Judgment Favors Smith Heirs in Suit for Oil Land

San Angelo, Texas, January 7. Total judgment recommended by H. L. McCune, master in chancery at El Paso, for Mrs. Viola May Ramsey of Phoenix, was $27,819.83, growing out of the Coley-Cornell contest. The recommendation to be presented to Judge Chas. Boynton of the federal court at El Paso sets up a judgment against James Cornell, attorney, of $27,819.83, and $3,830 against Cornell and W. Colquitt, Marfa, jointly and severally. Colquitt was former receiver of the Mrs. W. A. Monte-Smith estate, which is the basis of litigation. McCune also recommended that the American Surety company pay judgment against Colquitt $10,000 attorney fees and also $60.92 for expenses. He held that the Douglass Oil company is an innocent purchaser of the land and therefore there should be no judgment against it. Cornell, former attorney-in-chance for Mrs. Seeley and Mrs. Ramsey, two of the Monroe heirs, and others, were sued by Mrs. Seeley and Mrs. Ramsey for two-thirds interest in 21,000 acres of land in the Yates pool in Pecos county, the same interest in approximately $300,000 cash, and for accounting. Claim to interest in the oil land was denied. Should McCune's recommendation that Judge Boynton hold his jurisdiction of the case because Jerry Monroe, former administrator, was not made a party to the suit, be followed, McCune said none of the judgments he found will stand, because the whole case will go out.

Sanderson Pupils Offered Cash Prize of $25 for Best Essay on History of Terrell County

The Centennial Committee of Terrell County were pleased to receive prize money of $25 from Mrs. Octavia Downie Smith, a former resident of Terrell County, and to be awarded for the best historical essay of Terrell County. The Centennial Committee of this county were requested to award this cash prize upon the grading of the essay, considering both the literary style and the thoroughness with which the various facts dealing with the formation of the county and the part played in its formation by its early citizens are expressed.

The committee had not thought it necessary to fix any rule as to the length of the essay, but does require that the subject matter be accurate, and that it truly portrays the background and development of the county not only from the date of its organization as a county, but also such development as took place in the county when it formed a part of other counties.

The committee feels the contest should be one to stimulate interest among the students. The contest is open to any and all grade and high school students.

The date of the opening of this contest will be January 15, and in order to furnish ample time for source work on the part of contestants and the careful preparation of subject matter, the Committee thought that the contest should be kept open until the 15th day of April, at which time the papers should be filed with the Centennial Committee, who will have them graded and make the award. Contestants are requested to register by name and they will be given a number by Superintendent R. D. Holt.

THERE MUST BE SOMETHING TO IT

Perhaps you take no stock in the supernatural. It matters not.

But here's something to mull over:

Last week the Times carried an account of an airplane mishap of our esteemed townsman, Ben Estes. It was not due to any fault of Ben's. The gas line broke, the fluid leaked out, and Ben was left hanging 3800 feet over the jagged crags of our scenic hills. It would test the ingenuity of the ablest aviator to make a safe landing, but Ben did just that.

Now the funny part of the whole thing—or should we say the weird thing.

Mrs. Bozarth Brown, office stenographer (who does not chew gum) related her dream. She saw Ben crash, but added that Ben escaped unhurt.

Hardly had she finished when Tom Waugh, engineer for the company and Ben's teammate, entered and asked if the force had heard from Ben. He added: "I dreamed last night that he had crashed, had his ship damaged, but he was unhurt."

Now, gentle readers, you figure it out.

THE CENTENNIAL AND TEXANS

On January 1, 1936, Texas entered what is termed the Centennial year, and in most cities and communities preparation are in the making for an Exposition of world-wide importance.

That is, in many cities and communities, Sanderson not included.

Perhaps that statement should be modified to some extent. For several months a handful of our women have been making a valiant effort to interest our citizenship in the importance of the event. They're still carrying on, though discouraged at the meagre response to their plea for a campaign of beautification—a tidying up and cleaning up—in such manner as to impress the visitors to Texas during the Exposition.

We hear much about the heroes of a hundred years ago; their praises are still being sung in every school room in the state. We wonder at the sparse mention of the pioneer women of that day. Perhaps, as in the present era, their light was hid under a bushel—or minimized by the more physical feats of mere man.

But statements by all the great men of history invariably include a tribute to womanhood—a gentle and loving mother, a faithful and cooperating wife.

In this respect history has not changed a bit. In all battles for social and civic righteousness you will find women in the van, giving of time and effort unostentatiously.

In the movement for a city that will attract strangers within our gates on their visit to Texas cities during the Centennial, in Sanderson we find a few women struggling with a program that should interest every citizen, male and female. A duty we owe to ourselves and to the visitors who travel this way.

A meeting of this Beautification Club is scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon, at the courthouse; the county chairman, Mrs. Jim Kerr, is anxious that all interested citizens attend. Any way you can help will be appreciated; opinions will be gratefully received. The movement is not a whim of those taking the lead. They feel it is a duty they owe to the county and the State as their contribution to this exposition, honoring the founders of the Lone Star State, and demonstrating the State's progress during the century.

Won't you be on hand?

An exchange has this to say of the dollar: "A dollar is something the average business man enjoys more in anticipation than in realization. It is the price of a day's work for some men and the price of a drink for others. It is what the good wife frequently needs, but seldom has. It is the power that makes or unmakes men. It is the hardest thing to get and the easiest thing to get rid of known to mankind. It is a blessing in a small measure and a curse in many instances. No man ever had more than he wanted and no man ever will. A dollar is a delusion and all of us are chasing the delusion."

The small town merchant who succeeds is the one who has what the people want and lets them know about it. People are busy today. They will not take time to shop where merchants insist on keeping their wares and prices a secret. The busy stores are those who send to their customers' living rooms the home newspaper containing the store's advertisement of products and prices. Advertising has become the greatest service in time-saver and money-saver to the busy housewife. She knows from the advertising just where she can buy what she wants at a price she can afford to pay. She does her shopping on a third of her original shopping time.

Cars may come and cars may go, but the time payments seem to go on forever.

THE SUPREME COURT

"No scandal can touch Caesar's wife," or words to that effect, was an axiom of the days when Rome practically ruled the world.

Until recent months a phrase somewhat similar was quoted in considering decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. But the high tribunal is losing its grip. Recent decisions on certain phases of the New Deal has many wondering if, after all, these nine men are not approachable or, to say the least, victims of partisan politics.

In their decision annulling the N. R. A. very little sentiment was lost. Its administration was impossible, and hardly a citizen who could not recite violation after violation of its so-called code. But, after all, it was an experiment, the sole purpose being to cut down unemployment. It had its good phases as well as its bad. But, on the whole, it was legislation that while it favored many industries in their fight against unfair competition, wrought havoc with many others. The blue bird was killed—peace to his ashes!

But the court's decision in the matter of the AAA is something different. True, to many this legislation looked like a program of destructiveness—and in a way it was just that. What else could be done when the purchasing power of the country was shot all to pieces. Had farmers and stock raisers enacted a full program of crop producing and livestock breeding without intervention of the reduction and purchasing program of the government, the country would have experienced a real panic.

Already protests from the farmers are reaching Washington in regard to the AAA decision. It is being taken as an attempt to discredit the administration—the President. Many accuse him of sidetracking the platform on which he was elected. True, he did in several instances, but in the face of two of the hardest years this country has ever faced when we experienced an unprecedented drought and sandstorm threatened to choke the livestock and farming industries. But there is one plank he steadfastly stood upon, the most important one in the whole platform—that was DO SOMETHING!

The squawks today come wholly from the rich, when the man in the ranks begins to howl then will it be time enough to hunt for something amiss with the administration.

Did you ever stop to think that your "good enough" work never won any prizes? Winners of races, prize awards, of high honors in any field are the men who do their best from start to finish—who concentrate on excelling? The world's worthwhile rewards only go to those who do their jobs better than most people.

Advice is cheap—experience is costly. By the same token experience is a better teacher than advice. Yet advice, gained from practical experience, is worth considering. The only trouble is that the experience of one man might not be the experience of another under exactly similar circumstances. So much depends on the qualities of men. Don't laugh at advice—nor yet accept it unconditionally. It may be good or bad, and you alone are the one responsible for weighing its merits as it applies to your particular case.

Whatever your plans, circumstances will limit them.

It is just as well to expect the unexpected.

It is not surprising to discover that the coming-up generation is so explosive, when this generation of babies have been nursed on gasoline.

It is true that "half a loaf is better than no bread." But when our loaf consists half of taxes, as is now the case, it gives thoughtful people something to chew on.

Nobody's Business

By JULIAN CAPERS, Jr.

Austin, Texas.—The Fergusonian school of practical politics, as practiced by Mr. James E. Ferguson of the Bell county Ferguson, demands men, rather than issues, in order to function efficiently. For more than a year the corporation and special interest lobby, with Jim Ferguson as chief lobbyist, has been striving to relieve the corporations and special interests of all state taxes by passage of a sales tax and abolishing state ad valorem taxes. The need for funds to pay old age pensions is the lever which Mr. Ferguson has utilized recently in his effort to lift the tax burden off the corporations and place it upon the backs of those who buy the necessities of life. Mr. James V. Allred, head man of the Wichita county Allred clan, has so far succeeded signally in making a complete mess of Mr. Ferguson's tax scheme. Mr. Ferguson, whose shrewd political mind never hesitates to recognize defeat when it is necessary, has conceded that on the basis of the sales tax issue, he's been worse bottled up than the Stanford Indians had Bobby Wilson.

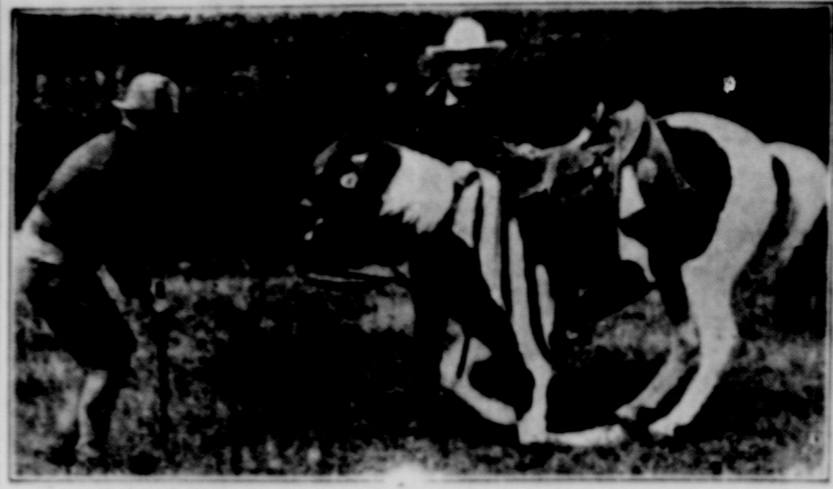

So Mr. Ferguson has changed his strategy. He has entered State Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton in the governor's race, opposing Mr. Allred. Mr. Sanderford frankly admits in his platform that he favors abolition of state ad valorem taxes and a 3 per cent sales tax in its stead. Mr. Sanderford emerged from the obscurity of an automobile agency in Belton during the hey-day of Mr. Ferguson's power in that county, as a state senator. Then, two years ago, he managed the campaign of Charlie McDonald, upon whom Mr. Ferguson sought to drop his mantle as the state political head man. But Mr. Ferguson believes that Senator Sanderford, who is fairly accomplished as a disciple of the Ferguson "pour it on" technique, may be able to divert public attention from the sales tax issue to Mr. Allred's habit of attending barbecues, rodeos, county fairs and other politico-social events at federal work-relief funds to prohibition; or to his difficulty in persuading a recalcitrant legislature to do the things he tells it to do: or to anything, in fact, but the fact that every man who buys a loaf of bread or a bottle of milk for his children must pay a sales tax on these articles, and every hamburger stand in the state must become a tax collector, under Mr. Ferguson's sales tax scheme.

All of these things explain Mr. Sanderford's entry into the 1936 gubernatorial sweepstakes. A minor consideration in the selection of the Belton senator to make the race is the fact that he is in extreme political difficulty in his own district, due to his having selected the wrong side in a local highway routing controversy in Belton county, which has made his re-election to the senate doubtful. His unquestioned loyalty to Mr. Ferguson—in advocating in the senate all the measures that Mr. Ferguson has sponsored, is another important factor. If the special interests whom Mr. Ferguson represents are willing to put up important money the governor's race may be very interesting this year in Texas. Political observers here recall that Mr. Allred, while fully capable of discussing issues in language that the voters understand, is also quite gifted in the gentle art of "pouring it on." So if the interested parties put up the necessary cash for Mr. Sanderford to make a serious campaign, the gentleman from Belton probably will have a very busy summer.

Out of the welter of public works projects designed to create employment, there has come general recognition in Texas that the policy of joint state-federal expenditure for public roads and highways, thru the state highway commission and the federal bureau of public roads, has resulted in lasting benefit to the state and its communities, and steady employment for a larger group of needy Texans than any other classification. The record compares most favorably with wasteful expenditure upon many local projects in the "leaf raking" category, with a $40,000,000 highway program actively under way on January 1. Far sighted citizens thruout the state have recently been urging upon the highway commission and the Texas congressional delegation, careful consideration in the future work relief plans, of a liberal allotment of federal work-relief funds to Texas for 1936-37, when work of
