Candidates for the Legislature Oppose Sales Tax

Austin. — More than 90 percent of all candidates for both houses of the legislature running for the office in this election are opposed to a sales tax according to a survey completed here Saturday night by the Statistical Bureau.

The survey was started when announcements first began being made and a late check-up Saturday, showed that in making their announcements and in campaigning for the House of Representatives and the Texas Senate that candidates are opposed to a sales tax in any form.

The passage of the bill by overwhelming majorities at the last session of the legislature showed that the House at that time highly favored a tax on oil, gas and sulphur, but due to lack of support from the governor's office both of these bills died in their early days of passage in the Senate.

There are almost 400 candidates for the two houses of the Texas legislature now making the race. Many of these are seeking reelection and they are standing by their "guns fired in the session," and the new candidates, according to the survey, are also opposed to the sales tax, be it called transaction tax, or gross receipts tax.

Jerry Sadler is the avowed foe of the sales tax who seeks the governor's office. He has expressed himself as unalterably opposed to a sales tax in any form and is making the race on a platform to pay old age pension and other social security obligations with increased taxes on oil, gas and sulphur.

DELEGATES TO INSPECT MASONRY DAMS IN TERRELL CO.

Systematic spreading of water over a wide area of rangeland will be inspected by delegates to the National Range Conference in West Texas June 24-28.

On the George Jones ranch in Jeff Davis county, the ranchmen and AAA officials attending the conference will observe the effectiveness of a system of spreading dams which divert water which comes down from the hills and spreads it over the ranch. The use of the dam enable Jones, who cooperates fully with the Range Conservation Program, to maintain good stands of grass where otherwise the coverage would be sparse.

In other countries, the delegates will view various practices adopted by ranchmen under the program, such as prickly pear eradication in Val Verde county, masonry dams in Terrell county, cedar eradication in Kimble county, and contour furrowing in Midland county. Delegates from 17 range states will attend the conference which starts at Midland and ends at San Angelo where the business sessions will be held Friday, June 28.

Speakers at the conference will include R. M. Evans, national AAA administrator, Grover B. Hill assistant secretary of agriculture, and I. W. Women's Committee Favors Tax On Natural Resources

Mumford.—Determined to get a definite commitment from every legislative candidate on the question of natural resource taxes to pay social security obligations, the Women's Committee on Economic Policy for Texas today had laid down the first barrage of a drive for fulfillment of its legislative program Mrs. Jud Collier of Mumford, chairman, announced.

Instructions have been mailed to 1,000 Texas women leaders, asking them to get a frank, unequivocal statement from all legislative candidates as to whether they favor an increase of natural resource taxes to pay old age pensions to the needy and to finance the teachers' retirement program, Mrs. Collier declared.

"We have prepared a special questionnaire which these women leaders will have all candidates sign, and these signed forms will be returned to state headquarters for compilation," she pointed out.

"We are standing by our motto, 'We Are Tired of Nonsense.' We mean business in this drive for just taxation. We think our own social security needs should be financed by reasonable taxes on our natural resources which today flow in an unending stream to other states and to Germany, Italy and Japan.

"The only way to lay the groundwork for such a drive is to get a signed commitment from all legislative candidates now. The women of Texas are going to get these commitments, and then they are going to elect candidates who stand for this form of taxation," Mrs. Collier asserted.

With Mrs. Collier as chairman and Mrs. Margaret Reading of Waller as secretary-treasurer, the committee consists of leading women who are pledged to the group's tax-social security program.

OGLESBY'S OGLES

By Whitfield Oglesby

It is my belief that public opinion will eventually demand that Congress declare war on the Dictators. The majority of the country is now for compulsory military training. President Roosevelt has mentioned that he will send a request to Congress for such legislation.

Compulsory military training would permit an immediate expansion of the Army for any emergency that might arise. General Pershing has expressed his full approval and he recalls the training of recruits during the World War took many months.

It will be remembered that though the nations to which the United States had allied herself were able to provide much equipment, necessity of training even Regulars to new conditions of war fare caused months to elapse before American soldiers went into action. Immediate action is demanded now. It would be criminal to send an American Army into the field with the equipment we now have available.

The events of the past week have pushed the war closer to our shores. Every indication points to a successful German invasion of the British Isles. France is fighting with her back against the wall. And with these two Democracies disposed of the United States will be the only great bearer of democratic ideals. Our oceans will probably protect us from invasion but they cannot ward off economic pressures. Germany will head a combination of Italy, Russia (?) and Japan applying such economic pressures. It is logical to believe that Germany will encourage Japanese domination in the Far East. If Japan ever wanted the Dutch East Indies (Insulinde) they must realize their golden opportunity is at hand. Such a Japanese move will force our hand. It is evident from Secretary Cordell Hull's statements in the past regarding Far East status this country will not tolerate such a move.

Congratulations to Mr. J. C. Mitchell for a splendid article.

Highway Accident Rate Hits Peak on Weekends

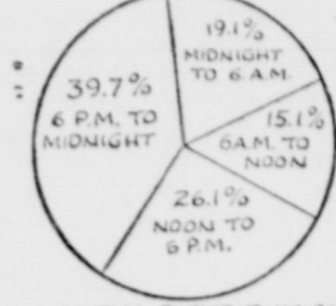

Sunday is the most dangerous day of the week on which to drive and the hours from 6 p.m. to midnight are the most perilous hours of each day. These conclusions are drawn from an analysis of America's highway accident record for 1939, just published in "Smash Hits of the Year," the tenth annual booklet issued in the interests of street and highway safety by The Travelers Insurance Company.

Next to Sunday, Saturday is the most hazardous day to venture out on the highways. Fewest accidents happen on Wednesday. An unexplainable fact revealed by the figures is that although there are more persons killed on Sundays, there are more injuries on Saturdays. Fatal accidents increase sharply each day after 4 p.m. and rise to a peak between seven and eight in the evening. They taper off then, but jump sharply again at about midnight—the hour when parties break up. The high point for injuries is reached daily between four and six p.m., indicating that dusk darkness and fatigue are strong factors in bringing the accident curve to its peak toward the close of the day.

gelo Junior Chamber of Commerce was crowned "Queen of the Water Carnival" Saturday night. Eighteen beauties from West Texas towns competed in the revue the second night. Evalon Dean, named Miss McCamey Friday night, was judged the runner-up. Both received beautiful loving cups.

Ozona Stockman—Clay Adams hooked a 125-pound tarpon which measured more than six feet in length and landed the big fellow after a terrific battle which lasted 2 hours and 20 minutes. The fish was the biggest of the species caught in the gulf waters this season, the Ozonians were told.

Good Roads Are Necessary For National Security

Austin—"Roads rule the world," a theme sounded at the last session of America's great road congress only a few months ago is assuming more and more emphatic meaning as Adolf Hitler's great war machine rolls on and on. This and the fact that recent U. S. Army maneuvers in East Texas and Louisiana revealed the deplorable inadequacy of our highway system demands that immediate action be taken upon a plan for constructing a system of roads adequate to support a concentrated military movement of any consequence. In an article, "Roads and War," in the June issue of Texas Parade, Charles E. Simons discusses the importance of an adequate system of highways to national security.

Texas road planners and Texas Highway Department long have been interested in the efficiency of the highway system as an integral unit of the national defense plan," he writes. "The thought long has been entertained that Texas highways, thousands of miles of which are obsolete for normal civilian traffic, could not withstand the shock of the heavy motorized equipment with which the Army was being furnished. There has been no theater of operations to determine conclusively this belief. As long ago as four years, The Texas Good Roads Association urged Congress to give consideration to the question of laying plans for the heavy demands that would be made on the highway system in time of war. Consistently, Texas Parade and other publications, including military and engineering journals, have focused attention on the highway system as the basis of troop, artillery and supply movements.

"Congress paid little attention. People who spotlighted such things were called 'alarmists.' Federal highway aid appropriations for the 1940 fiscal year were slashed deeply. Heavy slashes were made in the highway ap. propriations for 1941. Huge funds were supplied, however, to the relief agencies and much road recent Army movements in East Texas and Louisiana. The story is not marked with blood, because the maneuver was only a mock war. It could easily be blotted with blood had the operations been undertaken under conditions of actual warfare where our armed forces were exposed to the power and wrath of enemy guns and equipment.

"Every newspaper reader is familiar with the statements from the European front:— 'The movement of men and supplies to the front was seriously handicapped by the flood of refugees pouring out in advance of the invading forces. Imagine the confusion that would exist on the highway between Galveston and Houston were it necessary for a division of troops to reach the island city.

"The recent maneuvers revealed the hopeless condition of East Texas bridges and culverts, unpaved roads and main highways in the transportation of mechanized troops. Much of the surfacing went to pieces under the pounding and a very large mileage of our state highways will have to be reconstructed at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars. Experience obtained at so costly a price should be a major influence in future planning. The United States should prepare for any and all eventualities. But it will do little good to have the hundreds of thousands of troops, mighty guns, masses of motorized equipment, gigantic stores of ammunition, goods, gasoline, etc., without the means of transporting them.

UNCLE SAM ON THE FARM

Printed from the Gene Reporter-News

one of a series of articles on the government in farm...

RAY DAVIDSON

Sam came to the farm in 1933. At that time, he did a lot of things; but these were not to be confused with his work on the farm. His droppings in agriculture merits consideration in a class by itself. Government got into the business after considerable pressure from farmers who were in the deplorable misery.

that after each new tariff increase, exports of farm products appreciably because foreign buyers had nothing to barter for American cotton and other products.

Agricultural leaders had for some time been telling Uncle Sam that the farmer need some sort of subsidy to counteract the harmful effect of tariff; and that he needed some sort of limitation of acreage that could be enforced by the government.

With the coming of a new political regime to Washington, some thing was done in these directions. In a dramatic emergency measure, congress passed an act permitting the department of agriculture to pay farmers for every acre of grown cotton plowed up.

Machinery went into action with record speed. In a few weeks after the New Deal was inaugurated, farmers were in the fields turning under every third acre of cotton. And for every acre of cotton turned under, the farmer was paid cash by Uncle Sam.

By time another crop was in the ground, the notorious Bankhead act had been passed. It provided that the government should rent a certain percentage of each farm. Land thus rented by the government could not be planted to commercial crops, so surpluses were partly reduced by this method.

QUOTAS FIXED
The act went further to authorize the fixed of cotton quotas on each farm. The farmer was told to raise certain number of bales of cotton. All above that amount was taxed prohibitively by the government.

This program was in effect during the 1934 and 1935 crop years. In January, 1936, the supreme court held the Bankhead law invalid. It looked as if 1936 would be a year in which Uncle Sam would not farm.

But representatives of various agriculture organizations, the department of agriculture, and congress' agriculture committees worked overtime to turn out a new farm program in time for application on the 1936 program. With addition, it remains in use until the present.

TRIPPLE OBJECTIVE
This program is based on the three-barreled objective of controlling production, paying the farmer a subsidy to offset the effect of the tariff, and conserving oil.

In 1938 congress passed a new agricultural act counting this soil conservation program, as it is now identified, and offering farmers the privilege of adopting cotton marketing quotas under a setup that would allow tax of cotton produced on uncontrolled acreage. Farmers voted by overwhelming majorities to fix the quotas on 1938, 1939, and 1940 crops.

Meantime, Uncle Sam has been paying farmers outright subsidies on each pound of cotton grown, or allotted, in effort to offset disadvantages forced on the farmer by tariffs.

RANGE PROGRAM

Also in the meantime, a range program had been inaugurated, to encourage ranchmen through cash aid to improve their holdings for future generations.

In 1939, the export subsidy scheme for increasing cotton exports was put into effect. This and other details of the program are worth separate articles in this series telling about Uncle Sam on the Farm.

That which has been mentioned above may be a hopeless tangle of terms to the non-farmer who has been wondering all these years what the heck all this is about anyway. But it traces, briefly, the rise of the government farmer combine.

Gasoline Cause of Home Fires

Austin. -- Home fires could be reduced to a minimum if Texas housewives would refrain from the use of gasoline, especially for cleaning purposes. Marvin Hall, state fire insurance commissioner, warned today.

The commissioner reported that the explosive power of gasoline has been ascertained at 83 times that of dynamite, and that the flash point of gasoline may be as low as zero.

"Static and friction should be avoided in handling gasoline," he said, "and people whose jobs involve its use should be thoroughly conversant with its dangers. Of course, its use is a commonplace as well as a necessity, but there's no need to ignore its power."

FERRETS HELP LANDOWNER

Rats got so bad on the plantation of O. H. Vaughn near Queen City, Texas, that he imported two ferrets several months ago and they have done a magnificent job of cleaning up the rodents. It is reported to the State Game Department.

Several big barns on Mr. Vaughn's place were so infested with rats that after he had trained the ferrets to catch rodents as many as five at a time were seen scampering up walls of the barns when the pair of ferrets were turned loose. A rat has not been seen on the Vaughn place in weeks.

MUST HAVE LICENSES

The State Game Department is urging all anglers who fish with artificial lure to comply with the law which requires them to purchase a $1.10 license.

PLANNING BOARDS ACTIVE

The wildlife planning boards of Tom Green and Coke counties are carrying on the planting of food patches in efforts to provide game with better habitat and more food. These organizations are obtaining the assistance of ranchers in their respective counties. They are also sponsoring the fencing of acre-polts in which quail and other game obtain protection from over-grazing of their food and cover plants.

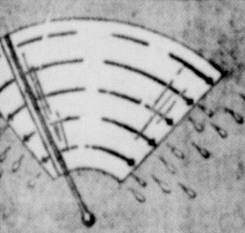

The Texas petroleum industry alone now pays 45 per cent of all state taxes, exclusive of sales taxes such as the gasoline tax which are paid by the consumer.

Exciting Story Is Highlighted In New Picture

An imposing line-up of stellar names heads the cast of Walter Wanger's "Slightly Honorable," a streamlined, modern-day story which introduces to screengoers for the first time at the Princess Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, June 26-27 the vivid new personality of Ruth Terry. Based on a true but compositely picture of what goes on behind the scenes in some of our cities, "Slightly Honorable" was adapted for the screen from the best-selling novel by F. G. Presnell and presents an exciting picture of inside scandal in the upper brackets.

The story of "Slightly Honorable" revolves around the paving scandal which has caused hundreds of automobile accidents and deaths because new highways are built with fake, synthetic materials on contracts awarded by the Highway Commission to a notorious clique of bigwigs. One of the state's prominent attorneys undertakes to clean up this racket and enlist the aid of an honest and incorruptible State Senator. How this crusade involves a group of beautiful women and causes a series of strange crimes carries the story to a smash climax with a surprise finish.

Pat O'Brien, as the Attorney, heads the imposing cast which also includes the new Wanger discovery, Ruth Terry, as well as

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

In the present day, people place great stress on having things convenient. Many conveniences are taken as a matter of course—especially those of an intangible nature, such as the services of a modern bank.

If a merchant has no calls for an item, he no longer continues to stock it, but he is always glad to keep things for which there is a steady demand. When you buy from him, you make it possible for him to keep on hand the things you want, and thus, you add to your own convenience.

The merchandise offered by a bank is service. When you use your local bank, you add to your own convenience and benefit your community. We invite your business.

TEXAS OUT-O'-DOORS

CLUBS AID COMMISSION

Texas sportsmen are taking a bigger interest today in their State Game Department and its attempts to preserve and increase game and fish than ever before. Almost weekly of late word has been received by the executive secretary of the commission from sportsmen's clubs throughout the state which have proposed universal hunting and fishing license laws, regulatory power for the Department and a longer closed season on fish in order to allow them more time to spawn undisturbed.

Included in this group are the San Antonio Club Fort Worth Anglers Club Dallas Anglers and Hunters Association, Dallas Oak Cliff Chapter of the Game and Fish Protective Association West Texas Game and Fish Association with headquarters in San Angelo and the Taylor County Hunting and Fishing Association with headquarters in Abilene.

Officers of clubs indicated in letters to the executive secretary that sportsmen are recognizing the efforts of the Department to conserve and propagate game on its limited funds and votes taken at club meetings indicated an almost 100 per cent favorable reception of the clubs program of boosting for universal licenses, longer closed season on fishing and regulatory power for the Commission under proper supervision.

It is interesting to note that sports editors throughout the state are apparently also in accord. A questionnaire sent out by the Ballas Anglers and Hunters Association recently produced some interesting results. Of the first thirty returned, 28 sports editors believing Texas should have a universal hunting and fishing license. Twenty-eight voted regulatory power while only one dissented. Eighteen thought there should be a longer closed season, but eleven voted no. In answer to the question: "Do the sportsmen in your vicinity have the same opinions on these questions," 21 voted yes and 2 no.

CAT NURSES SQUIRREL

Dame Nature makes odd adjustments some times! J. T. Welch, high school youth of Denison, Texas, has a strong family. It consists of a mother cat, four kittens and a baby squirrel. The young cats and squirrel can be seen scampering together almost any time. Young Welch found the baby squirrel near his home shortly after the kittens were born and added it to the brood of the tabby cat, which promptly accepted it as one of her own. Now the squirrel scrambles with the kittens at meal time and is thriving as rapidly as its adopted sisters and brothers.

Cold Meats Ideal for Hot Season

As assorted as a Smoragabond, and in many ways just as interesting, is a platter of cold cuts of meat attractively arranged to entice hot-weather appetites.

Inez S. Wilson, home economist, calls to your attention that with cold cuts, variety is practically infinite. There's salami of many kinds, veal loaf, minced ham, liver sausage, corned beef, spiced tongue and many other specialties. Leftover roast thinly sliced and very cold can also find its place on a colorful platter arranged for buffet entertainment, the family supper or for the unpredicted times when guest "just drop in."

FILL Ring Bologna With Salad

Potato salad fits into the picture. In fact, there's a special place for it—right in the center of a ring bologna in the middle of a platter.

The most attractive cold meat platter will have meats with variety in color, flavor and shape. A contrast of dark and light colors makes the arrangement interesting.

The assortment of cold meats offers decided variety in flavor. Some meats are smoked, others are not. The seasoning of cold meats is important and since it is done on a scientific basis, each meat contains the distinct spices and seasonings peculiar to it alone. Many meats, particularly the dry sausages, have the favorite formula of the foreign lands which made them famous.

Vary Method of Cutting

Variety in shape is obvious as you see the rows of cold meats on a counter—square, round, oblong, rectangular.

Slices cut diagonally give a large serving and a different shape. Large slices may be rolled into cornucopias and filled with carrot slivers, cheese wedges, sweet pickles, olives or cream cheese.

Large slices may also be cut into strips, triangle or other geometric shapes for variety.

Served with a cold meat platter you'll want an assortment of bread for sandwiches, a varied relish plate and cheese.

to 40,000 acres, for five years.

The Texas oil industry has invested in this state $1.10 for every $1.00 worth of oil which it has produced to date. These expenditures including wages to Texas oil workers, lease and royalty payments to Texas farmers, taxes to state and local governments and investments in Texas properties.

An ounce of sulphur, mixed with a little alcohol and rubbed on the body and legs will help keep chiggers away. Hyposulfite of soda, applied the same way, is also said to be effective.

More than one-half of the total expenditures each year of the Texas petroleum industry goes to Texas workers in wages and salaries and to Texas farmers and land-owners in lease and royalty payments.
