Set for New School Term—Seven New Teachers on the Faculty Staff

Plans are all completed for the beginning of the 1937-38 session of Sanderson public schools on Monday morning, September 14. All teachers have been selected and are expected to arrive in Sanderson for the first teachers' meeting of the year on Thursday afternoon at 2:30. Some hundred new textbooks have been received during the summer. These have been unnumbered, numbered, and will be distributed Monday morning. Some equipment has also been purchased during the summer. All buildings have been thoroughly cleaned and the floors resealed in the elementary school and in the high school buildings. The program on Monday morning will be as brief as possible. The general public is invited to attend.

Two Additional Teachers
Miss Sammie Ruth Johnson of Stockton was recently elected to a place in the elementary school in the Sanderson school. She will teach physical education, and have some classes in similar work in the elementary school. She holds a B. A. degree from Texas Wesleyan College, at Worth.

Seven New Teachers
Seven of the twenty teachers employed in Terrell county will be teaching for the first time in the school district. Two of the teachers have not had regular teaching experience, while the others have taught several years. The new teachers in Sanderson are Miss Reba L. May, Alpine; Miss Onie Elizabeth, Alpine; Miss Sammie Johnson, Fort Stockton; Miss Grace Hyde, Brownwood; C. F. Pickard, Levelland; Marjorie Nixon, Denton, and Mauryne Lindley, Crystal Springs.

Get Degree at Sul Ross
Ernest Morgan, principal of the Sanderson Elementary School, one of the large graduating classes from Sul Ross College at the end of the summer session. Mr. Morgan completed his work by attendance in summer school and correspondence work. His major field was in science. Every year in the Sanderson school there now has at least a bachelor of arts degree.

Band Students to Meet
Mr. C. F. Pickard, new band leader in the Sanderson high school, arrived in town early in the week and has been at work plans for the school band for coming session. He requests all members of the band who do so conveniently to report to the school building on Friday afternoon at four o'clock. This meeting is for the general purpose of getting acquainted and for starting the band work for the year. It is hoped the band will have a large enrollment this year and it is expected that they will make some trips to other towns and give concerts. The Sanderson high school has two units of organization in band work.

Order to Enforce Rules Affecting Liquor Permits

Austin, Aug. 31.—Liquor Administrator Bert Ford said today that those applications for renewed licenses reached his office before midnight may operate without a permit until Sept. 10. REPORT GOOD RAIN
Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Prentiss were in town last Saturday from their ranch in the Pumpville section. They reported that a good rain fell on part of their ranch at Thursday.

Heavy Shipments Of Lambs Noted During Week

Fall deliveries of lambs are still in progress in this section with a heavy demand for transportation facilities to get them to shipping points. By the time the season is over there will be very few, if any lambs left in this section. Many sales of ewes and lightweight lambs have been reported with the market fairly active in both lines, and good prices being paid. This week R. E. Corder, local commission man, purchased 3000 lightweight lambs at a reported price of $3 a head. He also purchased 2000 cutback lambs for $2.50 a head. Other purchases made by Mr. Corder were 5400 lambs at 8 cent a pound, and 1000 solid mouth ewes, which he said were bring $4 a head here.

The first of the week Mr. Corder delivered to the John Clay Commission Co. 2000 broken mouth ewes at $2 a head. This stock was bought here and at Pumpville.

Ben Gilbert delivered to Fred Hokit at Fort Stockton the first of the week 4400 ewes at 8 cents a pound. These lambs were heavy and in good shape. Ed Stirman has sold his entire lamb crop at $5 a head.

There is a demand for lambs weighing 55 pounds or more and they are quoted at 8c a pound. Stock shipments this week from here on Longfellow included the following:

Aug. 26, Ray Willoughby, 15 cars of lambs to Kent, Texas. H. J. McConnell, 4 cars of lambs to East St. Louis, Ill.

Aug. 27, O. W. Adams, 18 cars of lambs, to Marceline, Mo.

Aug. 28, S. S. Boyer, 2 cars of lambs to Bucyrus, Ohio, and 2 cars to Hodge, Texas. John Clay & Co., 6 cars to Lackman, Kas.

Sept. 1, Bob Bennett shipped from Longfellow 2 cars of lambs to Purdy, Iowa; 4 cars to Naples, Iowa, and 2 cars to Melcher, Ia.

Anthony and Smith purchased the Ira Deaton lambs and included them in a shipment of 6 cars consigned to Kansas City Wednesday.

Last Thursday H. J. McConnell bought 191 mutton lambs from E. Earwood, paying $4.70 per head, delivery being made that day.

C. C. C. To Enroll Thousands During October—New Ruling on Eligibility

A call for approximately 11,000 white and 1,200 colored boys to be enrolled into the Civilian Conservation Corps during October has been issued by Adam R. Johnson, Director of the Texas Relief Commission, to the various County Welfare Boards. This number far exceeds any former enrollment and will give almost all boys in the State an opportunity to enroll if they are unemployed, 17 to 23 years of age, in need, and whose parents or themselves, due to financial limitations, are not in a position to secure or provide comparable training. Full strength of the Texas quota is 16,000 white and 1700 colored, and due to discharge of enrollees reaching the age of 24 and/or completion of the maximum enrollment of two years, replacements will be necessary. Heretofore, rules did not allow boys from other than the groups

New Acts Featured at Pan American Exposition Casino

Phil Harris and his orchestra provide music for dancing.

Stirman Hosts to To Friends At the Ranch Saturday

In response to invitations previously issued a group of about fifty friends met at the W. E. Stirman ranch west of town where Mr. Stirman, his good wife and their daughters were genial hosts at one of the best and well ordered barbecues we've ever attended. Besides an abundance of meat, done to a turn, there was a huge pot of son-of-a-gun (the dish that made West Texas famous, and another of frijoles. Assisting in serving and seeing that none of the guests were neglected, were two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stirman, Mrs. Berry Wilson of Marfa, and Mrs. Jimmy Ataway of McCamey.

Asked if was celebrating his birthday, or wedding anniversary on this occasion, Mr. Stirman said: "I'm not celebrating anything, just want to keep my hand in, feed my friends, and make them happy; and when they're happy, I'm happy."

Mr. Stirman has a well-improved ranch, and on arrival the guests were taken over the place, and were surprised at its orderly arrangement—a place for everything, and everything in its place. In the pens were two flocks—one of Rambouillet sheep, the other of Angora Billies—all purebred and registered. Nearby is a small orchard, which is irrigated from a well and storage tank located atop a nearby hill.

Mrs. Alexander Mitchell left Wednesday for San Antonio on business.

Woman Pilot Is Killed in Crash Near Mex. Border

Presidio, Aug. 27.—A lone woman pilot was killed today when her plane crashed three miles over the Texas border line in Old Mexico.

She was identified as Genevieve Savage, about 30 years old. Her place of residence was undetermined, although registration at El Paso showed she was the wife of Maj. Charles Savage, of San Diego.

Fragmentary information that reached the American customs officials here indicated the plane was from San Diego.

El Paso officials believed the woman was lost. Mrs. Savage had been reported in that city yesterday and told airfield officials she was headed for the national air races at Cleveland. The attendants said they had received reports that the plane had been checked at Midland that morning. Her husband was believed en route by plane from San Antonio.

The body was brought to Marfa where funeral arrangements were made. Engine trouble was blamed for the crash.

Stokes Sharp, Auto Victim, is Buried Here Saturday

Funeral services were held here last Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Methodist church for Stokes Sharp, 17, who died in an Alpine hospital Friday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The Rev. S. M. Mims, pastor of the church, conducted the services. Burial was in the Sanderson cemetery under direction of the W. E. Stirman funeral home.

Stokes was seriously injured last Thursday morning when the car he was driving crashed into the rail of a concrete bridge on the Fort Stockton highway, about 15 miles from Alpine. It was presumed that the steering gear had locked, causing the car to swerve and crash into the railing. His skull was fractured when he was thrown from the car against the side of the bridge. Other injuries suffered were broken ribs on his right side, and a fracture of the right arm.

His mother, Mrs. Harry Sharp, and a nephew, Jackie Harrell Sharp, were with him when the accident occurred. Mrs. Sharp was bruised and shaken, and suffered a deep cut below the knee of each leg. Jackie was uninjured with the exception of a skinned place on his chin. They were enroute to Sonora for a visit with relatives when the accident occurred.

Stokes Marshall Sharp was born on October 22, 1920, and most of his life was spent here. Two years ago the family moved to Alpine where Stokes had finished the first two years of high school. Since the close of school he had been in the employ of the Sam Ford garage in Alpine. He was a member of the local Methodist church, having joined on April 20, 1930.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sharp; three brothers, Jack, Savell Lee and Walter Edwin, a sister Mrs. George Cardwell, a nephew, Jackie Harrell Sharp and several aunts and uncles in San Angelo, Sonora and El Paso.

Out-of-town relatives here for the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Trainer and son of Sonora, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Huling of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Stokes, Mrs. Ernest McClellan, all of Sonora; Mrs. S. R. Ord, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Qualtrough and daughter, Jane, of El Paso; Ray Qualtrough, Carlsbad, N. Mex.; Mr. and Mrs. George Cardwell of Lockhart and Jack Sharp of Odessa.

Friends here for the funeral were Mrs. Lexie Hightower, Sonora; Mrs. C. C. Holman, Misses Dee Trainer, Frances Powell, Jeanette Thornton, Serena Trainer and E. L. Bailey of Alpine. Mrs. Wylie Ezell, an aunt of Sonora, was unable to attend the funeral.

Active pallbearers were J. D. Holman and Howard Sonnier of Alpine; Howard Black, Albert Weigand, Troy Druse, Pat Sullivan, Wilburn Short and Albert Appel of this city.

They were taken to a San Antonio hospital.

Good Interest in Gospel Meetings; Sunday Last Day

The services at the Church of Christ have been attended with good interest by the citizens of Sanderson and vicinity. Bro. R. E. Griffith of San Antonio is doing the preaching and has given some wonderful lessons from God's word.

On Sunday morning, August 29, the subject of Heaven was discussed, and Sunday night the place called Hell was forcibly proven to exist by the words of Jesus. Those present were made to appreciate the beauties of Heaven, and to fear the horrors of Hell.

Sunday, September 5, will be the closing day of the meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend these services.

RANGE ROAMING WITH County Agent

The Terrell County Agricultural Conservation Committee, composed of Joe Kerr, chairman, Hugh Rose and E. W. Hardgrave, committeemen, Ernest Williams, secretary, and Beatrice Nichols, treasurer, met Tuesday to make preliminary adjustment of the grazing capacities of the ranches entered in the Range Program. The grazing capacity recommended by the range inspectors on about one-third of the ranches were either raised or lowered, the other two-thirds remained the same as recommended.

The papers covering about 90 ranches will be taken to College Station Saturday by Ernest Williams, county agent, where they will be checked and the final grazing capacity adjustment will be made. This final adjustment is to bring the average of the capacity set by the County Committee to the figure set for the county by the State Committee. This figure will be used to figure the range-building allowance or the amount of money a rancher can earn.

Several ranchers who made application in the program did not complete their papers and will not be eligible to participate in this year's program.

BACK FROM HOMESTEAD

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mussey and children returned home Wednesday from Animus, N. M., where they spent the greater part of the summer on their homestead.

WEEKLY Health Letter

BEWARE OF QUACKS

Austin.—In speaking of health racketeers, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer, said, "There is no meaner method of hittin' below the belt than holding out false promises to incurables. This fact, however, does not in the least deter the unscrupulous who thus heartlessly prey upon thousands of incurables who are in a hopeless stage of illness. Thousands of dollars are extracted annually from individuals whose conditions direct their hopes to the promises made by the super-scientific gentry who claim to have beaten the untiring researchers of endowed laboratories to cures for cancer, diabetes, tuberculosis, epilepsy, pellegra and other serious conditions.

Unfortunately, it is words rather than deeds that create the miracle. A miracle which, instead of being related to a cure, is entirely associated with the transfer of large sums of money from innocent persons to those whose only interest in health and health matters stops at the cash register.

"It is the sad and killing fact that in addition to the incurables, there are thousand of believing persons who become the victims of this type of racketeer, and thus through self-diagnosis and self-treatment, postpone a real investigation of their ailments until the incurable stage is reached.

"Two main rules should be followed in this connection. The first is to have an annual physical examination by a reputable physician. In this way incipient conditions can be discovered and by proper treatment the disease can frequently be conquered. The second rule is to mistrust all high promising statements of 'amazing discoveries'."

AMERICAN BOY INTRODUCES A NEW FOOTBALL GAME

In the early fall issues of THE AMERICAN BOY there'll be presented the story of a new game—six-man football—fast as professional football, wide open as basketball, thrilling as hockey!

The game came to life through the need of small schools for some substitute for 11-man football, which was too expensive. Stephen Epler, a Nebraska graduate student in athletics developed the game of 6-man football to meet this need. In six-man football anybody can score, the possibility of injury from mass plays is minimized and the game is open enough for spectators to follow every exciting development.

The new game is a hit. New schools are taking it up every day. In coming issues of THE AMERICAN BOY tells the world about this practical new game. In addition, it presents The American Boy Official Handbook that can be obtained from the magazine at 20c a copy, or 15c when bought in bulk.

NOTE: Subscription prices of THE AMERICAN BOY will be raised in the near future. Send your subscription order at once to take advantage of the bargain rates now in effect: one year at $1 or three years at $2. Foreign subscriptions 50c a year extra. Send your name, address and remittance to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Mich. On newsstands the price is 15c a copy.

Mrs. Lee McCue had as her guest this week, Mrs. George W. Baker of Del Rio.

bid on the work was $42,325. The site of the new post office is just east of the courthouse. A total of $70,000 was allocated for purchase of a site and construction of the building.

POLLARD IS HOSTESS AT SLUMBER PARTY

Last Friday night, at her home, Miss Nelle Lea was hostess to a group of friends at a Slumber Party. During the early part of the evening the young ladies enjoyed many games, played on the lawn, later going to the top of Five-mile Hill, where they enjoyed iced watermelon, served by Mrs. W. J. Ferguson and Mrs. W. E. Lea. Peals of laughter were heard in the wee hours of the night, but soon all were slumbering. Early Saturday morning the group was joined by several others to enjoy a delicious breakfast served on the lawn.

HOW NEW YORK FAIR MOVES BIG TREES BY HUNDREDS

NEW YORK (Special).—As the housewife reports geraniums or the gardener moves berry bushes, so does the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation transplant stately trees from five states to the 1216 1/2-acre exposition site. The Fair's landscape engineers explain that the moving of the big trees differs from the replanting of small shrubs only in the matter of size, and that modern mechanical aids make possible the creation of a mature-looking park on the newly made land of Flushing Meadow. Shown at the top of accompanying photographs is a grown maple that has just been restored to upright position after a 120-mile ride on a specially-built truck. Note truck's winch and the secure balling of earth about the tree roots. In the center is a 35-foot Norway maple, 12 tons weight, moving the last few yards to its new home by means of the forward gear of a modern tree mover. All trees shown, a number of the 474 veterans moved this spring, are new to the great expanse of filled land. The Fair will move 10,000 trees and 250,000 shrubs. Shown, just above, on the bay hunter is Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Manufacturers Trust Company and Chairman of the Fair's Finance Committee. Up on the handsome grey and speaking to a landscape engineer is Grover Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, during a horseback tour of the site extending three and one-half miles.

Powerful Film is Based on Novel By Vina Delmar

Vina Delmar, author of the best sellers, "Bad Girl," and "The Marriage Racket," and other best sellers of modern youth and its problems, brings a powerful, provocative and highly entertaining story of American family life to the screen in "Make Way for Tomorrow," the drama which comes to the Princess Theatre on next Monday night only, Sept. 6th.

"Make Way for Tomorrow" is the story of revolt between the generations. Not only does it present the case of a girl in her teens, the daughter of a modern bridge playing mother who hasn't the time to sympathize with and understand her daughter, but it also turns a frank and searing light upon the relationship which exists between the generation represented by the mother, and the generation represented by the mother's parents. In this it is an important motion picture with a real message despite its light-hearted humor, gaiety and genuine "homespun" qualities.

The girl in the story is charming Barbara Read, the brilliant young actress who soared to stardom overnight with Deanna Durbin in "3 Smart Girls." Because of her parents' indifference Miss Read is forced to find her own amusements, unguided, a state of affairs which lands her perilously near real danger. The situation becomes aggravated by the presence in her home of Beulah Bondi, her grandmother, who is forced to live with her children through economic necessity.

In their conceptions of fun and a good time Miss Read and her grandmother are worlds apart and yet the old lady has more sympathy for the girl than the child's mother. It is when Miss Bondi attempts to help the distraught girl and makes a mess of it, because she is unable to understand the present generation, that the powerful climax is reached. "Make Way for Tomorrow" is also important because it is the first motion picture in which the new "counterpoint" system of music for film is used. It is a hard system to explain other than that the music seems to run counter to the mood of the story, but it is real, powerful and a valuable contribution to films. It is something that should be heard. In the supporting cast are several film favorites that make the picture one of real entertainment.

Mrs. Bustin Canon and children have returned from a visit with relatives in Memphis, Amarillo and Austin. They also attended the Frontier celebration in Fort Worth and the Pan American Exposition in Dallas.

Dr. and Mrs. J. V. McCall, Miss Clara Shurley and Wesley Lochausen returned last Thursday from Kerrville where they spent the past week attending the encampment.

Humor, Romance and Action Make "David Harum" One of Rogers' Best

Hard-headed, but soft-hearted and the shrewdest, kindest, and "course of true love smoother" in seven counties, Will Rogers finds the perfect role in his greatest picture, as the most laughable and loveable character in American fiction, "David Harum," in the 20th Century-Fox film which will open at the Princess Theatre tonight for a two-day showing, September 6 and 7.

Adapted from the overwhelmingly popular novel by Edward Noyes Westcott, the picture, under the direction of James Cruze is an unusual Rogers vehicle with the most remarkable race track finish ever screened as David Harum, the small town banker, sings his horse on to thundering victory.

Offering the utmost latitude for the wit and wisdom of both America's beloved humorist and Mr. Westcott's warmly human character, the story is an absorbing one of the thrilling romance between Evelyn Venable, a rich heiress summering in the sleepy country town, and Kent Taylor, handsome but poor young protégé of banker Harum.

The matchmaking efforts of the soft-hearted financier and horse-trader culminates when he induces his assistant to bet all of his savings on a horse Harum is to drive in the local trotting classic. The horse will run his best, however, only when hearing his favorite songs, and it to the accompaniment of several thousand voices singing "Ta-Ra-Ra-Boom-De-Ay" above the blare of a brass band that Harum drives his steed to victory.

Louise Dresser and Stepin Fetchit have sympathetic roles in the film as loveable and indispensable adjuncts to the Harum household.

Mrs. Lee Hardgrave of San Angelo spent the week end here visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hardgrave.

Mrs. C. P. Peavy and daughters left Sunday for Marfa and are spending this week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Pruett, Sr.

Miss Marjorie Erwin passed through Sanderson on the Limited Tuesday, returning to her home in El Paso after an extended visit in New York and other points in the North and East.

"Woman Chases Man" Filled With Riotous Comedy

"Woman Chases Man," Samuel Goldwyn's hilarious film comedy, brings Miriam Hopkins, Joel McCrea, Charles Winninger, Erik Rhodes and a great cast to the Princess Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, September 8 & 9. "Woman Chases Man" marks the fifth production in which the stars have appeared together. The earlier films were "The Richest Girl in the World," "The Barbary Coast," "Splendor," and "These Three."

Chas Winninger, Erik Rhodes, Ella Logan, Leona Maricle, and Broderick Crawford are also prominently featured.

This hilarious story cast Miriam in a real comedy role as a girl architect who chased a wealthy young man (McCrea) to the ends of the earth, to make him sign a contract to finance a model village and finally got his name on the dotted line, of both the contract and the marriage license.

John Blythstone directed "Woman Chases Man," from a screen play by Joseph Anthony, Manuel Seff and David Hertz. The story is by Lynn Root and Frank Felton.

"I Escaped From the Foreign Legion"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

SAFER among sharks than in the French Foreign Legion. That's the way August Eberl felt about it. For months he had been planning to desert. And when the moment came, he didn't let a few sharks bother him. He'd rather be cut to pieces by a fish than by the fierce Berber women of the Haute Atlas who follow their men over the battlefield to mutilate the wounded of the enemy.

The sharks were quicker and more humane. August joined the Foreign Legion in 1921, went through his training period and was sent to Morocco. A Legionnaire enlists for five years, but two years in Morocco was enough to convince August that the Legion was just another man-made substitute for hell. Once, in Bedo, far out in the Sahara, when he felt he couldn't stand the blistering heat and the grueling toil any longer, he had tried going AWOL, but they had caught him before he even left the little village.

The captain gave him a hard slap in the face, put him in prison for twenty-one days, and made him run around the prison yard carrying a bag full of stones on his back until he was exhausted. After that they made him stand at attention before a white, painted wall while the burning sun blistered his body; a subtle form of torture that had left him sick and fainting at the end of forty minutes.

No Use Trying the Sahara Desert

That was the mild form of punishment dealt out to a first offender. If they caught him trying to do it again it would go hard with him indeed. He was determined to run for it again, but this time he'd have to be a darned sight more careful.

It was impossible to escape in Africa, for the only way out was across the Sahara desert, and not even a native would try to cross the Sahara afoot. August applied for a transfer to French Indo-China, and his plan was to escape while enroute.

In December 1924, a detachment of three hundred and forty men left Oran in Algeria for Indo-China, and August was with them. But chances to escape on the journey were fewer than he had expected. When the ship touched at Port Said all three hundred and forty of them were herded into one big room below decks. The port holes were bolted shut, and there they sweltered until the ship was through the Suez Canal and out into the Red Sea.

It was the same at Djibouti, Colombo in Ceylon, and every other port at which the shipped called. There wasn't even the ghost of a chance until they arrived at Singapore. There the ship tied up at the pier instead of anchoring in the harbor, and instead of locking the men in the big room they were allowed on the after deck, with a large detachment of local police to see that none of them tried to run away.

He Had to Risk the Sharks

There were about twenty-five policemen on the ship and ten more on the pier. On the other side of the ship the waters of the harbor stretched out invitingly, but August knew that water was full of sharks. To try to swim in it was to risk a horrible death. On the other hand, August had seen many horrible deaths back in Morocco, and he'd see still more if he went on to Indo-China.

There was a German ship in the harbor, and August knew if he could reach it his fellow countrymen would help him. But how was he to get away? His brain began turning over the possibilities.

The policemen on the pier were watchful. It would have to be the water and the sharks. He took his blankets into a lavatory and knotting them together tied one end to a wash stand and threw the other through the port hole. Then out the port hole he went, sliding down the improvised rope and into the water.

A small police boat was coming toward him. He dived and swam under water. Fear of sharks spurred him on, but he had to go slowly and quietly to escape the attention of the men in the police boat. Swimming swiftly and noiselessly he made his way alongside of the ship toward two lighters tied up at its side. He got between them and hung there while the police boat searched for him.

For half an hour the police boat prowled back and forth around the ship, and all the time August clung between the lighters waiting—hoping that no shark would smell him out in the meantime. At last the police boat gave up the search and went away.

Crawled Through a Drain Pipe

"Then," said August, "I had only to swim to the next pier. Once there I was half saved."

It took him two minutes to reach the next pier. He clambered up the side, took off his underwear and uniform and wrung them out so he wouldn't look as if he had just come out of the water. He tore the metal buttons off his coat and put the clothes on again. He had to cross a street, but in a crowd of harbor workers he passed unnoticed. On the other side of the street he found a big drain pipe and he crawled through it.

There was six inches of water and dirt in the drain pipe. He came out between two coal piles, wet and filthy. Now he was within a few hundred yards of his goal—the German ship. It was getting light now. His escape had taken him all night. But in a few more minutes he was aboard the German ship—safe!

August's fellow countrymen hid him until the ship sailed at around noon. In a few weeks he was back in Germany, and a year or so later he came to the United States. He thinks this is a swell country, and he thinks Germany is a swell country, too. But his advice to young fellows who want to see the world is: "Stay away from Africa. You might not get out of it as easily as I did."

BY THEIR DEEDS

MYRTA ALLICE LITTLE
Copyright—WNU Service

GRANDFATHER Rollins lived alone in a neat yellow house tucked down in the center of a hundred fertile acres of woodland, fields, pastures and garden plots, and one or two acres of old fashioned blueberry swamp—the only worthless land on the place. Grandfather had soft, wavy white hair and twinkling blue eyes.

Ever since grandmother had gone the neighbors asked him why he didn't write for son Ned and his wife and boy to come. Plenty of room in the snug house, and little third generation Ned would make the world a new place for Grandfather.

Ned had always been headstrong, independent, caring neither to borrow nor to lend. A grouch the neighbors used to call him, and grandfather had spent no end of time trying to explain that Ned meant well; it was just his way—until even the neighbors began to believe it was true. Now Madge needed to be explained too. Madge was very much like Ned, only more selfish, it seemed. But the boy—when he had come, it seemed as if grandfather's cup of joy would spill over completely.

He went to the city twice to see the baby and every year in the winter he made them a visit, during which Ned and Madge spoke continually of the farm and its possibilities. They appeared to adore grandfather.

Then one day in July came a letter from the son, telling of business reverses, of the shutting down of the factory seemingly for good. The family would have to move to a crowded part of the city, and with young Ned needing country air—Grandfather's hands trembled.

"For a long time," Ned wrote, "it has seemed to me, father, that if we were all living with you, that you would be much better contented. If we came of course, we would do everything to make you happy and nothing to interfere with the regular order of your days, and in return it would be only fair that you make a definite settlement of the farm upon me." There was more, and finally the words: "A deed passing from you to me upon our arrival would insure, as it were, value received. You see what I mean."

Grandfather thought he saw. It was like Ned to put it that way. Grandfather began to wonder if the factory had shut down. He inquired from a friend and found that it had not. It looked as if, very simply, Ned wanted the farm before grandfather had finished with it, and was willing to pay for it in making him happier, and not interfering with an old man's habits.

Grandfather's family arrived the next week, bag and baggage. "We'll try it out a month before I pass over the deed" said Grandfather cannily.

Such a month it was! Ned asked his father's advice about everything from putting a new picket in the fence or a piece of their own furniture in the parlor, to hiring an extra hand for the haying. And Madge changed her menu habits and served carefully and cheerfully the meals to which grandfather had been accustomed. She made butter, and scrubbed, and darned, and read the newspaper to Grandfather.

At the end of the month, Grandfather Rollins quietly sure, called the two Neds and Madge together in the parlor and thanked them all for their kindness and then, reverently, as became so serious a matter, he laid the deed in Ned's eager hands. "Put it away carefully," he said. "It's sealed!" He waited for some word of appreciation. But none came.

Instead, exactly as if Grandfather himself had been eliminated entirely. Ned took the floor. "Now, Madge," he said, "we'll send to the city for our stuff and store the old haircloth in the barn. And what say for fried clams and French fried and frozen pudding for supper? You can move father's things into the back bedroom. Ned, you can have the old man's workshop for your playroom. Throw out his truck."

Then young Ned spoke up. Grandfather and I'll use that shop

THE REST OF THE RECORD

By JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

Several months ago, when the industrial North and East were paralyzed with sit-down strikes, I issued a statement that we were not going to have any confiscation of property in that fashion down here in Texas. I said I was convinced that the sit-down strike method did not represent the desires of an overwhelming majority of organized labor in our State and that while I was and had always been friendly to organized labor, it was "un-American and unlawful to sit down on somebody's property and try to remain there." It a man wants to quit a job, or strike, he has a perfect right peaceably to do so; but after quitting he has no more right to sit down on property or premises without permission than he would have to sit down in a private home uninvited.

The people of Texas approved of my statement because it represented the sentiments of an overwhelming majority of them. We haven't had any sit-down strikes in Texas and we have had very little labor troubles as compared to other states.

Now another unfortunate situation has developed. Recently in Dallas a man who was trying to show a pro-labor picture in a public park was kidnaped and taken out into the country by a bunch of hoodlums who tarred and feathered him. Another labor organizer was kidnaped and beaten so brutally that he was laid up in the hospital for over a week. Other outrages or a lesser nature were perpetrated and threats were freely being made as to what was going to be done to labor organizers.

Everyone concedes that labor has a right to organize and to select organizers and leaders of their own choosing. The freedom of speech and the right to assemble peaceably are guaranteed by both State and Federal Constitutions. The brutal treatment accorded these men in Dallas is indefensible. I recall a few years ago when the unfortunate Ku Klux Klan epidemic broke out and many men were taken from their homes at night and flogged because they had violated laws. The people of Texas rose up in their might and took the position that even if a man had violated the law he was entitled to trial in a courthouse and not in a creek bottom. Today it isn't even claimed that the men who were kidnaped or tarred and feathered were violating the law. All that was said by those who perpetrated the outrages was that the men belonged to the CIO. It isn't a violation of the laws of our country for these men to belong to the CIO, regardless of what we may think of that organization.

In my opinion it is just as important to protect people from outrages of this kind as to prevent the taking of property from the rightful owners by the sit-down strike or other unlawful method. Because I didn't want to see the thing get started again in Texas I immediately sent twenty-five members of the State police to Dallas with instructions to protect the men in their right to speak freely and to assemble lawfully. These officers are in-together, Dad," he said. "We're pals."

Another month went by with the city home and its manners established in the yellow house in the midst of a hundred good acres and two of swamp, where Ned and his grandfather picked blueberries and talked long summer talks together.

At the end of the second month there was another family party in the little city furnished parlor. Grandfather Rollins was master of ceremonies. He asked his son to produce the deed he had given him and break the seal.

"Now read!" Grandfather commanded. Ned read and his face went white. Madge read and her face flamed.

All but grandfather seemed suddenly struck speechless. "Ned, son, you use that two acres of blueberry swamp I decided to you when you thought you had a deed for the whole farm—for anything you like. Great place to think, and nobody to hinder. Sorry my deed disappointed you, but your deeds have disappointed me."

structed not to take sides in any controversy but simply to prevent violence on either side.

I was surprised to get a bunch of inspired telegrams apparently approving the treatment given to these organizers because, the telegrams said, they were members of the CIO. I don't care to what organization they belong. If they violate any law they ought to be prosecuted for it; but no set of men has the right to take the law into their own hand and kidnap, or tar and feather, these men. I think the people of Texas are backing me up in this stand.

Since the State Police went to Dallas the troubles have practically ceased. I am very hopeful that the situation will adjust itself without any further trouble.

I really wish the general public could know in detail the many fine things that have been accomplished by the Public Safety Department. I am particularly proud of the intelligence branch. In this division we have fingerprinting, handwriting and ballistic experts. This has been a great help to local officers everywhere and, of course, has materially assisted the State in dealing with the more hardened type of criminal.

Just as illustrative of what has been done in the one field of ballistic work: As perhaps most of you know the men from his department can take a bullet that has been fired and trace it to the gun that fired it by markings on the bullet. They have done this in many instances and solved cases that might otherwise have gone down as "perfect crimes."

For instance, recently in one Texas town a man was murdered at night as he slept. He was not robbed and officers were at a loss for a motive. They did, however, find shotgun shells of a certain type. They picked up every gun of this calibre in the little town and fired some test shells from them and sent the test shells together with the ones found on the ground to Austin. The fired shells from each gun had been numbered and the experts in the Public Safety Department shortly advised that the shell with a certain number on it was from the same gun as that which fired the shells found on the scene of the crime. It was no trouble to trace the ownership of this gun and its use to a negro in the community, who promptly confessed committing the crime. This is just one of a number of similar cases that illustrate how quickly the department can assist your local officers.

Some time ago I had occasion to use the handwriting experts. The state of Illinois had asked for extradition papers on a prominent citizen of this State on charge of forgery alleged to have been committed in Illinois. The notary public who took the acknowledgment in Illinois identified this citizen and in an affidavit asserted that he had seen him sign the instrument in question. While I was hearing the case I had a handwriting expert from the Public Safety Department to go over the alleged forged deed, and compare it with samples of the defendant's handwriting; and before I could close the hearing the experts reported to me that without any question the defendant had not forged the deed. You can imagine how grateful these people were to our Department of Public Safety for the service that cleared the name of a good citizen of Texas.

From time to time I shall try to tell you more of the work of this department and the other departments of the State government in which I think you may be interested.

Dick Mussey returned last Friday from San Antonio where he attended the C. M. T. C. at Camp Bullis and from Palacios where he attended the National Guard encampment. Dick has been gone six weeks and reports that he enjoyed his training in both camps.

Chopsticks Needed
Denton. — Using chopsticks could easily become a Texas fad, considering the amount of rice produced in this state annually. One tabulation shows that enough of it is grown to furnish cereal every day for every breakfast table in the state over a two-year period. In other words, a little matter of 3,245,447 bushels were harvested in 1934, with the majority of this crop coming from the southeastern counties of Matagordo, Wharton, Chambers, Colorado and Liberty.

First in Railroad Mileage
Even with the amount of territory to be covered, the transportation problem in Texas should not be a difficult one. Not only does this state rank first in railroad mileage with 17,000 miles of main line tracks, but a 1930 census shows that there is an automobile for approximately every three families. Texas believes in going places.

Industrial Inspiration
Armadillos may be objects of laughter to some people, but to a farmer in south Texas they are means of a livelihood. An accident was responsible for his discovery. He killed and skinned one of the queer-looking animals one day, put it in the sun, and the heat caused the shell to curl up in the form of a basket. Struck with the idea, he fastened the tail around to make a handle, lined the basket with colored silk and offered it for sale. Tourists liked them, and the idea has now grown into a large and remunerative business.
