H. L. Stuckey Back From Hunting Trip

H. L. Stuckey returned Sunday morning from a deer hunt in the mountains of New Mexico. The hunting season for the black tail deer in New Mexico opens on November 10th and closes on the 21st of November, allowing only eleven days grace; so in order to put in full time and be on the "happy hunting ground" on the opening day Mr. Stuckey left here on Nov. 6th, and when the sun rose on the morning of the 10th he was in the mountains of northern New Mexico with guns and ammunition enough to capture a rebel village across the Rio Grande river.

Mr. Stuckey had some thrilling experiences during his trip. At one time when he lay down at night to sleep his only mattress was three feet of snow under him. He saw many deer, in droves of from 5 to 15, and had the good luck to get his limit, 2 deer. For three days he was snow-bound in the mountains and ate venison until he dreamed of eating it at night. He shipped one deer home to his family.

Mr. Stuckey says he enjoyed his hunting trip immensely. The outing did him good and he is looking much improved in health, in fact he looks 10 years younger. (Modesty, however, prevents us from saying that he looks as young now as Mrs. Stuckey.)

The Cemetery association is to meet to install new officers Friday, December 5th. All members please take notice and be present at 3:00 p. m. at Church of Christ Auditorium.

Mesdames, A. C. Burrows and J. R. Black have returned from their visit in El Paso.

Amos "n" Andy Coming to Princess

A million letters from the pens of followers from Portland to Phoenix, from Tampa to Tacoma, were responsible for the filming of Amos 'n' Andy's first talking picture, "Check and Double Check." It marks the first time that a picture has been filmed directly in response to letters from the public.

"We've heard Amos 'n' Andy so much... we must see them!" was the substance of the vast flood of mail. "Why not put their radio story into a talking picture?"

"Check and Double Check," produced by Radio Pictures, is the result. Local audiences will have their first chance to see the radio favorites December 13 and 15 when the production opens at the Princess Theatre.

The influx of those tons of fan letters to Amos 'n' Andy in care of the National Broadcasting company was the signal for spirited bidding on the part of practically every film producer. The famous kings of the air finally accepted a contract with Radio Pictures.

Guided by the fans' preponderant preference to see Amos 'n' Andy in the same characterizations and meeting the same problems that form the basis of their daily radio sketches, the producers have not altered the Amos 'n' Andy that millions have learned to love. Their associated characters also have been retained, with the Kingfish, Madame Queen and Ruby Taylor and others playing important parts in the story. That remarkably ramshackle vehicle, the Fresh Air Taxicab, makes its first screen appearance and audiences are taken within the sacred lodge room of the Mystic Knights of the Sea.

A brilliant cast of players is seen in support of Amos 'n' Andy, including Irene Rich, Sue Carol, Charles Morton, Ralf Harolde and Rita LaRoy. Melville Brown directed the original story by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Next Sunday, November 30, the Sanderson men's fellowship Bible class will have their first devotional and study session at the Princess Theatre, meeting promptly at 10 a. m.

At this time the following officers will be elected: President, vice-president, secretary-treasurer and teacher. For Sunday Mrs. L. A. Lowe will have charge of the devotional, and Rev. B. M. Stradley will teach the lesson.

This class will then meet every Sunday promptly at 10 a. m. at the Princess Theatre, and will cover the following time period: 10 to 10:20, Devotional; 10:20 to 10:40, lesson study period; 10:40 to 10:50, Devotional and class business.

The class will be dismissed promptly at 10:50 every Sunday morning, giving 10 minutes time for the men to get to church of their choice for the 11 a. m. Divine Worship hour each Sunday.

The International Sunday School Bible lesson will be used.

All men who are not now regularly active in some Sunday school are earnestly solicited to attend the Sanderson Men's Fellowship Bible Class at 10 o'clock every Sunday morning at the Princess Theatre.

Newsy Notes From The High School

The program given last Friday night at the high school auditorium by the dramatic classes under the supervision of Miss Fleda Belle Jernigan was well attended. Three one act plays were given, the first one was called "The Wonder House," the second one "The Finger of God," and the last one, "The Bedroom Suite." These plays were a credit to the dramatic department and show that great progress is being made in that line of work.

Three teachers, Miss Martha Vernon Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Sandifer left Saturday morning for Houston where they are to represent the Sanderson Public Schools in the Houston school system the three days of this week prior to the State Teachers Association. They will also remain through the State Teachers Association which is from the 27th to the 29th. Several other teachers plan to join them there Thursday to attend the meeting.

Report cards were given out Tuesday. There has been some irregularity in the giving out of the reports, but from now on they will be given out promptly at the end of each four weeks period. A good many failures have been recorded for the past weeks, but we feel that this is due to a large extent to students having been absent on account of illness. Students are urged to spend at least one hour on outside preparation for each subject. This will eliminate a great many failures and will make the class work much more interesting for both pupils and teachers.

The new high school building and gymnasium are nearing completion. Although the date has not been set definitely as to when it will be finished, we are sure that it will be some time within the next three weeks. Installation of equipment began on Monday, November 10. With this building and equipment, Sanderson should have one of the best school systems in this section of the country, a system that every Sanderson citizen will be proud to boast of.

LAY BOARD ANNUAL BENEVOLENCES MEETING

The local board of lay activities of the First Methodist Church will have their annual conference year's Benevolences meeting at 11 a. m. Sunday, December 21. The personnel of the board is: Prof. B. J. Brannan, lay leader; Henry Goldwire, Prof. S. E. Nelson, L. A. Lowe, B. F. Dawson, Prof. Kelley Parker, Miss Mattirue Newton, Mrs. R. B. Mussey, Mrs. W. H. Farley, Mrs. Nannie Buck and J. E. Landers.

In the Methodist Church all benevolences covering the General Conference and the Annual Conference apportionments are made into one budget item, and an offering is received at this Annual Benevolences Budget Service for the 14 items of benevolences embraced in the budget.

A splendid program has been arranged for this service, which will be in charge of the local board above named.

Prof. B. J. Brannan will make an address explaining the method and the objects to which this offering goes, and the local pastor, Rev. B. M. Stradley, will make a short talk on evangelism.

Some of the items of the budget are: Home and foreign missions, temperance service, negro work, American Federal Church Council work, American Bible Society, church extension, Sunday school extension work, superannuate service.

Any one making an offering can designate the budget as a whole, any general item in the budget, or any particular item in a budget item.

Sheriff Cook Nabs A High Speeder

Sheriff Lee Cook had an exciting chase last Sunday evening after a "speeder" who went through Sanderson at a high rate of speed as though our little city was just a wide place in the road. The man was headed east and the Sheriff jumped in his Studebaker car and gave chase. The sheriff put his car up to 70 miles an hour but the Chrysler was fast running away from him, luck however favored the sheriff and a few miles east of town the Chrysler had to slow down to let a truck pass and the sheriff overtook the gentleman.

He was brought back to town where a charge was filed against him for careless and reckless driving and speeding on the streets of Sanderson. He was fined $1 and costs in justice of peace court which he paid immediately and then proceeded on his way at a moderate speed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Buck and son Emmett were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Vance McLymont.

Parent-Teachers Meet On Dec. 4th

There will be a meeting of the Parent Teachers Association on the regular day, the first Thursday of next month, December 4. On account of the epidemic which has been prevalent among our citizens for some time and on account of other illnesses a good many members have been absent from the last few meetings. There are about 70 members in our Parent Teachers Association, but only a very small percent of this number have been attending meetings. As everyone knows it is much easier to carry on the work of any organization when all the members co-operate in the activities which the organization sponsors. The Parent Teachers Association is your organization; it is carried on for the benefit of your child, and for the growth and progress of your school and community; therefore, in order to make your P. T. A. a success, you should make it a habit of attending every meeting.

Mrs. A. W. Culton visited her daughter last week, Mrs. E. H. Sterrett on her way home to east Texas.

Sanderson Tiger Den Number 101

At a special called meeting of Tiger Den Number 101, W. A. Powell was branded with the tiger claw.

The following men were elected to Tiger step number one: H. C. Goldwire, Mr. Nichols of the Sanderson Mercantile Co., L. A. Lowe of the Kerr Mercantile Co., James House and H. L. Stuckey.

This group will be branded with the Tiger claw at some meeting of the Den in December.

This Tiger Den will brand 14 Senior age Tigers at one of the December meetings.

At the last meeting the following officers were installed: Henry C. Goldwire, Junior Tiger Master; Savell Lee Sharp, Senior Tiger; Billy Goldwire, Junior Tiger; Preston Utterback, secretary-treasurer; Raymond Thrift, Tower Watchman; Chas. Stuckey, Wall Tiger.

Any boy who attends any church, any Sunday school, any religious cultural society is eligible to membership in the Tigers and may become a tiger by a full recommendation from the above named officers, and duly elected by the Tigers of record.

THE KERR MERC. COMPANY

Financiers of Freedom

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE names of Thaddeus Kosciusko and Casimir Pulaski, the two Polish soldiers who fought in the Revolution, are familiar to most citizens of the United States, but it is doubtful if the name of another Pole, Haym Salomon, means anything to more than one out of a thousand Americans. Yet his contribution to the cause of American liberty may in some respects be considered infinitely greater than those of the other two combined.

The invaluable services of this Polish Jew, whose financial genius was so vital to the Revolution's success, have always been known to the scholars of that struggle, but the difficulties of obtaining reliable information have kept this inspiring story from the public and the efforts which have been made to pay appropriate tribute to his memory have, for some unknown reason—unless it can be attributed to the proverbial ingratitude of republics which so easily forget their debts to some who labored mightily in their cause—been defeated for more than a century.

Fortunately for the cause of Truth there has appeared recently a biography of this man which enables us to see him in his true stature as one of the really great figures of the Revolution. It is the book "Haym Salomon and the Revolution," written by Charles Edward Russell and published by the Cosmopolitan Book Corporation.

Salomon was born at Lissa in Poland in 1740. At the age of thirty he joined in the fight to resist Russian domination of Poland, was associated with Kosciusko and Pulaski in their heroic but futile effort and like those two, was forced to flee from the country. He first made his way to England but soon left there and came to America, arriving in New York in 1772. Salomon had had considerable training in business before leaving Poland and he quickly established himself as a broker and commission merchant in New York city. The opportunity lay at hand for him to make a great fortune but he hindered his chances for that by one act. For the freedom-loving Pole almost immediately allied himself in the strongly Royalist colony of New York with a "disreputable and discredited" organization, called the Sons of Liberty, who as early as 1734 had banded together to resist oppressive acts by the British crown.

He was a worker in their cause at the outbreak of the Revolution, and late in 1776 he was one of a number of the Sons who were imprisoned by the British, accused of having started the fire which swept New York soon after the defeat of Washington's army on Long Island led to the occupation of that city by Lord Howe. Salomon was lodged in the Provost and to be held there meant certain death for many a patriot during the reign of Cunningham, the brutal master of the British prisons in New York.

Among the British troops were thousands of Hessian mercenaries who could not speak a word of English. When it became known that Salomon could speak German (he was also a master of French, Polish, Russian and Italian), he was put in better quarters and used as an interpreter to the Hessians by the British. Eventually he was released on parole. Even while a prisoner he was working in the patriots' cause for, unknown to the British, in his talks with the Hessians he was urging them to desert and pointing out to them the boundless opportunities which lay in the new country for them when the war was over. More than that he was taking advantage of the fact that he was regarded as a "trustee" by the British, passing by their sentries freely and going pretty much where he pleased, to aid in the escape of American prisoners. After his parole, he was able again to engage in business, using this as well as his interpreter duties for the British, as a cloak for his activity in behalf of the patriots.

For two years Salomon led a seemingly peaceful existence, although there was never a moment when his life was not in danger of being ended before a firing squad or at the end of a rope if the British had suspected what he was about. Then suddenly in August, 1778, Sir Henry Clinton received word that Washington was plotting to burn the city, and Salomon was arrested as the chief agent in the plot and returned again to the Provost. Details of this imprisonment are lacking, but it is believed that he was condemned to death but managed to escape from the prison shortly before the day of his execution. How he did it is unknown, but it is believed that he bought his way out of the prison and then used his familiarity with British posts and British guard methods to escape from the city.

At any rate he next appeared in Philadelphia and there the most important part of his career began. Although he was penniless, he still had his native energy and his knowledge of commerce and finance. So he immediately opened an office and began to deal in bills of exchange and other securities. By this time France had come into the war on the side of the Americans and French money was coming into the country. Philadelphia was not only the capital of the newly-created United States but it became a prosperous business and shipping center. In its prosperity Salomon shared.

But this prosperity was not shared by the infant government, for the financial policy of the Continental congress had been a blundering one from the start. By 1779 it was having serious financial difficulties. By 1780 the situation was even more critical. By 1781, with a treasury deficit of $1,000,000, it was desperate. It was desperate because the Revolution seemed near to collapse. On the first day of the new year the entire Pennsylvania line mutinied and started from Morris-town for Philadelphia to force congress to relieve their distress. They had not been paid for months, they were in rags and they were half starved. Two weeks later the New Jersey line also revolted.

Congress managed to head off the revolt and soon afterwards took steps to salvage what seemed to be a lost cause. Robert Morris, whose financial genius Washington had discovered early and upon whom that leader had leaned heavily in more than one crisis, was called to lead congress out of the financial morass. It was a formidable task which faced Morris in his newly-created post of superintendent of finance and a part of our admiration for the man who faced the bullets and bayonets of the British on the battlefield in the struggle for liberty should be reserved for this man who fought his fight far from the firing line and fought it with what must have seemed overwhelming odds against him.

He was "beset with a thousand difficulties and perils," writes Russell. "He used up all his own credit; always he was at the end of his resources, often he was at the end of his wits. Help from abroad came in fragments and slowly. When it arrived it was in the form of bills on Paris, chiefly on the great French banking house of La Cointreux and company. These reached Morris (sometimes) from various sources, and he must needs turn them into current money before they could be of use to him. In other words he must sell these bills for what he could get for them, gather up depreciated state currency and try to keep going. . . . His position was virtually at the mercy of brokers and yet set against them. The government and the government's officers could never go huckstering the government's bills up and down the Coffee House. Brokers were indispensable, but they were reputed, probably not without reason, to be cormorants; all except one."

That one was Haym Salomon. Morris' unpublished Diary, upon which Salomon's biographer draws heavily for his information, is filled with references to his dealings with Salomon, and all of them reflect the highest credit upon him as a patriot and a man. "One thing is made by the Diary as plain as daylight," writes Russell. "Haym Salomon is the pivot of the whole business. He stands in the breach; he keeps back the massed attacks that make for bankruptcy; everything depends upon him. It is Haym Salomon this and Haym Salomon that. On some days he makes six or seven visits to consult with the superintendent. Forty times, according to the testimony of the cashier (of the Bank of North America, which Morris established), between August 1, 1782, and the time Morris goes out of office, Haym Salomon comes to bat with his timely check. No matter where he gets the money; he gets it and it is this money that saves the day.

"He sells bills when no one else can sell them. More than that; he sells without gouging, without profit, even. Other brokers continue to harass the superintendent by underselling the market and hampering the sale of his bills. He has no trouble from Salomon. . . . One other great service he performs, though to this day no one has noticed it, nor given the slightest credit for it. With a magnificent disregard of his own interests, he endorses the paper of the broken-backed government. No one else will do this. The government's credit has ebbed and ebbed until it has sunk from sight. Everybody knows it is gone; sagacious men believe it will never return. Salomon endorses its paper and its officers' paper, and its Allies' paper, and makes himself personally liable for all. We have the evidence; no need for speculation or surmise."

All of this was, of course, after Cornwallis' surrender. Contrary to popular belief the affair at Yorktown did not end the Revolution. Great as was that victory, the patriot cause was still in danger and none realized that more than Washington who immediately after receiving the surrender began making plans for the next season's campaign. He could not realize that his victory had dealt the British ministry a blow from which it could not recover and that it was paying the way to peace. That was still two years away, and before it could be realized there was still much yet to be done. And, of course, the doing of that had to be financed. So the burden of making good the victory of Yorktown fell upon Robert Morris and his friend and helper, Haym Salomon.

It is impossible to estimate the full text of Salomon's contribution to the cause of liberty in terms of such intangibles as moral support and fostering the will-to-win. But there is a definite record of his tangible contribution, great in itself but smaller in importance than the intangible. For the records show that Salomon advanced in specie to Morris at various times and in various sums a total of $211,678, and although it can not be proved definitely that all of this was his own money, it is probable that most of it was. But the main fact is that he placed that money in Morris' hands when it was most needed and when few others had sufficient faith in the cause to risk even a fraction of that sum.

And his reward? He died January 6, 1785, when he was only forty-five years old. There is no doubt that the hardships he suffered in the British prisons and in his labors for the Continental government shortened his life. He was supposed to be rich, but after his death it was found that he was virtually a bankrupt. He left a widow and four children facing poverty. He had given his all to the cause of liberty. "He died without formulating any claims for reimbursement for the sums he had advanced," writes Russell. "In the opinion of later investigators he had entire confidence that when the government should be established, it would pay its obligations to him.

As for his "entire confidence" that the government would pay its obligations to him, they were never realized. For more than 80 years his heirs tried to get some recompense from congress but they never succeeded. "A republic soon forgets!"

Things That Are Nice for Christmas Gifts

Pretty Flower Pot Covers

Be sure to put this item down on your Christmas shopping list—flower-pot covers. They are a "discovery" when it comes to something pretty and useful "to give" that does not "cost much." They sure will be welcomed by the housewife when "it's time to bring the plants in the house for the winter." Of the three types shown here, the one to the left is of gold lace paper. Below is a folding type made of lemonade straws dyed in gay reds, greens and blues, while the cover on the pot at the top is woven of willow like a basket.

Scenic Beauty in Art Plaques

For those who appreciate the finer things, yet must "count the pennies" in Christmas giving, the problem is happily solved in the exquisitely artistic plaques which abound in the holiday displays this season. Many of these are of rare scenic beauty as will be seen by the two lovely types pictured. The one at the top is called "The Half-Way Change," and the other "The Roadside Mill." Being of plaster of paris done in relief work with old ivory finish, these bits of art are most inexpensive. Other subjects in this series of four are "A New England Home" and "Edinburgh Coach."

New-Type Laundry Bag

Here's a laundry bag with "latest improvements." Note that it suspends from a dress hanger, has its opening at the side instead of the top and best of all, from the standpoint of convenience, it buttons across the bottom. What more can one ask of a laundry bag which expects to have a "Merry Christmas" tag pinned upon it, except of course that it be made of "scrupulous" cretonne since it is going to be "a present" for somebody dear.

Christmas Gift De Luxe

Of all decorative and exquisite wares shown in the gift shops this season, there is none handsomer than that of ebony black glass with a designful patterning done in sterling silver inlay. A choice little piece, a bonbon dish, perhaps, or shapely vase, is sure to be appreciated by the recipient, while an elaborate console set as pictured is a Christmas gift de luxe.

Pithy Directions as to How to Buy Seed

Expert of New York State College Outlines Plan.

From the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca come pithy directions as to how to buy seed, written by Paul Work of the station staff. Here is the how of good seed buying:

"Seed, to be good, must be clean, viable, free from disease, and true to a good name.

"There are two ways of obtaining good seed: first, to produce it; secondly, to purchase it.

"Growers should learn, in a general way, how the seed business is handled, and should study the character, the ideals, the integrity, and the reputation of the various seed houses, for firms differ as widely as do individuals in these respects.

"Make inquiries as to the origin of the seed and whether or not the houses maintain trial grounds. Learn to judge whether the statements made in the catalogues or by the salesman are based on facts or on mere ideas.

"When you locate good sources, endeavor to get seed of the identical percentage another year. The use of the seedman's stock numbers will help both you and the seedsmen in this. Don't shop around too much if you locate a good seedsmen. He soon learns your needs and will endeavor to meet them.

Carbohydrate Supply Cheapest in Any Silo

The need for the silo is not measured geographically. Silos are being successfully used in every state and nearly every county in the Union. Many of the countries of the world are using silos with success. Too many farmers have figured that they were out of the silo belt, and let it go at that. They should use the silo formulas to determine the economy of such structures rather than count themselves outside the silo district.

The losses in field-cured forage are seldom spoken of. Weathering by sun, wind, rain and frost are great. When shocks and stalks are covered with snow and ice, then the silo is appreciated. But even if we did not have this weather damage, silage is our cheapest supply of digestible carbohydrates.

Most Convenient Form of Farm Repair Shop

Probably the most convenient form of repair shop for the farm is a building that combines the workshop with the garage. The car can be taken out and the machine run in while repairs are being made. The essentials of such a building are heat, reasonable light, and tools. The tools that come with machines may be sufficient for most work, although good tools save time. Heat may be secured from an old stove which may not meet all the requirements of the living room but which will heat the shop.

The 14 by 20 building offers a well arranged combination shop and garage. Plans for it may be secured at cost from county extension agents or from the college of agriculture at Columbia, Mo.

Agricultural Squibs

Peat may be added to clay or sandy garden soils to improve their water-holding capacity.

Brooder stoves are an excellent means of warming the laying house during cold snaps this winter.

It has been costing the federal government more than $10,000 a day to keep down forest fires in national forests.

When raspberries and blackberries have been harvested, cut out and burn the old fruiting canes. This will help hold disease and insect injury in check.

Sunlight or ultra-violet ray is necessary for the prevention of rickets in dairy calves unless the ration fed the animals contains ample quantities of vitamin D.

Winter rye sown in the spring will not make a grain crop the first season, if at all. It will make an excellent pasture for a short time but heads would not shoot up.

Grapes do well on a wide range of soils, but they prefer a well-drained gravelly loam. They require good drainage and will suffer far more from wet feet than from lack of fertile soil.

Asparagus should be planted as early as possible in spring. A rich soil is required. Prepare the piece of ground this fall by digging it deeply and in the process work in plenty of barnyard manure.

Ordinarily, a wooden building needs repainting about once every three or four years. An extra good job of painting may last six years, but it's poor business to put off painting until it is absolutely needed.

Human beings are about the only animals with a taste for ice water. Poultry and live stock on the farm don't care for it. They do appreciate warm drinking water and show their appreciation in increased profits.

Lucky Find

When we find some slight help makes a marvelous improvement in a child, we wonder why we hadn't thought of doing it long ago.

Here's a good example: "My little girl was doing fairly well," says Mrs. M. Seitenbach, 5995 Emile Street, Omaha, Neb., "but I noticed she didn't eat right and didn't have much energy.

"Our doctor had recommended California Fig Syrup, so I gave her some. She improved so much I wonder I didn't do something for her stomach and bowels before. She has a good appetite and digestion and plenty of energy now."

To point up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and regulate the bowels there's nothing like California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise it to open bowels in colds or children's diseases; or whenever had breath, coated tongue, etc., warn of constipation.

Emphasize the name California when buying, to get the genuine.

Old Shipyard Passes

One of the oldest shipyards in Europe, the Cantiere Navale Odero della Foce in Genoa, Italy, is soon to be scrapped. It was established in 1467 and in it were built the famous war galleys which were used by the republic against the Turkish corsairs. When Italy was overrun by the French a number of fighting ships were constructed here for Napoleon. Genoa has grown around the shipyard, which is now in the center of an industrial district. New houses will be erected on the site.

Little Elinor had heard many discussions at the dinner table about miniature golf, but being a very little girl and not accustomed to leaving her own back yard, she had never seen one of the baby courses until one Sunday when the family went out for a drive. But when finally she saw one, the child immediately recognized it and shouted:

"Oh, look, mamma, there's one of those ministers' golf courses!"

Would you call this a hint?

BEFORE secret suffering breaks out in open revolt—before the little home is irretrievably shattered by a husband's strong pipe—can't something be done? Certainly. A new pipe will help, or even an old pipe cleaned and filled with Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite smoking mixture. It really is milder, with no sacrifice of richness and fragrance. It really is as popular with the smoked-at as it is with the smoker.

Exploring Upper Air

For scientific exploration of the upper atmosphere a Brussels scientist is preparing for a balloon ascent of 50,000 feet to be attempted at Augsburg, Bavaria, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. As the air pressure at this height is too low to maintain human life, the gondola of the balloon will be constructed on a diving-bell principle. It will consist of a hollow aluminum sphere, about six feet in diameter, hermetically closed and fitted with oxygen supply and breathing apparatus. It will be provided with outlook windows, for the scientist and an assistant.

From the Greek

The word "cemetery" is a derivative of a Greek word which means sleeping place.

Only wealthy people can afford cheap oil, says lubrication expert

One kind of oil is as good as another in the container. It's actual service that makes the difference.

Cheap oil is never worth the price you pay. For it leads you into thinking you are getting proper lubrication for your sewing machine, lawn mower, washer, electric fan, vacuum cleaner and other expensive equipment—when you are not.

If you want to get the best possible service from your household equipment, 3-in-One is the oil to use. This recognized leader is a scientific blend of high grade animal, mineral and vegetable oils and contains properties not possessed by ordinary oil. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. Don't take a chance. Insist on the old reliable 3-in-One. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. They lunch together and recall their school days. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. The love-making progresses rapidly. They make a runaway marriage.

"Not at all," said Will quickly. "But anyhow, we are married. I know this strikes you suddenly, sir, but we just decided in haste, and as we want nothing but your blessing—"

"Be still!" exclaimed papa passionately, and he turned to Ernestine. "Where were you married? By whom?"

Will took the conversation into his own hands with deliberation.

"We went to town about noon, went to the courthouse and got our license, then to a jeweler and bought the ring and waited while it was engraved." Ernestine held up her slim hand, and showed the astonishing gold band on her third finger. "Then we took a taxi out to my mother's house, got her and went to the church in I was reared in, in Avondale, and were married."

"But why this mad haste?" spluttered papa, who was almost incoherent. "Ernestine," turning to his daughter, in renewed determination to have nothing to do with Will, "what's got into you? I am sure you have been under some dreadful influence. I can't understand how you could act this way. I can't believe it."

He was furious, he was undone, but he still had a note of command in his voice. Ernestine felt his strength with terror.

"Papa—" she began, but Will cut in resolutely, so that in spite of papa's determination to talk to Ernestine the situation narrowed itself constantly to papa and Will.

"Ernestine was afraid, sir, that you might try to separate us. My own instinct in the matter was that we should talk this over with you, but I see, now, that she was right. You must understand, sir, that we are married, and your objections are futile." "Ernestine had reason to fear me," papa said in a voice none of them had ever heard from him before. Ernestine felt herself shiver under it. Papa had no intention of considering himself futile.

"She had reason to fear me, and so had you. I suspect your fear was more important than her own. Even if she were a fool, you might have been decent about it. I have no intention whatever of letting her go away from here with you. You'll learn, sir, that there are such things as annuities, even as divorce. Just because she has made one foolish mistake, is no reason why I should let her ruin her whole life. You have behaved very badly, but your behavior ends here and now. Ernestine stays here. You may go, and I will deal with you outside the house."

Ernestine felt that everything was lost, but Will only laughed. If papa were new and strange, so was her young husband, for he seemed to glow, to fill out, to be bigger and stronger.

"Don't be silly," he said. "Ernestine is of age. She married me of her own free will, and if you tried any such stunts, she would say so. Our marriage is entirely legal. It stands before everything else. She is now my wife, and my home is her home, and you can't detain her."

"We'll see," said papa grimly, and then mamma broke in.

"You shouldn't have, Ernestine. You shouldn't have run off and got married, without telling mamma. It's the biggest, the most important thing in your life—and to take such a step without your people knowing it! I can't bear to think you'd go off and be married—and not tell me."

"I'm sorry, mamma," said Ernestine in distress, and papa took things up again. He had made a decision.

"Go to your room, Ernestine," he said in a voice of stern command, "and stay there until I can talk to you. If you ladies will excuse us, we will settle this among ourselves. Do you hear me?" he said sharply, turning his furious eyes upon Ernestine. She faltered, half turned to go in automatic command, for papa had always ruled his home, without much effort, but Will put his hand on her arm.

"Stay here, Ernestine," he said in a low voice, and she paused, undecided, while mamma and Lillian seemed to be grouped together on the other side of the room.

"I can understand your distress, sir," said Will. "I can see just how you feel about this, not knowing me at all and not understanding my motives. But you exceed your authority. If you should detain Ernestine here by force, I have only to go out and get the nearest policeman and come back for her. You can't do it."

There was a moment of incredulous silence, and papa half turned to Loring, in appeal, and Loring said in a low tone, "He's right."

Will followed this advantage swiftly. "After all, what have you against me, except you think I may want Ernestine's money? We have decided to do without that. I'm not a stranger to you. You've known my father for thirty years. You know my people, that they are honorable and decent. There's no reason at all why I shouldn't make any marriage I choose, even with Ernestine. I'm working. I can take care of her."

Papa raised his clenched fist above his head, as though he would strike Will, and Ernestine made a little moan and mamma screamed. But Loring put his hand on papa's arm, and drew him back. And in that moment Lillian went to Ernestine and put her arms around her and kissed her.

"Oh, Lill!" Ernestine cried, and burst into terrible tears. "Papa, papa," she cried, turning from Lillian to her father, and holding out her hands, "don't quarrel with us. I can't bear it. I love Will. I wanted to marry him. Let us go ahead with our own married life, now, but don't quarrel with us."

"It's you who have broken faith," said papa. "Not your mother and I. You've put this stranger before us. You can't have both."

Ernestine was appalled. "You mean that I can't come home?" Papa attained a grim smile.

"That's what I mean," he said, but now mamma broke in hysterically.

"I won't be separated from Ernestine. I won't permit it," she cried, and went to her younger daughter and took her in her arms. "Darling, you can come home as long as mamma lives here. I will see you every day. It's dreadful. It's hard on all of us, and it will be terrible for you. But mamma will not let her little girl go away like this."

"Elaine!" said papa, but she turned to him, as full of anger as he.

"The child is married," she exclaimed. "She may have made a mistake, but if she has, it is only a reason for standing by her. This is my home, as well as yours. I won't be instructed to let my little girl go out friendless. You may do what you like with me, and send me away, too, if you can, but I am going to see Ernestine. I am going to have her here."

Of course papa was helpless, and he said so with a shrug.

"Mamma," said Ernestine, "I am willing to take the responsibility for my marriage. After all, it's I who married Will."

"Not you alone," said mamma vigorously. "The whole family has married him, and we may as well realize it. For nobody marries just one of the Bricelands. We are all going to stand together, always. Papa, we will have to make the best of it. The marriage will have to stand."

Papa would not look at her, nor answer.

"We'll have to go," said Will. "Goodby, darling," said mamma, and embraced her. "I'll see you soon."

"Goodby, papa," Ernestine faltered, but papa held his stubborn attitude.

"I'll have to go upstairs and get some things," murmured Ernestine, as they went into the hall.

Lillian went upstairs with Ernestine. Mamma came out and put her hand on Will's arm.

"Be good to her," she implored. "If you can't take care of her, if she's not happy, let her come back."

"I will, Mrs. Briceland," he said soberly. "I appreciate what you have done."

Mamma wept afresh. "It is hard for her father. He worships her. You must understand him."

Grecian Influence on Culture of Old Rome

Almost as far back as the history of Rome extends Greek influences are to be traced in the development of Roman culture. The Roman people were conservative and slow to cultivate the artistic sense. Rome had little creative genius. In her whole history she did not produce an artist such as Phidias and Praxiteles. The nature of the Roman was unusually practical and idealized power, law and profit. The Romans never created a distinctive style of architecture such as the Greeks. They borrowed their architecture from the Etruscans and the Greeks. The literary life of Rome has a profound effect upon mankind—Cicero with his orations, political and

It is a terrible blow to him. He will come around."

The girls came down the stairs, and after a moment Ernestine and Will were out in the dark street again, with her small dressing case in Will's hands. The family stood about in the living room in stricken silence.

The silence lasted for some moments, then Mrs. Briceland turned to her husband.

"You should never have let her go off like that," she said reproachfully. "What will she do?"

"I had no intention of letting her go, if you hadn't interfered," he exclaimed. "I was only threatening her with the loss of the family, in order to get her to stay here—to gain a little time."

"She wouldn't have done it," said Lillian. "She's too crazy about him. It probably was her idea that they get married first. She meant it. You couldn't have kept her."

"How much do you suppose he earns, on the Sun?" asked mamma, and Loring answered:

"Probably anywhere from twenty-five to forty dollars a week."

At that papa threw up his hands in a gesture of despair and turned to leave the room, but he looked back at his wife darkly.

"If you had stood by me," he said to her, "if we had all stood together, we could have held her here. You went back on me, both you and Lillian. It gave them courage. Now, you can think of her, God knows where, with that upstart." He went into the hall, and mamma followed him, her bright persistent voice coming down the stairs:

"You shouldn't have let them go. We might have kept them both here, and taken care of them. Lewis, you'll have to make up your mind to give in, and get him a better job—"

The voices trailed off, and an upstairs door closed upon them. Grandmother went stiffly out of the room, Lillian began to move about the room, satisfying her need for order by pushing the chairs in place, straightening the pillows and moving the things on the table. Loring stood by the fire, starting into it, his face flushed, one hand opening and closing nervously.

Lillian came and spoke to him in a voice which was already like mamma's.

"I'm sorry you got into this," she said. "It's terrible. How can Ernestine act that way? She's the most haphazard thing. But this is the worst yet. I feel as though she had ruined herself. But you aren't going to be angry with her, are you, Loring?"

"No," he said. "No, I won't be angry with her. Your mother's right. The family must stand by her."

Lillian shuddered a little.

"It seems dreadful to me," she said. "Ernestine out somewhere in Chicago, with that man. I don't see how she can be crazy about him in the first place, and how she could have married him in the second."

Loring reached out his hand and ran his fingers down the crepe sleeve of her dress, caught her fingers and held them in his own.

"Would you do that much," he asked wistfully, "if you cared for a man? Would you defy everything for him?"

"I don't know," said Lillian honestly. "I don't know. I want things nice. I want some plan and arrangement to my life."

"But if the man you cared for was not—eligible," he persisted, "would you marry him anyhow?"

"It's not a fair question," protested Lillian, and then added softly: "I don't know what I would do. Because I've cared for only one man, and he has been eligible in every way. So I can't imagine how I would act under other circumstances."

There was a little silence, and then he said, in a stifled voice:

"Is it I, Lillian?" She looked up at him, and his face was full of suffering. Her own was compassionate.

"Did you care for Ernestine, Loring?" she asked him, but he shook himself quickly.

"No, no!" he exclaimed. "Not—that way. I'm fond of her. She's been like a little sister to me, always. But it's you I care for. It's you I want for my wife. Is it possible that you care for me, Lillian?"

"I always have," she answered simply, and she stared down at her, and again his voice was queer and strained.

"I'm like Ernestine," he said, "what I want is love."

She put up her fair sweet face, and he kissed her placid lips.

"I love you, Loring," she assured him, and he took her roughly into his arms.

"You hurt me," she complained in a moment, and he released her and stood holding her hand gently.

"I want love," he said again with poignancy, and Lillian assured him in her quick bright voice that she loved him.

Protection for Bees Necessary

Exercising to Generate Heat Does Not Improve Wings of Workers.

Every time a bee flaps its wings it is just one more flap nearer bee heaven, for bees cannot replace or repair worn-out tissues like other animals. B. A. Slocum of the New York State College of Agriculture explained recently. Winter protection is necessary for bees because the only way they can keep warm is to form a cluster in the hive, and the bees on the inside of the cluster flap their wings, just as people would wave their arms to generate heat. When the temperature falls below 57 degrees heat must be generated, he says.

Heat Wears Out Bees.

The bees in the cluster fit so tightly that those on the outside act as an insulator, the hairs on their bodies intertwine and incorporate tiny air particles which increase their insulating value. The generation of heat wears out the bees so that they soon become old, and if an excessive amount of heat is needed the colony may die before spring. At least the bees will be old and die more rapidly than they are replaced with young bees, making a condition which beekeepers have called "spring dwindling." It is difficult to get such colonies in shape strong enough for the honey flow.

Packing Boxes Useful.

The remedy, Mr. Slocum suggests, is to protect the hives with packing cases and to provide windbreaks. Many types of packing cases and various insulating materials are satisfactory. Detailed instructions how to pack bees is given in the free Farmers' Bulletin 1012, available at the office of publications at the New York State College of Agriculture.

Properly Housed Fowls Will Prove Profitable

(By M. A. SEATON, Extension Poultryman, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

Poultry profits for the coming year depend mainly on the pullets.

In managing most poultry flocks it is considered advisable to cull the hens to a point where they will comprise about one-fourth to one-third of the flock, and have sufficient pullets to make up the remainder. If a sufficient number of good pullets are available to carry out this plan a successful poultry year should be in sight if good management is practiced. If the pullets have been poorly developed and are small and unthrifty, winter egg production will be low.

Hens will need a well-constructed and properly ventilated house to lay a large number of eggs this winter. If a satisfactory house is not available plans should be under way to remodel or build a new one. It is advisable not to crowd the pullets. Cull and sell part of them. At least three square feet of floor space should be allowed each pullet.

Soy Bean Hay Compared With Alfalfa for Cows

Several years ago the Pennsylvania experiment station concluded a three-year feeding test in which different grades of soy bean hay were compared with alfalfa hay as a roughage for dairy cattle and the results are well worthy a careful study. Soy bean hay is not as easily cured as alfalfa or clover, partly because it is not ready for harvesting till late in the season and partly because it is somewhat coarse and does not dry out as readily as the other legumes mentioned. The result is that the quality of the average soy bean hay crop is usually somewhat below that of the common legumes. It usually produces a smaller tonnage per acre than alfalfa, but yields about as well as clover.

Have Spray Equipment in Order Quite Early

The fruit grower who runs out his spraying equipment from winter quarters in February or early March, inspects it carefully and secures all needed parts and accessories, is planning ahead profitably and doing much to prevent costly delays and failure during the busy spraying season. Much more time may be had for a careful study and consideration of the spraying equipment and its needs for effective spraying work if such matters are given attention during the winter before spring spraying work begins.

Great emphasis should be laid upon seeing whether the spray pump, valves, nozzles, hose and other parts and accessories work properly.

Black Knot Treatment in Plums and Cherries

The only effective treatment for black knot in plum and cherry trees is to cut out and carefully burn all the knots. Destroy entirely any trees that are badly infested. This disease spreads so rapidly that quick work is needed to save clean trees. It is believed that a fungicidal spray, like lime sulphur or bordeaux, at dormant strength before growth starts is a safeguard for the clean trees, but the knots themselves must be burned and careful watch kept during the season to catch any just starting. When handling these knots use canvas gloves, and do not touch the knots or gloves on clean parts of the tree.

Known Only by Tradition Tradition has attached the name of Dismas to the thief who repented on the cross, when the Savior was crucified, and Gestas to the impudent one. Both names are highly improbable.

Culture Club Meets.

The Sanderson culture club met Friday Nov. 21st, at the residence of Mrs. Al Creigh, with Mrs. Creigh and Mussey as hostesses.

The program on the President's views gave those present a better understanding of the social duties of the first lady of the land.

Refreshments were served consisting of hot coffee and mince pie to the following members: Mesdames J. W. McKee, H. R. Laurance, J. Lochausen, Simms Wilkinson, H. D. Johnson, A. D. Brown, Joe F. Brown and A. P. Utterback.

Bridge Party.

Miss Willie Mae Green was hostess to the Cactus bridge club Monday afternoon. In the series of games played, high score was won by Miss Louise White, Mrs. Frank Robertson, second.

A delicious salad course was served to the following: Mesdames Herbert Buchanan, S. C. Bodkin, Harry Dishman, Clyde Harrell, Horace Fletcher, Wallace Henshaw, Frank Robertson, J. C. Stansell, James Mason, S. S. Daggett, Misses Louise White, and Mary Alice Happle. Mrs. J. C. Green assisted her daughter in entertaining.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Clyde Harrell.

Cactus Club

The Cactus bridge club was entertained last Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Horace Fletcher. Pink and white chrysanthemums were used in decorations. High club prizes were awarded Miss Willie Mae Green, first; Miss Louise White, second and Mrs. H. Laurence, high guest.

Club members and guests enjoying the games were Mesdames, Wallace Henshaw, J. C. Stansell, Herbert Buchanan, Clyde Harrell, S. C. Bodkin, Frank Robertson, H. Laurence, J. C. Green, S. S. Daggett, Carol Breeding, James Nance, S. A. Kernel, Prince Dishman, M. A. Kellar, Misses Willie Mae Green and Louise White.

MUSIC CLUB

The Allegro Music Club met at Miss Harrel's music room Saturday, November 15. Earline Ruston was elected secretary of the club at a short business meeting.

Bernice Nichols, who is captain of the Godard band, presided over the entertainment given for the Chopin band.

Piano solos were played by Marie Laura Milam, Erma Lee O'Neal, Earline Ruston, Bess McAdams and Maxine Clatfelter. Violin solos were rendered by Lee Hardgrove and Albert Weigand. Several popular numbers were played on the ukelele by Mary Ferguson.

The members of the Chopin band will give a short program December 13.

Those on the honor roll this month are Albert Weigand, Elizabeth Brown, Erma Lee O'Neal and Bess McAdams.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart
—a masterpiece of Fisher styling

Never has the superiority of Body by Fisher been more strikingly exemplified than in the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six! With the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have achieved in the new Chevrolet an impressive degree of smartness, comfort and luxury.

Inside and out, scores of refinements stamp this car as a masterpiece of modern coachwork. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar form an unusually attractive and distinctive ensemble. Mouldings sweep back in an unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new color combinations lend a new individuality. Interiors, too, are exceptional. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is smartly tailored. Seats are wider and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision. And beautiful new modern fittings lend a final note of charm.

Many mechanical improvements are also evident in this Bigger and Better Six. Among these are a stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a quieter, smoother transmission; and important engine refinements.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display. See it today—drive it! It is the Great American Value!

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels. Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

Blood of Many Races on Island of Corsica

A corkless perfume bottle where the sweet scent of the maquis shrub permeates the atmosphere; where men are lazy and women's heads vie with donkey carts as transports; where modern customs have only trickled a short distance beyond the quays of the larger ports and left the pancake hats, and the stone and mud huts of the natives as they were centuries ago.

Such is Corsica, France's largest Mediterranean island possession, which the French government is fortifying, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

Corsica is about one-half the size of Massachusetts—an area of rugged mountains and verdant valleys peopled by slightly more than 300,000 inhabitants—human remnants of Phoenician, Etruscan, Carthaginian, Roman, Vandal, Goth, Pisan, Genoese and Moorish invaders.

Can I Learn to Fly?

by William R. Nelson

Vertical Banks

IRPLANES and automobiles, as machines of transportation, have many traits in common, the student pilot soon realizes. But they also differ widely. The student who drives a motor car picks up certain phases of flying quickly. Other phases, however, because they are peculiar to flying, are confusing and difficult to grasp.

I encountered one of flying's paradoxes in my lesson on "vertical banks." "In a vertical bank the controls cross," my instructor explained. "The rudder, being in a horizontal instead of a vertical position, serves as the elevator and the elevator becomes the rudder. Remember that."

He took the controls at 3,000 feet and told me to follow through while he showed me the vertical bank maneuver. It was not different from any other bank except that he held the stick over longer and, when the plane's wings were almost vertical, brought the stick to neutral and well back. To level out he moved the stick in the opposite direction and held it there until the plane righted itself.

"Bank over until that wire (meaning a diagonal brace between the wings) is parallel to horizon," he instructed. "Then neutralize the stick and pull it back to hold the ship in the turn. If the nose climbs, push the bottom rudder pedal. Remember you will be on your side. If the nose drops, push top rudder."

I banked over sharply and as the brace wire became parallel with horizon, neutralized the stick and pulled it back toward me. That movement "tightened" the circle, the elevator being in a vertical position, acting as a rudder. To increase the diameter of our circular course I allowed the stick to go slightly forward. As it did so my instructor shouted through the speaking tube:

"Hold the stick firmly. If you increase the size of the turn we will lose altitude. Now try bringing the nose up and down with the rudder pedals."

At first the crossed controls confused me. Seeing the earth on one side and the sky on the other, also bothered. But after a half-hour of practice I had apparently mastered the maneuver sufficiently and my instructor signaled for me to return to the airport.

Taking a Ride

SOLO flying began in earnest after the last lesson, and next I was sent out without a preliminary "check flight" by my instructor. That marked the beginning of another stage in my flying course and my graduation from the ranks of the "dual" students. I, however, did get further instruction.

"What are we going to do today?" I asked as my instructor came in from the field where he had been with another student. "We?" he asked, rather surprised. "You are going to fly I am staying here. There's your plane. Its all ready for you. I'm going to watch from the window here. Now show me some nice, three-point landings."

My heart was pounding slightly as I climbed in alone, looked about to see that all was clear and opened the throttle. I had experienced many thrills since starting the course, but none that gave me more satisfaction than that of my first "all alone" lesson.

The take-off was without incident and as I leveled out at 1,000 feet for the trip around the pattern, I received in the thought that I could make those turns as I pleased without fear of being signaled for them if I chose to stretch the course here and there.

The first landing was good, and I immediately roared away again around and around I flew. Each time I had no trouble with any of the routine maneuvers. After a half dozen turns about the pattern and as many good landings, I decided to fly away from the course for a little ride over the open country.

That decision and the ride that followed put more desire to fly into my blood than anything I had done. To be free to make one's own decisions and to have enough confidence in one's ability to have no fear of trouble; kindled a desire to "fill 'er up with gas and roar away" to some distant place that was difficult to control.

At 70 miles an hour one can cover considerable territory in ten minutes, and from 2,000 feet one can see so much further away that I felt as though I had seen half of the state by the time I returned to the field.

Being away from the "pattern" gave opportunity to "hunt" for the airport as a visiting pilot, a stranger to that locality, would have to do. I found it easily.

Dainty Presents for Friends at Christmas

Hand-Embroidered Gifts

This trio of lamp shade, table scarf and cushion, of heavy natural-colored linen, embroidered in gay wool yarn, emphasizes the vogue for ensemble furnishings in the home. As a Christmas-gift suggestion it scores 100 per cent perfect. The materials are easily available at any fancywork department.

Hamper and Basket Ensembles

The ensemble's the thing! Everything in the household is supposed to match these days—to move in "sets" as it were. A word to the wise Christmas shopper is sufficient. The latest combination to join the ensemble movement is hamper and waste-basket ensemble. The shops are showing adorable lacquered sets flower-decorated so artistically that they are sure to add a beauty touch to any environment.

Screens the Radio Light

Women who like to give hand-painted presents for Christmas are making these radio-light screens by the dozens for their friends. You buy the stand and the screen all ready to paint. You cover the base with sealing-wax paint, smearing it on with a palette knife so as to give it a rough surface. To paint the figures or design hold the pattern (cut from fancy crepe paper or a magazine) back of the mica screen which is semi-transparent, carefully tracing the outline. Then color as per copy or according to fancy with the liquid transparent sealing wax.

Miniature Spinning Wheels

The spinning wheel, as an article of decoration, has come back. Miniature ones are designed to set upon the what-not so as to create an atmosphere of quaintness, such as interior decorators are so keen about these days. A timely Yuletide suggestion, this.

Lesson for November 30

ZACCHAEUS THE PUBLICAN, A BUSINESS MAN CONVERTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Thought Jesus Would Not Care.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Righted His Wrongs.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Religion Changes One's Life.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Making Business Christian.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as the stronghold of the Canaanites, which was miraculously delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith (Josh. 6), and also for the faith of Rahab which saved her from destruction with the city (Heb. 11:30, 31). It was thus noted as a city where faith and unbelief played against each other. It was fitting that Jesus should pass through Jericho. Faith and unbelief again were manifested. Two notorious sinners, Rahab and Zacchaeus, were saved at Jericho.

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

1. His object (v. 3).
He sought to see who Jesus was. Though perhaps prompted by curiosity, he eagerly sought Jesus.

2. His difficulties (vv. 2, 3).

(1) His infamous business (v. 2). He was a tax collector for the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then, since he was rich, it was evident that he had practiced extortion in collecting the taxes. Many men and women have a hard time in coming to Christ because of their questionable business relations.

(2) His shortness of stature (v. 3). He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the people they had thrust him aside.

3. His persistence (v. 4).

He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he was determined should be made up by the height of the tree. Though Zacchaeus' legs were too short to enable him to see Jesus they were long enough to run past the crowd and enable him to climb the tree.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case. When desire is stirred up in a heart to see Jesus, Jesus is seeking that one. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Zacchaeus got more than he expected. Jesus called him by name. He did not utter a word which would humiliate Zacchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt accordingly with him. All souls who earnestly seek Jesus shall be found of him. How wonderful his grace, that regardless of one's past life, Jesus will receive him as a friend and enter into fellowship with him! Zacchaeus quickly responded. He came down and with joy received Jesus.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he had reached the ground.

1. What the crowd said (v. 7).
They said just what they say today when sinners come to Christ. They call to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ, saying that he had gone to be a guest of this notorious extortioner, the tax collector. That for which they reproached Jesus was his glory. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10).

2. What Zacchaeus said (v. 8).

His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life began with resolution and restitution. He dedicated half of his goods to the poor. The man who a little while ago was a grafter was now a generous giver. His conversion got hold of his pocketbook. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongfully exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the past of a sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will seek to right all wrongs, be they unkind words or unrighteous deeds. Sorrow for sin is not enough when restitution is possible.

3. What Jesus said (vv. 9, 10).
"Today is salvation come to thy house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvation is a present reality when one receives Christ.

Hope for "Hasbeens" in Work of Rehabilitation

Once old shoes functioned better than any other articles to cast after weddingers to bring them good luck. Those days for disabled shoes are gone. Now they are turned into perfume by a by-products company of Los Angeles.

Four and a half million worn-out shoes of the Angelinos are converted into chemicals annually. And 350,000,000 more are imported from other parts of the country.

We have met some old shoes yet in service that would seem to baffle any perfume maker. It must take considerable reformation and de-bunking for them to qualify.

New Orleans has been the port of old rags from Europe for a long time and we can grasp the process that makes them into paper. It is within our understanding to conceive how an old wreck of a car may be smashed by trip-hammers into bales of old iron for the furnace. It does stretch the imagination to bear that superannated flywheels, pause alarm clocks, umbrella frames and old bed springs may be transmuted into something worth while. However, it is not without the range of thought.

But the possibilities in old shoes makes us ready to believe almost anything. We are now beginning to dream that some one will find a place in the economy of things for jay-walkers, politicians and neekers. Hope for every frazzled old bum is born.—Los Angeles Times.

Wisdom adorns riches, and shad-ows poverty.—Socrates.

No more COLIC pains ... give Castoria

ACRY in the night may be the first warning that baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. When there's need of gentle regulation. Every child loves the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is usually all that's needed to right the irregularities of older, growing children. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. It's prescribed by doctors!

Engineers' Costly Error
There were two instances recently of bridges which had to be torn down and rebuilt before they were completed owing to defective wire in the cables. They were the Detroit-Windsor International bridge and the Mount Hope bridge connecting the island on which stands Newport, R. I., with the mainland. In the construction a new processed steel wire, heat-treated, was used and found defective. In both cases it had to be removed and replaced by the cold-drawn wire. The defects were not discovered until the cables were completed and considerable progress had been made in the erection of the steel work, but in time to save a collapse.

EAGLES LOSE TO SUL ROSS

The Sanderson high school Eagles played the Sul Ross Lobos at Alpine last Saturday, Nov. 22nd. The Eagles were defeated by a score of 21 to 8. Coach Knight used his entire squad of men in the game. These men on the team included Ray Qualtrough, James Daniels, O. T. Schupbach, Archie Milam, Gus Kercheville, Andrew Henry, Jack Laughlin, Frank Roby, Hugh Ruston, and William Lea. The local boys plan to contest the college boys again sometime in the near future on their own floor.

A number of enthusiastic fans including the pep squad and several faculty members made the trip from here to see the game.

The gymnasium will be opened at an early date and some of the best teams of the country will play here this year against the local basket ball team.
