SANDERSON TO MEET DEL RIO HERE SUNDAY

Sander son baseball players are scheduled to meet the Del Rio Merchants' Club at the American Legion Park in Sanderson Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

This is a return game, the first being played at Del Rio on the 25th of June with the Del Rio Club defeating the locals by a score of 12 to 5. Six of the 12 runs were made in one inning by the club due to errors on the part of the Sanderson boys when they became rattled. After they had settled down there was only one score made by the Del Rio team in the remaining three innings.

The game promises some real action for local baseball fans and the club is expecting the support of the town.

RANCHERS TO MEET MONDAY

At the regular annual meeting of the Terrell County Ranchmen's Association Monday at the courthouse a financial report was given showing that no debts were outstanding and that the Association had a balance of $7.98 in the treasury. Winford Cunningham, secretary of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association, was the principal speaker, discussing the benefits of the association and what could be accomplished with the two organizations working together against law violations.

Due to the fact that there were not enough qualified voters to elect officers, a meeting has been called for Monday by the secretary, R. N. Allen. He says, "Members, please let us have your presence next Monday. Let's boost our organization and make it go."

JOE KERR OF WEST TEXAS

By A Friend

When on June 29, 1939 the indomitable spirit of the mortal sank into the sunrise of immortality and Joe Kerr of Sanderson passed to where, beyond pen and voice there is peace; to conclude one of the noblest and most colorful careers in the annals of pioneer Texans; and grant to us a sacred memory—a rich heritage for a grateful people.

Words cannot express the loss to Terrell County and West Texas in its social and economic life of a man so marked by traits of human nobleness—as a pioneer merchant and banker in the lands west of the Pecos; the founder of Terrell County, its first judge and the builder of a progressive community—successful as a banker, merchant and livestock warehouseman; he was well known throughout the state and respected; but the qualities that endeared him to his people, were his gracious simplicity, and unselfish consideration for others. Men in time of trouble turned to "Mister" Joe and Latin Americans to "Pelo Negro"—in every case the helping hand was extended. Unworthy indeed was the man who failed of his assistance.

No printed rule of life or code of ethics graced the walls of his office—a kindly blue eye—a warm hand clasp and an understanding heart framed the noblest rule of conduct known to man—friendship.

Joe Kerr was a devout man but never intolerant; a firm Democrat, but never a partisan—an ambitious public spirited progressive man, devoid of personal vanities or selfish aims. Men of a very creed and walk of life surrounded him in his business—all respected and loved him for the fairness of his outlook and nobleness of character. A man who would have been a great man in any community, he'd have selected to live, he chose West Texas and gave to it unstintingly of his talents to build its social and economic life—to be recognized as one of Texas' truly great livestock men and bankers.

In the building of a raw and rugged West Texas and the firm establishment of the livestock industry—he was fearless and daring but with all, gentle in manner, courteous and dignified in expression. While tolerant of profanity in others; rough expression held no place in his vocabulary; a gentleman by birth and nature.

When the councils of livestock and social leaders meet—men will revere his memory and feel the loss of his counsel.

Donegal, Ireland, gave to West Texas a true nobleman—a great leader and cultured gentleman—who builded well the "Bridge at Eye Tide", surely an inspiration to his people; and the finest precept and example for his stalwart sons who follow.

Those who knew him will cherish the memory of Joe Kerr—Gentleman—his life work is our heritage.

SHE HOLDS RECORD

At least that is what her owners think. Olive is a brown and white collie, and she is less than a year old. Age doesn't seem to make much difference in the accomplishments of Olive however, for Andy Anderson said that on opening the door to the shed where he had locked her up for the night he saw more dogs than he could count at a glance.

Seems that Olive had presented her owners with a litter of eleven just to make an even dozen dogs on the place. Seven of the pups are males and four are females.

The record up to this time for this section of the country so far as is known was a litter of nine by a pet owned in the past by Jim Nance.

CCC TO RESUME BIG BEND WORK NEXT OCTOBER

Santa Fe, N. M.—Development work in the proposed Big Bend National Park will be resumed in October when a CCC company will move into the Chisos mountains camp that was closed in December, 1937, it was announced here today by Herbert Maier, acting regional director of the National Park Service. The work to consist mainly of roads and trails construction will be confined to the Big Bend State Park, which will become part of the proposed national park.

Reoccupation of the CCC camp was decided upon, Maier said, as the result of the action taken at the recent session of the Texas Legislature in providing machinery to transfer state-owned land in the Big Bend to the Federal Government. These lands aggregate about 240,000 acres of the 788,000 acres that will comprise the national park.

A committee headed by Amos Carter of Fort Worth has been formed to raise the funds for the purchase of the acreage that is privately owned. These combined holdings must be deeded to the Federal Government before Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes can carry out the authorization given by Congress to establish the national park.

"The Big Bend area has been so widely publicized," Maier said, "that there is certain to be a big influx of visitors almost immediately after the park has been finished. We are anxious that some of the preliminary development be completed in time to permit those people to get into major areas of the park. Accordingly, recommendation was made to Director Robert Fechner of the Civil Conservation Corps, that the Big Bend CCC camp be reoccupied when the fourteenth period begins in October, and Fechner has agreed to that."

Wildlife Notes

Austin.—A new type instructive-entertainment, sportsmen's shows, which have attracted tens of thousands of spectators in Eastern cities is invading Texas. Elaborate preparations are being made for the first of these, the Southwest Sportsmen's Show, which will be staged at Amarillo for one week beginning June 26 and which is expected to attract 30,000 persons.

The show, being staged by the sportsmen of the Panhandle, will present the greatest galaxy of outdoor sports talent and the most extensive collection of exhibits of outdoor life of the Southwest ever attempted. The Texas game department is co-operating in this educational event by providing displays of game animals and by showing its library of color motion pictures of Texas game birds, animals and fish.

Champions in archery, rifle and pistol shooting, casting, will show their wares daily during the show. A complete aquarium is being built and will be stocked with every game fish known to Texas. Two continuous motion picture shows in air-conditioned theatres will compose part of the entertainment. A lake is being built for casting exhibitions. Champion dogs, including pointers, setters and retrievers, will be displayed. The show offers far more activities than that of any other staged in the United States.

It has been many, many years since there have been bears in most sections of Texas, but a few remain in the Trans-Pecos region, and the largest killed in a score of years was reported recently by State Game Warden T. S. Redford. The bruin, slain by a party of ranchers under the supervision of the game warden, weighed 463 pounds. It was tacked down after having killed 25 sheep in the Davis Mountains. The open season on bear is from November 16 to December 31, but special permission was obtained from the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission to slay the sheep-killing bruin.

Fish often get the last laugh on the careless angler, in fact far too often. Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Game Department, sighed the other day.

The very same chap who is the most careful hunter in the world will do the most utterly absurd things while in a boat. A bill to enforce safety rules upon the fresh waters of Texas failed to squeeze through during the closing days of the forty-six legislature, but if fishermen will observe a few common-sense rules there will be less casualties.

Tucker's safety suggestions: Don't permit a boat to become overcrowded; don't venture on a big lake in a small craft without any thought of perils of weather (State Game Wardens recently rescued four boatloads of fishermen on Lake Buchanan in a single day). Don't stand in the boat when another person is casting; don't stand up a la tight-wire act to change seats; don't lash around without regard to harm the others from a plug with many hooks; don't land a canoe improperly; don't use BOTTLE BAIT while in a boat; don't race large boats too closely to a small craft.

Veteran fisherman J. T. Cooper and George Brogdon of Eastland, Texas, will probably be more alert the next time they go fishing. While angling on Eastland Lake recently, but with no success, they were startled when a bass they estimated weighed every bit of four pounds leaped high into the air and landed in their boat. George shouted "String him up," but before either of them could reach the fish it had flopped them a goodbye and was back in the water. The anglers went home with the old fish stringer empty.

Some rather interesting data on the food habits were obtained recently when State Game Warden H. A. Ellis killed a 12-

High School Training Cars Like "Dummy" Plane

How to drive a modern car will become a regular part of the curriculum for the first time this fall when a special class in Motor Vehicle Operation will be opened for students over fourteen years of age at the high school in Highland Park, Mich. For this unusual course, local school and police officials have designed an automotive counterpart of the Link Training Plane, (lower left), that simulates every activity of an airplane, yet remains safely on the ground.

Individual dummy automobiles for the students to "drive" through traffic situations flashed on a movie screen (lower right) were built to the educators' special design. Instead of engine and wheels, the units are wired to an electric "tell-tale" board at the front of the room. This is shown in the picture above, as instructor V. J. Hoffman demonstrates the apparatus for D. S. Eddins and Police Chief Dan Patch of Highland Park who witnessed first trial session of the class. School officials plan to make the driving class an individual elective course, with credit given to all high school students who pass. For this work, the school had constructed six driving compartments of the latest type—complete with self-rising front seats for proper eye-level, new style gearshifts mounted under the steering wheel, "safety" signal speedometers to warn of dangerous driving speeds, accelerator and all foot controls.

ACCIDENTS ARE INCREASED IN MONTH OF MAY

Austin.—Multi-fatal accidents showed a marked increase in May seven of them claiming 22 lives, a state police compilation showed today.

The May death toll included 97 persons killed in May traffic, one more succumbing from a February accident, four more from March injuries and 12 more from April crashes.

In one crash, five lives were lost; in two crashes, four died in each; in another, three were fatally hurt; and in three accidents two persons were killed in each crash.

The May figures also revealed an abrupt increase in the number of crashes on county roads, an increase which state police said may have resulted from defective vehicles forsaking the highways for less traveled roads. Twenty fatalities occurred on county roads as compared with 31 on city streets and 63 on designated highways.

There were fatalities in 28 pedestrian accidents, 29 motor vehicles crashes and 27 non-collision crashes, while there were only three fatal accidents involving trains, two involving bicycles, one involving a horse-drawn vehicle, nine involving fixed objects and none involving livestock or electric cars.

The tomato originated in America and was long regarded as a poisonous plant in Europe. Today there are more than a hundred recognized improved varieties.

foot 'gator in Caddo Lake. The alligator had defied several boatloads of fishermen.

It was found when the four hundred-pounder was opened that his stomach contained turtles, grass leaves, feathers, but no fish. There were six turtles ranging in size from four to nine inches in diameter.

A mother quail was able to lure a cat away from her nest near the garage of Welton Wilson in Longview, Texas, recently, but it cost her her life. However, her seventeen offspring are being taken care of by Mr. Wilson. They are being raised by the Longview Longview High School, as a demonstration project for his classes and will be released in a section suitable for the raising of quail when they are grown.

Health of Baby During Summer Heat Discussed

Austin.—As the thermometer shows signs of climbing higher and higher some of the ways by which babies may be kept well and comfortable during the hot weather may be safeguarded against "summer complaint" are outlined by the State Department of Health.

"The best way to keep your baby well," advises the department, "is to take well baby to your doctor regularly for advice and supervision, and to follow the doctor's instructions carefully and very faithfully. If your baby develops any digestive trouble, call your family doctor at once. He'll tell you what to do.

"Summer complaint," or cholera infantum as it is sometimes called, and other digestive diseases that are dangerous for babies, are germ diseases. The germs that cause the disease get into the baby's food or in the water given the baby to drink. Babies who are nursed by their mothers and who are given cooled, boiled water to drink are protected from these sources of danger. Care should be taken not to wean a baby in hot weather except under doctor's orders.

"If mother's milk is not available, the best substitute for it is fresh cow's milk or unsweetened evaporated milk mixed with an equal quantity of water. If sugar or additional water is needed, it should be mixed with the milk according to your doctor's orders. All milk or milk mixtures given to children up to two years of age should be boiled. The feedings should be kept in individual bottles and kept on ice until used. Each feeding should be warmed as needed.

Always wash the hands thoroughly before preparing the baby's food, and before handling the baby's bottle. All dishes, pots, pans, bottles, nipples should be sterilized by boiling.

Throw out any milk left in the bottle after feeding. Don't leave the bottle in the baby's crib or carriage. It will attract dirt and flies. Rinse out the bottle; put the nipple aside, and see that both are sterilized by boiling before using again.

Be very careful to protect the baby and the baby's food against flies. Flies are potent disease carriers. Keep a supply of clean mosquito netting on hand to throw over the baby's crib or carriage while the baby sleeps. Some of the diarrheal diseases that grown-ups have are catching. Keep the baby away from people—both children and grown-ups—who are suffering from the disease.

If your baby develops diarrheal trouble, don't let it go on. Call your family physician at once.

Brewers everywhere realize that this is a question bound up with the proper distribution of their mild and wholesome beverage through retail outlets whose owner-acter will be a credit to the community. Twice Elected
To Presidency

Being twice elected to the highest office in school is the unique honor bestowed upon Miss Mary Jones of Frost. This spring she was chosen by a large majority of her 2800 classmates at Texas State College for Women to serve during the 1939-40 regular session as president of the student body. Again this summer she was elected president of the student body for the summer session. Mary Jones has been a class officer every year in college.

Texas Has Largest Natural Gas Reservoir In The World

Texas furnished last year over 36 per cent of all the natural gas produced and marketed in United States, according to a report recently completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

The development of natural gas resources in Texas has closely followed that of oil development. The Panhandle gas field is the largest natural gas reservoir in the world from which natural gas is piped to a large number of consuming states. Texas is not only the largest producer of natural gas but also the heaviest consumer, even though large volumes of gas are transported out of the state by pipe lines.

Interstate movement of natural gas involves large receipts from surrounding states to offset heavy shipments of the state. Nearly 76 per cent of all the marketed natural gas production in Texas is consumed within the state for industrial and domestic purposes.

As a result of the state's large natural gas production, numerous allied industries have been created which furnish employment to thousands of Texas people. Among these are the production of natural gasoline from gas and the manufacture of carbon black from so-called "sour" gas. These allied industries, along with the natural gas business, comprise a substantial part of the state's sources of tax revenue.

Since 1927, the production of natural gas in Texas has increased from 17 per cent to 36 per cent of the nation's output; natural gasoline production within the same period increased from 19 per cent to nearly 32 per cent of the national supply, while the production of carbon black has in this eleven-year period shown an increase from 28 per cent to 32 per cent of the entire output of carbon black in the United States.

Errol Flynn In "Dodge City"
Technicolor Epic, Coming Monday

The roughest and toughest cattle town in the history of the western frontier is the setting for the vigorous tale of virile adventure told in "Dodge City," the Warner Bros production in technicolor starring Errol Flynn, which shows Monday and Tuesday at the Princess Theatre.

Other members of what is undoubtedly the most notable cast ever assembled in a picture dealing with western pioneer days include Olivia de Havilland, Ann McHugh, Alan Hale, John Litel, Henry Travers, Henry O'Neill, Victor Jory, William Lundigan and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams. Aside from its brilliant and obviously impressive cast, the picture is distinguished by its magnificent and authentic recreation of the scene and the times depicted. The lavish detail with which the Dodge City of the 1870's and the great plains which surrounded it are vividly brought to life on the screen make it easily believable that, as reported the studio spent a million and half dollars on the production. In brilliant, technicolor the vast production is said to give the spectators the feeling that history is being revealed before their very eyes.

Putting the manifestly British Errol Flynn into a tale of frontier America may seem a little strange to those who are not too well acquainted with the actual history of the old west. As a matter of fact, the annals of those times record more than one venturesome Briton who acquired distinction as a he-man in a region where a man without virility and courage could not long survive.

The story of "Dodge City" is laid in the period when this little community in the southwest corner of Kansas, as the northern terminus of the famous old Chisholm trail and the western terminus of the Santa Fe Railway, became the west's greatest cattle shipping center.

At the opening of the picture, a great herd of longhorn steers is shown moving up the Chisholm trail toward Dodge City, and the trail boss of the herd is Errol Flynn, an Irish Soldier-of-fortune who had drifted out west after fighting for the South in the Civil War.

Dodge City, when Flynn arrives there, is under the domination of a group of murderous thugs headed by Bruce Cabot. Right after Flynn's arrival he has an angry encounter with Cabot and the small but brave law-abiding element, impressed by Flynn's temerity, urges Flynn to become sheriff and help clean up the town.

He declines, but a few days later, after the man to whom he has sold his cattle is murdered and Cabot causes the death of a child by starting a runaway in front of his saloon-gambling hall he changes his mind. Meanwhile, McHugh, the crusading editor of the little town paper, has uncovered evidence which, he announces, will convict one of Cabot's henchmen of the murder of a cattleman. He says he will turn over his evidence to the new sheriff, but before he can do so, he too is murdered.

Olivia, who has been working on the paper, takes over the murdered editor's work, and she and the new sheriff finally get enough evidence to arrest the Cabot henchman whom McHugh had accused of murder. Then the cleanup campaign really begins.

and adventure pictures because of his previous work on such productions as "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Captain Blood."

The supporting cast of featured players and thousands of extras is one of the best assembled for an important picture this year.

Teamed with Flynn in the lead is Olivia de Havilland who has become identified as the screen sweetheart of the adventuring Irishman through a parade of hits. Starting with "Captain Blood" a few years ago, the star pair continued through such smash films as "Charge of the Light Brigade," "Four's A Crowd," and "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

Alan Hale, who acted as Flynn's right hand man, "Little John" in "Robin Hood," has a similar role in "Dodge City," playing another venturesome cattleman from the plains of Texas. "Big Boy" Williams forms the third member of the triumvirate which succeeds in making an impression on the lawless community that scourged the up-and-coming community of Dodge.

The picture has already attracted a wealth of comment all over the country as a result of the tremendous world premier held right in Dodge City, Kansas immediately prior to its general release.

A special train bearing the stars of the picture, production staff, film executives, newspaper and magazine writers arrived in Dodge City where a great civic festival had already been proclaimed for the week.

Joan Blondell Bing Crosby In Human Picture

Down to earth humanism combined with music so catchy that you just naturally hum it as you leave the theatre is a movie formula guaranteed to please.

And it more than pleases in Universal's new Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell picture, "East Side of Heaven," at the Princess theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Bing is a cruising troubadour, or to put it more plainly, a singing taxi driver. Joan, his sweetheart, is a hotel telephone operator. Mischa Auer is Bing's unemployed roommate who has learned from reading the stars that he should not even look for work before 1942.

There is your background for the story. And all three players do a successful job of making you like them because you know them so well. You have known them so long—the girl down the block, the boy in that cheap fourth-floor room and that other likeable fellow who will go to end of trouble to keep way from work.

This trio would be quite sufficient in any picture. But in "East Side of Heaven," they are aided, and very materially, by "Sandy," the cutest infant ever to face a movie camera.

"Sandy" is deposited with Crosby by Irene Hervey, who takes this means of keeping her baby from her wealthy and hard-fisted father-in-law, portrayed by C. Aubrey Smith. That's when the fun really starts. Fun such as you have rarely seen until you watch Bing, Joan and Mischa try to take care of the youngster.

Then there is the music, four brand new lilting tunes of the kind you want to sing, whistle or hum in or out of a shower bath. They are called "East Side of Heaven," "Sing a Song of Sunbeams," "That Sly Old Gentleman From Featherbed Lane" and "Hang Your Heart on a Hickory Limb." Johnnie Burke and James Monaco, two of America's favorite composers, wrote them. Crosby sings them in that style which is all his own. Furthermore, each song has a definite and natural place in the plot.

This was taken care of by Herbert Polesie and David Butler, William Conselman who did the screenplay. Butler also directed the picture giving it reality, smoothness and movement seldom equalled on the screen.

Railroads on Parade In Exhibit At New York Fair

One of the exhibits at the great New York World's Fair has almost literally "laid 'em in the aisles." That is the exhibit put on by America's railroads, under the title "Railroads on Parade." It is not only an industrial exhibit but a review, complete with music, story and dancing, and it has met with the overwhelming praise of cynical dramatic critics as well as the general public.

It's a fitting thing that the railroad show should be outstanding at the fair, for the railroad has been outstanding in American history. It wasn't much more than 100 years ago when the first steam locomotive, a tiny, slow, uncertain thing compared to the splendid roaring monsters that serve us today, was put in service. And men are still living who can remember when the Golden Spike was driven at Promontory, and the two great oceans were linked with spans of steel.

In that brief century which has been the life of the railroads, this nation has come up from a relatively poor, undeveloped country to its present position of world leadership in industry, in finance and commerce and arts, in all that makes a civilization. And there is not a single achievement in which the railroads have not played a part—and very often, a dominant part. It was the railroads that made possible the winning of the West, and the establishment of great cities, farms, and industries in a once barren land. It was the railroads that made possible the development of our great Eastern industrial centers, which give jobs to teeming millions and swiftly and economically serve consumers thousands of miles away. It was the railroads which immensely broadened the market for the farmer to the extent that a citrus fruit grower in the South can sell his wares in Chicago, and a potato producer in New England finds buyers in the Southwest.

Robert Coleman of the New York Mirror, writes that the railroad show at the fair "deserves a 21-gun salute." There can be no limit to the salute the railroads deserve for their important role in building this vast nation of ours.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Williams, and daughter, Dawn, left Sunday for Menden, La., where they will visit with B. L. Ellington, father of Mrs. Williams. Mrs. Williams and daughter will remain for an extended visit while Mr. Williams will return to College Station for the 29th Annual Farmer's Short Course and county Agent's meeting.

dances to arrange for, the park to hire, the advertising to procure and various other details which in reality are man-sized jobs themselves. And for one or two men to see to the carrying out of these details—it's just too much to expect.

If the ranchmen, rodeo hands and businessmen of Sanderson and vicinity could get together and organize a Sanderson Rodeo Association, the problem would be solved. There could then be a livestock committee, a doney committee, a grounds committee, a publicity committee, etc., all of which could perform their duties with ease and efficiency.

We're not knocking the ability of the promoters of Sanderson's previous rodeos; they've all done good jobs, and should be commended for their efforts. But think how much better a job they could do if they were all working together toward a common goal.

The association could be drawn up in the form of a corporation, with each member owning as many shares of stock (at $25 or $50 per share) as he wished. In this way approximately every civic-minded person in and around Sanderson could feel that the Sanderson rodeo was partly his rodeo; and therefore would take a much greater interest in it than before.

And, after a few years, the association would undoubtedly start paying dividends; and the merchants and ranchmen who each year contribute to the rodeo would be realizing a profit on the investment.

This arrangement, it seems, is the one for Sanderson. Let's think it over—something about it—for Sanderson's 1940 rodeo.

Big Canyon ranch has lamb crop of around 300 to local buyers at a price of $3.90 per head. It is to be on or before August. Over half of these lambs are to be fat enough to go to market.

A. A. Shelton has sold 900 head of mutton good reported price of $3 per head. Decie Bros. of Marathon, very is to take place today.
