

THE SANDERSON TIMES

Volume 21

Sanderson, Texas, Friday Feb. 8, 1929

No 51

DRYDEN NOTES.

By Mrs. W. R. House.

Mrs. E. P. Peeples was operated on Sunday morning at the Williams Sanitarium in Del Rio for Appendicitis. Reports from her at the first of the week were that she was not doing so well.

Miss Martha Thomas is home from El Paso where she has been in training for a nurse.

Mrs. Lee Williams from Sulphur ranch was called to Sanderson the first of the week to nurse the little Roy Knox boy through pneumonia.

Jeff Banner surprised his friends when he went to Del Rio Sunday and was married to Mrs. Elsie Smith on February 4 at 11 o'clock a. m. They motored to Dryden that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. White chopped in Sanderson one day this week.

Mrs. Virginia Bartlett spent Saturday in Del Rio shopping.

Mrs. W. T. Carpenter spent Saturday the guest of Mrs. M. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bardwell visited in Del Rio this week.

Miss Elsie Chandler spent the past week with homefolks returning Tuesday to the Stillwell ranch.

Mrs. J. W. McLeod made several trips to Sanderson this week having dental work done.

George Scanlan spent the week end in El Paso visiting his sister.

Joe Kerr of Sanderson was in our town Sunday evening.

Rev. McMillan preached Sunday afternoon at three o'clock to a nice crowd.

While riding a motor cycle Sunday evening Joe Lepley lost control of the machine which resulted in a very bad wreck. Dr. Robertson was called to give first aid. He received several very bad cuts and bruises but at present is doing alright.

SANDERSON SCHOOL COMPLIMENTED ON HOME ECONOMICS WORK

Favorable reports complimenting the home economics work that has been done in the Sanderson High School this year have been recently received from Miss Lillian Peek, state supervisor of home economics, who visited here on Monday of last week.

In her comment on the entire school system, Miss Peek said, "It was a pleasure to visit Sanderson and to note the progress which has been made since my last visit. The general tone and atmosphere of the school seemed good and indicates an efficient and congenial organization."

Although many noteworthy improvements have been made, according to the statements of Miss Peek, she thinks that with a new high school building next year, Sanderson will have one of the best home economics curricula in this part of the state.

During her visit here, Miss Peek seemed pleased with the quality and amount of work being done by the home economics classes.

SMALL FIRE TUESDAY MORNING

A fire alarm was turned in early Tuesday morning about 5 o'clock when an oil stove which was used for heating the office in the rear of the Loma Alta Service station, exploded. The fire was confined to the office and practically everything in it was destroyed. Winston Davis, who was in the office at the time was severely burned on the hands and on his neck.

The fire was kept from spreading to other buildings and was put out before any more serious damage was done. Several fire extinguishers were brought over from the roundhouse by the night foreman W. Carter and his men who helped extinguish the blaze.

IN MEMORIAL

Mrs. Clara Bell, sister of Walter O'Bryant of this city, passed away Thursday, January 31, at her home in Comstock. The funeral was held Friday, Feb. 1, at 3 p. m. and interment was made in the Comstock cemetery.

Mrs. Bell was born in 1876. She became a Christian at the age of 18, and has lived a beautiful christian life, being a blessing to her home and the community in which she lived. She was loved and respected by all who were privileged to know her.

Mrs. Bell is survived by her husband Fayette Bell, her son Alvia Bell, age 21, five brothers, Walter O'Bryant of Sanderson, Jasper O'Bryant of Blanco, Oscar O'Bryant of Juno; George, Isaac and Ben O'Bryant all of Comstock, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Chandler of Abilene.

Mrs. Bell had been a resident of Comstock for twenty-one years. She will be missed and her loss will be mourned by her many friends. Our hearts go out in sympathy to all her loved ones.

—Contributed.

The Presbyterian Church. Rev. H. G. Markley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Del Rio, will preach at the Presbyterian church here next Sunday, both morning and evening. The Rev. Mr. Markley is a good preacher and a good fellow and deserves a good audience. Hear him Sunday.

All the services of the church will be held at the usual hours of meeting—10 and 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.

Among the steps leading toward happiness are the church steps.

J. A. McMillan, Minister.

Jeff B. Atwood of Rosewell, New Mexico, was a visitor in our city on Tuesday. Mr. Atwood is the District Governor of Rotary International of the 42nd district and met with the local Rotary Club at a special luncheon meeting on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Holland and daughter were in town last Saturday from their ranch near Stockton visiting friends and shopping. They were accompanied by Mr. Holland's mother and by Miss Coleman their governess.

Clyde Mills was a business visitor in San Antonio this week.

A critic is a grown-up boy who continues to throw stones
FULLER PEP

WE PRESS TO PLEASE YOU

This is our way of suggesting that a man should keep his trousers pressed. It's really no trouble at all with our prompt service and the expense is a mere trifle.

Empire Cleaners & Dyers
Frank Robertson, Owner & Mgr.

Bridge Party.

Thursday afternoon the Cactus Bridge Club was delightfully entertained, with Mrs. Herbert Buchanan as hostess.

After playing 5 tables of bridge prizes were awarded. Mrs. Tina East receiving high score was presented with an artistic doll pin cushion and Mrs. Eva Stansell having second high received a beautiful hand made boudoir pillow.

Dainty refreshments consisting of shrimp salad, hot rolls,

What Accounts Are Profitable

Contrary to general opinion, banks do not make 6 per cent profit on each deposit made in a checking account. A general average of profit is 4 per cent and from all deposits 15 per cent must be deducted as a cash reserve.

In banking circles, it is generally accepted as truth that accounts whose balance falls below $200 are an expense to the bank.

In view of this, our service fee of 50c per month for accounts whose balance falls below $50.00 is just and reasonable.

Sanderson State Bank
Sanderson, Texas

potato chips, cake and coffee, were served to the following members: Mesdames Ida Bodkin, Cecile Fletcher, Eva Stansell, Jewel Yates, Lolette Robertson, Elouise White, and Mabel Henshaw.

Wanted—Three rooms for light housekeeping; with wood or coal stove for cooking on if possible.
Lewis Adrian
2tpd at the Wilson house

EWES FOR SALE
900 bred ewes for sale in the wool, $16.
Arvin & Corder,
Sanderson, Tex.
4tpd

Forschheimer's February CLEARANCE SALE

Begins Saturday, February 9

and includes up to

Saturday, Feb. 16

ALL MERCHANDISE GREATLY REDUCED
In Price During This Sale

COME IN AND SEE US

L. FORSCHHEIMER'S

Where Quality and Price Counts

W. E. STIRMAN

City Dairy Man

Cows kept in stalls and fed the finest
Alfalfa Hay and Dairy Feed

Phone No. 2

Sanderson, Texas.

LEMONS & HENSHAW, ABSTRACTORS

Terrell County Lands

Lands Sold Property Returned Lands Leased Taxes Paid

Abstracts Examined and Titles Passed Upon by an Efficient and Reliable Attorney.
Office with County Clerk, Sanderson, Texas

G. J. Henshaw, Mgr.

SANDERSON MERCANTILE CO.

"The Store of Service and Quality"

DEALERS IN

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Phone No. 10

Prompt delivery

You will Enjoy

Our meats. Tender as can be, tasty and richly flavored, is the meat that you order from us.

"YOUR BUSINESS APPRECIATED"

Sanderson Market

EARL STIRMAN, MGR.

We Carry Everything Handled In A General Store

DRY GOODS

The Season's New and Best Styles

DRESS GOODS,

MEN'S SUITS,

HATS, CAPS,

BOOTS AND SHOES.

GROCERIES

We Have Everything That's Good to Eat

Canned Vegetables and

Fruits,

Jellies, Jams,

Teas and Coffees.

HARDWARE

We Are Headquarters for

Hardware, Oil, Paints

Stoves, Pipe Fittings,

Wire, Nails,

Studebaker Wagons

FURNITURE

We Have a Nice Line of

Chairs, Rockers, Tables,

Dressers, Beds,

Springs and

Mattresses.

LUMBER

Anything You Want in

Building Material, Sash

Boards, Cement, Lime

Brick, Roofing,

Fencing.

THE KERR MERC. COMPANY

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Fitcher's CASTORIA

For Piles, Corns, Bunions, Chilblains, etc. HANFORD'S BALSAM OF NYRAN

Complete Washout New Author—Could you use my story if I were to tell it down? Hard-boiled Editor—No chance. Boil down a gallon of water to a pint and it would still be water, wouldn't it?

No one hates a cross temper in another so much as a grouchy man.

Stop the Epidemic

Emulsio

as a relief for and as a preventive of Flu and Flu Coughs, Obsolete Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Grippe, Croup, Whooping Cough, Etc.

EMULSION is a palatable emulsion combined with those building ingredients and other valuable ingredients and is sold on a money back guarantee.

Agents: Men, Women, Sell Press Hot-Bottle, Replicas Rubber bottle, No refills, 3 yr. guarantee, $2.50 C. O. D. Big price. General Manufacturing, 1511 Guilford, Dallas, Mo.

ART PHOTOS, SEDES, 1, $1.00. Agents: Best pocket samples, 25¢ per doz. Carlin, 1500 N. 10th St., Minneapolis, Minn. Free samples, ARK, G.P.O. Box 421, N. Y.

FROST PROOF Cabbage & Onion Plants

Leading Varieties Now Ready Postpaid $2.00 - $1.00 - $1.50. Express $1 per 100. $100 for $4.00. Special prices on large quantities.

FREE—This high grade Fountain Pen and Pencil Set, or other valuable gifts, given for selling only 10 bottles of finest Liquid Perfume at 15¢ each. No extra money to pay. Write today. We guarantee.

Your Own Business!

Representatives in your community to handle EMERSON'S HONOLULU BARBAPARILLA COMPOUND. A sure fire winner and Sales Representative. Work spare or whole time. An opportunity to develop a profitable business of your own. Write today for details.

Ride the Interurban FROM Houston to Galveston

Every Hour on the Hour Express Service—Non-Stop Trains 9:00 a. m. and 3:00 p. m.

Half and Half Cottonseed, high germination, heavy test produce, early picking $2.75 100. LEKINGTON, HAY CO., Lexington, Tenn.

PAPERHANGING MANUAL, 75 lessons Free. Up-to-the-minute wall paper style. Ask for samples by name. Mail order, etc.

PARKER'S HAIR BALM. Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Falling Hair. Cleanses and Softens Scalp. (Bottle 10¢, 25¢, 50¢, 75¢, 1.00, 1.50, 2.00, 2.50, 3.00, 4.00, 5.00, 6.00, 7.00, 8.00, 9.00, 10.00, 11.00, 12.00, 13.00, 14.00, 15.00, 16.00, 17.00, 18.00, 19.00, 20.00, 21.00, 22.00, 23.00, 24.00, 25.00, 26.00, 27.00, 28.00, 29.00, 30.00, 31.00, 32.00, 33.00, 34.00, 35.00, 36.00, 37.00, 38.00, 39.00, 40.00, 41.00, 42.00, 43.00, 44.00, 45.00, 46.00, 47.00, 48.00, 49.00, 50.00, 51.00, 52.00, 53.00, 54.00, 55.00, 56.00, 57.00, 58.00, 59.00, 60.00, 61.00, 62.00, 63.00, 64.00, 65.00, 66.00, 67.00, 68.00, 69.00, 70.00, 71.00, 72.00, 73.00, 74.00, 75.00, 76.00, 77.00, 78.00, 79.00, 80.00, 81.00, 82.00, 83.00, 84.00, 85.00, 86.00, 87.00, 88.00, 89.00, 90.00, 91.00, 92.00, 93.00, 94.00, 95.00, 96.00, 97.00, 98.00, 99.00, 100.00)

Present Christmas Customs, Pagan Survivals, Must Be Christianized

By REV. CHARLES B. KETCHAM, Cleveland.

BECAUSE the celebration of Christmas became general before any large body of custom and ritual had had time to grow up around the day, many of the old pagan observances were taken over bodily by the Christians. Some of these symbols and customs were given a new meaning; some brought their old pagan associations over with them; some lost their old meaning without taking on any new significance.

The use of the holly is an example of a pagan survival that has lost its original meaning without gathering any clear-cut new significance. To the early sun worshippers, the holly berries stood for the drops of blood shed by a mythical hero who lost his life rescuing the sun from a great dragon that had seized it and was carrying it away, so that the earth experienced shorter days and colder weather.

To these survivals of paganism, the church, of course, added new customs of her own as, for instance, the placing of a lighted candle in the window on Christmas eve to guide the Christ child. Christmas carols and legends of the Christ child soon began to gather about the day to give it religious significance.

But even today there is more folklore and ancient custom in our observance of Christmas than there is of Christian significance. The giving and receiving of gifts bulks larger than religion with most people. Not a few even of our Sunday school entertainments feature Santa Claus more than they do the Christ.

This condition of affairs is a challenge to the church. The Christmas customs that we cannot thoroughly Christianize must be replaced by new customs that will emphasize the meaning of the day. The elements that can be infused with the Christ spirit, must be, if they are to be preserved.

Great Duty of Science Is to Give Vision to Man Beyond His Ordinary Abilities

By DEAN ROBERT R. WICKS, Princeton University.

The job of the scientist is to find what can be put in place of conventional religion. But the spirit of true religion has not vanished so long as the spirit of unselfish devotion to our fellow man continues in the world. The vast majority of people find that our present conventional religion puts a strain on their imagination that almost breaks it down. We must think about religion in a natural, living way. To the average man religion tends to become unreal and to deal with things out of his reach. But that is just where science comes in—it gives a vision to man beyond his ordinary abilities.

We think that the things we can feel and handle are more real than the things of the spirit. But now we have learned that these material things are just made up of electrical energy, and we can think as readily of spiritual energy now, so that spiritual forces become just as true to reality as objects and things. Young people try to find their own reality for themselves. But sheer self-expression never got man anywhere. He is made to express something more and greater than himself. If you want to make more of your life, connect it and transmit its influence to other people. Keep your life merely for yourself, and it becomes no more than a tale told by an idiot, signifying nothing.

Enlightened Business, and the Press, Has United the American People

By CHARLES M. SCHWAB, Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

The unity of the American people is an outcome of the process of enlightened business. Through the investment of capital in the means of transportation and communication, the American people throughout this vast area have been brought into closer contact with one another, and to each of our people has been made available the results of the effort of the people as a whole.

You buy a newspaper for 2 cents. It brings to your table the results of the efforts of news gatherers in all parts of the world. To bring these results to you involves a vast expenditure of capital for printing presses and plant, as well as enormous expenditures for cables and other charges, all of them made cheap by the investment of huge sums of capital in other directions.

That the average man today enjoys, in a measure, the wealth of all men, museums and art galleries that wealthy men have given to the people are proof.

Urgent Need for Eight-Hour Law for Women Engaged in Industrial Pursuits

By WILLIAM L. BODINE, Chicago School Official.

Thousands of wives in Illinois are forced to work in order to support and educate children left behind by fathers who desert and leave their families at the mercy of the world. Wife desertion is one of the greatest causes of juvenile delinquency. If the hours of working mothers could be shortened, they would have more time to attend to home duties, and keep better vigilance over their children outside of school hours. If eight hours is long enough for a man to work it is long enough for a woman to work.

The overworked and underpaid woman means the underfed child. The underfed pupil often becomes the pathetic victim of mental retardation. The backward boy at books means the forward boy in truancy. It seems a travesty on justice to see able-bodied men quitting work at the end of eight hours, while frail women must work two hours longer for the bread of life in this state that gave Abraham Lincoln, the great emancipator, to the world.

Marvelous Story of the Nativity Enables Man to Hold God Close to His Heart

By REV. DR. IVAN LEE HOLT (Methodist), St. Louis.

The story of the Nativity, as told in the Gospels, is so marvelously romantic that no one could have invented it. When man invents a god he makes him so powerful and mighty that his god inspires awe and terror. Were it not for Christmas, God would be remote. Now we can catch Him up in our arms and hold Him to our heart.

With all the knowledge of facts that you have, but mindful of the mystery, go and kneel with the shepherds at the manger, in the world of hopes and dreams and love, so that the world of so much mystery will be to you the world of glorious reality.

The History of John J. Doherty's Case

"Three years ago I took a severe cold, putting me directly to bed. After a month's treatment for pleurisy my physician was baffled by the action of my fever or temperature, which was high one day and low the next, and while he tried different prescriptions, I didn't improve any, but slowly became weaker.

"The doctor finally decided to tap me by running a needle-like instrument into the left side of my back and between the ribs, to ascertain if pus was forming in my left lung. The tapping resulted in the withdrawal of a small quantity of pus and the doctor said it was forming so fast that I must have an operation to extract and draw out the pus. At the time my heart pained me terribly because it was three inches out of place, due to the pressure of the fast-accumulating pus.

"I was ordered to the hospital for an immediate operation or I would be a dead man in 96 hours. The next morning the pus was removed, one inch of two ribs in the back, forming a square cavity to remove the pus, which squirted eight feet from the table. About two quarts was removed. A rubber tube was then inserted in the cavity to the lung for a drain, which took about three weeks to perfectly drain and heal the cavity.

"The doctors told me that I had to take all precautions possible, as I was subject to easily capturing tubercular germs, due to the weakness of my lungs. For one whole year I used several kinds of tonic and lung medicines and didn't improve much from weakness.

"Then I began the use of Milks Emulsion and after a month's trial I found myself with increasing appetite and gaining strength, and today I have regained my natural weight and strength and feel completely myself. And the joy of it is, after using all of the Milks Emulsion that I did it didn't form a habit. I haven't used any for a month now and I feel at my best. I am 48 years of age and weigh 180 pounds.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for your wonderful preparation." Yours truly, JOHN J. DOHERTY, Odanah, Wis.

Sold by all druggists under a guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind.—Adv.

Big Circulation

Friend—Are your poems widely read? Poet—I'll say they are. More than twenty editors read the last one.

Cold Need Cause

No Inconvenience

Singers can't always keep from catching cold, but they can get the best of any cold in a few hours—and so can you. Get Pape's Cold Compound that comes in pleasant-tasting tablets, one of which will break up a cold so quickly you'll be astonished.—Adv.

Two Species

What is described as a walking fish from Africa has been brought to Boston on a visiting ship. Humorists may now do their worst in comparing the peripatetic fish from overseas with the poor fish who already walk Boston streets.—Boston Transcript.

"Before My Baby Came"

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound puts new life into me and makes my work in the store and in the house easier. I took several bottles before my baby came and am always singing its praises to my friends. I recommend it for girls and women of all ages. It makes me feel like life is worth living, my nerves are better and I have gained pep and feel well and strong."—Mrs. A. R. Smith, 808 S. Lansing Street, St. Johns, Michigan.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

A TONIC

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value. 60c.

Liver Pills A package of Grove's Liver Pills is enclosed with every bottle of GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC for those who wish to take a Laxative in connection with the Tonic.

Just Off the Press—Sociability Songs, 128 pages of Christmas, Fourth of July, Patriotic, Sent and Negro songs. Copy 25c. H. Rode, New York, 215-B So. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

W. N. U. HOUSTON, NO. 6-1928.

TAVERN FAMOUS IN REVOLUTION TO GO

Black Horse Inn Gives Way to Progress.

New York.—The relentless march of progress, until recently sparing of the older landmarks, which seemed secure in the remoter regions of Staten Island, shortly will wipe out one of the last remaining relics of Revolutionary days still standing within the limits of the city of New York.

The Black Horse tavern, at the intersection of Amboy and Richmond roads, New Dorp, Staten Island, shortly will be razed to make way for the widening of Richmond road. Condemnation proceedings will be started soon and the building will be razed when the maps are finished and the contracts awarded by the borough of Richmond.

The present owner of the faded and rambling frame structure which housed British officers during the Revolution is Mrs. Catherine C. Curry. It became her property after the death of her husband, Patrick Curry, who went to Staten Island more than forty years ago and opened a public house where more than one not too elderly resident can recall having stopped to partake of the cup that cheers. Since Volstead days the house has been maintained as a private dwelling.

Improvement imperative. Because the intersection at which the house stands has long been a blind corner and a peril to motorists the improvement contemplated by the city became imperative. A triangular slice of land, it will be cut into two pieces, one part being used to widen Richmond road and the other to form a small plaza.

The old tavern, portions of which have been incorporated into the present building, has been celebrated in many legendary stories of Staten Island history. So legendary are some of these stories that it has been impossible to verify them.

It was in the latter part of the Revolution that Gen. William Howe, commander of the British forces in the New York area, quartered some of his staff officers in the Black Horse. General Howe himself occupied a house across the road, known as the Rose and Crown, and it was here that on July 4, 1776, he read the Declaration of Independence.

At that time, history tells us, he remarked: "That document has been signed by very determined men." The Rose and Crown long ago suffered the fate now destined for the Black Horse. The appearance of the place has changed considerably since the days of '76. Still standing are three of the old rooms—the old tavern was a very small place—which now are utilized as living room, parlor and dining room. Additions have been built from time to time, among them a comparatively modern dance hall. The original wooden sign, which bore the figure of a black horse and which is now so weatherbeaten that only the faintest of markings can be discerned, is in the possession of Mrs. Curry, who has refused to part with it despite the pleas of a number of historical societies.

How it Got Its Name.

It is related that on the occasion of a review of troops by Lord Richard Howe, brother of General Howe, a staff officer mounted his handsome horse to escort his superior and that the horse took fright, dashing itself and its rider against a high rock and killing both.

At that moment the house, hitherto unnamed, was christened the Black Horse by fellow officers who witnessed the tragedy.

William T. Davis, Staten Island historian, recalled that for a short period of years prior to the purchase of the building by Patrick Curry it was used as a post office, and residents of the rural districts came from near and far to receive their mail.

It is told, without verification, that Maj. John Andre, the officer delegated to assist in the treachery of Benedict Arnold, stopped at the Black Horse and executed his will there before starting out on his mission.

Custis Family Slave Will Lie in Arlington

Washington.—A place has been reserved for humble Jim Parks in the great Valhalla, where America's distinguished dead lie. Uncle Jim, an eighty-four-year-old negro, will be buried in Arlington National cemetery when he dies. There he was born.

No man, so the records show, outside of the army and navy, has been so honored in this day and generation. The War department has entered a formal order that Uncle Jim be buried in Arlington. His forebears lie there, too.

Uncle Jim's years are upon him, but he may be found almost any day at his tasks in Arlington. He knew the 1,300-acre reservation when it was an ante-bellum plantation. He was a slave here, the property of George Washington Parke Custis, grandson of Martha Washington and adopted son of George Washington. Then he served Col. Robert E. Lee.

Bronze Age Tomb Found

Troyes, France.—A bronze tomb has been discovered near the village of Earbuisse. It contained a woman's skeleton with a number of funeral trappings including three bronze bracelets, a bronze pin and two armlets with chiseled ornamentation.

For Colds -

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

ASPIRIN

Help! "Did I hear something drop?" called mother. "Just a cough," replied the kid in the other room.

Doesn't Stick Hewitt—"Love goes where it is sent." Jewett—"And sometimes makes a round trip."

"Through with the Ring" but still 100% fit

GENE TUNNEY may have put off the gloves for good. But he's too wise a man to give up the priceless habits of physical training that stood him in such good stead in his profession.

Just before his last fight, Tunney said: "I started taking Nujol internally seven years ago. The first month Nujol brought remarkable changes in my physical condition. My elimination became active and normal. My appetite increased and a desire for intensive training was created. Since that time I have taken Nujol about five nights a week. I have regulated myself to the amount necessary to keep my elimination normal. I have found during my seven years' experience with Nujol that it is not habit-forming, or in any way unpleasant or harmful."

Nujol is not a medicine. It contains absolutely no medicine or drugs. It is simply a pure substance—perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York. It not only prevents an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them) but aids in their removal. In sealed packages only. Buy a bottle of Nujol today.

Matrimonial It used to be when a woman missed her husband it meant she loved him. Now if she does it means she doesn't love him and isn't very expert with a gun.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Watch Him! "I hear that Jones is a triple-threat man." "He is. He can quote from a scrapbook, play a saxophone, or do a conjuring trick at a moment's notice."

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE: GO LIGHT ON LAXATIVES!

Everyone needs a laxative AT TIMES. But there's no need for making it a HABIT. If you have the habit, you can be rid of it in thirty days. Or less! And this is how:

The next time you go to take any strong cathartic—don't. Instead, take a little cascara. That's not a vicious drug, but the bark of a tree. The laxative made with cascara couldn't harm a child. It is, in fact, the one cathartic many physicians will approve for children. Gentle as it is, cascaring is just as thorough in cleansing the colon as the more powerful purges that actually sap a person's strength.

Proof that there's no habit from cascara begins the very day after taking.

CASCARETS They Work While You Sleep!

DERIVED from DAILY Use of the Cuticura PREPARATIONS THE Soap, pure and fragrant, to cleanse the skin; the Ointment, antiseptic and healing, to remove pimples, rashes and irritations; and finally the Talcum, smooth and pure, to impart a pleasing fragrance to the skin. Soap 25c. Ointment 25c. and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura," Dept. 56, Malden, Mass. 02148. Cuticura Shaving Soap 50c.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

By P. O. Alexander

Definitions

BILL BOOSTER SAYS

JUST BECAUSE A PRISON LIVES IN A SMALL CITY INSTEAD OF A LARGE ONE IS NO REASON WHY HE SHOULD PULL BACK ON ALL PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS! THE BIG CITIES WERE SMALL ONCE, AND WHEN DIDN'T GET BIG BECAUSE THEIR CITIZENS LAID DOWN AND HOLLERED, 'WHAT'S THE USE!'?

THE FEATHERHEADS

By Osborne

Felix Studies His Part

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

A boy I know just calls me names, such naughty words I wouldn't say. I'm glad that I'm too proud to fight—because I'm scared to, anyway.

Along the Concrete

Our Pet Peeve

NEWSY NEWT

'THEM GUY BRICKLAYERS WORKIN' ON THE NEW MASONIC TEMPLE NEVER EVEN LOOKED UP TODAY WHEN THE TOWN BUILDING WUZ TOOK TO THE MAT BY A STRANGE AERIAL! IT SURE MUST BE TERRIBL' 'BE SEEN A SLAVE T' WORK THAT YUH GALT ENJOY LIFE'S LITTLE PLEASURES AS YUH GO!'

DOC WISE

SOME OF THESE FELLOWS PAY FOR THEIR CARS BY ONLY EATING ONCE IN A WHILE.

WHO'S WHO AND HOW

The Restaurant Man has a Kitchen full of Fried Chicken, Porterhouse Steak and Other Delicacies just Waiting for Us to Come In and eat 'em. This being able to Set Up a Square Meal at the Drop of a Hat is what makes Restaurants Posh.

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL

By Charles Sughroe

From an Editor's Viewpoint

The Comic Strip

DRAW GET HE LAYS THE FREELY ORANGE HAVE TO TOO MANY GOOD LAUGHERS

TAKES ALL KINDS OF PEOPLE TO MAKE A WORLD, THEN SAY, BUT I NEVER COULD SEE ANY USE FOR THE FOLKS WHO READ A CITY DAILY, YET NEVER SUBSCRIBE TO THEIR OWN HOME PAPER.

IF THE EDITOR WOULD SHUT UP SHOP AND GO ON A YEAR'S VACATION, THEY'D BLAME SOON FIND OUT THAT A TOWN WITHOUT A NEWSPAPER IS LIKE A WATCH WITHOUT A MAINSPRING - THE PAPER MAKES THE TOWN GO.

I CAN'T IMAGINE A PLACE WITHOUT A NEWSPAPER - THERE'D BE NOTHING PEPPY ABOUT SUCH A COMMUNITY - NO WAY TO SPREAD THE NEWS, AND THE MERCHANTS WOULD MISS THE ADVERTISING COLUMNS TO SELL THEIR WARES - AND THE GENERAL BOOSING FOR ALL THINGS FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD WHICH IS PART OF EVERY GOOD PAPER.

BUT PSHAW! WHY BOTHER MY HEAD ABOUT THE DEAD ONES, WHEN THERE ARE PLENTY OF FOLKS WHO DO APPRECIATE AND SUPPORT THEIR HOME NEWSPAPER!

THE CLANCY KIDS

Oh, That's Different!

By PERCY L. CROSBY

The Double Cross

By A. E. THOMAS

Copyright, By Dodd, Mead and Company, Inc. W. N. U. Service

THE STORY

Jim Stanley, wealthy young New York business man, unable to concentrate in his dictation to his desk audiotape, has the machine taken to his home, intending to finish his work there. Rollin Waterman, his business partner and closest friend, comes in. Both men are avowedly in love with Doris Colby. Stanley proposes they toss a coin to determine which of them shall, that evening, first ask her to marry him. Waterman wins. Nina Morgan, Waterman's secretary, also his mistress, has overheard his conversation with Stanley and resents Waterman's plan to desert her. Waterman tells her he is practically penniless and must make a rich marriage. He urges Nina to go to Doris and tell her she (Nina) has been wronged—but by Stanley. The girl consents. Doris admits to her father her interest in both Stanley and Waterman, but is unable to make up her mind which to marry. Nina goes to Doris with her story, securing a promise that Doris will not reveal the source of her information. She convinces Doris of Stanley's duplicity, and leaves her broken hearted, and realizing that it is Stanley she really has loved.

CHAPTER V—Continued

It would not be fair to say that Waterman had no computations regarding his treatment of Jim Stanley. He had been deceiving Jim for a long time. Stanley, for example, had no idea that Waterman had been playing the market "on his own," a thing explicitly forbidden to each of them when the partnership was formed. Waterman, having begun a course of dissimulation in this matter, was obliged, or so he thought to keep it up, and as little lies lead to bigger ones, and small dissimulations beget great treasuries, so now the tide of deceit on which Waterman had long ago embarked had finally brought him to this crest of treachery. Five years ago he would have been appalled at the mere suggestion of it. Yet, such is the effect of slow but cumulative moral degeneration that now it merely made him uneasy.

And uneasy, increasingly so, he now became as he left the club and turned northward. Nor was this uneasiness at all allayed by his brief colloquy with Nina outside the Colby house. Even after he had been alone with Doris in the Colby drawing-room a quarter of an hour, he still had not the slightest notion as to what had passed between the two women. He had found Doris strange, cold, aloof. He had come there to ask her to marry him, but the moment seemed hardly propitious, despite his agreement with Stanley. Somehow, his suspense must be ended—and quickly. Time was passing—in fifteen minutes more Jim Stanley would be at the door. He must know, and he must know at once. And so he made a plunge. After a long silence, he said abruptly:

"Doris, what's the matter with you?"
Somehow to his surprise she did not fence.

"I have just heard the most painful thing in the world," she said.

"Now for it!" he thought, and aloud he said, squaring his shoulders to meet the blow, "About whom?"

"About Jim."

The relief that he felt was overwhelming. Guiltily he felt that she must be conscious of it, but almost simultaneously he saw that she was not thinking of him at all, and inwardly he gave three cheers. "About Jim?" he said.

"A certain person has just been here and told me an awful thing about him."

"What?"
"I cannot tell you. I gave my word of honor."
"Surely you don't believe it?"
"I'm afraid I do."
"Was this talebearer some one you know?"
"No, it was some one I never saw or heard of before."
Instinctively Waterman hit upon the word course to follow.

"But surely, Doris, you don't mean to say that you believe this scandalous tale told by an utter stranger, and about one of your very best friends?" She feebly shrugged her shoulders.

"But, he went on, 'you can't do it! At least you must give Jim a chance to explain—to defend himself.'"

"Impossible—I gave my word of honor—"

"Before you heard it?"

"Yes."

"Why on earth did you do that?"

"Because I took it so lightly. I couldn't imagine that it could possibly be anything of the slightest consequence."

"And it is?"

"Yes, it is. It is a thing that no one but a man with a cruel, cruel heart could do. Oh, he might in the first place have done it upon impulse. That I could forgive. But, after that nothing but cold, cold cruelty could explain it."

"And you can't tell me what it is?"

"No, I can't tell anyone—I've promised."

"But I cannot understand," said Waterman, warmly, his confidence rising with the overwhelmingly welcome knowledge that he himself was not in danger. "I cannot understand. It seems to me that if anybody, I don't care who he was, came to me with a scandalous story about old Jim, I should refuse to credit it until Jim had had a chance to defend himself—especially if, as you say, his accuser was a person whom I did not know at all."

"I can't go into it," said the girl sadly and abruptly, "but I am certain that if you had heard the story as I heard it, you would have to believe it too, no matter how much it hurt you."

"I don't believe it, whatever it is. Why, we've known Jim all our lives—he's one of the very best."

"So I've always thought," she sighed, "until tonight."

"But not any more?"

"Not any more."

Suddenly she put out her hand to him, appealingly like a frightened child. "Oh, Rollin, Rollin," she said, "I've lost my friend. He's gone. I've lost him. And it hurts."

Swiftly he was at her side. His time was come. He took the cold little hand in both of his own, and drew it to his breast.

"Doris, dear," he said, "let me help you."

"You can't. You can't."

"I do so want to help you, because—"

"You see—I love you."

The long lashes rose above the violet eyes, and then they flickered and fell again. Quietly he drew her to her feet, and with a little sob she slipped into his arms.

"Dearest," he murmured, "don't cry—please don't cry."

"But she only murmured brokenly, 'I've lost my friend—I've lost him.'"

"Yes, yes, I know. But I must try and make it up to you if I can."

And thus it happened. Desperately she needed comfort—and the comforter was there. A moment later she freed herself swiftly from his arms.

"Good heavens," she said, "I had quite forgotten. He's coming here this very night. I can't see him—I can't. I must tell Barker to send him away. Please ring the bell—hurry, hurry!"

But Waterman had anticipated this emergency. "On the contrary," he said promptly, "I think it best that you should see him."

"What now? Oh, I couldn't, I couldn't!"

"Yes, now, darling. Think a moment—think. You have lost your friend, you say."

"Yes," she said, "and so have you."

"Yes, we've both lost him, haven't we? And yet we cannot tell him so. How do you propose to treat him?"

"Oh," she said, "I haven't thought—there hasn't been time."

"Well, I suggest that my idea is this. You cannot tell him you are no longer his friend without telling him why, and you can't do that. You must let him find it out by degrees, and I think the easiest way to start will be by telling him at once that you are going to marry me."

The violet eyes widened abruptly. In truth, the girl was startled. In a moment of keen suffering she had, it was true, gone to the arms of the comforting Waterman. She had laid there some moments. He had caressed her—she had allowed it. Yet it was not until this instant that she realized fully what this had meant to him. All this she saw in the moment of silence that followed his last remark. His fate was in the balance. He knew it. "Dearest," he breathed.

At length she turned away. "All right," she said, "as you wish."

His heart leaped up—he had won! He was safe. Now to clinch it. "Oh, I am sure I am right, darling," he hurried on. "It will be hard to do, but there's one thing about it, once done it will be over and swiftly over. Since you cannot tell him what you know about him and yet you must believe it, you can't go on seeing him day by day, pretending you are still his friend. No one could do it. So let him know that you're engaged to me. If I am not mistaken, that of itself will be a bit of a blow to him."

She sighed as she dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief. "I suppose you're right," she admitted. "Since it must be, the sooner the better."

"I'm sure of it."

At this moment Stanley entered the room, unannounced, since Barker knew quite well that his mistress was always at home to him. He passed upon the threshold just an instant. Nobody spoke. He feared the worst, but he crossed the room briskly, took the girl's unresisting hand, and said, "Well, my dear Doris, and how are you tonight?"

"I'm very well," she said faintly, without looking at him.

"Good," said he. "Hello, Rollin."

"Hello, Jim."

"I haven't seen you in a long time not for four or five hours. Very seldom happens like that. Well, Doris, what's the news?"

"No news," she said faintly.

"I've got to contradict you, Doris," interrupted Waterman. "There is news, the best news I've had in a long, long time or ever shall."

Stanley's heart sank—his prophetic soul was right. He knew it before Waterman continued:

"It's delightful that you should have happened in as you did, for I am sure that Doris feels as I do when I say that it makes me quite happy that you should be the first to hear of our engagement."

Jim managed to force a smile. "Splendid," he cried, "splendid! My two very best friends! Doris, my dear friend, my very best wishes—the very best wishes that you could imagine, and then add to those about a thousand more still better ones. And as for you, Rollin, you know perfectly well that I consider you the luckiest man in the wide, wide world."

"Thanks," said Waterman, "I knew I could rely upon you."

"How soon is it to be?"

"We haven't got as far as that," smiled Waterman. "In point of fact it's only just happened."

Jim paused perhaps a second and a half. Within that brief time he made a decision. He suffered—intolerably—with an acuteness of which he had never dreamed. He had an uncontrollable impulse to get away—far, far away, with the swiftness of light. If he could only wish himself at the end of the world, and be there with the wish!

"Well, well," he said, "this is delightful! It will make me especially happy as I go away."

"Away?" queried Waterman.

"Yes, I know, I haven't told you, but for a long time I have had a plan in the back of my head. As you know, I have been one of the backers of a series of archaeological explorations that the museum has been carrying on."

Waterman turned uncomfortably toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

No suspicion of all this crossed or could cross the mind of the stricken Stanley. His nature was of the simplest and most direct. Life had been too easy for him. Everything had been plain sailing. This was the first great shock of his life and it shook him to the core of his soul.

Resolutely, consciously, he endeavored to put the past behind him. He would burn all his bridges, sink all his boats. Yes, that was the thing, immediately he burned with the wish to be gone. He waved his hand at a passing taxi whose driver pulled up so sharply that his rear wheels skidded slightly against the curb. Ten minutes later, in his own apartment, he was telephoning:

"Is that you, Wilson?—Yes, yes, I'm lucky to find you in on a Saturday night. Something unexpected has come up. I've got to make many plans of importance with a good deal of speed. Where you planning to leave town over Sunday? No?—You're quite sure? Good, then I shall ask you for once to give up your day of rest and meet me at the office to the morning at eleven o'clock. All right. Good-by."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his friend. On the contrary, in his eyes Waterman was quite the best looking man of his acquaintance. Yet Doris had always been to him everything that was kind and sympathetic and understanding. He had never, it is true, made love to her directly, yet she must have known, he thought, what he thought of her, and being uncommonly intelligent, she must have guessed that before very long he would ask her to be his wife.

He had no suspicion whatever of the truth. By no conceivable means could he possibly have guessed the devious route by which Waterman's success had been achieved. He could not know the sudden shock to which the girl's whole nature had been subjected, nor how much she suffered at the conviction of his turpitude. He could not know that Doris in her suffering had unconsciously, blindly, put out her hand, yearning for comfort, and had taken, almost without knowing it, the only comfort that offered itself.

Waterman turned toward the girl.

"Rollin, oh, Rollin, Rollin," she whispered brokenly, as she slipped again into his arms. "I can't believe it. I can't believe it. I can't believe it."

Stanley plunged down the steps as the heavy door closed behind him, and hurried blindly across the Avenue. There was tumult in his brain. He had not expected defeat. Not that he nourished any overweening estimate of his personal attractions, or that he regarded them as in any way superior to those of his

OLD FOLKS SAY
DR. CALDWELL
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he has used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of sense and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get relief in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. B, R. Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

PISO'S
Coughs

Quick Relief! A pleasant, effective cough syrup. 35¢ and 65¢ sizes. And especially, use PISO'S Throat and Chest Salve, 35¢.

Health Giving
Sunshine
All Winter Long

Marvellous Climate - Good Hotels - Tourist Camps - Splendid Roads - Gorgeous Mountain Views. The wonderful winter resort of the South.

Write Once & Stay
Palm Springs
CALIFORNIA

An Investment - Established and successful mfg. Corp. has limited number preferred stock blocks of $1000 each yielding 4 1/2%. Reply, Station A. P. O. Box 154, Boston, Mass.

Summing It Up
Shallow men believe in luck, believe in circumstances. Strong men believe in cause and effect.

A Bad Wreck
of the constitution may follow in the track of a disordered system, impair blood and strength by using the risk! Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an alternative extract of herbs and roots that drives out impurities - acts on the liver.

When you're debilitated, and your weight is below a healthy standard, you regain health and strength by using the "Discovery." It builds up the body.

Mrs. Fannie E. Grant, 847 So. Haskell Ave., Dallas, Texas, said: "I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it built up my blood, relieved me of a weak stomach and made me well."

Sold in tablet or liquid form. If your dealer does not have it, send 65 cents for the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Titters in Court
English Magistrate - You say the plaintiff is a relative of yours?
Witness - Yes, by bizany.

Makes Life Sweeter

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia! When tongue or breath tells of acid condition - correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener - more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it.

Phillips is the genuine, prescription product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

PHILLIPS
Milk
of Magnesia

TINY INSECTS SAVE COCONUT GROVES

Fly Is Ally to Man in War on Caterpillars.

Boulder, Colo.—Down in the South seas a battle in the endless war between man and insects has been fought and won without any report of it coming to northern ears. Prof. T. A. D. Cockerell of the University of Colorado tells how a tiny fly co-operated with man to save the coconut trees from the caterpillar.

To us, for whom coconut means merely a confection, or, if we be a little more chemical minded, oil for soaps and butter substitutes, it is hard to bring home the importance of coconuts for the brown people of the Pacific. To them the coconut tree means both food and shelter, frequently ropes and clothing, and in addition, nowadays, white men's trade goods. The coconut has been called the most useful tree in the world, at least certainly it is the most useful tree in the tropics.

So when the innumerable sluglike caterpillars of the moth called Levannia began to eat all the leaves off the coconut tree in Fiji, and threatened to spread over the whole South Pacific area, there was consternation. The insect had a host of natural enemies, but they did not seem too able to make any impression on its swarming numbers.

Then one day the tiny flies of the family tachinidae, a species known as Ptychomyia remota, was brought over from the Federation Malay states and turned loose. The tachinids have a pleasant habit of laying their eggs in the eggs of other insects, and the hungry little grubs that hatch out of them live in the world of natural omelet where they first come to larva-hood until they are ready to fly. The natural result is one more tachinid, one fewer caterpillar. Another member of this same family is being tried out most hopefully now in the American corn belt, against the borer.

Swiss Seek to Save Home of First Book

Geneva.—A committee of scholars has been formed here to obtain funds for the purchase and preservation of the Chateau zu Truchsessen von Wolhusen, at Munster, Canton of Lucerne, Switzerland, where the first book in the country was printed in 1470.

Aside from this identity, the structure is otherwise of historical interest. Built in the days of Barbarossa and of Heinrich the Lion of Bavaria, it was once of great architectural beauty. Subsequently, it was embellished by the famous Swiss millionaire-scholar, Canon Helyas Helye of Laufson, who acquired it three centuries later and set up there the first printing press in the country, the products of which are still sought after by collectors.

Two years after the death of Gutenberg, at Mentz, in 1468, and six years before Caxton brought the art of printing into England, Helyas Helye achieved the great ambition of his life, and built the first Swiss press, molded the first types in lead, and ran off the first book in the country from a wood press, which continued to be in use for 350 years.

Former Mexican General Now Salesman in U. S.

Del Rio, Texas.—Rafael Cia Del Castillo, a former general in the army of Pancho Villa, now is engaged in peddling electric equipment here in spite of the fact that he is said to own one of the finest houses in Mexico City.

He is also a nephew of the late President Diaz. Since his flight from Mexico Castillo has been working at menial tasks. Once he was employed with a crew of laborers on a dam and another time at an ice house.

Succeeds Wife

Cleveland, Ohio.—As national and Ohio secretary of the Daughters of America, Max C. Roth, Youngstown, Ohio, succeeds his wife, who filled the two offices continuously for 33 years. He was elected to serve four years, the unexpired term of his wife, who died December 8.

Boy, the Time Table!

New York.—Cecil Beaton has failed to see a ripping, ravishing Venus in this country, whereas they abound in London.

Starling Holds Record for Migratory Speed

Berlin, Germany.—Professor Thienemann of Rositten, East Prussia, gives the following as the established speeds of certain birds during migration: The sparrow develops a speed of 25 miles an hour; the gray gull, the black-back gull and the Norway crow have the same speed, 31 miles an hour; the rook and the finches reach 32 miles an hour. The speediest flyer is the starling with approximately 42 miles an hour.

"Gave Up Hope of Life!"

Says Mrs. Robb:

(She Feels Much Better Now)

"I WAS so weak—couldn't sleep nor eat—couldn't digest anything—I was a complete wreck." (Many of us know the meaning of such suffering.) "I feel better now than I did at 16—never took anything but PERUNA; I now eat everything—no matter what it is." (You can imagine Mrs. Robb's joy at PERUNA's wonderful relief.) "You don't have to have faith in PERUNA—if you will take it, it will surely relieve." (Signed: Mrs. Sally Robb, Havesville, Ky.) [And it's true! PERUNA does its work surely, quickly and effectively. There is every reason in the world why you should have it in your home—get it from any drug store today.]

To Walk Across Africa
Noel G. Clarke, a young Englishman, will walk across Africa. He will hike from London to Capetown, with "lifts" across the English channel and Mediterranean sea, and will traverse thousands of miles through jungle and desert. His object is to examine possibilities of commercial development in the virgin regions of Central Africa, wealth in minerals, fiber, timber and other raw materials.

STOP THAT ITCHING

Use Blue Star Soap, then apply Blue Star Remedy for Eczema, itch, tetter, ringworm, poison oak, dandruff, children's sores, cracked hands, sore feet and most forms of itching skin diseases. It kills germs, stops itching, usually restores the skin to health. Soap, 25¢; Blue Star Remedy, $1.00. Ask your druggist—Adv.

Know His Trade
The Wholesaler—That hat is the most striking novelty of the season, but you've ordered nothing but boys' sizes.
The Retailer—Sure! Couldn't sell one to a man with a normal head.

It was the cowboy who sang "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie." Always plant trees in a cemetery.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Just Rub Away Danger

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once. Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Bellman, a Game

Here's a game that will provide a lot of fun when played out of doors or on a gym floor:

A ring or square of convenient size is roped off by passing a rope between several stakes, posts or trees. All of the players have their eyes tightly blindfolded with the exception of the bellman, who has his hands tied behind his back and a small bell hung about his neck.

Constipated?

Take NR - NATURE'S REMEDY - tonight. Your eliminative organs will be functioning properly by morning and your constipation will end with a bowel action as free and easy as nature at her best—no pain, no straining. Try it!

Mild, safe, purely vegetable—

NR TO-NIGHT
At Druggists—only 25c

For PILES
PAZO OINTMENT
Guaranteed
Any druggist will refund your money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure itching, bleeding or protruding Piles, in tubes with rubber pipe, 75c; or in tin box, 60c.

25¢
DIXIE
FEVER AND PAIN TABLETS

A SKATING STORY

Jane was a wonderful skater. She could make the most beautiful figures and do all sorts of fancy skating.

One day when she was skating she saw that a part of the ice was very thin.

"We must all stay away from this spot," said Jane, as she pointed to the dangerous place.

Jane was a wonderful skater but she never took any foolish risks.

"All right," the others shouted, but just as she had spoken she heard a sad little cry near the spot which she had just said was dangerous.

"Don't go near there," said her companions.

"You said it was dangerous."

"But I heard a cry," said Jane.

"Maybe it's a frog under the water," said a little, little girl.

"Frogs sleep all winter," said Jane and she skated off.

There was another little cry of distress and Jane skated carefully toward the dangerous spot in the ice.

Through a tiny crack a little squirrel had fallen.

He had evidently been running

She Caught the Little Squirrel and Held Him.

across the ice and had broken through a little crack.

Of course as the ice had gone through with the weight of a tiny squirrel it gave a huge groan and Jane was in the water.

But she managed to keep in an open space and she caught the little squirrel and held him above her head.

But now she seemed to have floated down under the ice.

And she was struggling to get above it.

The squirrel was saved and had hopped off a little distance, trying to get back his nerves.

And now came some men with ropes and sledges.

Jane's head was now free, but the skates and heavy clothes kept her from being able to get on any piece of ice before it would break too.

At last they rescued her, and oh, it had been too exciting for all her companions, and too exciting for Jane too.

How long had the time seemed.

As for the little squirrel, he was so grateful.

He lived near Jane's house ever after that and became as tame as tame could be.

He seemed to know and be grateful to Jane for saving his little squirrel life.

But oh, Jane had had a very narrow escape herself!

How Large She Was

Bobbie is only three, but is large for her age.

Recently her aunt returned from a trip to California and Bobbie raced right over to see her.

"Well, was Aunt Barbara glad to see you, dear?" mother inquired later.

"Yep," replied the child briefly.

"And what did she have to say?" continued mother.

Bobbie heaved a sigh. "O, her des looked me over an' said I like every other folks, that how big I are!" replied Bobbie.

Reason Enough

A little girl came into the drawing room, where her mother was sitting.

"Mummy," she said seriously, "I want to marry Bobby."

"Do you, darling?" said mother.

"Well, mummy," she said, "his uncle has just given him half a dollar."—Stray Stories.

Cause and Effect
Anne—You know, I think Sally has finally married Jack after all.
Janet—Why?
Anne—Well, she is running around with Bob all the time now.—Life.

"Lucile is the Happiest Girl"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery.

As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again.

A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says: "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood. I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in the West."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

The Eternal Feminine

Mrs. William Walker, aged ninety, of Wainfleet, England, is planning a dress with short skirts for her eightieth wedding anniversary.

She says she approves abbreviated skirts for those who have good legs, and that she has not seen any legs in Wainfleet recently that are prettier than hers. She and her husband, aged ninety-one, recently celebrated their seventy-first wedding anniversary.

Walker said he enjoyed reading accounts of sprightly young people celebrating their golden weddings, and of middle-aged couples holding diamond weddings.

Then and Now

"I tell you times have changed."
"You bet. It used to be that when a man was run down he took a tonic, now he takes an ambulance."

The Bright Side

Youth—Why do you believe in long engagements?
Henpeck—The longer the engagement the shorter the marriage.

Sure Is

"What's a crying need of the day?" asked the first one.
"Tear-proof complexion would be my guess," replied the other one.

RADIOLA 60

the incomparable
Super-Heterodyne

$147 (less Radiotrons)

Everywhere acknowledged the finest achievement in radio. Super-sensitive. Super-selective. Operates from A.C. house current at very slight cost.

Ask the nearest RCA Radiola Dealer to demonstrate the "60" for you and tell you about the RCA Time Payment Plan.

RCA RADIOLA
MADE BY THE MAKERS OF THE RADIOTRON

GRAY'S for BOILS-SORES of all KINDS
BEST FOR 109 YEARS
CUTS - STINGS - SCALDS
25¢
Ointment
If your local Druggist hasn't it, send postpaid for 25¢ - W.F. GRAY CO., Nashville, Tenn.

The Bright Side
Youth—Why do you believe in long engagements?
Henpeck—The longer the engagement the shorter the marriage.

Sure Is
"What's a crying need of the day?" asked the first one.
"Tear-proof complexion would be my guess," replied the other one.

...KARO contains almost twice the energy value of eggs...pound for pound

There are 120 calories per ounce in Karo—almost twice the energy value of eggs and lean beef, pound for pound—

And, of course, this means that Karo is not only a delicious syrup but a great energy-giving food.

The energy Karo gives is supplied immediately—without taxing the digestive system—as in the case of many other foods.

Convince yourself that Karo is very economical too—compare the price of Karo per pound with other staple foods. Serve lots of Karo to the entire family—especially the children, who like Karo and who thrive on it. Keep them strong, healthy and happy.

DELICIOUS
on
PANCAKES
HOT BISCUITS
and
WAFFLES

It's a Real GOODYEAR and you can get 'em now for as Low a Price as a cheap, unknown tire would have cost you a short time ago, if you come over to Ferguson Motor Co.

Lincoln—Ford—Fordson

Notice of Reward Offered.

A reward of $250 is hereby offered for information leading to the arrest, conviction and sentencing of any person found stealing sheep or goats from the ranch properties of the undersigned. A suspended sentence of a court will not entitle any informant of the benefits of this reward.

PROSSER & BROWN, Sanderson, Texas.

For Rent—A furnished apartment. See W. H. Farley.

THE SANDERSON TIMES Official and Only Paper Published in Terrell County $2 per year payable in advance MRS. ADDIE LEE BOLING Owner, Publisher and Editor Entered as second class matter July 22, 1933, at the postoffice, Sanderson, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879. Advertising Rates Furnished Upon Application. Published Friday of Each Week.

Mrs. M. E. Duke came in Tuesday from San Antonio where she was called on account of the serious illness of her grand son D. L. Duke Jr., who has been very ill this week, and threatening with pneumonia.

CANCER FREE BOOK Sent on Request

Tells cause of cancer and what to do for pain, bleeding, odor, etc. Write for it today, mentioning this paper. Address Indianapolis Cancer Hospital, Indianapolis, Ind.

Catholics do not believe non-Catholic husbands and wives are living in sin nor that contracts with non-Catholics may be broken. Write Box 877, El Paso, for any information desired about Catholics.

For colds, grip and flu take

Relieves the congestion, prevents complications, and hastens recovery.

SAN ANGELO COWBOY BOOT SHOP

(Old Rodermund Shop) Strictly Hand-made Boots Forty Years in San Angelo Write for catalogue and measure blanks

Quick service

At the Princess next week

MON. & TUES.—"Flash" the wonder dog, in "Shadows of the Night" Also 2 reel comedy

WED. & THURS.—Hoot Gibson, in "Wild West Show" with Pathe "Spotlights"

FRI. & SAT.—Clara Bow, (Buddy Rogers and Gary Cooper in "WINGS" This picture was filmed in San Antonio

PRINCESS

TONIGHT and Saturday

Erich Von Stroheim

in

The "Wedding March"

With International news reel

NOTICE! THE STATE OF TEXAS, COUNTY OF TERRELL.

Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners' Court of Terrell county, Texas, will at its February term, A. D. 1929, to be commenced and holden on the 11th day of February, A. D. 1929, receive proposals from any Banking Corporation, Association, or Individual Banker in Terrell county, Texas, who may desire to be made depository of the funds of said Terrell county, Texas.

Any Banking Corporation, Association or Individual Banker, desiring to bid, shall deliver to the County Judge of Terrell county, Texas, on or before the 1st day of said Term of said Court, a sealed proposal, stating the rate of interest that said Banking Corporation, Association or Individual Banker and deposit offers to pay on the funds of said County for the term between the date of such bid and the next regular term for the selection of a Depository.

Said bid shall be accompanied by a certified check for not less than one half of one per cent of the County Revenue for the year 1928 (said revenue, including school being $61,966.97) as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder, and that if his bid shall be accepted, that he will enter into bond as required by law.

Given under my hand and seal of the County Court, this 1st day of Jan. A. D. 1929.

(Seal) G. J. HENSHAW, County Judge, Terrell County, Texas.

Attest: LUELLA LEMONS, County Clerk.

Dr. Hodges, dentist has opened an office at the home of S. A. Kernal and is prepared to do all work relative to his profession.

NOTICE.

Sanderson, Texas, Jan. 15—29. It is unlawful for any person to operate or drive any motor or other vehicle upon the public highways of this State at a rate of speed in excess of 35 miles per hour. It is also unlawful for any person to operate or drive a motor or other vehicle within or through any town or village not incorporated within this State at a greater rate of speed than 20 miles per hour. This law does not apply to fire patrols or motor vehicles operated by the fire department of this city responding to calls nor to police patrols, ambulances or physicians responding to emergency calls.

Any person who violates this law is subject to a fine of not less than the sum of $5 and not to exceed the sum of $200.

It will be appreciated by all Law Enforcement Departments in this county if every person who drives an automobile or other motor vehicle will endeavor to help enforce this law by driving within the speed limit.

Being as the town is growing and the main Highway going through the town is on Oak street going through the town in an Easternly and Westernly direction and consequently there is lots of traffic on this Street, it will be very much appreciated by the Law Enforcement Departments of this town and county if all automobiles will slow down or stop before crossing this street at any intersection, and also to use the same method prior to going into this street in any direction, and also to be particular that the speed limit is not exceeded while on this street or any other street in the town of Sanderson, Texas. If the public will get in a habit of doing this on all of the prominent streets in this town accidents will become almost eliminated.

Please do all in your power to help make accidents avoidable.

W. J. Banner, Sheriff Terrell County.

FOR SALE—A bunch of billocks, healthy range raised stock. One to three years of age. Price $15. Howard Johnson, Dryden, Texas.

Clyde Mills Commission Co.

I have for sale exclusively quite a number of ranches at a bargain. Get your finances ready, make your dates, and rest assured some one else will not get ahead of you.

Also live stock of all kinds at all times.

Don't forget "Buys anything any time," "Sells everything every time."

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the new Ford steering mechanism is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

UTILITY SERVICE TEXAS-LOUISIANA POWER COMPANY

Fort Worth Club Building General Offices FORT WORTH, TEXAS

A Message to our Employees.

Our first obligation is to satisfy the service needs of our customers and the filling of that obligation should and must take preference over any other activity of this organization. The customer has a right to expect courteous, smiling service at all times and it is up to each one of you to give it to him for the mutual benefit of all concerned.

If a situation arises which any one of you are not in a position to handle, you are not to evade or slight the issue, but are to pass it on immediately to the next higher official who has the equipment at his disposal to meet the customer's wants.

You who are in daily contact with the customer, you who have the directing of the energies of others of our employees, every individual connected with this organization, have one common objective--to see that the customer's reasonable wants and desires are satisfied at a minimum of time and trouble to him. To that end all the facilities of this company are at your beck and call whenever the needs of those we are in business to serve, demand them.

Alan J. Smith General Manager

She will enjoy Valentine if you select PANGBURN'S Better CANDIES

see our display today—

Unusual combination centers heavily coated with pure milk chocolate and dark chocolate. Packed in heart boxes, also Pangburn's beautiful gift packages all dressed up in special valentine wrappers.

—She knows the difference—

Empress Confectionery

Mr. Radio Fan PHONE 99

Why not let us keep your Battery charged? We call for and deliver. Prompt service We keep on hand a complete line of new batteries

Loma Alta Service Station P. E. Dishman, Mgr.

TROJAN WELL DRILLERS

A Water well drilling concern equal to its name. Will serve ranchers and others needing a well drilled. Equipment new and of the most modern type. Fully competent men in charge and employed, drilling any place and any depth. Prices are the lowest. Terms if desired. Address:

Trojan Well Drillers P. O. Box No. 948 Del Rio, Texas

Dr. E. K. Halbert --DENTIST--

One door West Loma Alta Cafe Sanderson

Bertha Whistler Chiropractor

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE Phone 53

The Spine is the Human Switchboard controlling Health and Vigor

Chiropractic releases the Power Within

Laundry called for and delivered. Phone 37.

Water Well Drilling. Any depth, any time, prices right. Satisfaction guaranteed. I have three rigs. F. A. Gray, phone 177, Crown, Texas, or see Keene Garage west of town.

Highway Lunch Room Short Orders a Speciality A Good Place to Eat

TRY OUR BARBECUE Cooked every day at the BREEDING BAKERY