CHAUTAQUA.

Sanderson's Chautauqua opened last night with a good crowd in attendance and promises to be a success and even surpass last year's record.

The Associated Chautauqua is now practically a national organization, extending from the Carolinas and Georgia on the East to the Pacific Coast States on the West. The Rio Grande Valley in Texas sees the associated tents, as do a few Canadian towns.

The program which started last night with a clever political comedy, continues until Monday night, making seven programs in all.

Today (Friday) we have Corine Jessop with her Radio Warblers. They offer a most pleasing program afternoon and evening. Also in the evening, Mrs. Harold Peat, wife of the famous Private Peat, tells a thrilling story of the "International Future of Our Children."

Saturday Oliver's Philippine Troubadours have a good time entertaining their audience as the audience enjoys being entertained. All kinds of music and rhythm is brought forth and in particular South Sea music.

Later in the evening Dr. Henry Black Burns, who is internationally famous, holds his discussion on crime and disease prevention.

The last day of Chautauqua features the Bob Hancock Company. Everything the people have missed so far in entertainment, is made up for this last day. An informal matinee in the afternoon and the wonderful production of "Smile Thru" in the evening. The play is one of the finest and sweetest stories ever written, certainly one never to be forgotten.

The Chautauqua this year is being held in the Princess Theatre and will commence every afternoon at 3 p. m. and the evening program will begin at 8 p. m.

Come out and have a genuine good time with your neighbor and the finest fun of the year.

BASKETBALL BANQUET

Nine basketball boys of this year's team and Coach Murley were presented with sweaters at the basketball banquet served at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Alexander Mitchell. The banquet, which was prepared and served by the mothers of the boys, in honor of their successful season, was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the high school's social calendar.

Gus Kercheville, captain of the 1929 team, acted as toastmaster. A program of speeches and toasts, celebrating the presentation of the sweaters as rewards of merit for constant and faithful work on the part of the boys and Coach Murley, circulated the banquet table.

John Green was elected captain of next year's team. Two of the junior men will not return, C. C. Mitchell and Bill Henshaw seniors.

The letter men who received sweaters are Mabry Ogle, C. C. Mitchell, Frank Jansa, Bill Henshaw, Jack Smith, John Green, Gus Kercheville, Elmer Haass, Jack Stovell.

Guests of the boys were Misses Hazel Hill, Fay Appel, Jessie Belle Roberts, Myriam Carpenter, Beverly Franklin, Lorain Williamson, Novis White and Dorothy Ogle.

Other guests were Mesdames Chester Smith, J. D. Ogle, John Green, John Stovell, A. Mitchell, Thad Murley, and Supt. B. J. Brannan.

Mrs. J. C. Yeates of San Antonio, mother of Fred and Raymond Yeates, came in the first of the week and will make her home here. She has rented the W. H. Mansfield home.

Junior-Senior Banquet

With the celebration of the Junior-Senior banquet, which was held at 8 o'clock Saturday night at the Kerr hotel, a long train of social activities in honor of the 1929 graduates was inaugurated for this commencement season. The Junior-Senior banquet, arranged under the direction of Miss Bonnie Cox, junior sponsor, was a social triumph, considered by the senior class as the outstanding festive occasion of the year.

The table was artistically decorated with bouquets of roses, the senior class flower. Fortunes concealed in puzzle wrappings of pink crepe paper added to the high festivity of the party.

Under the apt leadership of Elmer Haass, toastmaster and junior president, a program of speeches and toasts entertained the guests. Supt. B. J. Brannan, after expressing his admiration for the junior and senior classes and his appreciation for the banquet, introduced the other faculty guests, who in turn complimented the juniors and seniors for the high grade of scholastic work accomplished by them this year.

A program of toasts was introduced by Elmer Haass, who gave a toast to these present. Mabry Ogle gave a toast to the seniors, which was returned by Beverly Franklin, senior president.

Lon Olive Mills toasted faculty members. Toasts to the happiness, prosperity, and future of the seniors were given by Jessie Roberts, Jack Smith, and Myriam Carpenter. Hazel Lee Hill gave a toast to the future of the juniors, and John Green concluded with a farewell toast to the entire group.

So strong was the fellowship of the juniors and seniors at the banquet that spontaneously they planned a second class party, a swimming and fishing trip dated two weeks from tomorrow.

Committees were named to care for all the necessary details, such as place, time, equipment, transportation, and supplies.

Those present were: Seniors, Beverly Franklin, Fay Appel, Hazel Hill, Lorain Williamson, Gus Kercheville, Bill Henshaw, C. C. Mitchell, Jack Stovell, and Woodruf Howard; juniors, Lou Olive Mills, Jessie Roberts, Myriam Carpenter, Frank Jansa, Elmer Haass, Mabry Ogle, John Green, Jack Smith; guests, Miss Ronnie Cox, Miss Gladine Howers, Mr. and Mrs. Thad Murley, and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brannan.

Will Exchange Pulpits Sunday

W. R. Swinney of Ozona will preach at the Church of Christ here next Sunday and Bro. Griffith will go to Ozona where he will fill Bro. Swinney's pulpit.

Rev. J. R. Jacobs of Marfa was here this week having come down to conduct the funeral services for Thomas L. des Landes, who was buried here Monday. He returned to his home Tuesday.

Thomas Louis des Landes.

West Texas and our community witnessed the passing of another of the virile, sturdy pioneers in the death of Thomas L. des Landes. We will miss that brave little gentleman, his kindly twinkling eyes, quick step, his erect carriage and snow white hair. A gentleman unafraid of life and its stern demands upon him. Twenty-seven years he pioneered in the great Big Bend country, living close to the land immortalized by Zane Grey—came up out of that country a loveable old gentleman to answer the call to the great beyond.

Mr. des Landes was born in London, England, of French Huguenot ancestry, on January 19, 1855, being educated in England where he later began life's work. In September, 1875, he married Mary Gertrude Arnold, who survives him. He was blessed with three children, a son, Harry Sidney des Landes of El Paso, and two daughters, Mrs. J. D. Tharp and Mrs. A. E. McLean, both of California, who also survive him.

Mr. des Landes came to America in 1882 and of his 47 years in this country, 27 were spent on the des Landes ranch in Brewster County. Mr. and Mrs. des Landes had happily celebrated their golden anniversary, having been married 42 years and seven months. Mr. des Landes rounded out a long and useful life of 74 years, four months and three days. He was laid to rest by his family and host of friends in the Evergreen Cemetery at Sanderson, April 15, and the community joins our beloved Mrs. Mary Gertrude des Landes in her great loss. Active pall bearers were: O. T. Schupbach, James Pappie, Max Bogusch, Judge G. J. Henshaw, Earle Pierson and W. J. Banner. Honorary pall bearers were: Messrs. Charles Morris, Frank K. Harrell, Joe Kerr, Jim Kerr, C. F. Cox, Alexander Mitchell, F. B. Carter, Calvin Stansell, Jack McKee, P. F. Robertson Sr., O. J. Vineyard, L. W. Erwin, S. C. Bodkin, W. A. Whittle, W. J. Ferguson, S. S. Duggett, J. D. Nichols, Chester Smith, N. E. Charlton, Clyde Griffith, Clyde Mills, C. H. White and Buck Pyle.

May we say lastly we dearly love Mrs. Mary Gertrude des Landes and we want her to live and be with us. And if nature's great landmarks could speak there is a wee white house on the banks of the San Francisco Creek in the Big Bend country that will miss Thomas L. des Landes. If they could but speak they too would say farewell little brave heart who lived and died a gentleman.

—A Friend.

What Accounts Are Profitable

Contrary to general opinion, banks do not make 6 per cent profit on each deposit made in a checking account. A general average of profit is 4 per cent and from all deposits 15 per cent must be deducted as a cash reserve.

In banking circles, it is generally accepted as truth that accounts whose balance falls below $200 are an expense to the bank.

In view of this, our service fee of 50c per month for accounts whose balance falls below $50.00 is just and reasonable.

World's Oldest House?
An architect's drawing, believed to be far the oldest in the world, discovered in Mesopotamia, is described by Dr. J. Stur, a Viennese engineer. This four-thousand-year-old equivalent of a blue-print was in fragmentary condition, but three of the pieces fit accurately together, showing part of the ground plan of what must have been a very large house. The walls and doorways for 17 rooms are indicated by accurately and clearly drawn lines, and cuneiform notes give the dimensions. The largest room was 40 by 46 feet, and the scale of the drawing is 1 to 300.—Science Service.

THE DOUBLE CROSS

"Probably not, but George says he's got quite a little fever, and that he's sent for the doctor. I'm sorry to run away like this and I dare say it's nothing of importance, but if it turned out wrong I should be sorry that I hadn't gone home promptly. Say good-by for me to Rollin, please. Good-by, dear," and she was gone. Doris was vexed. She had counted upon Jim's sister to amuse Rollin in the course of the evening. Now it seemed that her chances for a tete-a-tete with Jim were less than ever. She rang for the maid and even more hastily than before she continued dressing.

Downstairs in the library, Stanley, already dressed, was sitting at the big desk. Wilson stood beside him, anxious as he never had been before in all his life. For the first time in his life, also, he found himself in opposition to Jim Stanley. He found himself upon the verge of a terrific adventure. He was about to be plunged into it, head first, and the water was too deep and too cold for the little man. However, there was no budging Stanley. He was committed to it, and therefore Wilson, though terrified at the prospect, regarded himself as committed also.

"Very well," Stanley was saying in a scarcely audible voice. "Now you are certain you understand?"
"Yes," replied the secretary, "in so far as that goes. But I beg you to reconsider before it's too late."

"Reconsider what? Can anything alter the facts? No, no, my friend, retribution shall fall on this man's head before the rise of another sun."

"Oh, sir, I'm afraid!"
"Of what?"
"For you, sir. He's strong—his temper is violent. If you goad him to desperation—"

"That's it—that's it!" cried Stanley. "That's what I'm going to do!"
"He may kill you."
"I'll take the chance."
"I'm afraid—I'm afraid!" repeated Wilson, in a shaking voice.

Stanley glanced once at the door and then he said: "Listen, Frank. Once in the life of every man there comes a time when he stands at the crossroads. I stand there tonight. Once the choice is made there can be no turning back. I have made my choice—and now—forward march!

But I'm afraid I've been selfish in this. I haven't thought of you at all. Yes, yes—there's danger in this for you, too. More than a little danger. Perhaps I have no right to expose you to it."

"No, no. It isn't that," protested Wilson.
"It's not too late—you had better leave this house now—at once. Then whatever happens under this roof tonight, your skirts will be clear."

"No, sir," said Wilson firmly, "if you're set on going on with this, I'll stand by. All the same, sir—"

A gentle swish of silk—both men turned. Doris stood in the doorway. Wilson effaced himself through the door that led to his tiny office, adjoining the library. His heart beat wildly. He was in for it now!

"Ah, my dear Doris," cried Stanley, beaming upon her, "how charming you look!"

She spoke with nervous haste.
"I've got to talk with you. This is my only chance. I've been trying to do it all day but you wouldn't let me. And Rollin hasn't let me out of his sight since we came. It almost seemed as if he were afraid of me."

"Surely—surely he's not jealous of me?"
"Perhaps," said Doris, with a sigh. "Rollin jealous of me?" Jim cried. "His best friend? Incredible!"

If she suspected irony she gave no sign—she was too intent on her own immediate purpose.
"Come closer, please," she murmured. Jim hesitated briefly—then he crossed the room and sat down beside her.

"You saw—the other day—of course," she began. "I told you I was happy, but of course you know better. I'm miserable!"
"My dear Doris—"

"Oh, I don't mean that it's all Rollin's fault. I don't wish to blame him for everything. Maybe I've failed him. I don't know how—I've done my best. But anyhow it's all no use. Hadn't you guessed it?"

"Well, I wondered," he admitted. He was uncomfortable. An exchange of confidence had been no part of his plan.
"You saw that he was drunk," she hurried on. "Well, he often is. And I can't believe him any more. Then about money—I don't begrudge it to him—but he spends large sums in no time at all—in the market, he says. But there are ways of finding out. I don't spy on him, but—things come to me that I can't doubt. And he no longer makes any pretense of being in love with me."

"Doris, this is tragic!"
"Yes, but that isn't all I've got to say. I must hurry, too—he'll come down at any moment. So don't interrupt. Jim—"

She paused briefly as if reconsidering, but then went on. "I feel that I must ask your forgiveness."

"What for?" he asked in genuine surprise.
"Just before you went to India," she continued, "a certain person came to see me and made an accusation against you—a shocking accusation."

"So?"
"Yes—and this is why I ask your forgiveness I am bitterly ashamed of it, but I more than half believed it—and for that I ask your pardon. Oh, I know I don't deserve it."

"Why didn't you give me a chance to explain?" he asked gently.
"I had given my word of honor not to say a word to you about it."

"A man or a woman?"
"A woman."
Here, he reflected, was corroboration with a vengeance.

"Why did you believe her?" There was a tinge of bitterness in this inquiry.
"Because there seemed to be no possible motive for her lying."

"Did you tell Rollin?"
"I told him that I had heard a terrible story about you, but he never knew what it was."

"Oh, didn't he?"
"Oh, you mustn't think that," she cried. "Why, he even defended you."
"Noble Rollin! True friend!"
"Jim, you must be just to Rollin. He's never said a word against you."

"Very generous of him. Did he ever tell you of a talk we had that

"Yes, and before Rollin came, too."

very afternoon before you became engaged?"
"Why, no."
"Well, I will. It will interest you. He had been paying a lot of attention to you. I assumed that he was in love with you as—as I was myself, and am yet. Oh, you know it well enough."

"Please—please—"

she begged, her eyes upon the floor.
He went on: "So I spoke frankly to Rollin that very afternoon and we agreed to propose to you that same evening. We tossed a coin for first chance. He won the toss. Of course, the moment I entered your drawing room I saw that I had lost you."

A silence fell. Rousing herself, Doris broke it.
"I'll tell you something else," she said. "It was on that very evening that this woman came to me with her dreadful story."

"Before I came in, I suppose?"
"Yes, and before Rollin came, too," Stanley managed—as a matter of course—remarkable confidence, wasn't it?"

"I take it," he inquired, after a moment, in a business-like tone, "that you no longer believe this woman's story?"
"Should I be here if I did?"

"I suppose not. But what has changed your mind?"
"I don't quite know. But for some time the conviction has been growing on me that a terrible injustice has been done you."

"Yes—and not only me."
"I have sent my mind back over my friendship with you. I've reminded myself that never in all my life—even when we were children together—have I known you to do anything that wasn't kind or generous or decent. And I can't believe that such a man ever becomes a scoundrel overnight, no matter what the evidence."

"Do you wish to hear me deny it?" he asked.
"No! No! No!" she exclaimed, with vehemence. Then her voice fell suddenly to a murmur. "I only wish to make you feel that so far as I'm concerned I am once again your devoted and affectionate friend."

He did not look at her, nor she at him. Her eyes were full of tears; his own were luminous.

Gently, at last, he touched her hand where it lay upon her lap, and said: "Thanks. Before this night is over I hope to justify your confidence abundantly."

Instantly she had a sense that something of tremendous import lay behind his words. "What do you mean?" she asked.

He rose, went to the desk, found a cigarette, lit it, and said: "You shall see!" And he added in quite a different tone as he glimpsed a figure in the doorway:

"Oh, no, I don't mind its being rather isolated here. You see—Ah, here's the late Mr. Waterman."

"Sorry," said the latter, as he entered.
"Oh, it doesn't matter—Doris and I have been going over old times a bit. Too bad we're only three tonight, but these mothers, you know!"

"What's that?" inquired Waterman. Jim explained his sister's predicament.
"Too bad," said Rollin. "Where's the Swami? I haven't seen him since lunch."

"The Swami," answered Stanley, "has begun a fast—bread and water for a week. He mortifies the flesh every so often."

"Well," was Waterman's comment, "if I were going to mortify the flesh—"

"Which you are not," interrupted Doris.
"If I were going to mortify the flesh," continued her husband, ignoring the interruption, "I shouldn't put out a time when there was a cook in the house as good as yours. That woman's a wonder."

Jefferson having entered with a tray of cocktails, Waterman punctuated his remark by lifting his glass and remarking, "Here's a go!"

"Just a minute," said Stanley. "We can do better than that, I think. It's been a long time since we were all together like this, so I'm going to propose a toast—a toast which we can all three drink with zest, I'm sure."

He held his glass up to the light, fixed his eyes upon the amber liquid. "Here's to our friendship," he said.

Probably no toast was ever drunk that carried with it implications so different to the minds of the drinkers. But if, for the fraction of a second, the slightest suspicion crossed the mind of Waterman that the sentiment was tinged with irony, it was only the vaguest possible impression.

Stanley beamed upon his guest. "Rollin, old boy," he said, "it's most satisfactory to have you here tonight. Perhaps you may remember that just before I went away, to be exact, the very night you and Doris became engaged, I said that when I came home again, you were to render me an accounting? Remember that?" He fixed his eyes on Waterman's.

Suddenly the latter felt slightly chilly, but he said with reasonable promptness, "Yes, yes."

"Make her happy," I said, "and when I come back you shall render me an accounting." Well, Rollin, my friend, this is the night!"

Doris on the other side of the room sat up straight and looked with all her eyes. Her heart began to pound in her breast.

Waterman's uneasiness continued to increase, but he managed to say quite cheerfully, "All right, Jim—just as you say."

"Splendid, splendid," cried Stanley gaily, "and now I see that Jefferson is waiting to announce dinner, so let's go in."

As Doris took Stanley's arm, he could feel that she was trembling.

CHAPTER XII

Now, under the circumstances it might have been expected that dinner would prove a somewhat nervous function. Yet it was not altogether a failure. Stanley was quick to see that he had overplayed his hand a bit. It was no part of his plan to put Waterman on his guard. He therefore exerted all his social tact to dispel any apprehension that might have taken root in Rollin's mind. His talk was so gracious, so charming, and so friendly, that before long both Waterman and Doris had concluded that their imaginations had played them false.

In short, Jim became during the course of the dinner the same old Jim—warm-hearted, affectionate, simple-minded.

It was in a completely restored atmosphere of comfortable harmony that Waterman found himself presently sitting with his wife and his old friend in the library before the fire.

"Nice old place, this," he said, settling himself comfortably in his chair.
"Yes," agreed Stanley, "it's all of that; and yet sometimes I think that I'll get rid of it. You see, it's full of ghosts—haunted by the ghosts of my dead childhood—and yours, too, Rollin. We've often shouted through these halls, and scrambled up these stairways, yes, and slid down these banisters! And there are the ghosts of my father's hearty voice and my mother's gentle presence. Oh, if I were married and had children of my own to fill the vacant spaces here, it would be different. I should have living companions who would soon displace my ghostly comrades. Let me fill your glass again, Doris."

"No, no more, thanks," she said with a little shiver.
"You, Rollin?"
"Thanks, yes." He refilled Waterman's glass and resumed himself.
"Curious thing—time's changes," he went on. "Now take yourself, Rollin—I never imagined that you would turn out like this."

"How so?" inquired Waterman, his discomfort beginning to return.
"As a boy, you were positively shy—and as for girls, scared to death!"
"Yes," interpolated Doris, "he's changed."

"Why, at school," Stanley went on, "I remember the first time you danced with a girl you were paralyzed with fright. You perspired like a longshoreman under a July sun, your partner was persuaded that you were composed entirely of feet. But it wasn't long before you were quite the lady's man, and I understand—"

A stalwart young Irishman in chauffeur's livery stood in the doorway, cap in hand.
"What is it, O'Hara?"
"Did you want me, Mr. Stanley?"
"Oh, yes, O'Hara, please don't turn in just yet. I shall have some letters for you to take to the village. I want them to catch the early morning post."

"All right, sir," said the chauffeur, and departed.
Now although Waterman had for a time recovered his assurance, Doris had by no means recovered hers. In point of fact, she was conscious that before long her nerves might play her false. Not in all her life had she felt so completely on edge as at the present moment. It was not only that she was miserably unhappy. She was in a state of intolerable apprehension. Something was going to happen. She had no idea what it was—she didn't want to know. She had a ridiculous idea that at any moment she might leap to her feet and scream. Suddenly she felt that she must get away. It was an impulse she could not control, so as the chauffeur disappeared she rose abruptly and said:

"And speaking of turning in, I think I shall do just that."
"Oh, not yet, surely?" objected Stanley, politely.
"I think so. My head is splitting and I sleep badly of late—hardly at all after five o'clock. So I must get started early, or I get no rest."

Stanley offered no further objection. "Well, of course, in that case," he said solitously.
"Good-night, my dear Doris, and I hope your dreams may be agreeable. I shall see you in the morning!"
"Of course."

Waterman looked sharply at his friend, as he stood there holding his wife's hand in his own. A slight suspicion crossed his mind that there might be a double meaning in his speech, but if so he could not fathom it. Instead, he filled his glass again.

Doris, on her part, was in no wise reassured by Stanley's gaiety. She felt that it was spurious, assumed for a definite purpose, but what that purpose was she could not tell. Again the impulse for flight overwhelmed her.

"Well," she said, forcing a smile, "there's only one Jim. All the same!"
"Yes!" smiled Stanley.
She sighed gently. "Nothing," she said, and went out.
Stanley turned briskly to Waterman.
"Well, Rollin, this is charming, charming! Next to being happy one's self, the best thing is to see one's friends happy. I'm delighted that your marriage has turned out so awfully well."

Waterman's spirits rose. Doris had not given him away, he thought. Too proud—that was it. However, he had a purpose of his own in view. He needed help. He had always relied upon Stanley for that. He could rely upon him now. So he said:
"Yes—not bad, on the whole. But of course no marriage is absolutely idyllic. But take it by and large, it hasn't turned out badly."
(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Weather Has Little Influence on Tides

Contrary to popular belief, especially that long cherished by many sea men, tides do not exert any influence on the weather, according to meteorologists of the weather bureau, United States Department of Agriculture.

As a matter of fact, close observers have discovered that certain extreme weather conditions affect the tides to some extent. Tides ebb and flow at every point on the coast with clocklike regularity. Nevertheless, the weather continues to be fair or foul, irrespective of those tides. On the other hand, conditions of very low barometric pressure and very strong winds from favorable directions cause either unusually low or unusually high tides, as the case may be. This is the influence of the weather on the tides, and the weather is not the result of any tidal influence.

Even when there is, as meteorologists understand, a very insignificant outflow of air from a region into which the tide is rising, or a corresponding inflow of air as the tide subsides, this does not constitute a significant feature of the weather.

Silk for Consistent Hindus

Muga silk is a product of Assam. Eri silk comes from caterpillars which feed on the castor oil plant. It is of great value in India, because it is the only silk that can be spun from cocoons without killing the insects to which the cocoons, and it is therefore the only silk that can be worn by a strict Hindu.

Development of Radio Made in Two Decades

In 1908 President Roosevelt was an actual listener to the wild demonstrations which greeted his name when he was nominated for the Presidency. Hanging ten feet above the heads of the delegates were four black disks which contained a combination of telephone and phonograph and, with the aid of this device, the President in the White House, holding the receiver close to his ear, was able to catch the words of Henry Cabot Lodge's nomination speech.

In 1928 the entire nation, through the advance made in the art of radio and the nation-wide hookup by telephone wires, was able to hear the events as they took place in the convention halls at Kansas City and at Houston.—Telephone Press Service.

TEXAS Bee Men in convention here were told of advertising done to increase the use of honey, by a Michigan manufacturer. THINK mentioned this advertising months ago, and it is an excellent thing. But why not advertising by the bee men themselves, to encourage the use of honey? Why not advertising by sheep men to encourage buying goods made of wool; and advertising by livestock men to increase the demand for meat? If advertising is good, why not more of it by the people most interested in its results.

SPRING is here—the time for every progressive community to “clean up” and “paint up.” Every owner of property and renter should feel it is their duty to remove all accumulation of trash and litter and aid nature in her work of re-beautification. A clean town is a better place in which to live than one that is unsightly and unsanitary, and it will help attract travel this way if Sanderson will put on the appearance of being “cleaned up” and “painted up.”

TALKING about good roads—there are very few counties in the State that can boast of better roads than Terrell county.

RADIO WARBLERS BROADCAST HAPPY HARMONY

No static, no advertising, no letters from listeners, no announcer, no conflicting wave lengths, no bed-time stories or market reports, nothing but clear joy and good natured entertainment at the program given by Corine Jessop and her Radio Warblers on the second day of Chautauqua. One of the most popular companies of radio entertainers in the country is coming to give the Chautauqua audiences their finest, funniest and most pleasing entertainment. Radio has come to take a wonderful part in the life of the United States. Everybody is becoming neighborly again, the best artists appear on the radio programs.

Miss Jessop herself is a comedienne with a unique type of personality which cannot be set down on paper. A sort of Electric Lillie in Chautauqua, she is a singer, reader and accompanist, but more than that, she is Corine Jessop, and that's what counts. With her are David Hartley who has been with Howard Russell's Collections the past two years, and Fern Zinner, an accomplished cellist from the Chicago Civic Orchestra.

The company has some of that fine close harmony that is so popular with radio audiences and in addition to this they give some beautiful instrumental ensembles and plenty of unexpected stunt numbers.

Miss Jessop and her company have been for the past eight years with the Redpath organization and this is the first time this sort of an attraction has been offered over the West Coast circuit. Nothing takes the place of hearing and seeing artists in the same room. Corine Jessop and her happy-go-lucky gang appear to the very best advantage in a Chautauqua tent, and it's another feather in the Chautauqua cap to be able to offer them in a personal tour.

“SMILIN’ THRU” IS ELABORATELY STAGED

Famous Play at Chautauqua on Fourth Night

“Smilin’ Thru,” the beautiful classic of the stage, which is the second play of the week, carries one of the most elaborate sets of scenery ever used on a Chautauqua platform.

“Smilin’ Thru” is one of the most popular and beloved stories with American audiences that has ever been staged. It was started in first by Jane Cowl, the well known New York actress, who made it famous. Miss Cowl played it for more than a year at the Republic Theatre in New York. Since that time it has been filmed (where it was starred in by Norma Talmadge), published in book form, and played. It is always enthusiastically received in whatever form it appears.

The scenery for the play has been especially built for use in the tents on this circuit. It had to be carefully planned so that it could be carried in an automobile and put up rapidly as is so often necessary. The set cost more than $500 and is the final touch of beauty to make the play remembered.

The costumes are also of unusual value and richness, particularly in the second act where the story reverts to the colonial period. The beautiful suit worn by Mr. Hanscomb in this act was made in New York and is a rich velvet with real lace cuffs and trimmings. The other costumes for this act are correspondingly lovely.

The Company includes an unusually accomplished violinist and pianist whose music add an exquisite and unusual touch to some of the big scenes.

“Smilin’ Thru” is presented by an exceptional cast and no detail has been overlooked to make it one of the most beautiful ever seen on Chautauqua platform.

PAINFUL NEURITIS OF SIX YEARS IS ROUTED

“Sargon is the only medicine that relieved me of neuritis after suffering for six years.

“Then, I commenced to suffer with stomach trouble and everything I ate disagreed with me. I had taken so many medicines without lasting relief, and was so tired, worn and distressed with pain, that I was on the verge of despair. But I will never cease to be thankful for Sargon. If it had done nothing but end my neuritis, that would have been enough, but it helped me in every way, and I am feeling better than in years. I eat and enjoy hearty meals, and nothing disagrees with me. Every ache and pain is gone, my strength and energy have returned, and I feel like a different woman.

“While the Sargon tonic was building back my strength, Sargon Soft Mass Pills cleansed my system of poisons and ended my constipation. I can never say too much in praise of this wonderful new treatment.”

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Gertrude McDonald, highly esteemed resident of 737 Melba street, Dallas.

Irish Girl World Traveler at Chautauqua

Mrs. Harold R. Peat, who is traveling with Associated Chautauquas and will appear on the second evening program, has had a wide experience as a speaker, writer and traveler. In a recent interview she mentioned that South America was the only continent which she had not yet visited. She has been in every State of our Union, every Province of Canada, and both American and British Alaska. Mrs. Peat says that frequently she is amused at the contrast of her life of travel since she was born in the North of Ireland and her ancestral home was seven miles from the nearest rail and station. Mrs. Peat speaks upon The International Future of Our Children—she has a penetrating insight into the affairs of today, her knowledge of world politics is wide, and her elucidation is simple. She advocates World Peace, but is not a pacifist—Mrs. Peat herself says “How could an Irishwoman be a pacifist in the accepted sense of that word?”

As a writer Mrs. Peat was on the staff of the London Daily Chronicle, English—she wrote for the Daily Mail, Tatler, was Assistant Editor of Modern Society, and Work Editor of Everywoman's, also in England, whilst in this country she writes for leading papers and magazines. Ethel Merrill of Indianapolis published her last book “Mrs. Private Peat,” which is one of the few books published on this side to be placed on the honored shelves of the French Musce de la Guerre.

HJR No. 6

A JOINT RESOLUTION proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas providing for a Supreme Court of nine members, and for continuous session of that court.

Be It Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Sections 2 and 3 of Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

“Article 5. Section 2. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and eight Associate Justices, any five of whom shall constitute a quorum, and the concurrence of five shall be necessary to a decision of a case; in other matters, until otherwise provided by Law, the jurisdiction of the Court shall be exercised under such regulations and orders as the Court by a majority vote may prescribe. No person shall be eligible to the office of Chief Justice or Associate Justice of the Supreme Court unless he be, at the time of his election, a citizen of the United States and of this State and unless he shall have attained the age of thirty years, and shall have been a practicing lawyer or a judge of a court, or such lawyer and judge together at least seven years. Said Chief Justice and Associate Justices shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State at a general election, shall hold their offices six years, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and shall receive such compensation as may be provided by law. In case of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, the Governor shall fill the vacancy until the next general election for State officers, and at such general election the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be filled by election by the qualified voters of the State. The Judges of the Supreme Court who may be in office at the time this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until the expiration of their term of office under the present Constitution, and until their successors are elected and qualified. When this amendment takes effect, the Governor shall immediately appoint six additional Associate Justices of the Supreme Court for terms of office so that the terms of two of such appointed Associate Justices shall expire with the term of office of each of the present members of the Supreme Court, and, upon the qualification of such new Justices, the Commission of Appeals of the State of Texas shall terminate.”

“Article V. Section 3. The Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction only except as herein specified, which shall be co-extensive with the limits of the State. Its appellate jurisdiction shall extend to questions of law arising in cases of which the Courts of Civil Appeals have appellate jurisdiction under such restrictions and regulations as the Legislature may prescribe. Until otherwise provided by law, the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court shall extend to questions of law arising in the cases in which the Judges of any Court of Civil Appeals may disagree or where the several Courts of Civil Appeals may hold differently on the same question of law, or where a Statute of the State is held void, and shall extend to such other questions as may be within the Court's Appellate Jurisdiction under the Statutes of the State in force when this amendment takes effect. The Supreme Court and the Justices thereof shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus, as may be prescribed by Law, and under such regulations as may be prescribed by Law, the said Court and the Justices thereof may issue the writs of mandamus, procedendo, certiorari and such other writs, as may be necessary to enforce its jurisdiction. The Legislature may confer original jurisdiction on the Supreme Court to issue writs of quo warranto and mandamus in such cases as may be specified, except as against the Governor of the State.

The Supreme Court shall have power, upon affidavit or otherwise as by the Court may be determined, to ascertain such matters of fact as may be necessary to the proper exercise of its jurisdiction. The Supreme Court shall be open at all times and shall sit at the State Capitol for the transaction of business at such times as may be designated by the Court.

The Supreme Court shall appoint a clerk, who shall give bond in such manner as is now or may hereafter, be required by law, and he may hold his office for four years and shall be subject to removal by said Court, for good cause entered of record on the Minutes of said Court who shall receive such compensation as the Legislature may provide.”

Sec. 2. Said proposed Constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at a special election to be held throughout the State on Tuesday, July 16, 1929, at which election each voter opposing said proposed amendment shall scratch off the ballot with a pen or pencil the following words printed on said ballot: “For the amendment to the State Constitution providing for a Supreme Court of nine members, and for continuous session of that Court,” and each voter favoring said proposed amendment shall scratch off the ballot in the same manner the following words printed on said ballot: “Against the amendment to the State Constitution providing for a Supreme Court of nine members, and for continuous session of that Court.” If it appears from a majority of the votes cast in favor of said amendment, the same shall become a part of the State Constitution.

Sec. 3. The Governor shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election and have the same published and said election held as provided by the Constitution and Laws of this State.

Sec. 4. The sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury to pay for the expenses of said publication and election.

JUNIOR TOWN BIG CHAUTAUQUA FEATURE

Chautauqua week is the big week of the year for the youngsters. The committee bringing Chautauqua here has just received plans from the headquarters of the Associated Chautauqua, saying that this year's Junior Town program is to be bigger than ever.

The young folks will elect their own mayor, the town clerk, the news reporter, the law and order commissioner, the service commissioner, and the health commissioners. It is expected there may be two or more candidates for the various offices, and that quite a campaign will be waged. One day during Chautauqua it is planned to have the Junior Town Offices administer the city government, with the assistance of the regular officers.

The Superintendents on the circuit coming here are all ladies who have had a special training in the conduct of playgrounds and Junior Town.

There will be picnics, hikes, parties, yells, stories, games, etc., and other special features that will make it an eventful week for the younger members of the community.

DR. CALDWELL'S
THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that so matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their systems. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. ARC TO BE MARKED

Stone Tablets to Follow Route of Maid.

Vaucouleurs, France.—The trail of Joan of Arc, Maid of Orleans, is to be marked permanently as France's tribute to her on the five-hundredth anniversary celebration of her exploits.

Her progress from the little town of Domremy to the court of the dauphin at Chinon; to Orleans, where she raised the 100-day siege; on to Reims, where she crowned the dauphin, King Charles VII; to St. Denis, close to Paris, and eventually to the stake at Rouen in the north, is to be described serially in stone tablets set up at points of greatest importance in connection with her story. It will take 18 months to put them in place.

Three Thousand Weary Miles.

In all, the trail will cover more than 3,000 weary miles which the girl soldier, clad in armor and riding a white horse, traveled in less than fourteen months of terrific campaigning. She always pushed forward faster than her seasoned warrior counselors advised, never resting or sparing herself.

This little town, a few miles from peaceful Domremy, where Joan, daughter of a landed peasant family, heard the voices which started her on her military career, was the starting point of her journey. The story begins at dawn February 23, 1429, when Joan, disguised as a young mer-

THE CONCERT

The birds all wanted to get up early that morning in Birdland. They didn't know just why at first but after a little while they found out.

Their wings had all been touched by the fairy morning dust.

This dust makes the little creatures wake up, while the evening dust puts them to sleep.

The fairies have dust for the birds for animals, for each other.

When they get out of sleepy-dust they get a fresh supply from old Dream King who keeps a storehouse of sleeping dust.

But the morning dust the fairies love to sprinkle over the little birds.

They are so awake and fresh and lovely and cheery in the early morning, the fairies say, and surely everyone will agree with them.

When the birds had all opened their eyes and had tried their voices they suddenly saw a great big bush filled with dewdrops.

"Water, water, dewdrop water to drink," shouted the birds, delightedly.

They flew to the bush and then from all around they saw the Dawn Fairies—all wearing the colors of the early morning.

"Trill, trill-trill, trill," called the little birds.

"Good morning, best of good mornings," said the Dawn Fairies, and as they spoke there fell from their

"Wake Us Up at Morn."

Wings little baskets filled with moss and filled with tiny worms for the birds' breakfasts.

"Oh, t-w-t, twit, trill, trill-trill, twit," said the birds, gaily.

They began at once to eat their delicious breakfasts.

"We're to have a concert," said the Fairies, "for soon, soon you will be going up North again."

"Now you are with us where it is warm in the winter time and we want to take advantage of that, and have some glorious music."

"But won't you come and visit us even when we go North?" the birds asked.

"Indeed we will," said the Dawn Fairies, "but we had to have some excuse for having a concert this morning—we felt so much like one—and we thought this excuse as good as any."

The birds chirped and trilled. They liked the idea of a concert too, and were so glad the Dawn Fairies felt as they did about one.

"We are flattered," the birds said.

Some of them made bows, and others hopped around and around the Dawn Fairies, singing.

The Fairies of the Dawn, Who wake us up at morn, Make us happy, free and gay, Hurrah, oh, hurrah!

The Fairies laughed at the little verse the birds sang, and then they took reserved seats on the best branches of the low trees nearby.

"The concert stand will be the bush which holds the dewdrops," said the Queen of the Dawn Fairies.

All the birds took their place on the bush from where they sang solos, duets, in chorus, and in groups of six and eight.

The Dawn Fairies were delighted and just before the concert was over they gave the birds acorn cups filled with rare flower honey.

It was a most successful concert.

RIDDLES

What do we often catch yet never see? A passing remark.

Why is Ireland like a bottle? Because there is a Cork in it.

Why is a watch like a river? It never runs without winding.

Why is the letter Y like 9 inches? Because it is the fourth part of a yard.

Which is heavier—the new moon or the full moon? The new moon, because the full moon is lighter.

What is there about a house that seldom falls, but never hurts the occupant when it does? The rent.

What is the difference between a blind man and a sailor in prison? One cannot see to go and the other can't go to sea.

Why is the roadbed laborer on a railroad like a hunted bear in the mountains? Because he makes tracks for his life.

TERRELL COUNTY RANGE IN GOOD CONDITION

Ranchmen Report Feed Fine but Stock Water Needed; Kidding of Goats Progressing Nicely.

Terrell County ranchmen, who have been interviewed, all say that the range conditions in this county are the best for this time of the year that has prevailed in several years. Rains in the month of March and light showers have made the feeding conditions very promising, although a heavy rain at this time to put out stock water on some of the ranches is needed to put the O. K. on everything.

Kidding of goats is now in progress on nearly all ranches where goats are stocked and all ranchmen report success so far in this industry. A good crop of kids is being brought off with very small loss. The shearing of sheep is also going on at a good many ranches in this county at this time and the amount of wool being "fleece" seems to be entirely satisfactory to the sheep owners.

A large number of wells have been drilled in Terrell County recently and several good flows of water have been encountered. Also a number of tanks have been built and are now being built. Mr. Stavley near Dryden is among those who have just recently drilled a well and had a tank built. John Green finished the tank work for Mr. Stavley Friday.

Taken all in all, Terrell County stands at the head in its natural industries this season and the next six months should witness a decided increase in the demand for land in this county and the coming of new citizens into our midst. The oil industry also is reported to be slated for an intensive campaign with some "surprises" in store.

Mrs. Sue Douglas has returned from a lengthy visit with her sister in Orange, Texas.

Return From Hot Wells

Vance McLymont and Harry Sharp returned Friday from Hot Wells, New Mexico, where they have been for the past three weeks taking a course of baths. They left Hot Wells at four o'clock in the evening and arrived in Sanderson at six o'clock the next morning. This was a distance of about 550 miles, which is making pretty good time for a Ford car. They report that they are feeling very much improved from their stay in Hot Wells. Roads were very good with the exception of a few places.

Charters Plane to Catch Train

When the Sunset Limited, in charge of Conductor S. J. Kellogg, arrived at the station here last Friday it had on board the H. F. Guggenheim party of New York. One of the party who was detained at the Mexican border and failed to catch the train at El Paso chartered an airplane and overtook the train at Marfa.

Tree for Every Baby

As an investment for their children, 11 men of Cooperstown, N. Y., are reforesting a tract to be called the "Forest of a Dozen Deeds." In southern Italy, fathers plant a row of trees for each of their girls when they are babies. By the time the girls grow up the trees are big enough to cut and sell. The money goes into the girl's dowry. The result is more girl babies and more trees, ad infinitum.—Capper's Weekly.

Sanitary

In the good old days one could eat anything and everything, without counting calories or vitamins or worrying about germs. But in this age of gang wars and hygiene it is different. The grownups still are inclined to rebel and backslide, but the children take to it naturally. The other day two urchins passed at a hot dog stand and one said: "Gee, let's get a barbecued sandwich!" "No," said the other seriously, "I wouldn't let anyone but a druggist put up a sandwich for me."

Records Phone Message

No longer need one remain at home to receive a telephone message if a recent Swedish invention proves practicable, according to the Department of Commerce. The device, it is asserted, receives telephone messages in the absence of the householder and reproduces them on his return. It is attached to an ordinary telephone and directly connects the device with central. The conversation is received on a highly sensitive material which later reproduces the message.

TEXAS Bee Men in convention here were told of advertising done to increase the use of honey, by a Michigan manufacturer. THINK mentioned this advertising months ago, and it is an excellent thing. But why not advertising by the bee men themselves, to encourage the use of honey? Why not advertising by sheep men to encourage buying goods made of wool; and advertising by livestock men to increase the demand for meat? If advertising is good, why not more of it by the people most interested in its results.

No static, no advertising, no letters from listeners, no announcer, no conflicting wave lengths, no bedtime stories or market reports, nothing but clear joy and good natured entertainment at the program given by Corine Jessop and her Radio Warblers on the second day of Chautauqua. One of the most popular companies of radio entertainers in the country is coming to give the Chautauqua audiences their finest, funniest and most pleasing entertainment. Radio has come to take a wonderful part in the life of the United States. Everybody is becoming neighborly again, the best artists appear on the radio programs.

David Hartley who has been with Howard Russell's Collegiate for the past two years, and Fern Eizer, an accomplished cellist from the Chicago Civic Orchestra.

The company has some of that fine close harmony that is so popular with radio audiences and in addition to this they give some beautiful instrumental ensembles and plenty of unexpected stunts.

Miss Jessop and her company have been for the past eight years with the Redpath organization and this is the first time this sort of an attraction has been offered over the West Coast circuit. Nothing takes the place of hearing and seeing artists in the same room. Corine Jessop and her happy-go-lucky gang appear in the very best advantage in a Chautauqua tent, and it's another feather in the Chautauqua cap to be able to offer them in a personal tour.

"SMILIN' THRU" IS ELABORATELY STAGED

Famous Play at Chautauqua on Fourth Night

"Smilin' Thru," the beautiful classic of the stage, which is the second play of the week, carries one of the most elaborate acts of scenery every used on a Chautauqua platform. "Smilin' Thru" is one of the most popular and beloved stories with American audiences that has ever been staged. It was started in first by Jane Cowl, the well known New York actress, who made it famous. Miss Cowl played it for more than a year at the Republic Theatre in New York. Since that time it has been filmed (where it was starred in by Norma Talmadge), published in book form, and played. It is always enthusiastically received in whatever form it appears.

put up rapidly as is so often necessary. The set cost more than $800 and is the final touch of beauty to make the play remembered. The costumes are also of unusual value and richness, particularly in the second act where the story reverts to the colonial period. The beautiful suit worn by Mr. Hanscom in this act was made in New York and is a rich velvet with real lace cuffs and trimmings. The other costumes for this act are correspondingly lovely.

The scenery for the play has been especially built for use in the tents on this circuit. It had to be carefully planned so that it could be carried in an automobile and

"Sargon is the only medicine that relieved me of neuritis after suffering for six years.

"I would be doing my household work, and all at once pains would start in my left side, and extend up into my shoulders, and many a time I had to go to bed.

"Then, I commenced to suffer with stomach trouble and everything I ate disagreed with me. I had taken so many medicines without lasting relief, and was so tired, worn and distressed with pain, that I was on the verge of despair. But I will never cease to be thankful for Sargon. If it had done nothing but end my neuritis, that would have been enough, but it helped me in every way, and I am feeling better than in years. I eat and enjoy hearty meals, and nothing disagrees with me. Every ache and pain is gone, my strength and energy have returned, and I feel like a different woman.

"While the Sargon tonic was building back my strength, Sargon Soft Mass Pills cleansed my system of poisons and ended my constipation. I can never say too much in praise of this wonderful new treatment."

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Gertrude McDonald, highly esteemed resident of 737 Melba street, Dallas. Sargon may be obtained in Sanderson from the Sanderson Drug Co.

Irish Girl World Traveler at Chautauqua

Mrs. Harold R. Peat, who is traveling with Associated Chautauquas and will appear on the second evening program, has had a wide experience as a speaker, writer and traveler. In a recent interview she mentioned that South America was the only continent which she had not yet visited. She has been in every State of our Union, every Province of Canada, and both American and British Alaska. Mrs. Peat says that frequently she is amused at the contrast of her life of travel since she was born in the North of Ireland and her ancestral home was seven miles from the nearest Irishman.

Mrs. Peat speaks English, French, Italian, Spanish, and several other languages. She is a writer of magazine articles and a travelogue. JUNIOR TOWN BIG CHAUTAUQUA FEATURE

Chautauqua week is the big week of the year for the youngsters. The committee bringing Chautauqua here has just received plans from the headquarters of the Associated Chautauquas, saying that this year's Junior Town program is to be bigger than ever.

The young folks will elect their own mayor, the town clerk, the news reporter, the law and order commission, the service commission, and the health commissioners. It is expected there may be two or more candidates for the various offices, and that quite a campaign will be waged. One day during Chautauqua it is planned to have the Junior Town Offices administer the city government, with the assistance of the regular officers.

The Superintendents on the circuit coming here are all ladies who have had a special training in the conduct of playgrounds and Junior Town. There will be picnics, hikes, parties, yells, stories, games, etc., and other special features that will make it an eventful week for the younger members of the community.

REBEL GENERALS TAKEN

Raul Madero Captured at Sheffield and Villarreal Taken at Fort Stockton.

Two of the outstanding rebel leaders of the Mexican revolution, General Raul Madero and General Antonio Villarreal, were captured Friday night by U. S. Border Patrol men. General Madero was captured at Sheffield and General Villarreal, together with eight of his followers, were taken into custody at Fort Stockton.

Border Patrolmen C. C. Courtney and M. J. Scannell of Marfa made the capture, assisted by Sheriff John Rooney of Fort Stockton.

Many rebel leaders have fled Mexico during the past few days and crossed the Rio Grande into this country and U. S. officers are searching for them. One rebel leader was reported to have been in Sanderson a few nights ago. It is thought that this desertion of the outstanding rebel leaders is the start of the final breaking up of the Mexican revolution.

DR. CALDWELL'S
THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of most importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headache, and to break up fevers and colds. TRAIL OF JOAN OF ARC TO BE MARKED

Stone Tablets to Follow Route of Maid.

Vaucluse, France.—The trail of Joan of Arc, Maid of Orleans, is to be marked permanently as France's tribute to her on the five-hundredth anniversary celebration of her exploits.

Her progress from the little town of Domremy to the court of the dauphin at Chinon; to Orleans, where she raised the 100-day siege; on to Reims, where she crowned the dauphin, King Charles VII; to St. Denis, close to Paris, and eventually to the stake at Rouen in the north, is to be described serially in stone tablets set up at points of greatest importance in connection with her story. It will take 18 months to put them in place.

Three Thousand Weary Miles.
In all, the trail will cover more than 3,000 weary miles which the girl soldier, clad in armor and riding a white horse, traveled in less than fourteen months of terrific campaigning. She always pushed forward faster than her seasoned warrior counselors advised, never resting or sparing herself.

This little town, a few miles from peaceful Domremy, where Joan, daughter of a landed peasant family, heard the voices which started her on her military career, was the starting point of her journey. The story begins at dawn February 23, 1429, when Joan, disguised as a young merchant and accompanied by six faithful local followers, set out for Chinon and the court of the dauphin, to tell the story of her voices and offer her sword to France.

She rode a white horse, given her by an uncle, and she left her mother and father in angry tears, berating her for her willfulness.

A Big, Healthy Girl.
She was a big, healthy girl of eighteen years of age, strong from working in the fields, tending her father's flock and doing the housework of a medieval peasant cottage. Eighteen months later she met her death, almost too feeble to stand up. War, hardships and imprisonment made a white-faced, hollow-eyed shadow of the peasant girl.

Joan raised the siege of Orleans April 29, 1429. She crowned the dauphin king of France in the Reims cathedral July 16 of the same year. She was taken prisoner at Compiègne May 24, 1430, and met her death at Rouen May 30, 1431. Dates of dedication of memorial tablets will coincide with the five-hundredth anniversary of these dates.

Woman Is Auctioneer; Husband Is Her Clerk

Bournemouth, England.—When Mrs. Ernest Comer of Christchurch road, Bournemouth, mounts the rostrum of one of the leading auction rooms in this town and begins wielding the hammer, deniers sit up and take notice.

For although Mrs. Comer is a pioneer of her sex in the strenuous profession of auctioneering, she is acknowledged by male competitors to be one of the cleverest in England. With true womanly intuition she is keen to drive a bargain, and this ability, together with the feminine "gift of gab," has contributed greatly to her success.

Mrs. Comer took up auctioneering about ten years ago, when, owing to her husband's illness, she was compelled to become the family bread winner. Mr. Comer now acts as her clerk.

Furniture is Mrs. Comer's specialty, and her husband is an expert on pictures.

"But I have sold motor cars and many other articles by auction with success," she added.

Swede and Finn Barks in Long Ocean Race

Gothenburg, Sweden.—An old-fashioned sailing race from Australia to England has just been begun by a Swedish and a Finnish bark. The Swedish entry, the Beatrice of Gothenburg, is the last four-masted full-rigger in the Swedish merchant marine. She is 2,106 gross tons. Her competitor is the Herzogin Cecilie, whose home port is Mariehamn on the Aaland island, in the Baltic sea. The distance from Port Lincoln, the starting point of the race, to Plymouth is approximately 15,000 nautical miles.

Last year the same vessels engaged in a similar race between these two cities, at which time the Herzogin Cecilie won, arriving 18 days ahead of the Swedish boat.

THE CONCERT

The birds all wanted to get up early that morning in Birdland. They didn't know just why at first but after a little while they found out. Their wings had all been touched by the fairy morning dust.

This dust makes the little creatures wake up, while the evening dust puts them to sleep.

The fairies have dust for the birds for animals, for each other.

When they get out of sleepy-dust they get a fresh supply from old Dream King who keeps a storehouse of sleeping dust.

But the morning dust the fairies love to sprinkle over the little birds. They are so awake and fresh and lovely and cheery in the early morning, the fairies say, and surely everyone will agree with them.

When the birds had all opened their eyes and had tried their voices they suddenly saw a great big bush filled with dewdrops.

"Water, water, dewdrop water to drink," shouted the birds, delightedly.

They flew to the bush and then from all around they saw the Dawn Fairies—all wearing the colors of the early morning.

"Trill, tr-r-r-r, trill," called the little birds.

"Good morning, best of good mornings," said the Dawn Fairies, and as they spoke there fell from their wings little baskets filled with moss and filled with tiny worms for the birds' breakfasts.

"Oh, tr-r-r, trill, trill, tr-r-r-r, trill," said the birds, gaily.

They began at once to eat their delicious breakfasts.

"We're to have a concert," said the Fairies, "for soon, soon you will be going up North again."

"Now you are with us where it is warm in the winter time and we want to take advantage of that, and have some glorious music."

"But won't you come and visit us even when we go North?" the birds asked.

"Indeed we will," said the Dawn Fairies, "but we had to have some excuse for having a concert this morning—we felt so much like one—and we thought this excuse as good as any."

The birds chirped and trilled. They liked the idea of a concert too, and were so glad the Dawn Fairies felt as they did about one.

"We are flattered," the birds said. Some of them made bows, and others hopped around and around the Dawn Fairies, singing.

The Fairies of the Dawn, who wake us up at morn, Make us happy, free and gay, Hurrah, oh, hurrah!

The Fairies laughed at the little verse the birds sang, and then they took reserved seats on the best branches of the low trees nearby.

"The concert stand will be the bush which holds the dewdrops," said the Queen of the Dawn Fairies.

All the birds took their place on the bush from where they sang solos duets, in chorus, and in groups of six and eight.

The Dawn Fairies were delighted and just before the concert was over they gave the birds corn cups filled with rare flower honey.

It was a most successful concert.

RIDDLES
What do we often catch yet never see? A passing remark.

Why is Ireland like a bottle? Because there is a Cork in it.

Why is a watch like a river? It never runs without winding.

Why is the letter Y like 9 inches? Because it is the fourth part of a yard.

Which is heavier—the new moon or the full moon? The new moon, because the full moon is lighter.

What is there about a house that seldom falls, but never hurts the occupant when it does? The rent.

What is the difference between a blind man and a sailor in prison? One cannot see to go and the other can't go to sea.

Why is the roadbed laborer on a railroad like a hunted bear in the mountains? Because he makes tracks for his life.

On your toes with POST TOASTIES -quick, rich energy

Busy day ahead? Begin it right with Post Toasties. There's an ample store of brisk new energy in each crisp, appetizing mouthful. Easily digested energy that turns quickly into zest for the day's work.

And it's so good to eat! Pour the crumbly, golden-brown flakes out of the handy package into the saucer. Then add cream and sugar if you like. We've found that rich, natural corn flavor and the toasted crispness make a perfect combination. Everyone likes it!

Ask your grocer for the genuine Post Toasties in the red and yellow package.

Tree for Every Baby
As an investment for their children, 11 men of Cooperstown, N. Y., are reforesting a tract to be called the "Forest of a Dozen Dads." In southern Italy, fathers plant a row of trees for each of their girls when they are babies. By the time the girls grow up the trees are big enough to cut and sell. The money goes into the girl's dowry. The result is more girl babies and more trees, ad infinitum.—Capper's Weekly.

Sanitary
In the good old days one could eat anything and everything, without counting calories or vitamins or worrying about germs. But in this age of gang wars and hygiene it is different. The grownups still are inclined to rebel and backslide, but the children take to it naturally.

Records Phone Message
No longer need one remain at home to receive a telephone message if a recent Swedish invention proves practicable, according to the Department of Commerce. The device, it is asserted, receives telephone messages in the absence of the householder and reproduces them on his return. It is attached to an ordinary telephone and directly connects the device with central. The conversation is received on a highly sensitive material which later reproduces the message.

Two California cities, St. Francisco and San Diego, each have the distinction of possessing a species of butterfly found nowhere else in the world.

Time destroys the groundless conceits of men; it confirms decisions founded on reality.—Cicero.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the maker of your car recifies a change of spark plugs every ten thousand miles?

That after firing millions of times the plugs in your car become so pitted and corroded that they produce a very weak spark?

That weak plugs cause loss of power, poor gas mileage, sluggish motors?

That because of varying compression ratios, every make of car requires a different type of plug?

That AC plugs are standard on almost every car?

That the McKnight Garage has the correct type of plug for every car?
