AGING RIVERS CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

Traffic Here At Standstill When Highway and Bridges Are Swept Away; Several Drowned at Del Rio

To Hold 3-Day Reunion-Rodeo Stamford, 2, 3, 4

Stamford, June 20.—Horses known for their aerial gymnastics rather than fleetness will be selected for the wild horse race, which will be a new feature of the rodeo at the 6th annual Texas Cowboy Reunion to be held here July 2, 3, and 4.

The race will be included in the program of each afternoon and night performance, but not at the morning matinees. Four wild horses will be placed in the bucking chutes, bareback, but with rope and halter. At the starting signal the horses will be released from the chutes and each contestant and helper must saddle his wild bronc and ride the length of the arena and return. The one crossing the finish line first wins. As the horses are going to do more bucking than running the outcome of each race will be difficult to predict. Only four contestants will be allowed to enter at each performance.

One of the favorite events of the rodeo is the special calf-roping contest for cowboys over 55 years of age. Ed Powers, 57, of Breckenridge, won the coveted saddle in this contest last year. The rodeo, which is the main attraction around which the Reunion program of entertainment is built, is not staged by professional performers, but is limited to cowboys actually employed on the ranch of Texas and adjoining states. Besides the special features, the rodeo includes the usual cowboy sports of calf roping, wild cow milking, steer riding and bronc busting. Day money totalling $1,600 will be awarded in these events, besides the handsome hand made saddles which go to the champions in each contest.

CAR TURNS OVER

While enroute to the Davis mountains last Sunday, the Chevrolet of James Daniels turned over at a point two miles from Fort Davis. The windshield was shattered and the top crushed. One of the tires went flat, according to James, and the car struck a soft shoulder as he was trying to bring the car to a stop. With him were his brother, Leo, and Jack Hayre. All were badly shaken up, and James and Jack received several cuts, none serious.

$90 TO BE GIVEN AWAY

As L. R. Dorsey was not present on Monday night to claim the $75 that was to have been given away free by the Princess Theatre, this sum will be added to the $15 next Monday night, making a total of $90 to be given away provided the person whose name is called is present at the time.

Topperwein Puts On Real Show In Free, Fancy, and Deadly Shooting

A large crowd of interested spectators was out last Friday to witness the exhibition shooting that was put on just east of the ball park by "Ad" Topperwein, world's foremost fancy shot. The exhibition, which was free of charge, was put on by the Kerr Mercantile company, the Sanderson Mercantile company, Mommson, Dunnegan, Ryan company of El Paso and the Winchester Repeating Arms company.

The gun wizard put on a program that was full of variety and exciting from the opening to the finish. One of the stunts that Topperwein pulled off was the setting of two targets about forty feet apart. Placing his self half way between them facing one of the targets and with his back to the other, he broke both targets at the same time. He fired at the target behind by shooting over his Passenger and mail service was resumed as far east as Del Rio Sunday, after being delayed since last Thursday night due to heavy rains in Del Rio and Uvalde, which caused washouts to the Southern Pacific tracks and the bridges near Uvalde.

Heavy rains falling in Del Rio last Thursday afternoon and night caused the San Felipe creek, that winds its way through the city to go on a rampage, destroying much property and taking the lives of several persons. Damages to property and the lives lost were Mexicans who lived along the banks of the creek. Following the disaster 68 Mexican families are in need of help and are being taken care of by the American Red Cross.

Heavy rains near Uvalde caused the Nueces river to come down on a terrific flood destroying everything in its path. Both the railroad and highway bridges that span the river were washed out and considerable damage done to the country as the water swept down leaving the river channel and spreading everywhere.

Highway traffic over Highway 90 east of Del Rio to Uvalde has been stopped as most of the road in the vicinity of Cline has been washed out and the bridge over the Nueces being washed out. The only way that tourists may reach San Antonio is by going over Highway 85 to Eagle Pass, or going north of Del Rio over Highway 41 through Carta Valley and Rocksprings to Kerrville.

Extra crews were rushed by the Southern Pacific officials to Uvalde and by Monday of this week the river had receded to an extent that work was begun on repairing the road bed and rebuilding the bridge so that train service may be restored at the earliest possible time.

All Southern Pacific freight and passenger trains were being routed over the Texas & Pacific out of El Paso and a majority of the railroad men here are now working over that line having gone to El Paso last week end to work. Men working in the local yards were laid off Tuesday for the remainder of the week.

Very little rain has fallen in Sanderson, only a good shower falling last Sunday afternoon. However, the rain was heavier between here and Dryden with a total of more than three inches in places causing the Sanderson canyon to run east of here. In the vicinity of Mofetta so heavy was the rain and the hail, that water ran over the railroad and highway holding up traffic for an hour or more.

Due to a heavy rain west of here the Sanderson canyon running through here came down on a big rise last Saturday night.

Mrs. W. J. Ferguson and daughter, Mary, and son, Billy, left the first of the week for Kerrville where Billy may take a summer course at Schreiner Institute.

Night Performances Will Be Feature Of Rodeo At Pecos

On Buying Securities

No. 1 of a Series

Who is he?
Can I depend upon his word?
Is he registered and licensed?

These are questions that you should have answered before buying stocks, bonds, oil leases, royalty, or any other form of investment securities from a salesman—particularly when the salesman is a stranger. That's the advice of Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann, administrator and chief enforcement officer of Texas' new Securities Act.

Designed to curb the fraudulent and crooked seller of securities, the new law requires every security dealer, agent and salesman to be registered with the State. Any citizen may determine for himself if the salesman is registered by writing to the Secretary of State. The records are open to the public.

The State does not propose to guarantee or endorse any stock, bond or other security. However, salesmen may be held strictly accountable for representations made in the sale of securities. The important thing, according to Secretary Mann is to be sure the salesman is registered!

35 Wild and Woolly Steers Brought From Mexico

Pecos, June 20.—A carload of 35 tough, mean longhorn steers, brought from the interior of Old Mexico, arrived here this week for use in the 6th annual rodeo of the American Legion, to be held on July 3 and 4.

The steer are wiry, cantankerous, and capable of making the cowboys who rope and ride in this year's show extend themselves to the limit.

Over $2000 will be given away in prizes to winners in the rodeo, and 50 or 60 top rodeo performers—the best in the Southwest—are expected to attend.

Pecos will be host to a crowd of visitors which, American Legion officials say, will outnumber all previous performances.

One of the best arranged and most convenient rodeo arenas in this section was being completed this week, with immense flood lights for night shows. Other preparations were in full swing to insure a first-class celebration.

C. F. Stavley was a Del Rio business visitor for several days this week.

Beautification Work Well Under Way In County; Enthusiastic Meeting Held

The regular monthly meeting of the Sanderson Centennial beautification club was held last Friday afternoon at the courthouse with Mrs. James Kerr, chairman, presiding.

Mrs. Lowe, corresponding secretary, read a letter from Mrs. H. H. Johnson, division chairman, of Pecos, in which she complimented the club on its fine initial work, that stating, among other things, that the club send her a report on any historical or interesting spot in the county and, if they were of real interest, the highway commission would place markers along the highway to guide tourists to these points. Mrs. Johnson also suggested that the west go in for desert gardens, using native shrubs and wild flowers and cacti.

Much progress in the beautification work was reported since the May meeting. Mrs. Joe Kerr, chairman of beautification around public buildings, reported having done considerable work around the court house and the school buildings. Seneca and ocella shrubs and zennias have been planted at both places.

Mrs. A. E. Creigh, chairman of improvement at city entrances, told of the planting of zennias, queen's wreath and cactus on the grounds of the Community Public Service company plant.

It was moved and seconded that the seneca and ocella be adopted as the native shrub for Terrell county.

The club went on record and approved the motion that a request be made to the commissioners' court asking that one day each month be set aside as a "clean up" day for Sanderson, using the county trucks to carry away all trash, rubbish, cans, etc. that may accumulate during the month.

It was moved and seconded that the chairman of the publicity committee be requested to run an article in the paper every week soliciting seeds, shrubs, cacti, etc. which could be saved or procured by the citizens for use by the club in this beautification work.

Mrs. Jerry Bell was appointed vice chairman of the club for Dryden.

The members present contributed $1.60 to the funds of the club, making a balance on hand of $3.35.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Friday, July 12th.

SP Traffic Tieup Causes Enforced Vacation of Seven

Seven employees of the Southern Pacific railway in this city are taking an enforced vacation until train traffic returns to normal. The men, employed in the local yards, who were laid off Tuesday of this week, were Carlton White, John Clark, Horace Fletcher, W. C. Durbin, and three Mexicans.

New Ruling Made For Enlisting in C. C. C. Camps

Selection of Texas boys for enrollment in CCC camps will be confined hereafter strictly to young men whose families are on the relief rolls, it has been announced by Neal E. Guy, enrollment supervisor for the state.

Guy said federal officials had rescinded all instructions which formerly provided for enrollment of worthy unemployed boys and so-called "border-line" cases.

"Henceforth we may admit to CCC camps only applicants who can make a proper allotment to dependents. It has been ordered that selectees for enrollment beginning June 15 must in every case represent families on relief rolls. This means that in the approaching enrollment period the 12,000 young Texans taken into the camps should represent 12,000 families removed from the relief rolls."

Counties unable to supply their quotas for relief families will not be permitted to select non-relief applicants but will notify the state enrollment officer, who will fill the quota from a county which has more eligible candidates than its quotas will allow it to choose.

First phase of the enrollment beginning about June 17 will affect only a very few counties, since only 929 boys will be accepted at that time. The second period, July 1 to August 31, will be governed by completion of the new camps now under construction.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS
JULIAN CAPERS, JR.

No political tempest, by a gentle zephyr blew the Panhandle-Plains region the young Democrats their annual convention and Deal came in for some universal discussion, in con- versal discussion, in con- sidered things. The meeting highly publicized in advance. Alford took the center of the stage with a heated defense of his rights. Elliott Roosevelt, the President and, by mar- vels of Fort Worth, defended the and the president with boyish loyalty of a devoted who who thinks he is help- ful.

There was really no issue between the governor and the Gov. Alford, as a good and a capable politician, in the Constitution. El- lingsworth, as a loyal Ameri- can and the son of a great does likewise. The only place anywhere from this except from a handful of influence, has been in the court's interpretation of the document. The nine old gentlemen, who with predecessors have been sat- isfied the American people pre- tending for 150 years with character of their work, will as continue to be entrusted the job.

A mysterious business has the conduct of the investi- gation of the E. Texas oil fields special house committee, by Rep. Augustin Celeya, Pennington, the past week, committee gathered at Long- held many conferences be- hind closed doors with prospec- tive sessions and daily long statements to newspa- pers. The gist of all these state- ments was that "a very serious apparently exists, and committee cannot do very about it with only the $1000 granted by the legislature investigation." Broad have been cast adrift that larger appropriation has been granted the prob- ers. There have also been sugges- tions committee might utilize donated funds to extend notes. Nobody knows ex- who might be interested to keep alive a house new probe to put up money. No member of this com- mittee with the possible excep- tion Latham of Longview, advised in Austin signs of a knowledge of the oil. Chances are when the is gone, no more will be of the oil investigation.

F. Thomas, president of the defunct Texas Centennial commission, did some political on his own behalf, ac- cording to confidential reports in his recent trip to Wash- ington in support of the federal Centennial. It is reported that Thomas, "rogotten man" when the commission of control was set, has succeeded in lin- ing influence in the national which make him a very candidate for the job of Centennial commissioner, 1900 a year. Thomas is have the support of his in-law, Senator Morris for the post.

General Bill McCraw, to put some actual cash state treasury under the hot oil seizure law, a bit too hastily in ap- proach of a bid of a barrel for the first of aures at Waco. He drew Col. E. O. PRETTY UP—CLEAN UP

One organization, formed about a month ago, seems to mean business. Oftentimes, in the smaller towns, the natives awake from a Rip Van Winkle slumber, organize something, appoint a long list of officials, then taper to an invisible point. This does not seem to case with the Centennial Beautification unit in Terrell county. Possibly the reason can be found in the fact that a woman is at the head and the different committees are liberally sprinkled with women of the town and county. Organization was quickly followed by action, and the center of attack was the park adjoining the waterworks of the Community Public Service company. With whole hearted cooperation of the company, a real start has been made. Trees, flowers and shrubs were planted, and these are beginning to show up nicely. As a centerpiece, a fish pond was installed, enhancing the charm of the park. A cactus garden is the latest plan. Of course this is only a start. Other available vantage points will have consideration, as will the borders of that part of Highway 90 through the county. The work, however, should not be shifted wholly to those who seem willing to assume responsibilities imposed. Every citizen of Sanderson can, and should help, in this work, by the simple process of cleaning up and keeping free of trash all private property.

Centennial year will soon be here. Texas will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its independence. Tourists by the millions will visit the state—all parts of it. It's our opportunity to sell Texas to the world. In the last analysis, this means that we want them to leave with a good impression of our people in every section of the State.

DON'T BE A SUCKER

Millions of dollars are lost each year through speculation. And the sad part of it is, those who lost the money could ill afford to do so. Few of us who don't, at times, have a yen to get-rich-quick. While in this mood a glib salesman can work miracles, and our money "has went."

Speculation is legitimate: but not everyone can afford it. With a surplus of ready cash one may take a flyer in the market. But those of us who speculate with our hard-earned savings, which may be needed at any hour, the practice is all wrong, and the gold paved road, more often than not, is merely the glitter of a forlorn hope.

From the office of Secretary of State Gerald Mann, the Times received some good advice along this line, and we are passing it to our readers. You'll find the first of a series of three articles on page one of this issue, under the heading "On Buying Securities."

Gerald, you remember, was one of Texas' greatest passers in football; in these articles are passes which our readers should receive, tucked under their arms and held for home when tempted to gamble with the family budget.

TOO LITTLE OR TOO BIG?

He was just a dirty little street urchin, bedraggled, grimy and ill-kept. When we saw him the other day he was selling newspapers on a downtown Colorado Springs business corner.

There are lots of dirty little street urchins in Colorado Springs and elsewhere. One sees them every day—sees them and feels sorry for them. But we noticed this young chap in particular—noticed him and felt sorry to a degree more than normal—for there was something about him that particularly attracted our attention. It was the fact that he was wearing a regulation O. D. army blouse.

—yes a soldier's blouse was hanging about the upper part of his body. It struck him half way to the knees. Only his fingers protruded from the lengthy sleeves. The blouse flapped in the cold breezes—flapped as though it were on a scarecrow in some farmer's cornfield. It was much too big for the little newsie. He was lost in it.

We looked at the boy. We wondered. We became sorry all over again. Hard times these that force American youngsters and American grownups, too, to wear castoff clothing too large for them—or too small, or too ragged. Not enough to wear in a land that produces too much. No wonder we were sorry.

The youth was a pitiful figure. And we thought of the lad, of the blouse that was too big, and of war—for the blouse was a garment of war. Weren't the very papers that this lad of fourteen or fifteen years carrying—weren't they telling of war clouds hovering over Europe? Yes—of war, and threats of war. Dictators, leaders, politicians, common citizens—most everyone talked of the possibilities of war. Many feared the race of armaments would end in conflict—maybe not now, perhaps, not within the next two or three years; but in the not too far distant future.

War looms. That seems certain. By this time we had passed by the newsboy with the army blouse that was too big. But we thought of him again. Two or three or four or five years from now—would he be by that time have grown into the garment? A few years and it would fit him? No, we couldn't figure it that way.

Another thought came. The blouse isn't too big for American youth—whether their ages be fifteen, sixteen, twenty or twenty-five. The garment of war is too little for the boys of this nation or any other. The youth of today have outgrown war blouses. They are the ones who are too big—too big for the tunics of war; too big for war.

Twenty years ago there were war clouds in Europe. And war came—the most devastating conflict in all history. America entered that last war to make the world safe for democracy. That war failed, as all wars fail. With the clouds of war again hovering over the European horizon, it behooves America, Europe and all nations to shun armed conflict that the world may be made safe this time for democracy's most precious possession: Youth, youth that is too big for war.—B. Lee Pace in Colorado Springs (Colo.) Farm News.

Grantee, containing 640 acres of land in Terrell County, Texas, did enter into an agreement with Plaintiff F. B. Swift for said Plaintiff to advance said Defendant the sum of $1,374.00, for the purchase of said lands; that said Plaintiff did advance to said Defendant the said sum of $1,374.00, which said sum was used and employed by Defendant for the purchase of the land last above described, and that by reason of said fact, a vendor's lien was created and came into being in favor of said Plaintiff to secure the payment of said sum, together with all interest and attorney's fees due, and thereby said Plaintiff became and is the owner and holder of a superior and paramount title to said land. That in order to evidence said indebtedness the said Defendants, did make, execute and deliver to said Plaintiff their promissory note in the sum of $1,374.00 dated May 13th, 1929, due five years after date, bearing interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum, interest payable semi-annually as it accrues and providing for the usual default clauses and attorney's fees. Swift their note in the sum of $3,000.00 due four years after date, bearing eight per cent interest per annum payable semi-annually. And on the same date said Defendants did make, execute and deliver to Bertha E. Jones their note in the sum of $1,000.00, due, payable and conditioned as the above note payable to F. B. Swift. That in order to secure the payment of said notes above, the said Defendants did convey the lands hereinbefore described to Walter F. Jones, Trustee, for the use and benefit of the Plaintiffs. That by reason thereof, a valid and subsisting deed of trust and mortgage lien was created and came into existence to secure the payment of said notes. That each of said notes are now long past due and unpaid, and the Defendants though often requested have failed and refused to pay the same or any part thereof. Plaintiffs are entitled to judgment for the principal, interest and attorney's fees due upon said notes, and to a foreclosure of said liens. That long subsequent to the execution of each and all of said notes, contracts, agreements and negotiations said J. Calvin Stansell became of unsound mind, and the Defendant John C. Watkins was duly appointed Guardian of his Estate, and if said proceedings are valid then said Defendant is such Guardian, that Plaintiffs duly prepared and presented their claim for said respective sums to said Guardian, verified in all things required by law, the said Guardian failed to act upon said claim, that such action by said Guardian constitutes in law a rejection of said claim, and Plaintiffs filed suit within ninety days from date of rejection to establish said claim. That the other Defendants hereto are claiming and asserting some character of interest in said lands, but which interest is inferior, junior and subordinate to the interest and claim of Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs pray for judgment recovering the superior title and possession of the lands above described; and in the alternative for foreclosure of their liens in satisfaction of the amounts due them; that the Defendant J. Calvin Stansell has never been legally adjudged to be a person of unsound mind, and that all probate proceeding with respect to the Estate of said Defendant are void; for judgment for their debt, damages, attorney's fees, interest and costs of suit; and in the alternative if it should be held that Plaintiffs are not entitled to recover the title and possession of the lands above described, and that the Guardianship Proceedings in the Estate of J. Calvin Stansell are valid, that they have judgment establishing their said claims, principal, interest and attorney's fees, and for foreclosure of their said liens in satisfaction thereof, and same be certified to the County Court of Terrell County, Texas, for observance, all as is provided by law, for all costs of suit, and for all other and further relief, general, special, legal or equitable that they may be entitled to.

Slam Bang Action In This Tale Of The Frozen North

Screen fans who want slam-bang action, nerve-tingling thrills and pulse-quickening combat that has a primitive background of the Hudson's Bay country, should not fail to attend the Princess Theatre tonight and tomorrow night, June 21 and 22, where James Oliver Curwood's "Wilderness Mail," starring Kermit Maynard, will be the feature attraction.

For sheer pictorial beauty, coupled with intense drama, and climaxed with dramatic situations that will lift patrons from their seats, "Wilderness Mail" is without a peer in contemporary screen melodrama.

In this remarkable picture Kermit Maynard portrays two roles—that of a Royal Northwest Mounted Police corporal, who is foully tortured, and then cold bloodedly slain, and his brother, a civilian, who exacts vengeance from his brother's assassins.

Helpful Household Hints

By BETTY WEBSTER

Most of us take forks quite for granted when they are placed before us at the table, but should one be missing or should the wrong one be used, then the pronged implements become of great import.

The most imposing member of the fork family is the dinner fork which is used only for the meat course. The most important member is the luncheon fork which is used at all meals in some way. The tea fork is another useful one for, although small, the hostess can find infinite use for it.

Uses for Other Forks The other important forks are those used for salad, fish, canapes, ice cream, and those which accompany the spoon for serving the salads the spoon for general serving and the carving knife.

Forks, since the old, perplexing array has been abandoned, are most interesting to buy, arrange and use. Take stock of yours some time.

Randolph Scott and Kay Johnson in "Village Tale"

Randolph Scott, the young and handsome screen actor, who recently graduated from "Westerns" and Kay Johnson, lovely actress, playing one of the strongest roles of her screen career, are joined as the romantic leads in RKO Radio's "Village Tale," adapted from Phil Stong's best seller.

Scott and Miss Johnson find themselves on two sides of a triangle in "Village Tale," but theirs are the "right angles" of a situation often found in small towns of America.

Replete with robust humor, sparkling with honest laughter, and high-lighted by some of the fiercest hand-to-hand fighting ever seen in pictures, "Village Tale" is a story designed to appeal to audiences everywhere as an authentic picture of rural American life.

In the cast with Scott and Miss Johnson are, among others, Robt. Barrat, Janet Beecher, Edward Ellis and Dorothy Burgess.

"Village Tale" comes to the Princess Theatre Monday night, June 24, for one night only.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapter

Sonya, taken prisoner because El Diablo thinks she has stumbled on their secret operation in narcotics, is brought before the bandit chief, whom she defies. While the mock trial is in progress her wild lover, Starr Stone, is led before El Diablo, a prisoner, accused of telling Sonya about the business he is engaged in. This they deny. Stone is sentenced to be crucified. The lovers make a soul covenant, and calmly prepare for the end. But in Sonya's case the wily El Capitan presents her to the sleek Manuel. With a horrible fate hanging over her the old senora escorts her to her room.

CHAPTER XIII

Love's Sacrifice

When Sonya again opened her eyes it was dark in the deep-walled room, and she lay in a sort of stupor of peace, gathering her faculties, which seemed to have been scattered to the four winds. And then suddenly the values of life dropped into their appointed places, like the brilliant colors in a kaleidoscope, and she knew where she was and what had happened.

El Capitan had spoken and she was still a prisoner, the property of the dapper Manuel, with predatory eyes—laughing thin lips. And Starr Stone was gone, oh, heavens! Gone to that ghastly fate which lurked in the poignant words, "you to the vultures." The wild blue eyes had darkened and changed under the mandates of life, the long hands with their tender touch, the lips, so warm upon her own.

And presently the senora came padding softly to the door on heavy feet, for she was old and excellently fed, and entered to her kindly ministrations. Sonya whirled to face her, her dark eyes burning in the shadows. "Senora," she said desperately, "have pity on me! Can you not help me? A knife, senora—with my next meal—left on the tray? In the name of that holy Woman you worship, please, senora!"

"I cannot, child," she answered gently. "Manuel would kill me. Come, let me wash your sweet nice body with fresh water. And there is perfume, and a woman's clothes to dress you in—a charlet dress, and golden shoes for your feet. Tonight you rest—Manuel's orders—but tomorrow you wear these things for him. You must forget!"

Forget! Forget—the vultures and the wind! Forget the stars, the soft winds blowing, the creak of leather, and Starr Stone's hand on hers laid on the pommel.

"If you have within you, senora, any remnant of a woman's pity for another woman lost to all the light of life, leave me to fight it out alone. Leave me now."

For a long time the other stood and watched her, calculating, then nodded and turned away.

"I have not forgotten—for 30 years," she cried cryptically. "You shall have your night, querida."

The sound of the bolt falling echoed in the empty passage. And Sonya Savarin, who had guarded life so well, now stood at bay, holding her breath, pondering desperately how she might destroy it.

If only she had her bags! Her little case of instruments! But she had nothing—and Starr Stone was dying now, perhaps, or would tomorrow!

There was nothing left to do, no foes to face with lifted head, no schemes of hope to make, no one whom she might coax to help her. And so, at last, Sonya having exhausted all her resources, scant at best in this terrible situation, made ready to bow in resignation. She knelt by the ancient bed, which no doubt had seen tragedies before, and folding her hands addressed her soul to its Master in sorrow and humility.

How long she knelt so she never afterward could recall. Sometimes she prayed, weeping, for that other soul which had so grievously mispent its days, and these were fervent prayers, abased and agonized before the heavenly throne, begging for that mercy of the eleventh hour which has been divinely promised; and sometimes for Serge and Lila and little Babs, even for Darkness. For herself she asked scant favor. It had always been so with her. Service to her fellow men, comfort for all suffering things, had been her passionate aim in life.

Of herself she thought last and least; of Starr Stone most. If only they had met in those early days of which he spoke, before that one misstep had put him in Diablo's power, made him an outlaw, a border renegade. When the sweetness, the kindness in him had been paramount. Before sin and wrong had put the leopard spots upon him.

But the spots were changed at last, when it was too late. To his face he had repudiated El Capitan, signed his own death warrant, for anyone leaving the service of this monstrous bandit put himself "on the spot" as truly as any in more modern places.

And he had done it deliberately to prove to her that he was at last changed—even in death. The courage which shone in his face at that repudiation had been magnificent. He knew, none better, the fate of El Diablo's double-crossers, and he double-crossed him high-handedly and with supreme finality.

"Oh, Starr!" wept Sonya with her forehead on her clasped hands—"oh, my man of all men! My one and only love!"

In the warm dark silence the heart in her seemed to melt in anguish, the tides of life to run swiftly out.

For her it was the ebb of finite things, the last low hour before the end. In a dull coma of hopelessness, her face swollen with weeping, she sank lower and lower against the great bed, her lips apart, her black head disheveled.

And into this last deep abyss there dropped a tiny sound.

The outside bolt, huge and very heavy, slipped slowly in its slot.

Instinctively the girls shrank back against the bed.

Manuel, her master!

She stifled the scream on her open mouth, her hand across it.

And then a voice, whispering into the darkness, a breath of a voice as lovely as music, said, "Senorita!"

"Si," said Sonya, gasping, "I am here."

The was the sound of a moving form, and Concha knelt carefully beside her. Sonya reached out and touched her incredibly, but the girl drew sharply from the contact.

"Attend," she said "if you are brave—are you so, senorita?" "I am very brave," said Sonya, simply.

"Then listen. You I hate from my soul's bottom—I could strike you now with my two hands—but there is—another, whom I love. Oh, Mary, mother! Love!" she said as if to her inward self. She stopped a moment, then went on:

"If you can follow me without a sound there is—a hope. Can you walk so?"

"Without a sound," said Sonya, and bent forward to unlace her boots, swiftly she took them off. The Mexican girl then reached out and took her by the sleeve. That hatred in her would not let her touch her flesh. Softly, step

New Chevrolet Assembly Plant Opens in Baltimore

Governmental, state and civic officials joined with the principal executives of General Motors Corporation in the formal opening of the new 80,000-car-a-year Chevrolet assembly plant in Baltimore recently. The new plant (center) was dedicated with impressive ceremonies (lower left), and Chevrolet, Fisher Body and General Motors officials were guests of the Baltimore Association of Commerce at a formal banquet in the evening. W. E. Haller, vice president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, is shown (standing) with Maryland's Governor, W. E. Nice, and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors (upper left). M. E. Coyne, president and general manager of Chevrolet, is pictured in the upper right photo with Senator Millard Tydings (left) and Mayor H. W. Jackson, of Baltimore (right). Lower right shows the first motor car built in that city.

by step, the two young things then crossed the silent room, listened at the partly opened door, and slid through it. In the long dark passage they listened again then went south along the wall toward a door which stood ajar.

Through this—and the night sky was above them, the tall cottonwoods against the stars. Like wraiths of the gloom they entered the grove, passed through it, and came out on the open landing field.

Before the little hangar Sonya saw in the starlight the ghostly shape of a little gray ship. They made toward it swiftly, and as they reached its protecting wing a man stepped out from the hangar behind, a tall man, naked to the waist, his head bare, his feet also, a man who was prepared for "spreading up" on the morrow. Starr Stone drew them both to the gray ship's side.

"Sonya!" he whispered, "Oh, Sonya!" Then, "Listen. We have one chance in a million. This plane is still warm from a trip Manuel took this afternoon. I heard it come in about dark."

"Yes," said Sonya, "so did I." "It is fueled. They are always so. Thank God—and Concha—we are here. I have just disabled the other one. I think, though not as permanently as I wished. We have got to take this one chance, Sonya. It's our only one. Get in quick!"

With his hands under her elbows Sonya went up along the side, dropped into the little seat, felt swiftly for the safety belt.

"Safe?" the man whispered to her tensely.

"Safe," she answered, pulling the buckle tight. Starr Stone turned to Concha and take her in his arms.

"Concha," he said softly, but loud enough for Sonya to hear the whispered words: "I leave thee. It is fate. But never will I forget thee, nor this thing which you have done. Always while I live I will remember. Adios, little one."

And, bending his tall head, he kissed her on the lips.

"Ready," he said and, pushing the girl beyond the plane's wing tip, he caught the propeller blade. Up and down he swung it, one, two, three, then a fourth vehement time, and came lithely up and into the pilot's seat as the roar of the catching engine thundered into the night.

And Sonya Savarin, looking down with wide drawn eyes, had seen, just as they surged to the start, a long red spurt of flame where Concha stood in the shadows, heard, above the roar of the motor, a faint, sharp crack of a shot.

"Oh, God!" she cried, a sob in her throat. "Oh, God! Conchita!" Conchita who, saving her lover, yet could not save him apart from his, had made the last great sacrifice for love itself.

The crowd, now pouring on the now lighted field, could wreak no vengeance on her, for Conchita, too, was gone among the stars.

B. P. FRANKLIN DIES

Word was received here early Thursday morning by Mrs. Fred Garrison telling of the death in El Paso on Wednesday night of B. P. Franklin, a former resident of Sanderson.

Mr. Franklin was a resident of this city for many years, being employed as brakeman on the Southern Pacific. After leaving here he went to Big Spring and worked for the Texas & Pacific.

The body was taken to Big Spring Thursday for burial. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katie Lee Franklin, a daughter, Beverley; two sons, Alton and Rogers, as well as several brothers and sisters.

RATTLE OF THE RAIL

Individual railroad items are rather scarce this week, due to the fact that a large number of the T. & N. O. train and engine out of El Paso temporarily, while traffic is being diverted via the T&P. due to washouts east of Del Rio.

J. C. Harris, master mechanic, was here from El Paso Wednesday.

Conductor J. H. Hayre and brakemen H. D. Williams and W. H. Savage made an emergency trip to El Paso on freight Monday.

Fireman J. H. Acosta, who has been assigned to a freight run in El Paso, owing to washouts, is working out of El Paso.

Engineer W. H. Wehner and Fireman S. Causey brought stub No. 2 down from El Paso Monday.

Engineer J. C. Green and Fireman W. C. Cargile took stub No. 1 to El Paso Monday, Engineer Green returning here Wednesday morning.

Freight Brakeman J. A. Barnett on the Del Rio division, has been quite sick for a number of days here this week.

tunity to get in their offers before a sale is made. The constitutionality of the new state seizure law will be tested soon before a three judge federal court in Tyler, as three test cases have been filed by oil operators who object to such drastic measures to suppress the movement of illegal oil.

Private advices here indicate that war chest fillers of both wet and dry factions in the forthcoming August submission, are finding their task more difficult than they anticipated. The dries raised $2500 in a burst of enthusiasm at their Dallas organization meeting, and promised an early starting of their campaign. They have raised very little additional since, it is reported here. Wet fund-raisers, too, are having their difficulties. The folks seem to have pronounced opinions, some for, and some against, repeal of the constitutional amendment. They're willing to vote their convictions—but they've been slow to see why they should pay professional crusaders on either side for the privilege. Outside aid, on which the wets were counting, has been slow to come through, with distillers selling all the liquor they can manufacture in territory already open to them. It has slowed up the Texas campaign considerably.

Mrs. A. F. Thrift was called to Fort Stockton Monday night to be with her mother, Mrs. R. W. Hirst, who was taken suddenly ill. Mr. Thrift accompanied her to that city and upon his return Tuesday stated that her mother was better, but Mrs. Thrift would remain with her for several days.

Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Doty, accompanied by the granddaughter, Virginia Mae Doty, returned Sunday night from San Antonio, where they had been the past week due to the illness of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Henry Doty.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Casey were in town Wednesday from their ranch west of Longfellow and stated that on last Saturday they had nearly two inches of rain. Their pastures are getting green and the cattle are fattening following the several good rains that have fallen on the place.

William Lea, who left week before last for Berea, Ky., where he planned to enter the Berea college for summer work, returned home on Tuesday of this week, as he failed to get his application in on time for enrollment during the summer course.
