ure of both. and more. when he encounters a lovely damsel of the desert who saves his life. The tenderfoot is almost murdered by his treacherous representative when along comes a kindly, plous rancher who saves his life from an agonizing death in a quicksand pit. The rancher's daughter nurses him through the crises. Not much time is wasted. For before long. the tenderfoot discovers he's fallen in love with his benefactress. A jealous cow-hand tries to make things tough for the stranger but only succeeds in ruining his own chances.

The romance is adroitly subordinated to the wild lustly action thus making "Heritage of the Desert" not only pleasing film fare to the ladies but also very acceptable to he-men. "Heritage of the Desert" is by far one of Harry Sheman's best productions. Lesley Selaner's direction is top-notch.

Six years ago a 17-year-old girl walked into the offices of the dramatics department of Texas State College for Women and announced her intentions of becoming a movie actress. Her name was Ardis Ankerson; her home town San Antonio. In a few weeks now Warner Brothers will release "Espionage Agent." The feminine lead will be played by Brenda Marshall, the Ardis Ankerson who has insisted that she would be a movie actress since she was eight years old. Joel McCrea will play opposite her. In college Miss Ankerson was permitted to take advanced dramatics courses while she was yet an underclassman, and she was the only underclassman ever admitted to the College Little Theater.

To be held at my ranch at Paisano Pass ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6

Sale will start at 8:00 a.m., and will continue daily until all cattle offered for sale are sold. This is not an auction sale.

On October 2nd, I will place in pens at the ranch fifty head of top young bulls and fifty head of senior yearling heifers for inspection by all interested cattlemen. On the following Friday morning the sale will begin. This is also the date of the sale of some three thousand head of high quality feeder calves and yearlings at the HIGHLAND FAIR at Marfa. It will profit all interested cattlemen to attend this series of sales. This can be easily done since my ranch is located adjacent to the all-paved highway U. S. 90 between Alpine and Marfa, about fifteen minutes run from either place. Cattle will be in pens, with plenty of parking space, just off the highway. There will be three or four pens each of bulls and females. All stock in each pen will be of breeding age and will be sold in numbers to suit purchasers. Cattle will be in pleasing condition but not highly fitted. They will carry no excess fat, and, since there will be no fancy catalog or high-powered auctioneer's services to pay for, they will sell at modest prices and the buyer will reap the profit.

My range bulls were good enough to capture SECOND, THIRD, FOURTH, and SIXTH PRIZES at the GREAT WESTERN LIVESTOCK SHOW in Los Angeles, Calif., last November in competition with bulls from many states. Come, look these cattle over, and buy, if interested; if not, I shall be very glad to have you as a spectator. For further information, address :
