

Third Annual Rodeo One of Best

Some Fast Times Turned in on Events
Turner Wine Prize Stetson Hat

With one of the largest crowds ever attended a rodeo in Sanderson, the third annual rodeo under the promotion of Joe Underwood was closed last Friday. Opening Thursday morning with saddle horse races, which had a large number of entries, the two-day show was packed with entertainment for those who came far and wide. At noon today a free barbecue was served at which barbecued chevon, and beef, together with all trimmings, was served to approximately 2000 people. Following the parade the rodeo events were held in the American Park on the east edge of town. Winners in the various events were as follows:

First Day
A very good exhibition rodeo was put on and the audience thrilled plenty by the bronco riding with the winners being as follows: Texas Kidd, Jr., first; Hester, Brownwood, second; Foster Parish, Wolff third.
The wild cow milking winners were Clay Espy, Fort Davis, time 15 1-5 seconds; P. C. Coates, second with 15 seconds; J. Fitzgerald, 3rd, 19 2-5 seconds.
Winners were entered in calf roping event and some roping was witnessed. Winners were P. C. Coates first, time 5 1-2. J. D. Ambergue, Odessa, 17 1-5. Jack Sellars, Del Rio, 17 3-5.
Winners in the steer breakaway were Clay Espy first, time 4 3-4 seconds. For second place was a tie between Charlie Dryden and Keezie an of Pecos, time 6 4-5. Jim an of Fort Davis won third time 7 2-5.

Second Day
Equally as large crowd witnessed the second day events as present for the first day, and was in much better condition, being sprinkled for that.
Winners in the various events were:
Steer breakaway—Clay Espy of Davis, first, 4 seconds flat. Gregory, Dryden, second, and Keezie Duncan of Pecos, with 5 1-5.
Wild cow milking—Clay Espy 17-3-5. Andrew Bode, Del Rio, 19 flat. J. Fitzgerald of Davis and Bill Nix tied, 19 seconds flat.
Calf roping—Cullen Damron, first; Jazbo Hester, second; Foster Parish, Wolff City.

Calf roping—Bill Stewartson of Stockton first, time 16 flat. Turner, Sanderson, second, 16 3-5. Jim Espy, Ft. Davis, third, 16 3-5.
The calf roping contest, the two-day average for first was a tie between Son Turner and Frank Robertson, both Sanderson. Their time was 16 3-5 seconds. They split the prize money and, on the afternoon roped off the day roping 5 calves, to determine the winner of the Stetson hat donated by the J. B. Stetson Co. for the best two-day average in event. Turner was winning 6 seconds, his total time 118 seconds. Robertson's time was 123.
Clay Robertson, whose time in days, failed to place him in money, tied his calves in 21 and 18 seconds, respectively, for an average of 39 2-5. Turner the first day in 231-5, and second day in 16 1-2, to win all money. His total for both days was 39 2-5.
An interest was created by antelope derby, which was an event this year. This feat was under the able promotion of P. L. Brown of McCamey, who the winners in these

Jimmy Donates to Big Bend Park

Although as governor, James V. Allred vetoed the appropriation passed by the legislature to purchase land in the proposed Big Bend National Park, as a private citizen he heartily favors the move, and was one of the first to donate to the "Million Dollar" drive to raise the money by private donations. He is shown (right) handing $20 to Rep. Albert Cauthorn of Del Rio, as his donation to the fund.

Leasing Declines Another Test On Bell's is Planned

Very little activity in oil and gas leasing is going on in Terrell county at this time and the several deals on leasing of acreage in the county have not been completed as yet.

Work is still progressing on the assembling and getting ready of the machinery prior to spudding in the test on the Sam Bell ranch in the eastern part of the county.

It is understood that Mrs. Jessie McPhee (Briggs), who bought the mineral rights on the east side of the Bell ranch from Mr. Bell several years ago, and had commenced a well on section 78, expects to move a drilling outfit on it in the very near future. The property joins the D. & K. company's proposed well.

WILL VISIT EXPOSITIONS

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Walker, Mrs. Calvert Curry and children left Thursday for Ennis. From there they plan to go to Denton, then to Dallas and Fort Worth where they will attend the Pan American Exposition and Frontier Fiesta. Mrs. Walker is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lester.

Term of District Court Resumed Monday Morning

After a recess since the early part of last week the regular term of district court was resumed here Monday. Several civil cases as well as criminal cases, in some instances long standing on the docket, were dismissed and other cases continued. Very few cases were heard.

Civil cases dismissed were: Ralph H. Jones vs. Dortha Jones, suit for divorce; Lee McCue vs. Joe Oberkamp, suit for an accounting, dismissed on motion of plaintiff, at plaintiff's cost.

Other civil cases disposed of was Jose Olivares vs. Amelia Barron Olivares, suit for divorce. Divorce granted Senora Olivares.

On Monday the case of Homer Springer, charge with theft of goats, was dismissed on grounds of faulty indictment. Other criminal cases dismissed include State of Texas vs. Bessie Sharp, charged with administration of poison, (2 indictments); Enrique Cervantes and Raul Espinosa, charged with receiving and concealing stolen property; and Modesto Gutierrez, charged with failure to support minor child.

Criminal cases continued were State of Texas vs. Lee I. Starling, S. H. Mead, L. H. Bowie, W. M. Vick, and A. P. Garber, charged with felony theft, continued by agreement as defendants are either in the pen or on parole; State of Texas vs. W. L. Bridges, who is charged with felony theft, continued for arrest, as defendant is reported to be a prisoner in federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kans.

Tuesday afternoon Judge Montague heard the petition of Wynn Haynes to have his disabilities as minor removed. Petition granted. Several other civil cases will be heard the remainder of this term and in all probability the docket will be cleared by the end of the week and court adjourned.

VISITS CAVERNS

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Haley, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Haynes, Mrs. Paul Ritter and Jim Haley left Monday for Carlsbad, N. M. and went through the caverns. They returned home Tuesday. Jim says they stopped at Red Bluff dam to give it the once over. Jim says it is a monster, has plenty of water and that the shallows were literally work with fish.

New State Asylum for Insane to Be Located at Big Spring; Cost $817,000

Austin, August 6.—Architects stood by today awaiting only the completion of certain proposals in the bid of Big Spring before starting plans for a new state hospital for the insane in that city.

The State Board of Control, after studying propositions of 14 west Texas cities, announced it had selected that of Big Spring because it offered "the best opportunity of serving the people of west Texas."

The $817,000 institution, authorized by the legislature at its last session, probably will be the most modern in the state system of seven hospitals.

Year for Construction

Claud Teer, board chairman, said a year probably would be required to complete building operations and then the legislature would have to make an appropriation for maintenance. He said it was unlikely the appropriation would be made before January, 1939, unless it was authorized at a special session in 1938.

Plans will be drawn when Big Spring meets all legal requirements of its proposal, he said, including furnishing an abstract on 580 acres of land it will give the state, and obtaining assurance of

"Town Editor" Hour" On KTSA Station Changed

The Home Town Editor program, which is broadcast over KTSA, San Antonio, has proven conclusively that editors are most successful on radio programs as well as the publication of newspapers.

In fact, so popular is the feature Home Town Editor that it has been necessary for the management of KTSA to allot three 15-minute periods weekly, instead of two as heretofore, to this program in order to lend the proper cooperation to the large number of newspapers participating in this editors' broadcast.

Therefore, instead of broadcasting this program at 10:45 to 11 a. m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays as has been done in the past KTSA has assigned three 15-minute periods each week to the Home Town Editor which will, effectively Monday, August 9th, be broadcast at 2 to 2:15 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

The following letter from Station KTSA, San Antonio, to the Times, announces a change in one of the broadcast features in which events gleaned from the various newspapers will be heard on the air:

TO MOVE TO DEL RIO

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Lowe are leaving Saturday for Del Rio to make their home, and where Mr. Lowe has accepted a position as bookkeeper with a firm in that city.

RANGE ROAMING WITH County Agent

Terrell County's first 4-H Club calves were put on feed this week. Bob and David Allen bought two calves weighing 450 and 525 pounds from the Big Canyon ranch and will feed them until the first of March.

Under the range program John Harrison has completed his second dirt tank. Ross Roberts and Bert Beckett have each completed a header tank. Roy Barksdale has just finished a big dirt tank, and says that it will take more rain than has fallen in Terrell county this year to fill it. He is starting on another.

County Agent Ernest Williams and Mrs. Williams left Wednesday for College Station to attend the Annual Short Course at Texas A. & M.

Sanchez Fate in Hands of Jury No Verdict at 3

After much delay, caused by the absence of material witness—the case of Maurecio Sanchez, charged with assault with intent to murder, scheduled for hearing Tuesday, went to trial here Wednesday morning.

A special venire of 75 was summoned Tuesday, in addition to the regular petit jury that had been summoned. After challenging by prosecution and defense lawyers the following were selected as a jury to try the case: A. A. McDonnell, Hugh Cox, Ruel Adams, Griffin Lattimore, Lee McCue, Rev. D. C. Bandy, Sims Wilkinson, J. W. Downum, John Watts, Jake Anney, James House and Mark Herring.

The state opened its case by placing on the stand Miguel Garcia, alleged victim of the assault with intent to murder. Garcia was still on the stand when the court was recessed at noon for lunch. His testimony was concluded shortly after court opened for the afternoon session. Other witnesses who testified during the early part of the afternoon were Sheriff Lee A. Cook, Dr. J. C. Kern and L. H. Lemons.

Sanchez is charged with assault and intent to murder as the result of two cutting scrapes, the first offense being committed on the night of August 2, 1936, and the second offense on the night of January 24, 1937. Garcia was badly slashed on both occasions, and the second time very little hope was held for his recovery.

Bids Asked By Court For New Road Machinery

All members of the Terrell county commissioners court were present Monday for the regular monthly meeting of that body.

A busy session was held, during which an order was passed to advertise for bids for new road machinery. Monday, Sept. 13, was the date set for a hearing on the county's budget.

At this time the court redesignated the Sanderson State Bank as the depository for the county funds. This was necessary on account of a new law passed by the last legislature, effective on August first.

Other business transacted was allowing regular monthly bills.

New Ruling Bars Aliens From Al P. W. A. Projects

In complying with a recent ruling that all aliens be taken off relief projects, four aliens employed on the Dryden-Sheffield road, which is a WPA project, were discharged Wednesday, according to County Judge G. J. Henshaw. This leave 17 men on the job, according to the county judge. This work, it was stated, is progressing nicely. A compressor, which operates two jack-hammers is now being used on the job, which facilitates the work of drilling through the rocky surface through which most of the road is being built.

This is the only WPA project in Terrell county at the present time.

A FLOOD OF BEER

Coleman county is dry, but bootleggers bloom, and officials in Coleman don't know what to do with beer seized in different raids. The special vault where the contraband is kept for evidence is full—there just ain't any more room. One official is on record "to give a party, using the surplus for refreshments.

COLUMN RIGHT

Del Rio youth are causing the grownups much concern these days (or nights). They roam the town, and frequent questionable resorts until the wee sma' hours, it is reported. Well, what's the use of going to bed—you can't sleep these hot nights. The so-called younger generation has caused their elder more or less worry since Cain in playful mood socked Abel on the bean. Del Rio is thinking of passing a curfew law to remedy the situation. Hope it doesn't work out like in a smaller town we know of. After a month's tolling of the big bell, the citizens held an indignation meeting asking it be abolished—claiming it woke them up.

We wish some of the statements made by scientists were true. For instance, they claim a mosquito can remain in the air 48 hours without alighting. What we want to know is, why don't they do it?

Nature has a way of balancing or neutralizing what might seem opposites. We were taught that avoidrduis, height or the girth measurements were misleading qualifications. That the more reliable place to measure was between the eyes. Remember David and Goliath? That little shepherd was a quick thinker. Also the midget lieutenant who was assigned to a company of roughneck infantrymen. When he appeared before them, some doughboy wisecracked: "And a little child shall lead them." The lieutenant asked the one who made the remark to step 2 paces to the front. The entire company stepped up. "Dismissed!" said the lieutenant. "But watch the bulletin board." That evening a notation was on the board, and it read: "Co. F will report in heavy marching order at 9 a. m. for a 60-mile hike. And a little child will lead them on a damn big horse."

The rumor that Gov. Allred will seek a third term still persists. Well, Jimmy is not a bad guy at all. But he'll never make the grade, because we're a bunch of sentimentalists, and don't like the idea of doing something our forefathers didn't do. But we're for the third term, because Jimmy may turn columnist if he is not elected, and Texas is lousy with columnists—and most of us are lousy, too.

Speaking of columnists: A Miss asked her father how they think of all the things they write. He answered: "They don't."

Papers these days carry reports of atrocities committed in Spain's civil war. Well, what do you expect? The enemy to meet you at the border line with a brass band, champagne and flowers. War, in itself, is atrocious, and it only proves that the distance between civilization and barbarism is about as thick as tissue paper.

So there's nothing new under the sun? Well what about these "halo hats"? We were under the impression that you had to die, go to heaven, before you were eligible for halos. But, its just like a woman to rush the season, for fear her neighbors will beat her to the new vogues.

Pecos is still bragging about their cantaloupes. Its all lost motion, waste of time, superfluous. The one sure way to convince doubters—and the only sure way—is to send them a sample.

Wake up these mornings, gaze out the window—
Think to ourselves,
Say to ourselves,
Then shout out loud:
Gosh, there isn't a cloud!

This drought is GETTING us.

Ozona

The Powell Field school serving the children in the oil field in northwest Crockett county, will be discontinued, according to the Ozona Stockton. An agreement was recently reached between school officials of Reagan and Crockett counties to enroll these children in the Big Lake school. A steel bus with a capacity of 22 passengers will transport the children to and from school.

Fort Stockton

Judging from a detailed list in last week's Pioneer, Fort Stockton is enjoying a building boom at present. To itemize the homes being erected and the repairs and renovations being made would require a column of space.

Marfa

According to the Big Bend Sentinel, U. S. Highway between Marfa and Van Horn is 80 per cent completed, and the construction company doing the work expect to finish about the first of October. The work is mainly grading and packing, construction of culverts and bridges, and will make it practically an all weather road. Blacktopping will begin probably in February.

Floresville

According to the Chronicle-Journal, a truckload of fine young Brahma bulls has been shipped in by ranchers of Wilson county. They will be placed with the herds of G. A. Hill, J. T. Sheehy, C. R. Echenburg and J. T. Koenig. The animals were purchased from a well known Brahma breeder at Yoakum.

Barstow

Besides the alfalfa for feeding, farmers of Ward county are going to reap a rich harvest from alfalfa seed this season, according to the Ward County News, which states that the income from this source this year will be $125,000. The yield per acre will be the heaviest in years and is estimated by Ted Johnston, county agent, at from 400 to 5500 pounds per acre.

Iraan

At a recent meeting of the school board of Sheffield Independent school district all bids for the erection of a band house and garage, and general repairs on the Iraan school buildings were rejected. Three contractors had submitted bids for the work.

Sabinal

J. W. Richey, prominent business man of Sabinal, was instantly killed when the truck he was driving crashed into a passenger train last Tuesday, the Sabinal Sentinel reported last week. Mr. Richey was delivering a load of fuel oil to a nearby ranch when the accident occurred.

Alpine

Fire, starting in the boiler room of the plant, totally destroyed the Orient Dairy last Wednesday, according to the Avalanche. As the plant was isolated from the city's water mains, there was no means of fighting the blaze. The plant was one of the most modern in this section, and the loss was estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000 by the owner, W. L. Matthews, and partly covered by insurance.

Pecos

Repair work on the Pecos elementary school was to start this week, according to the Enterprise. Shortly after the New London school tragedy the Pecos build-

Geo. Haseltine is Buried in Fort Stockton Friday

Pioneer residents of Sanderson and Terrell county regretted to learn of the death of George C. Haseltine which occurred in Fort Stockton last week. Mr. Haseltine was a resident of Sanderson many years ago. The following account of his death is taken from the Fort Stockton Pioneer:

Wednesday morning at five o'clock the long and useful life of George C. Haseltine came to a close. Mr. Haseltine, 75 years old on the 18th day of last May, closed recently, a 35-year career as an official of Pecos county, having served as deputy clerk, and deputy tax collector under a number of different regimes in county offices.

Always a man of strong mind and determination, Mr. Haseltine was known to hundreds not only for unrivaled efficiency, but the integrity with which he handled the affairs of his responsible positions in the community. In the same manner, reaching the close of a busy life, and feeling that he no longer could serve, he calmly brought to an end that carefully planned life. A 38 caliber automatic was found by his side when he was discovered by Mrs. Haseltine in the garage of their home.

Recently on the eve of an announced departure from Fort Stockton to make their home in Iowa, Mr. Haseltine had added another generous act to many previous ones in the donation of a valuable collection of books to the Ft. Stockton school library.

After carefully planning the disposition of personal effects and arranging his financial affairs, Mr. Haseltine wrote a note of tribute and explanation to his wife, and another to his friend and brother Mason, Ben A. Owen, specifying that burial services be made as his life—plain and without ostentation.

Mr. Haseltine was born in Minneapolis, Minn., at that time known as the hamlet of St. Anthony. As a young man he had learned telegraphy, and for many years was an operator on rail lines in various parts of the country. His adventures in the years furnished the background for a recent article written by Mr. Haseltine and published in a national magazine. The article was entitled "Adventures of a Boomer Op."

Mr. Haseltine came to West Texas as an operator on the S. P. about 1892. He was first stationed at Sanderson (then in Pecos county). In 1902, in Captain, N. Mex. He was married, moving with Mrs. Haseltine to Ft. Stockton a few months later. Since that time he had resided here continuously.

Mr. Haseltine retained his interest in numerous hobbies thru-out his life. He was a life member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, was a member of the Blue Lodge and the Royal Arch Chapter of the Masonic Lodge, and a member of the Baptist church.

Funeral plans are being held up pending arrival of relatives from out of the state. Burial will be in East Hill cemetery here possibly Friday afternoon, but the time has not been set definitely.

Survivors include the widow, two step-daughters, Mrs. H. D. McGee of Fort Worth who is already here with her mother, and Mrs. Beatrice Elliott of Los angeles, who is enroute here; a step-granddaughter, whom Mr. and Mrs. Haseltine adopted as a child, Mrs. Carl Beadle, is also enroute here from her home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and two sisters, Miss Julia Haseltine of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Ernest Kephart of Pasadena, California.

Cuckoo Comics Are Pillmakers In Latest Picture

Based on the hysterical situation of two partners in the pill manufacturing business staging a wrestling match for sole authority in operating their company, with the loser's fate electing him the winner's valet for one year, "On Again—Off Again," current RKO Radio comedy teaming Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, brings the merry lunatics back to the screen in one of their most hilarious laugh vehicles.

Serving as Woolsey's valet, the defeated Wheeler pays a small fortune in fines for acts of insubordination while the former tries his best to make Wheeler break his contract and thus forfeit his interest in the pill factory, but through various ruses and with the assistance of a gang of thugs and a gold-digger, Wheeler outsmarts his slave-driving partner.

Appearing in support of these cuckoo comics are Marjorie Lord as Wheeler's jealous sweetheart; Patricia Wilder as the gold-digger, Esther Muir as Woolsey's wife, Russell Hicks as a frantic lawyer who puts the wrestling match on a legal basis, Paul Harvey as the big business man trying to consolidate with the pill factory, and George Meeker as a high-powered pill salesman.

Robt. Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck Are Stars in Big Hit "This is My Affair"

Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, the screen's most talked about real life sweethearts, have been teamed by 20th Century Fox in the picture the world is talking about, "This is My Affair," which comes to the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, August 18 and 19.

"This is My Affair" provides both Taylor and Miss Stanwyck with the most important story the great stars ever had, and affords Victor McLaglen the finest opportunity he has had since his powerful characterization in "The Informer."

"This is My Affair" would be a triumph for either of the stars, for it presents Taylor in a picture which captures the mood of great romance and the urge of mighty drama, which Barbara Stanwyck matches his greatness with a fire and power given full force for the first time.

Setting its scenes at the turn of the century, "This is My Affair" shows the stability of the nation threatened by a series of sensational bank robberies in the Middle West. President William McKinley turns in desperation to a young lieutenant, Robert Taylor, whose record under Admiral Dewey bespeaks his valor. The young officer, sworn to secrecy, is instructed to disgrace himself in the Navy, be discharged, and eventually locate the bank-robbing gang and their government informant.

In a mid Western criminals' hangout, Taylor make the acquaintance of a cafe owner, Victor McLaglen; his right hand man Brian Donlevy, and the dancing and singing star of the cafe show, Barbara Stanwyck. He notes that the two men have acquired larges sums of money and that their absence from the cafe coincides with a bank robbery in another city.

Joining the gang in a robbery during which a Secret Service man is killed, Taylor is arrested with the others and, in a stirring dramatic climax, faces the prospect of the gallows when the only man who can clear his name, the President, is assassinated.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. "Son" Turner and children were visitors in Alpine Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Turner.

Boyd Portrays Role of "Hoppy" Eleventh Time

"Hopalong Cassidy" rides again in another thrilling story of the West by Clarence E. Mulford, in "North of the Rio Grande," a fast moving romance which comes to the Princess Theatre tonight and Saturday, August 13 and 14.

The story deals with a band of train robbers, in league with the crooked civil administration of a frontier town whose depredations play havoc with the express business. When it looks as though the express business will have to be abandoned and the town surrendered to the crooked officers, Cassidy is appealed to for help.

In order to gain the confidence of the plotters he throws in with them, posing as a bad man. To accomplish this he plans a train robbery which immediately gives him the reputation he wants, but this is only the beginning. The town is so riddled with dirty politics that it takes some time before Cassidy is able to learn the identity of the master mind and to destroy him.

In this picture romance comes into the life of hard-riding, and square-shooting "Hopalong Cassidy," the lady being the lovely Lorraine Randall.

"Hoppy" is played by William Boyd, with his saddle mates "Windy" and "Lucky," played by George Hayes and Russell Hayden. The cast also includes Stephen Morris, Bernadene Hayes, John Rutherford and Lee Cobb.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Billings and grandson, Junior, of Langtry attended the rodeo here last week end.

Mrs. G. D. Vincent and son, J. D., were up from their home in Devil's River, and attended the rodeo and carnival.

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Walker and Jack Lester were visitors in Alpine Wednesday with Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Lester.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robertson arrived last Thursday from their home in El Paso and visited during the rodeo with his brother Frank Robertson and family, returning home Saturday.

Mrs. Jessie Babb, Mrs. F. L. Brown and two children, Frank Lamar and Jack Fletcher, and Jim Brown, all of Alpine, were guests in the J. L. Osgood home last Thursday.

"The River Road"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY!

This column has passed out a lot of free advice at one time or another. It seems that everybody who ever has an adventure learns something from it that he wants to pass along to the rest of the world, and this seems to be the clearing house for that kind of information. I've issued warnings about everything from jumping off 40-story buildings to getting friendly with the mother-in-law of a man-eating tiger.

Today I've another warning for you. I don't know if you'll ever have occasion to use it, but I'll pass it along for what's it worth. If you're ever motoring to Niagara Falls at night, don't go by the River road.

That comes from Jim McDermott, New York City. Some of you fellows who have been to that address before may recognize it as the Men's Night Court. Well, that's where you'll find Jim. He's the fingerprint expert there. But in 1926 Jim was a member of the Immigration Border patrol, stationed at Tonawanda, N. Y., half way between Niagara Falls and Buffalo. That's how he found out about the River road.

River road was dangerous because of the way cars sped along it at night. But speeding cars weren't the only danger, people said. It was the duty of Jim and another lad—Roscoe Doane—to patrol the road in a car. Their duty was to prevent the smuggling of aliens and of contraband goods, the principal contraband in that pre- repeal day being liquor.

This was No Job for a Weak Heart

"Before I took the job," says Jim, "people advised me against it. They claimed the bootleggers were desperate and would shoot on sight. I found this to be untrue. But I did face death in three violent forms, in about as many minutes on one particular night of my service."

That night came in the spring of 1926. Jim and Roscoe started out in a small roadster, with the top down. Roscoe was driving, for Jim at that time didn't know how to operate a car. Fix's Ferry was their starting point. They hung around there until about 11:15 and then started driving toward Tonawanda.

They had gone about 2 miles when they came to a point where the road narrowed down and the Erie canal ran alongside it for a distance. An auto with glaring headlights was approaching. It was coming straight down the center of the road and it was coming plenty fast. Jim yelled to Roscoe, "Give this fellow all the room you can, or he'll hit us." Roscoe was already turning over on the grass at the side of the road. But the headlights came rusing on.

Jim is Surprised to Find Himself Alive

Then—BANG! The car hit them! Says Jim, "Our car seemed to sail in the air for a moment or two. As we hit Roscoe jumped to get out and landed in my lap. The left front wheel of the big sedan had caught our front wheel. It lifted our light car completely off the road and swung it around. At the same time it turned over and landed bottom up, diagonally across the narrow roadway."

Jim says that during the brief moment while they were turning over just one question presented itself to his mind. That was: "Will I be dead when we hit?" But down there, trapped under the overturned car, Jim found to his surprise that he wasn't dead. "Roscoe was on top of me," he says, "with his back on my face, and he was doing some struggling. I couldn't move. My shoulders and the back of my neck were on the road, and I was still on the seat, albeit upside down. My back ached and the weight of the car crushing down on me, was increasing momentarily."

He was in that position when suddenly he heard Roscoe let out an oath. "Here's a guy doing fifty and no lights," he cried. He'll hit us sure as hell." Jim couldn't see a thing, but it was true, he knew. Their car was lying right across the road. A man going at that speed with no lights, could hardly help but hit them.

And There was More to Come

Says Jim: "For the second time I thought the end had come. I could see only a few feet ahead through the wreckage, but I could hear the roar of the approaching car. I gritted my teeth, struggling to get out, but I couldn't move. Roscoe was making my position more uncomfortable every second. I shouted out, 'Where is he?' At the same time I heard the roar of the motor diminish and Roscoe yelled back, 'He's gone!'"

Two narrow escapes and a thrill yet to come. As the night grew quiet again Jim discovered that their headlights were still burning and the motor still running. And then, suddenly he felt something drip down on his face. "My first thought was that it was blood," he says, but that could not be. This fluid was cold. I struggled to get my hand to my face, but before I got it there I knew it was gasoline. It was coming down from the tank just outside the dashboard over the engine. I had faced death twice before—and now I was facing it again in a more dreadful form. Our engine was still running. Any moment the car might burst into flames."

It didn't occur to Jim to shut off the switch. He didn't know how to drive a car. Momentarily he expected an explosion—fire—agony and death. And then all at once he heard voices. Some one was saying, "All on this side, now." The car was lifted off them, and half a dozen men were pulling him out. A bunch of army officers, returning from Buffalo to Fort Niagara had come along and found them.

The car that had hit them had run through a ditch and crashed into a tree. It contained a suitcase full of counterfeit liquor labels, but the driver was gone. He had walked down the road and telephoned ahead for help. The second car had just managed to get by them because a farmer's wife, who had seen the crash, ran to the road with a lantern. The second car got by with barely two inches to spare. But it didn't stop. Cars without lights along that road never did.

Jim was laid up for three weeks with a wrenched back, but Roscoe Doane got off with a few bruises. But even so, Jim doesn't think it's particularly safe at night on that River road.

A Yard of Pink Chiffon

By HAZEL V. PARIS
Copyright—WNU Service

"AND don't forget that yard of pink chiffon at Stewart's." James Arrington Davis yelled back, "You bet I won't," as he disappeared into the garage. He drove out, waved to his wife who was standing on the sun porch, and turned out of his driveway into the boulevard, ready for his drive to the city.

She was a dear, Lucille was. He thought fondly of her as she had been in 1906 when he married her. Twenty-one years ago.

Arrived downtown James left his car in the garage and made his way to his office. It was with considerable pride that he looked at the lettering on the door, "The Acme Silk Thread Company," and under it his own name in more modest letters.

Things should be picking up. That $25,000 order to the Kerbey Shoe company meant a lot.

The day passed quickly. At three o'clock, in response to his buzzer, he answered his outside wire. Could he be hearing correctly? That thread shipped to the Kerbey people wasn't right. It was ruffling and knotting. Yes, yes, he'd be right over.

After a trying two hours of tests, explanations, instructions to the foreman as to the proper threading of the machines, James finally got the matter straightened out.

As they parted at the door of the factory James made his way to the street car, and realized it was after five. He must phone Lucille that he'd be late for dinner. Better still he'd have dinner in town and drive out when the traffic was less heavy.

He had his lonely meal at a big white cafeteria and all the time he was eating he pitied the "poor dogs" who had to depend on restaurants every night. And then he started for his garage. The shops were closed and the streets deserted. In contrast, the lighted windows of a drug store flared out brightly.

Now, J. A. Davis never could pass a drug store without stopping. As he paused to admire the displays of perfume, stationery and electrical appliances, his eye was taken by the flashing sign of a man with his finger pointed at him, saying, "You need a flashlight."

"Here's a neat little thing." The salesman handed him a toy pistol. "Throws a 100-foot beam."

"You needn't wrap it," James said and jammed the new toy in his pocket and hurried out.

About ten miles out he suddenly sat up straight. A man was standing in the middle of the boulevard waving his hands frantically.

"Say, have you a jack? Mine's broken and I've been signaling cars for an hour. Don't blame them for not stopping. Dunno as I would."

By this time James had thrown off his coat, got his tool kit from under the back seat and was busy helping jack up the heavy car.

Finally the tire was on and the stranger straightened up. "Much obliged. Hope I can return the favor. Here's my card."

"Glad to help you. S'all right." And James went forward to his car. As he put his hand in his hip pocket he started. His wallet! So that was the fellow's game, was it? Slipping into his overcoat, he looked toward the big car. The man was just getting in. "Here, wait a minute."

The stranger turned expectantly as James came running back, calling, "Just a minute," and then the man found himself looking into the muzzle of a revolver.

"Put up your hands and be quick," and deftly James reached into the man's hip pocket and took out a wallet.

"Give me your keys." In a second James was in his own car and racing down the boulevard at 50 miles an hour.

He put the car up and as he came into the house his wife called from the sewing room upstairs, "Oh, Jimmie, dear, did you get the chiffon?"

"Yep, on my way from Kerbey's. Almost missed it." "Good! I meant to remind you when you phoned. And, Jimmie, dear, you're so careless. Your

THE REST OF THE RECORD

By JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

San Luis Potosi, Mexico, Aug. 7.—In Texas we boast of our southern hospitality; in Mexico, the people don't boast of it; they live it! From the moment when Mrs. Dominguez, wife of the Mexican vice consul at Laredo, presented a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Allred as we crossed the international boundary until now, I have never witnessed such courtesy, such hospitality as has been extended us on every hand.

As I told you last week, the Mexican government invited us to be their guests, even furnishing transportation over the railroad.

We have now passed through the capital cities of three Mexican states and at each one great crowds, including the Governor, the mayor, representatives of the military and the business men have met us at the station with a band, presented beautiful bouquets to Jo Betsy (my wife), and given us the very best of entertainment as long as we were with them. Of course, we realize this is an honor they are not extending to Jimmie Allred, but to the Governor of Texas; and that's why I'm prouder than ever of the high honor the people have bestowed on us.

We spent one day at Monterrey capital of Nuevo Leon. It is quite modern and somewhat Americanized. We saw many Texas people there, most of them tourists, of course. We visited one of the most beautiful and modern hospitals I have seen anywhere, the gift of a fine old Mexican gentleman, a Mr. Muerza. One of the finest glass factories in the world is located in Monterrey. It is almost unbelievable to see how they melt sand in furnaces then drop it in red-hot pieces into various kinds of moulds where it is shaped as it cools into bottles, vases, pitchers, plates and glassware of every character. As I watched this preparation put through the burning fire and yet emerge fine spun clean and beautiful, it made me wonder if sometimes human beings aren't put through a torturing, searing fire—a great sorrow, for instance—that they may emerge, tested and tried, a finer, cleaner character.

American money, is of course more than Mexican money. You exchange one dollar in American money for $3.60 Mexican. I got $36.00 in Mexican bills and silver for a $10 bill. It made me feel quite "flush" to have so much money in my pocket. I owed Jo Betsy ten dollars when we left Texas so I paid her the same sum in Mexican and still had $26 left. Your money seems to go considerably farther here, everything is considerably cheaper.

Our next stop was Saltillo once the capital of Texas when we belonged to Mexico. It is a beautiful little city of 60,000, nestling a mile high in the mountains, is nice and cool in the day and almost chilly at night. I was surprised to find it quite an educational center. They have just started an experimental agricultural school there, trying to teach the sons of farmers to whom the Mexican government has recently given lands the practical side of farming, stock raising and dairying. It is remarkable to see how these people who were torn by revolution and war less than 20 years ago, have progressed; and how hard they are trying to better conditions for the underprivileged classes here.

We have met many wonderful people here, some of them educated in Texas. On every hand were evidences of culture and refinement, a wonderful art gallery, fine school buildings, and music everywhere. The people are over-friendly. They are completely wedded to the "Good Neighbor" policy of President Roosevelt; they love him almost as much as we do and they adore their own president, Lazaro Cardenas. I felt like saying in Saltillo "Thank God for a people with friendship in their hearts and music in their souls."

As you know a fine new highway has been completed from Texas to Mexico City. It is wide open, a marvelous drive and perfectly safe. Since things are so much cheaper, I want to suggest to all of you who can that you make plans to spend a vacation down here some time in the future. You'll enjoy it. My wife's mother and my eldest son, Jim Boy, are with us, and they, too, are having the time of their lives. Like every other boy of his age, Jim Boy is full of curiosity. He has been all over the train, to find out how things work, turning off lights, turning on water, etc., but he is a little timid about scouting around these Mexican places much.

The Mexican government sent Consul Dominguez from Laredo with us, and the American government ordered Bill Blocker, our consul at Monterrey to accompany us during our stay. I'll try to have something more interesting to tell you next week. "Adios!"

WEEKLY Health Letter

Is Your Child Ready for School?

Austin.—Now is the time, according to state health officer G. W. Cox for every parent to ask himself if his child is physically ready for school. A visit to the family physician will answer this question and give time for correction of minor defects before the school bells ring out.

Vaccination against diphtheria, typhoid and smallpox should be done at once. These vaccinations may save many days of school, doctor fees and perhaps life itself. More than three hundred children die each year in Texas from diphtheria.

A child with defective vision cannot be expected to do effective school work until this defect is removed.

The far-reaching effect of infected tonsils on the system has been recognized by health workers for years. Many of the ills of later life, such as heart disease, arthritis, deafness and the like, are directly traceable to tonsils that became infected during the childhood years and remained untreated.

Dental defects are found in more children than any other imperfection. Children should be taken to the dentist regularly for examination of the teeth. This precaution will keep the mouth clean and makes it possible for dental imperfections to be found as soon as they appear.

Postural defects in children are detectable in children much sooner today than formerly. Have your physician see if your child's shoulder blades project and if his arches are low. Simple exercise while the child is young, diligently adhered to, will prevent later developments.

Some physical defects of children, particularly underweight, or malnourishment, show no appreciable present effect. If such condition is not corrected it may result seriously in later years.

Mrs. Jack Newman and daughter, Shirley, are taking a vacation of two weeks, visiting relatives in Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Osgood and daughter, Lois Bea, visited relatives in Langtry last Sunday.

Know Texas

(T. S. C. W. Feature Service) GROWING UP

Denton.—The Lone Star State's wide open spaces are closing up. Although Texas still ranks low on account of the amount of population per square mile, it shows a greater per cent of increase since 1920 than all but five of the forty-eight states. According to the 1930 census the number of people had grown to 24.9 per cent of the 1920 tabulation, a figure topped only by the states of California, Arizona, Michigan, Florida and New Jersey. The total population by this last census was 5,824,715, which placed Texas as the fifth largest state in the U. S.

PICK ANY CLIMATE

Rainfall in Texas varies from more than 50 inches in some parts of Southwest Texas to less than 10 inches in the west toward El Paso. Maximum snowfall is over 25 inches in the Panhandle, but snow has never been seen by some people in the Valley and other southern points.

COMPLICATING MATTERS

More than 500 types of Texas soils have been discovered and studied by the Texas Agricultural & Experiment Station at College Station, even though all the counties have not been surveyed. This diversity of resources has brought newly recognized problems to farmers and, according to W. T. Carter in a Texas Soils bulletin, "The success of agriculture in Texas depends upon the appropriate use of the soils, which constitute the most valuable resource of the state."

Peggy Louise Robertson spent the week end on the Higgins ranch, the guest of Mary Nell Higgins.

Has Supernatural Vision In Malaya a supernatural vision is attached to the little lemur, a monkeylike animal, called the lorris. During the day, says a writer in Collier's Weekly, this nocturnal creature frequently has to pry its large, hypersensitive eyes, for a few minutes at a time, by covering them with its hands. Consequently the natives think he is constantly seeing ghosts.
