers, which were invented by the Chinese as an offering to dragon gods, and the puns, with which the firecrackers are lighted, which are burned as incense in Mohammedan temples, came to be associated only by chance with Fourth of July celebrations and have nothing to do with the essential spirit of Independence day. Similarly the symbol of the white rabbit which lays Easter eggs came to be associated with Easter day by chance and has nothing to do with its essential spirit.

Regardless, however, of the philosophical and theological aspects of this question, the association of some of these familiar Easter symbols, pagan though they may have been in origin, with a Christian festival has a certain inherent interest. The association of the rabbit with Easter has its foundations in the ancient belief in European and Asiatic countries that the hare is the symbol for the moon. The moon is the "open-eyed watcher of the night," and the hare is a nocturnal animal. The young of the hare are born with their eyes open and are said never to close them. Since the date of Easter is governed by the moon, it is easily seen how the rabbit, which is the symbol for the moon, came to be an Easter symbol also.

The association of the egg with Easter goes back to certain beliefs of the ancients also. Eggs had been associated with the worship of Astarte, goddess of the Assyrians, the Phoenicians, Ishtar of the Egyptians, Diana of the Greeks and Roma and Eostre, whom the Teutons worshipped in the spring. Incidentally, the name Easter is said by some to be derived from the name of this Teutonic goddess, although others assert that it was named for an old pagan spring festival in honor of the sun's new birth in the east. The Egyptians regarded the egg as an emblem of the regeneration of things and of man's regeneration. Then, too, the egg with its life germ destined to produce a living creature when warmed by the mother hen is easily associated with the idea of the earth blossoming forth under the warm rays of the sun in the spring, both closely akin to the general idea of resurrection. Since the Resurrection of Christ occurred in the spring, it is easy to see how the symbols of the egg and all revived life in the springtime came to be associated with this event in the history of Christianity. The egg as a symbol was taken over by the Hebrews as an emblem of their deliverance from bondage and next the early Christians took it over as their symbol of the Resurrection.

The more intimate association of the rabbit and the egg is probably due to a pretty little legend which comes from Germany. It is as follows:

It was a lovely day in early springtime and Mrs. Rabbit was hurrying along the woodland path, taking some wild flowers to a sick woodchuck friend. Suddenly she came upon a lot of local peaches in the garden. She looked about her and then discovered a nest full of eggs.

"Oh, dear me," exclaimed Mrs. Bunny. "A fox must have stolen the mother chicken. And there are her eggs, getting chilled. I'll just sit on them to keep them warm." So saying, she put down her baskets and sat upon the nest.

Imagine Mrs. Rabbit's surprise, when she got up from the nest, the next morning and found that a family of chicks had hatched from the eggs. "Since their mother is gone I presume I shall have to take care of the poor little things," said the tender-hearted Mrs. Rabbit. This she did. Ever since then the rabbit has been associated with Easter and Easter eggs.

In some parts of northern Germany the children hang eggs on trees similar to Christmas trees and candy favors, gifts and all sorts of Easter novelties are placed on the tree around which the children gather, and sing happy songs on Easter morning.

Peasants in other European countries were accustomed to hang festoons of eggs over the chimney piece and to hang them down as heirlooms, for they were regarded as treasures to be kept and not as babies to be destroyed or thrown away. In England, under the old ecclesiastical laws, rent was payable in Easter eggs; games were played with them (a fact which was probably the forerunner of Easter "egg-rolling"), such as that observed each year on the White House lawn in Washington, especially by the children in North England. Still another association of the egg with Easter lay in the fact that it was contrary to religious tenets to eat eggs during Lent, but when Easter marked the end of that period they were the first fleshy nourishment after the fast to sanctify the body.

The custom of dyeing Easter eggs goes back for many centuries. Peasants in the European countries dyed them red, as a symbol of Christ's blood, but the lords and ladies covered theirs with gold leaf. Later more elaborate decorations were used. Sometimes they were marbled in a variety of colors; sometimes they bore cupids and love knots, flaming hearts and the signs of the zodiac. Sometimes they were halved and the shells hinged together with ribbon and lined with gilt paper and religious pictures. Among the Venetians it was the custom to give a friend a gift egg bearing the giver's portrait, and many other variations on egg decoration were common in France, Spain and Belgium.

Half a century ago Easter eggs were made of porcelain, ivory, mother-of-pearl, bronze, silver, or gold in the form of little cases to hold various trinkets. But the modern child, favoring something useful as well as ornamental, prefers an Easter egg which he can first admire and then eat. So we have the elaborate confections in the form of chocolate rabbits sitting on a nest of spun sugar in which are a plentiful supply of candy eggs.

Even the Easter fashion parade, when tidally appears at church on this Sunday morning in a new frock and new millinery, is a symbol of resurrected life in the springtime when all nature is putting on new raiment. It is also carrying out the old British tradition that it is "good luck to wear something new on Easter day."

The Easter lily, as a symbol of Easter, is a combination of the religious significance and the manifestations of nature. In its snow-white purity it is emblematic of the flawless life of the Christ. And when the lily bud opens in the springtime and the white blossom comes forth in all its glory, it is the one perfect symbol of resurrected life.

So these are the symbols of Easter, each representing a different tradition, perhaps, but all emblematic of essentially the same thing, an awakening after a sleep, life after death—Resurrection!

There is no death, who says there is mistakes. Transition for decay. Eternal life springs everywhere the same. Death's story to diamay. Promise of everlasting life is writ Plainly on Nature's scroll

Important Announcement to every owner of a Model T Ford

ON MAY 25, 1927, when Henry Ford first announced his plans for making a new car, he announced also that he would continue to make parts for the Model T Ford. He said:

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. It blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads everywhere. It broke down the barriers of distance in rural sections, brought people in these sections closer together, and placed education within the reach of everyone. We are still proud of the Model T Ford. If we were not, we would not have continued to make it so long."

For twenty years, the Model T Ford led the automobile industry and it still serves more people than any other automobile. Over one-third of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords—an indication of the sturdy worth of the car and its value to people in all walks of life the world over.

The Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts for these cars "until the last Model T is off the road." That is a part of Ford service. That is what Henry Ford meant when he said: "We believe that when a man buys one of our cars we should keep it running for him as long as we can and at the lowest up-keep cost."

Because of this policy a considerable part of the Ford manufacturing plants is given over to the making of parts for the Model T Ford. These replacement parts are made of the same material and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Make it a point, therefore, to see the nearest Ford dealer and have him look over your Model T Ford. You may find that a very small expenditure will enable you to get thousands of miles of additional service, and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.

YE OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE, BOY, HOWDY!

You tell 'em, that at the site picked for Camp Fawcett on the Nueces where the summer encampment of the Boy Scouts of the Southwest Texas Council, is to be held this summer, there is acres and acres of clear, clean running water in that "Old Swimmin' Hole." Boy, howdy! The swimmin' hole is a gem of a place.

A good natural spring provides plenty of clean water. The boy who thinks we won't have fun at Camp Fawcett on the Nueces this summer is all wet and I don't mean maybe.

You betcha life we're gonna have fun. I went there last week with Mr. Palmer and others, just looking things over. I had a lotta fun cooking "kabob," if you fellows know what I mean and of course every good Scout knows what "Camp Kabob" is. If he don't he oughta find out afore the moon changes again. Good eats "kabob" at. Yum, yum!

ILUS Q. MCCORKLE,
Chairman Camping.

Yes, Scouts, that's where our summer camp is to be held August 1-14 inclusive; at "Camp Fawcett on the Nueces," at Barkdale, Texas, 47 miles north of Uvalde. This announcement should cause every Scout to determine in his own mind to begin saving his nickels, dimes and quarters NOW for his camp fee. Deposit them with your local banker, too, and instruct him not to pay any checks against that account unless it is a life and death proposition, and then agree to talk the matter over with him.

It should mean to the men of the area who love boys, that "I am setting aside the first two weeks in August as my vacation period, and I am going to Camp Fawcett on the Nueces and just see how much fun there is in being a boy again for awhile."

The executive board of council officials held a very interesting session at Eagle Pass last week. Boys, you have the finest group of men behind you, pushing for you, that you have ever met, and if you will just prove to them that Scouting goes a long way toward helping a boy be a real fellow, it won't be long until we'll have the best area council in the South.

We are going to tell you more about the camp site, fishing, Palace Cave, Paint Bluffs, Devil's Sinkhole, Meridian Mountain, and plans for the Indian village and our camp program from time to time. Our camp chairman, "Proacher, Mac," is a real camper, and he is going to help us tell you the story of Camp Fawcett. If you don't find these articles in your weekly paper, call up your editor or, better, go around and see him and have a friendly talk with him. We know he is a busy man; we also know he loves boys.

Fixas note this: every boy from 12 to 18 years at Mine 4, Cline, Texas, is a Boy Scout. That is 100 per cent. We have had to organize them as a home patrol, with R. S. Livingston as scoutmaster. They are going to build new homes and a new schoolhouse, and are improving the mines so they hope to have enough boys for a troop charter before many months. We hope to announce two other new troops next week.

Two troops have entered the tree planting contest for Texas Scouts—Crystal City and Leaky. The Scout Executive inspected the Crystal City troop this week, and they have a fine bunch of boys there. They have had lots of interruptions in their activities, but they are serving notice on the other troops of the area to "please excuse our dust."

Talking about planting trees, we give this little problem to the Scouts of the area, and it is possible to arrange trees this way. If you can't do it, call in Dad. There is no trick about it: Take ten trees (and ten only) and put four trees to a row, and have five rows when you get through. It is plain that you will use every tree one or more times, and the rows will cross. To the first registered Scout sending in a correct design of how he may arrange the trees to get five rows of four trees each, we will mail a Scout Camp Memory Book that he will be proud to own.

FORMER RINGLING BROS. CIRCUS BAND MAN TO APPEAR AT CHAUTAUQUA

"We have appeared in every state in the Union," said J. P. Alexander in speaking of platform experience. "We have played across Canada from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Vancouver, British Columbia. Our audiences have varied from an all Indian audience on the Indian reservation at Browning, Montana, to the very exclusive Rotary Club of Washington, D. C. We have seen our audiences come in thousands to the East, drawn by oxen in Kentucky and Mississippi, and on dog sleds and snowshoes in Canada."

J. P. Alexander, who heads the Alexander Novelty Four, has had a life of action and varied experience which has well prepared him to head such a company. His career started when a youngster in high school. Because of his desire to travel he overrode his parents' objection one night and slipped out the window, slid off the roof of the low kitchen to the ground and joined an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, where he played in the band and took the part of George Harris on the stage.

For two years Mr. Alexander was a member of the famous concert band of Ringling Brothers' Circus. However, he decided that this was hardly the life he wished to continue and located at Ann Arbor, Michigan. For seven years he was a member of the "University School of Music" orchestra. He also received most of his musical education at Ann Arbor and taught there. It was here that he met Mrs. Alexander, who was also teaching.

But the Gypsy fever again proved fatal and the Alexanders returned to the road. They were known as the "Musical Alexanders in Moments Musical" and for six years played the principal vaudeville circuits of the East.

"It was nine years ago that we did our first Chautauqua work," Mr. Alexander concluded, "and we immediately fell in love with it. It is the hardest work we have ever done but such a satisfaction, because we feel it is worthwhile. We hope to be an inspiration that encourages other musicians to go on with their work and in bringing a program that will entertain all."

New Canvas Auditoriums This Season

There are to be new, waterproof canvas auditoriums over the entire circuit this season for Chautauqua. The circuit management plans every year to keep in step with the improvements made in producing and stage setting. More elaborate scenery is to be carried this year than ever before. The tents were designed and made especially for the Associated Chautauqs by the Baker-Lockwood Company, the largest tent manufacturing company in the West. They have a specially planned dramatic end and proscenium which adds much to the attractiveness of the interior, and gives a regular stage arrangement for the presentation of programs. All tents are equipped with beautiful new curtains and the effect is to make the auditorium a comfortable and beautiful place in which to meet and listen to Chautauqua treats.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. A Doctor Talks About Cascara

It is unfortunate that many people judge the thoroughness of a laxative by its violence. The salts that rush through the system may not even penetrate the film of poisons that has coated the colon. A long list of drugs will "loosen the bowels" but what is the best way to CLEANSE them? The world's best laxative is one that Mother Nature makes in her own laboratory. It is the bark of a tree, called CASCARA. The Indians used to chew this bark—and reach old age without a sick day. It is the best thing there is today, for any system; best for the blood. The most beneficial in its action on the bowels, of anything yet disclosed. For many reasons:

First of all, there is no HABIT formed from cascara. The bowels are not weakened, but strengthened by its occasional use. The occasions when one needs this aid grow less and less. Its influence is long-felt. You don't find yourself worse bound-up the day following. You do find the bowels more inclined to move of their own volition. The candy cascara that every drug-store always has in stock is the ideal form of cascara.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS CONFESS HOLDUPS

Say They Shared in Robberies to Get Thrill.

Hagerstown, Md.—Dorothy Simmers, nineteen years old, and Hilda Little, seventeen years old, graduates of the Chambersburg (Pa.) high school, are back in the Chambersburg jail to await trial on charges of highway robbery. The girls, who have confessed to robbing for the thrill because of the "boredom" of their home town, jumped bail on the eve of their trial last October and were missing until their capture recently in Passaic, N. J., where both were employed as domestics.

An intercepted letter to the mother of the younger girl led to their capture.

With Charles Stepler, eighteen-year-old librarian of the Second Lutheran church, Chambersburg, the girls, it is alleged, acted as decoys, for men whom Stepler, it is alleged, then held up at lonely spots where the girls led the victims. Raleigh Jones, the last alleged victim, became suspicious and notified the police. Dorothy Simmers was taken into custody for questioning and confessed her part of the holdups. When confronted, her companions also confessed.

The girls said they received $4 as their share of the first holdup, which netted $7, the victim being John Knoll, Chambersburg. They spent the money for ice cream and movies.

Mummies' Wounds Tell of Egyptian Battle

New York.—The story of a battle on the river Nile 4,000 years ago, as revealed by the mummified bodies of 60 soldiers, found buried in a royal Theban tomb, is told in a bulletin of the Royal Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Dr. H. E. Winlock, associate curator of Egyptian art at the museum, reconstructs the battle from reports of the wounds found on the mummies by the museum's Egyptian expedition.

From the small head wounds and the downward course of arrows found in the bodies, Doctor Winlock says the men must have died storming a castle, the head wounds evidently having been caused by small missiles from above. They were soldiers of King Mentuhotep, and the unusual honor paid them of burial in a royal tomb led to the conclusion they fell in an important engagement.

Other wounds on the bodies, the article says, shows that the soldiers were dispatched with clubs by the victors, after their comrades had retreated. Another attack, however, must have been successful, as the bodies were recovered for burial.

The tomb was first discovered in 1923, but because of the disorder, showing previous visits of thieves, it was sealed and not opened until recently. Meanwhile the expedition devoted itself to more promising excavations. When the tomb was reopened, the bodies of the soldiers showed their period to be that of 2,000 B.C., an important find, as excavations had previously failed to discover what manner of men were the invaders who descended on Egypt from Thebes in 2000 B. C., conquered Memphis and started the second great period of Egyptian culture.

Gilding Lily Out, but Roses Are Illuminated

Boston.—There may be no profit in gilding the lily, but it appears that illuminating the rose is a pretty good business. At least engineers found it so in the garden of Gordon Abbott, Boston bankers, at Manchester-by-the-Sea.

Roses are illuminated by electric globes of proper hue. Tiny spot-lights produce special effects on rock formations, floral groups and fountains. By means of a mechanical moonlight effect the lawn can be flooded with soft steel-blue light remarkably like Luna's own product.

The camouflage artist was industrious, too. He concealed wires and lights in trees and shrubbery.

Baboon Blues

Nairobi, British East Africa.—Natives have found that baboons can be kept away from settlements if one is captured within sight of the others, clipped, painted blue and released to rejoin his mates.

Grain Is Currency, French Courts Rule

Paris.—As in ancient days, farm produce still is recognized as legal tender.

Farmers' contracts to pay bills in wheat and other foodstuffs have been held valid by the French courts, although contracts for payment in stable currencies have been voided repeatedly.

Farming "on shares" is a custom here as in other countries, and French farmers were accustomed to have their usual practice questioned as an apparent violation of the law requiring the execution of all contracts in paper francs. The wording of the law apparently ignored "payment in kind," but the courts held that food, as a basic material, is relatively one of the most stable mediums of exchange.

COAL CHATTER

"Not long ago," said the first piece of coal, in a deep, black voice, "we were very scarce. Yes, I've heard the ancestors talking about it."

"What are ancestors?" asked the second piece of coal.

"Ancestors," said the first piece of coal, "are things that go before us."

"I see," said the second piece of coal, "we'd call those ancestors because they go before wagons. And we'd call the handle-bars of bicycles ancestors because they go before the children who ride them."

"Not at all," said the first piece of coal.

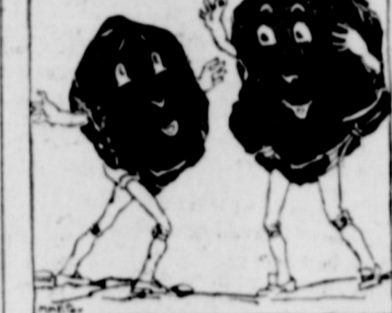

"Why not?" asked the second piece of coal. "I think that I understood you quickly and smartly."

"But you didn't understand me," said the first piece of coal.

"Why not?" asked the second piece of coal. "I'm sure I don't know why not, but I know that you did not understand me, and that you don't now."

"Then you must surely explain," said the first piece of coal.

"I will. When people talk about their ancestors (which, by the way, they're very apt to do, especially if they have had great and noble ancestors and want to boast, and think that they don't have to do anything but brag, instead of living up to their ancestors), they mean the people of their own family who have gone before them.

"I See," Said the Second Piece of Coal.

"A little boy's grandfather and his great-grandfather and his grandmother and great-grandmother and those people of his family who came before him—they are all his ancestors."

"Well," said the second piece of coal, "we haven't any coal ancestors, I'm sure. I've never had a coal grandfather."

"That is true," said the first piece of coal, "but I spoke of our ancestors meaning the coal which was around last winter."

"I am sorry if I mixed you up at all."

"I'll forgive you," said the second piece of coal. "I am glad to know what ancestors are."

"But I don't think they are as nice as roaring fires. Now if we had ancestors and could choose them ourselves I'd pick out furnaces and coal fires."

"That's a good idea," said the first piece of coal, "but of course ancestors are never chosen. And, now that I think of it, furnaces wouldn't do for ancestors anyway."

"They go with us we with them; they don't go before us."

"But ah, we have been appreciated in our time. We've been scarce."

"And always in the winter, scarce or not, we are loved and admired and wanted."

A Fairy Tale Animal

A character who might have stepped straight from the pages of "Alice in Wonderland" is Pluto II, who lives in the small mammal house at the London zoo.

A peculiar-looking animal the general shape of a giant-sized dormouse, he has the scaly appearance of a tortoise and the fat pink legs of a young pig. His technical name is armadillo, and his chief virtues lie in rubbish-eating and snake-killing.

Encased from nose to tail in thick skin scales, each about half an inch wide, and finished at both ends with razor-edged claws, the armadillo is almost impregnable to outward violence. Tap Pluto II quite hard on the back with a walking-stick and he takes no notice, but insert it gently underneath him, tickle his fat little neck, and he will roll over like a cat and almost purr with pleasure.

His ways with snakes, however, are somewhat different. A snake facing Pluto has about as much chance as a hypnotized rabbit. The snake will coil its sinuous green body beside him, rear its head, and look at him. Quite calmly Pluto gazes back, his head half withdrawn beneath his shell.

The snake smacks his lips and rears to strike. Instantly Pluto's demeanor changes. His neck shoots out, his fat legs crouch, and he springs out to the snake's back. Once there, he bends his body till he is lying almost double over the snake. Then, he applies the pressure of his razor-edged claws until the snake is cut in two.

Death Comes Quickly in the Electric Chair

The efficiency and rapidity with which criminals are put to death in the electric chair is explained by Frederick Tisdale in an article in Liberty.

"The process of strapping in the criminal and attaching the electrodes is completed in about 40 seconds," points out the writer. "So swiftly do the attendants work that the current enters the prisoner's body 70 seconds after he enters the death chamber. The current is kept on about two minutes. A second and even a third shock may be administered as a precaution. While the current is on a humming sound is produced in the body.

"Penologists declare that death by electrocution is instantaneous," continues the author. "The heart is stopped and the brain paralyzed before the nerves can register any feeling. The veins and arteries offer a perfect course for the current."

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grams of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

A QUESTION FOR EVERY TIRE BUYER

When claims conflict—when all tire manufacturers make the same arguments—when every sales scheme has been tried on you—when you have discovered by experience that "the road test" is THE ONLY TEST, ask yourself this vital question:

Why do More People Buy Goodyear tires than Any Other Kind?

Goodyear has been supreme for ten years. Goodyear makes far more tires than any other tire builder.
 Goodyear Tires out-perform others on the road. Goodyear does not cut prices or quality. A fair price is asked for the concentrated effort of the world's greatest rubber manufacturer.
 Goodyear Service is friendly, expert, interested. It insures you full mileage.
 Why has the largest group of car owners in the world bought over one hundred million Goodyear tires? We have the answer. Let us give it to you.
