Elsmore, Slayer of Bynum Shaw, Draws 25 Years

Thomas J. Elsmore, who was tried in Fort Stockton last week for the fatal shooting of Bynum Shaw at Sheffield, on March 17, this year, was found guilty and assessed 25 years in the penitentiary by a jury that deliberated less than an hour after receiving the charge from the court Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Shaw at one time ranched in this county and was well and favorably known here.

The following report of the trial was taken from the Fort Stockton Pioneer:

State's witnesses testified that Elsmore was armed earlier in the day on which Shaw lost his life, and that Shaw was shot as he stood in front of the Sandel Mercantile company talking with Will Monroe and C. C. Canon, ranchman. Shaw, a trucking contractor, was unarmed at the time. Eye witnesses testified that Elsmore emerged from the pool hall, a gun in each hand, and shot once high, as he crossed the street, that Shaw ran behind a pickup truck of Mr. Monroe as other shots were fired, and that Elsmore reached thru the cab to fire his final shot.

Dr. James C. Sharp testified that Shaw's body bore three bullet wounds and one slight scalp wound, a slight one on fingers of the right hand, and a wound above the right breast from which the bullet ranged downward and caused death. Shaw died in Mr. Monroe's car while being taken to Iraan.

Defense witnesses testified as to hard feelings between the two men, and to threats Shaw made on several occasions against Elsmore. In their arguments, defense attorneys appealed to the jury on the ground that Elsmore had been the victim of repeated threats and persecution and that he believed his own safety was endangered.

Trial of the case required nearly four days. A day and a half was consumed in choosing witnesses. The state's evidence was presented in a half day, while most of Wednesday was devoted to hearing of defense witnesses.

Hart Johnson assisted District Attorney Weaver H. Baker in the prosecution, while Judge W. A. Wright, Cliff and W. W. Tupper, all of San Angelo, were defense lawyers.

State Tax Board Sets Rate at 62c

The automatic tax board at a meeting in Austin Tuesday, set the state property tax rate at 62 cents on the $100 valuation, being the same as the rate set last year.

The general revenue fund was set at 35 cents and Confederate pensions at 7 cents, both being the maximum rates set by the Texas constitution. Both of these funds show large deficits.

The available school rate was set at 20 cents, the same as last year, which is below the constitutional limit.

At their regular meeting held in June, the Terrell county commissioners set the county tax rate at $1.57 on the $100 valuation, the same as it was last year.

Lamb Shipments During Past Week Unusually Heavy

Livestock shipments from this section has been unusually heavy during the past week.

More than 2,000 head of lambs were shipped from the Dryden pens last Tuesday by J. H. Fisher of Del Rio, who recently contracted the lambs from various ranchmen in this section. The lambs were consigned to the Fort Worth market, some will be sent to feed pens for fattening, while 900 head were sold to a buyer. The lambs were purchased from Bursey, who is ranching on the Dyer place leased from Bert Rose and from Joe Kerr.

Russell Menzies shipped several carloads of lambs to market during the last few weeks. Last Friday he shipped two carloads from here consigned to the Fort Worth market.

H. C. Goldwire is another rancher who recently shipped lambs from here.

All lambs were in good condition and weighed from 559 to 78 pounds it was reported.

THIS WEEK IN Texas History

WEEK OF AUGUST 2

1823—On August 4 Stephen F. Austin and Baron de Bastrop arrived at Sylvester Castleman's and the settlements on the Colorado river. In a proclamation issued by Bastrop he stated his position as commissioner and gave authority to Austin as supreme civil, judicial and military officer until constitutional order could be devised.

1832—A battle was fought on August 2 at Nacogdoches between the Mexicans under Col. Piedras, and the Texans under Col. Bullock. The refusal of Piedras, the commander of the garrison at Nacogdoches, to favor the constitution of 1824 led to the battle. He and his 310 men were taken prisoners.

1836—On August 4 Stephen F. Austin wrote a letter to General Rusk in which he said that he consented to be a candidate for the presidency "for only one reason, which is that I believe I can be of material service in procuring the annexation of Texas to the United States."—Compiled by TS CW, CIA).

New Agent for Texas Company Assumes Charge

R. M. Crosby of Del Rio, who for the past year has had the local agency for Texaco products, on Monday of this week sold his interests in Sanderson to B. H. Gifford of Asherton, Texas, Mr. Gifford taking charge of the business immediately.

Mr. Gifford is well experienced in this line of work and for the past five years has been working for the Texas Company at Asherton, and comes to Sanderson very highly recommended.

Dan B. Sloan, who has been looking after the agency here will continue to make Sanderson his home, being in the employ of Mr. Gifford.

We extend Mr. Gifford a hearty welcome to Sanderson.

O. T. Shurley of Anthony, N. M., spent the week end at the Joe F. Brown ranch with his mother, Mrs. M. J. Shurley.

The commission allotted the sum of $239,619.34 to the maintenance department for light asphalt surfacing on more than 200 miles.

The commission issued an order prohibiting sale of articles on highway rights-of-way.

Louis-Schmeling Fight Pictures at Princess Tonight

The thrilling Max Schmeling-Joe Luis fight which took place in New York recently, will be shown on the screen of the Princess Theatre here tonight and Saturday.

The film shows every minute of the entire twelve rounds, blow by blow, and the outstanding incidents are shown in slow motion, enabling you to see exactly how the fight ended after the powerful German worn down his dusky opponent by repeated thrusts of his right hand.

In addition to the fight film, a complete program with a comedy and the feature picture "The Invisible Ray," will be shown at the regular prices.

WINFIELD ALL SMILES
H. L. Winfield, of Ft. Stockton, successful candidate for the office of senator of the 29th district, was a visitor in Sanderson Wednesday and was accompanied by Mrs. Winfield. "Heinie" explained that while he couldn't see and thank Sanderson people in person, he was deeply grateful for the fine support accorded him in Terrell.

BREAKS ARM
Coon Chandler of Dryden, who usually is a performer in rodeo arenas, will have to be content as a mere spectator at the current Sanderson show. While practicing steer riding Wednesday afternoon Coon and the steer fell, and the result was a broken left arm.

SHERIFF WINS ON RECOUNT
In Ward county Sheriff Irby Dyer was evidently ousted from office by 26 votes. He called for a recount and won by 57 votes. The miscue was in the Grandfalls voting precinct where ballots had been declared "mutilated."

Star Performers on Hand; Auspicious Opening Points to Best Show Staged

47th Annual Meet Starts at Skillman Grove August 18

Fort Davis, Aug. 4.—The 47th annual session of the "Cowboys" campmeeting of the Davis mountains, the Boys Campmeeting Association, is due to open at Skillman Grove, 17 miles from here, August 18, and continue 1 week.

The religious association, incorporated and owning a square mile of land, beautifully wooded, in the heart of the mountains, is composed of four denominations. These denominations, with their preachers for this year, are: Baptist, Rev. R. L. Day of Big Spring; Disciple, Rev. L. D. Anderson of Fort Worth; Methodist, Rev. W. H. Mansfield of El Paso; Presbyterian, Rev. J. H. Burma, of Sherman.

Burma has preached at the meeting 25 years, and Anderson for many years, but this will be the first year for Mansfield and Day.

The campmeeting was founded in 1889 by Dr. W. B. Bloys, a Presbyterian missionary to the frontier cow country, and a gathering has been held every year since. The first gatherings were primitive, preaching being under an oak tree that still stands. Now there are many permanent cottages, a tabernacle, an electric light plant, plumbing, piped water. Nothing is bought or sold on the grounds. Water, fuel, lights and camping space are free. There are camp kitchens which visitors may "throw in" with for the term of their stay.

The purpose of the meeting, as outlined by Rev. R. L. Irving, D. D., Presbyterian pastor at Fort Davis and superintendent of the association, are for "social, recreational, moral and religious benefits, to place emphasis upon spiritual needs, values and possibilities, and to prepare for better, higher, richer and more useful living." And he added that all who are in sympathy with these aims are invited to attend.

Those attending, it was pointed out, should bring cool weather wraps and clothing, as nights are sometimes almost cold at this altitude of 6,000 feet above the sea.

Local Bakery Sold By Ware to Ft. Stockton Man

A. Ware, who for the past 20 months operated the Sanderson bakery, disposed of his interests this week to Frank McSpedden of Fort Stockton, who will take active charge of the business Monday. Mr. McSpedden was born and reared in Fort Stockton, and has had several years experience in the bakery business, being employed in a shop in that city. He comes to Sanderson highly recommended. Mrs. McSpedden and two children will join him here the first of next week.

Mr. Ware and family will leave next week for Goldthwaite where he will engage in the ranching business. The Wares have made many warm friendships during their residence here, and it is with deep regret that these friends now say goodbye.

Mrs. W. T. Shurley and daughters returned to their home in Uvalde, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Brown and Mrs. M. J. Shurley, mother of Mrs. Brown. Walter Thomas Shurley and Mary Sue Mayberry, who had visited at the Brown ranch, returned to Uvalde with the Shurleys.

They are slaves who fear to speak for the fallen and the weak.—Lowell.

That Sanderson's second annual rodeo would be a success was evidenced Wednesday evening when contestants and visitors from surrounding counties began to arrive for the two-day celebration, again under the direction of "Shorty" Robertson and "Son" Turner.

It was about the first time in several years that accommodation were taxed to care for the arrivals, although many of them carried their old reliable bed rolls.

Keen Competition Assured
Among the early arrivals Wednesday were some of this section's star performers. Registering here were the following: Tom Taylor of Sonora, Earl Sellers of Del Rio, Dee Harrison and Raymond Quigg of Vinagaron, Ted Powers of Coleman, Walden Poage of Stiles, Jim and Clay Espy of Fort Davis, Bill Nix of Rankin. Several have brought race horses and it is expected that some good contests will be pulled on the quarter mile track west of town.

Of course Doc Turk is on hand, and it is a certainty that the rodeo will not close without Doc arranging for at least one roping contest.

Big Entry List
According to the promoters, the list of entrants is much larger than was expected, and extra help was needed at headquarters in the Kerr Hotel to register performers.

Plenty of stock is on hand for the 2-day show, all in good shape, and performers and spectators are guaranteed their money's worth. In "Scarface Al Capone" and old "Bronco Pete" the promoters have two of the wildest, wooliest cayuses that ever packed leather, and there should be thrills and spills galore when the vaqueros attempt to tame this pair.

All entrance fees will be turned back to the performers on a percentage basis in all events, there being day money and finals. In addition to the purses a fine saddle will be given for the best 2-day average in calf roping. Thru courtesy of Kerr Mercantile Co., three pairs of the famous Levi cowboy pants will be given: One pair to winner of calf roping first day, one pair to winner of bronc riding, and one pair to the roper making best two-day average in steer breakaway.

Formal opening of the second annual rodeo was marked by a typical western parade, with the cowboys and cowgirls in colorful regalia selected for these special events. Starting at 1 p. m., the parade was through Sanderson's main streets, thence to the American Legion field, where the rodeo was officially opened.

Winners in First Day's Events

Calf Roping—Andy Bode, Vinagaron, 13.1; Tom Taylor, San Angelo, 14.2; Charlie Gregory of Sanderson, 15.1.

Steer Breakaway—Clay Espy of Ft. Davis, 3 secs.; Jack McCutcheon, Ft. Davis, 4.1; Walter Babb, of Langtry, 4.4.

Saddle Bronc Riding—Dan Utley of Salt Lake City, Utaah, 1st; Ernie Barnett, Del Rio, 2nd; and Charlie Ferris, Cheyenne, Wyo., 3rd place.

Andy Bode, by winning the 1st day calf roping, was awarded a pair of Levi's cowboy pants.

For first place in saddle bronc riding Dan Utley also was given a pair of Levi cowboy pants.

The two latter prizes were given by Kerr Mercantile Co. Spectators were kept informed of all events, winners and time by the public speaking device, which was operated by Curtis Bishop of San Antonio. This feature was made possible through the cooperation of Sanderson merchants and business men.

The first day's attendance was far in excess of that on opening day one year ago.

Ford Visitors See This Display

Outlined against a curtain of white-hot sparks, the workmen pictured in this photograph in the Ford assembly plant at Dallas are engaged in electric butt welding, an operation in manufacture of the Ford V-8 which thrills visitors, who, from elevated walks constructed especially for them, may see the manufacturing and assembly processes, either before or after visiting the Ford Exposition building.

PROGRESS MARCHES ON

Items of Interest From Towns in the Southwest

ALPINE—Interest in Brewster county's Centennial exhibit is exceeding even the expectations of the local committee. The Alpine Avalanche states. Most of the exhibits were opened to the public last Saturday morning and will be on display until the end of August.

ELDORADO—The $50,000 bond issue, submitted to the voters of Eldorado last Tuesday for the purpose of financing a city waterworks system, carried by a large majority, the Eldorado Success reports.

FLORESVILLE—A new industry has been developed in Wilson county, or rather a new money crop, the Floresville Chronicle-Journal states in its news column last week, when, on the first of last week a solid carload of popcorn was shipped out. It is expected that two or three more carloads will be shipped from that county, which is not bad for the first year's start on a commercial basis.

FORT DAVIS—Plans are being made for a definite program of entertainment for the Texas Editorial association when it holds its convention October 22-24, by the towns of Fort Davis, Alpine and Marfa. The three towns will act as hosts to the Texas editors, the Dispatch announces.

SONORA—A map in color showing every ranch homestead in Sutton county was recently completed by Rena Glen Shurley, a student in Sonora high school. According to the news story appearing in the Devil's River News, Miss Shurley began the map as a mere summer project to while away the time of a few vacation days, but the drawing of the map proved far more fascinating—and far more of a job—than Rena Glen thought was possible.

Style in Clothes is Matter of Figure

Denton.—Are you wearing the right type of clothes? So many women give little consideration to the styles they wear, except whether or not they are fashionable. They think nothing of the design in relation to their respective figures. A tall, slender person is blessed with a willowly appearance. She can get away with long trains, sweeping shoulder drapes, and can look perfectly stunning in huge fur coats or slim suits that boast large fur collars. The short person should never try to wear these items. They'll make her look dumpty and will cut what little height she has. Her evening dresses should give a swaying motion when walking, and should be short enough so that a tiny part of the slipper will show, or otherwise she will give the appearance of being stuck to the floor.

Breaking the line of dresses is the best way designers have to give your figure the style needed. Some use peplums if the line is to be broken at the waist, others use capes of varying lengths to suit individual preference; girls at the Texas State College for Women (CIA) suggest tunics.

Skirt lengths should be adjusted to the individual figure and legs. Even if everyone is wearing her dresses 11 inches from the floor this season, you certainly shouldn't do so if that length exposes the fattest part of the calf. It will mar the entire effect of your costume.

Arms and neck should also be taken into consideration when discussing types of clothes suited to individuals. If you have a short neck, wear only the simplest, and flattest necklines. Sleeves should be governed by the proportions of the arms.

The party had reached Colorado, where Miller attempts to steal his passengers' luggage and expense money, but is frustrated by Hal. Out of gratitude the girl's attitude toward him softens, they really become acquainted. Kerrigan congratulates Hal as they walk toward the restaurant.

He followed Hal into the lunch-room with all the embarrassed friendliness of a whipped hound. Relief didn't at once come to the atmosphere with Hal's entrance. Crack's narrow look at Hal's face was uncertain, though one hand indolently jostled the golf ball. And Barry—Hal laughed at himself that this thing was to be used against her; and he barely kept himself from looking at her showing her his sincere forgetful anger. He smiled amiably at Mrs. Pulsipher saying "What? Not started eating yet?" "No," she said, as if weariness had come to her in the short time he'd been gone; "I—we were wondering—"

Her look went in timorous question to Miller, then back to Hal; "We were just—just waiting for you," she said. "I wish you hadn't," Hal said gently. "Miller and I've just been arranging a sort of transfer; he's taking my place and I'm taking his." He added: "I've got the fares."

He saw Mrs. Pulsipher believe and recover. The nun's head was up and her gentle eyes on Hal's in something like proud gratitude, as if he had foreseen and spared her humiliation. Pulsipher gave a series of quick, single coughs, looked pleased and hopeful once more; and Crack leaned away from the counter, his close-set eyes basking on Hal's in their own speculative laziness. And Hal turned his back on Barry, wondering why the devil he had to start trembling now that it was all over. He prayed he would stop it before Barry noticed it, he felt her watching him.

Kerrigan came close to his side as the others moved back toward the tables. "He tried it, 'ey?" His tone was judicial, but his brown eyes above tough, florid cheeks, were nimble with some sort of special laughter.

Hal looked at him frankly and humorously quizzical. "Yes, the louse, he answered. "What's the joke?"

"I was wondering how long you would keep from looking at her," Kerrigan said.

Hal gave a tight, sheepish smile and let his look answer Kerrigan. "Just wanted to gather myself a little and make the first one right," he said.

Kerrigan nodded brief commendation. "You've got old Spot-landing where he won't try this again."

"Mm," said Hal, gathering up his change. "Got his money and his papers, and the keys. Got an idea about what we might do, too. Like to ask you later."

Without any definite demonstration Kerrigan welcomed the "we," "Good," he said. "Hungry?"

"Yes," said Hal, remembering that he was. "You?"

"Yes."

Every one including Miller was seated at one of the big, white-enameled tables when they finally started back.

"Gathered yourself?" Kerrigan said without looking at him.

"Guess so," said Hal, smiling. "Go sit by her then," said Kerrigan.

ever significance her eyes might show him. But there was no special significance, only deliberate interest, as if she really wanted to know why not. And he had a new idea, exciting for its simplicity. He watched her an instant longer, then let ingenuous smiling dissolve all his formality. "I'll tell you exactly why," he said, leaning a little forward. "Because I didn't think Miller had the wit to try what he did. Because I should have stood there like a wooden Indian and let him get away with it if you hadn't looked at me the way you did. There. But I ask you please not to look at me that way any more if you can help it, because it's rotten for my temper."

Her lips parted further over bright teeth, and there was nothing of defense left in her look. And after he had involuntarily felt the compliment in her candid pleasure, he realized how beautifully that leasured light behind her eyes—free of coquetry, traced with reticent interest—suited the soft, clear composure of her face.

"That's all damned honest of you," she said.

"Aren't you used to it—honestly?" said Hal.

She dropped her eyes, closed her lips, but she was still smiling when she looked up again. There was nothing conspicuous or dramatic about her saying: "No—not especially. But that doesn't stop my liking it."

"I'm glad" he said. "That makes it easy to be honest again. Honesty is my curse—one of them."

Her smile, and the light behind it, slowly disappeared. She watched him a moment, not thinking of what he'd said. "I like . . ." she began, and then the waitress' arm drove between them, her fingers stabbing an item on the bill of fare that Barry held. "Cornbeef is delicious; veal chops is out."

"Out where?" said Hal.

"Veal chops is finished," she said.

Barry moved the card so he could look at it, too, her eyes on it, but uninterested. Hal glanced up quickly—across and down the table. Crack wasn't watching them; but Hal knew he had been.

The hotel couldn't take them all, and Mrs. Pulsipher was certain it would be too dear any way—but down the road they found cabins; the 75c sign convinced Mrs. Pulsipher and the "Showers" sign convinced Hal. Pairing the sign was easy; the Pulsiphers in one cabin, Barry and Sister Anastasia for another, then Hal and Kerrigan, with Miller left to double with Crack. Miller started to his bed at once, peeling off his coat awkwardly as he went.

"Miller?" Hal called after him. The man turned, grinning sleepy cleverness which Hal hoped was merely his continued attempt at ingratiating. "Bags," Hal said.

"Ain't gonna need 'em jus' for one night," he said. "I don't need mine."

"Get 'em out," said Hal; and Miller did, still grinning.

Hal finally made the shower, and the water that fell on him was cool and pristine and good, like delicious rain. The flow of his shower suddenly slackened as the sound of raining began in the next compartment beyond a partition that didn't bother to reach the top of the ceiling. He heard a short breath—of pleasure and eagerness; and then Barry's near-husky voice quietly said "O, d—n it!"

Hal gave a laugh of pleasure. "Can I help?" he said.

"Where are you?" she said.

"Next door. What's happened?"

"I've walked into this b—this so-and-so shower with my darned wrist watch on."

"Ah, cry-making," said Hal. "Sorry."

"You don't sound like it, but thanks just the same. Gosh, isn't it good—the water?"

"Beautiful," he said sincerely. "Beautiful. As beautiful as—as—"

"As cool water running over you after a hot day in an old car with seven people and a dog?"

"Where's the dog?"

"Here—having a shower too. He loves showers."

Hal chuckled. "I'd like to see—I'd like—Well, yes."

"Good," said Barry; "I'm glad."

For a moment she said nothing under the cool showering of the water. Then curiously, "What is a snob?"

"What do you want—an epigram?"

"No. I want to know what you say a snob is."

"A snob," he said, thinking, "a snob is what some envious people call some one who minds his own business and only cultivates people he likes."

"Who made that up?"

"I did."

Her tone wasn't flippant, merely interested: "To fit yourself?"

"N'ho," Hal laughed. "Why?"

"Just wondered. Some times today you were what I thought a snob might be. You weren't so darned nice to the Pulsiphers and they were ready to be nice to you. You didn't let down for Kerrigan till you saw he wasn't going to run after you. And—"

"I wasn't asking anybody to run after me," said Hal. "I don't think I'd like it. And, what else?"

"And you made me mad."

"But I was—I wasn't trying not to. You were making me mad, even before you looked at me in there, where we had dinner."

"Ah! How?"

"Want it honest or pretty?"

"Whichever you like," she said, carelessly.

"Guess which it is then," said Hal. "I thought you were too sure of your looks—wondering all the time which of you'd have to keep from getting fresh. That made me mad."

"Because you wanted me to be pleased and surprised when you told me about my looks? Because you didn't want it made hard to get fresh?"

"Then I wasn't wrong. We can start all over again."

"All over," she said. Her shower stopped and Hal's came strong again. Then she made a squeak of horror.

"What now. Bed-jacket wet?"

"No, but I've got a chill and no towel. Gosh! What would Lubitsch do?"

"Keep the chill," said Hal, you will need it. I'll toss a towel over the top."

He reached the harsh, gray towel Kerrigan had got for him and swung an end into her compartment. "Got it?"

"Oh, thanks a lot," she said.

"You'll remember this, and not be boompish with me tomorrow?"

"Yes. No. I mean I won't be whatever you said. I'm sorry that I was."

"Don't be," said Hal.

"All right, I won't." Then, in a moment her soft voice said: "I'm going now. Good night. Thanks for a lovely shower."

"Hey, my towel!" said Hal.

"You want it back?" she said, mildly incredulous.

"Oh, goodness, yes."

"But—" she paused and Hal waited a moment.

WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snows that fall are a trifle whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing,
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing,
That's where the West begins.
