Si Says

Paul Patterson

It will be long now until we see a lot of these candidates should have read the Constitution.

What you Willie but I am in for a Franklin Roosevelt.

Some politicians the floor soon they've got the floor.

Any body say that free has disappeared in this after listening to the radio.

Republican in Maine casts its vote upon our delegates at the convention. He says up the next mornin' other year hangover!

People don't know whether they want a professional or an amateur government.

Governor has a clever way of caring of the old age pensioners he's gonna let old age pensioners of them!

Election results prove Texas is a highly cultured state.

Certainly got the right idea for the music loving. He'll give us two years of fiddlin' — around.

Delegated fellow held up drivers. Our fedors is him because most two leggers can't ever hold their up when they get out of a look at the meter.

Probably, if he got all his fare he's a rich man now.

Consolation about the fact if there is not a run off won't be so much running the head.

Don't Throw Magazines Away

Remember that box of magazines in the attic? Take a sudden spurt of one of these days and the lot—instead, send them to the University of Texas library.

The plea of Donald University librarian, who says that popular magazines are the pulp-paper ones, grossly have their value to assist research students.

They mirror their own times. "In tracing a receding of the changing times they are worth having."

To the expense involved, University library has not been able to keep up files of Liberty, Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion, St. Nicholas and other similar nature, he explained.

There should be such in many Texas homes, and would appreciate knowing of whereabouts," he said.

Among those who are in attendance at the encampment at this week are Mrs. O. Adams and daughter, Edna Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brown, the Rev. Taft Holloway who have charge of the camp-meeting held for the young people each afternoon.

J. W. Leatherwood and Weldon Cox and son made a trip to Fort Stockton today to Miss Iva Leatherwood of Angelo, who will visit here the week-end in the Leatherwood home.

TEMPORARY RECRUITING STATION IN FORT STOCKTON

Arthur W. Adams, Chief Quartermaster of the U. S. Navy, will establish a temporary navy recruiting station at the post-office in Fort Stockton at 9 a. m. on August 5 for the purpose of conducting physical examinations and accepting applications from those young men, in the district, who are interested in enlisting in the navy.

An intensive drive for men is now being made for the enlistment of men in the United States Navy. Standards are high, but not unreasonable. Those who are not fully advised of the advantages to be derived from duty with the naval service are especially urged to call. It is suggested that, whenever possible, that applicants bring some authentic evidence of the place and date of birth.

LETTER MORE THAN TWO YEARS LATE

Just where the letter had been all that time probably will remain a mystery, but L. S. R. Clarke, secretary-treasurer of the Uvalde Production Credit Association, last week received a letter which had been more than two years in reaching here from Sanderson.

The letter contained a set of legal papers which had been executed on May 26, 1938, and the letter bore a Sanderson postmark of the same date. This missile reached Clarke on the morning of July 18, 1940.—Uvalde Leader-News.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK SHIPMENTS SLUMP

Austin. — Slumping 16.4 per cent from the like period of 1939, livestock shipments from shipments from Texas ranchers to the Fort Worth stockyards and out-of-state points from the first six months of 1940 have totaled only 36,278 carloads, the University of Texas Bureau of Business reports.

Falling cattle movement accounts for most of the decline, the bureau report indicates, while sheep shipments show the only gain.

The June movement of livestock followed the 1940 trend, dropping 17.9 per cent from June 1939. A total of 2,212 carloads of cattle moved, a drop of 23.5 per cent; calves 799 cars, down 12.2 per cent; hogs, 583 cars, down 21.6 per cent; and sheep 1,016, down 5.1 per cent.

Shipments for the first half of the year included 21,745 cars of cattle, a decline of 24 per cent from the corresponding period of 1939; calves 5,066, down 5 per cent; hogs 4,312, down 9 per cent; and sheep 5,155, up 9.4 per cent.

Insurance Made Available for High School Footballers

Austin. — Injury insurance for Texas 20,000 schoolboy football players will be made available September 1 by terms of a plan approved by the University of Texas' Interscholastic League State office.

The plan was drawn up by C. H. Kenly, San Angelo high school principal and League athletic insurance committee chairman, and calls for a per-player annual premium of $1.75, providing for the payment of up to $100 in medical care for the more serious fractures or lacerations.

Kenly pointed out that the league simply contracts with a national insurance company to offer the player policies at a rockbottom rate.

Then, if a boy is injured during game or practice either, he added, the plan insures finances available for proper medical care.

He cited a survey of the Texas high school conference taken by his committee of coaches and principals showing that 495 Texas schools last year paid out $26,657, or $53.86 per school, for injury treatment or for individual school insurance.

When league officials voted last May to investigate injury insurance, Kenly reported that Texas schoolboy squads suffered two deaths and 1,399 injuries during the regular 12 week schedule in 1939.

Forty-three per cent of the injuries were sprains, the next largest group being fractures, 20 per cent.

Texas becomes the 18th state to adopt the blanket insurance plan since Wisconsin pioneered it in 1930. Wisconsin injuries have dropped, Kenly pointed out, from 90 to 40 per thousand players.

Among those attending the San Angelo Sheep Sale the first of the week were Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stumberg, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duncan and Mrs. Helen Downie and two sons, Edward and Walter G. It was understood that Mr. Stumberg purchased several head while there.

PEN SCRATCHES

By Dunton Buntion

Railroad men might be interested to know that to move the 305,000 soldiers to the various maneuver areas it will require 466 special trains which will contain 3,112 coaches, 46 tourist sleeping cars, 1,324 baggage cars, 247 stock cars, 54 box cars, and 497 flat cars. Of course the entire 305,000 will not be moved by train, but only approximately one-third or 132,901. The balance convey.

Last week the Senate Military Committee reported favorably the compulsory military training bill to the Senate which is now acting on it. All indications show it will be passed through the Senate and then to the House where quick action will be taken to pass it. Of course should the House disagree with the present form of the bill it will be necessary to send it back to a joint conference of Senate and House officials, however it is believed the present form will be acceptable.

Senator Morris Sheppard, Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, is to be strongly commended on his untiring effort and work on this bill. He has always been in favor of a strong defence.

Senator Sheppard is the senior Senator from Texas and his long years of service and the knowledge he has gained from this service puts him in a high position in Congress. This State will always be represented to the highest degree as long as Senator Sheppard remains in Congress. He is a friend to every one and that is the greatest thing in my mind that can be said of any man.

Rabbit Foundlings Adopted by Spitz

"Doing nicely, thank you!" is probably what Tootsie, eight-year-old Spitz, would say if she could, concerning these six wild rabbits she found in the back yard of her mistress, Mrs. Valeria Lewis of Washington, D. C. Letting her maternal instinct have full sway, Tootsie took charge of the foundlings, washed them and fed them.

"Give A Man A Horse He Can Ride"-Benny

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN

"The automobile is here to stay!" This was Jack Benny's pronouncement following his rough-riding horseback interludes in "Buck Benny Rides Again." the radio and screen comedian's venture into the wide open spaces, which Paramount will present here Wednesday and Thursday at the Princess Theatre.

Mr. Benny's aversion to horses is notorious, amounting to phobia. However, for the sake of his art, and in the interests of film production, he consented to being photographed for the first time in his life aboard a bronco, albeit the safest, mildest one the studio could corral. Several days of equestrian exercise were involved during the making of the picture. They were sufficient for Jack "Buck" Benny, who avers intention of sticking to his 1923 Maxwell in the future.

"Horses are so nervous," Mr. Benny opines. "They are so nervous they make me nervous. If they don't trust themselves, how do they expect anyone else to trust them?"

"Moreover, they have a way of turning their heads and favoring the rider with a contemptuous glare. They may serve their boss, but they sneer at him. They remind me of Rochester.

"Horses, as a means of transportation, are inferior to the automobile, the railroad train, the airplane and the kiddie car. A plush seat on a railroad on is wearing on the sacro-iliac, but not nearly so much as is the spinal column of a starving pin-to.

"I Hate Horses" "Anyway I hate horses, so there. I played one Santa Anita, right on the horse. The horse stood up fine, they moved the starting. Then it collapsed.

Despite his diatribe the equine category, Mr. Benny confessed that he enjoyed during the making of "Buck Benny Rides Again." And he cherishes his ten-gallon hat, a memento of the time when stood-off the cattle rustlers, followed the chuck wagon, the best tradition of Hopalong sidy and his pals.

"Buck Benny Rides Again" deals with the adventures of a tenderfoot. By extensive he manages to cut a figure as a badman until it is necessary him to ride herd with the After that everything happens including Benny's routing a band of supposed movie rustlers who turn out to be real thing.

Jack Benny is assisted in job of finishing off what's Wild West by such dashing karos as Eddie "Rock" Anderson, Phil Harris, A. Devine and others of his troupe. Ellen Drew, Paramount star, plays the lead Virginia Dale, and Cornell have principal Mark Sandrich directed.

Part of every Texas oil dollar finds its way

EVERY merchant in our State—every business and professional man—every worker, shares in Texas oil's huge expenditures.

Many Texas cities with all their varied businesses and employment exist and prosper today because of oil.

Last year petroleum created a direct buying power in our state of 550 million dollars.

Of this, Texas retail merchants received 324 million dollars, landlords 44 million, utilities 38 million and professional men 22 million, while 83 million more went for insurance and savings.

This huge sum is distributed and redistributed in an endless chain of income for our State and its people.

Texas oil payrolls are over 60 per cent of all the wages paid to all Texas workers.

Directly or indirectly, you get a part of your income from oil.

If you're a Texan, you're in the oil business.

CHAPTER NO. 6 OF "CONQUERING THE UNIVERSE"

Madeleine CARROLL - Brian AHERNE Louis HAYWARD in "My Son, My Son!"

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

It was a month ago, or a little longer. Adolf Hitler was behind the front lines of the German army that was surging over France like successive banks of grey fog. He had granted one of his interviews to an American newspaper correspondent. And the reporter asked Hitler about the "fifth column."

The "fifth column" is now the classic phrase used to describe the activities of the traitors and saboteurs in European countries who laid the preliminary ground work for the Nazi successes before a single blow was struck on either side.

The phrase was originated by the rebel General Mola during the Spanish War. Mola declared that his troops would capture Madrid because there were four strong columns of soldiery advancing on the city and also a "fifth column" of fascist sympathizers within the gates.

The swiftly-developing and terrible events in Europe this year have brought the words very closely home to Americans. There's even the danger that a nervous public will start seeing spies where none exist, and that admirable and loyal citizens will suffer as a result. In times of tension, the just and the unjust sometimes suffer alike. It's a sad fact, but a true one.

Besides the injustice that would occur as a result of all this, there's another danger: Americans may mistake the shadow for the substance, and in their zeal to protect this country from "the enemy within" they may lose sight of far more real dangers confronted all of us.

But let's get back to Adolf Hitler and the American correspondent. When the subject of the fifth column was brought up, Hitler laughed one of his rare laughs. He is probably the world's leading authority on this particular unhappy subject, so he knew what he was talking about—and the reporter listened carefully. Here, in a nutshell, is what the German dictator said:

People with a dramatic turn of mind have made the story about the careful plans of secret agents to build fifth columns throughout Europe. Actually, there is nothing difficult about the technique. In any country you can find dissatisfied groups and individuals—self-seeking, egotistical, or merely unable to comprehend the dangers of what they are doing, who can undermine the nation's security in one way or another. It is the actions of these men—some of them pursuing courses contrary to the national safety with the very best intentions—who make it easy for the enemy. That, said Hitler, is the real story behind the rapid, smashing triumphs of his war machine.

On this particular point, it might be wise for Americans to assume that the Nazi dictator is telling the truth, or at least part of the truth. And there's a powerful object lesson buried in his remarks.

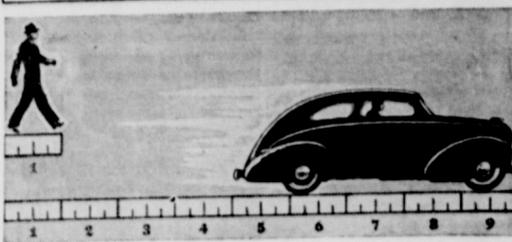

That lesson is plain. The best insurance we can possibly have against a reputation of the fact of other countries is to look with a fishy eye upon those who, under the guise of attaining laudable objectives, would seek to pass legislation or indulge in actions that would provide hampering to our national defense program. Over the years, manufacturing industry and business in general have been seriously weakened by measures of this type.

Let this country and this country's government watch out for spies and saboteurs and foreign agents, by all means. But let us not in the process forget the far more potent danger in a state of mind which holds that industry can prepare the United States for national defense while it's wearing handcuffs, accessory shackles, and a ball and chain firmly attached to each ankle.

BOXING JACKRABBITS

Some fight promotr might get an idea from this: J. R. Barton of Wichita Falls and a state game warden recently saw a pair of jackrabbits boxing. The rabbits repeatedly jumped high in the air and hit each other with their hind feet. Finally, without either knocking out the

Remember This Ratio—1 to 9

While a pedestrian takes one step and advances one yard, an automobile driven at a mere 30 miles an hour advances nine yards.

This is simple arithmetic, says "Smash Hits of the Year," latest booklet published by The Travelers in its safety crusade, but few persons stop to realize it. It is especially true that adults who have never learned to drive have little or no conception of the vast differences between walking speeds and vehicle speeds.

The simulated movie strip below shows what is likely to happen when a walker underestimates the speed of an approaching car.

other or apparently gaining the advantage over the other, they departed each in a different direction.

WILD TURKEY INCREASE

Here in another specific instance in which it is proved that wild turkeys, if given protection and food will materially increase their numbers. Reports to the Game Department indicate a recent survey of a Brown County area shown there are now 400 wild turkeys in a section where 25 were planted in 1934.

The answer, according to the Department's chief aquatic biologist, is that they are good to eat. The difficulty of dressing a gar is the major hindrance to exploitation of this fish for menu purposes. Heavy clippers or wire cutters are almost mandatory to make the abdominal incision to remove the viscera. The tough, scaly skin can hardly be dented with a knife. Some fishermen beat the carcass of gars on a tree before attempting the skinning process. This loosens the skin and is said not to damage the meat, which is white.

The fishy odor will be missed if one is careful to contact with the carcass.

Should a sufficient number of Sportsmen indicated a desire for receipts on how to cook gar to make tasty dishes, the Game Department will distribute such receipts.

QUAIL NEED WATER

An example of the necessity for an adequate water supply if quail are to prosper, especially in West Texas is shown by a report of Game Department's biologists.

In LaSalle County along a four-mile strip bordered by ponds, 253 bobwhite and blue quail were counted. However, in a 171-mile drive through areas overgrazed and little water only 17 quail were counted.

UNCLE SAM ON THE FARM

Reprinted from the Abilene Reporter-News

(This is one of a series of articles on the government in farming.)
By RAY DAVIDSON

When Uncle Sam tried wheat farming, he found it to be one of the most uncertain phases of agriculture.

While wheat farmers on some years make bountiful crops and pocket plenty of money on other years they are completely without harvest and lose money heavily.

Such irregularity of income created an unwholesome strain on the wheat farmer's personal budget, and at the same time the wide variance in crops caused too much fluctuation of the wheat market.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, conceived the idea of leveling off wheat farmer's income and the flow of wheat to market by means of his "ever-normal grainary" wheat insurance program.

Ready for Another Bout With Nazis

Captain Moscicki, (right) son of the former president of Poland, is seen in London where he was recuperating from the effects of a head wound received during the last days of fighting in France. Moscicki is chatting with a French officer on the staff of General de Gaulle, who has organized French resistance to the Nazis in co-operation with the British government, following the armistice.

(The same plan, he suggests, would work on other crops too, but is particularly adapted to wheat, so that crop has been selected for experimentation with the idea.)

Whether it succeeds or not the ever-normal grainary idea is fascinating. It is now in its second year of operation and is receiving strong following in this section. It is strictly voluntary, and has nothing whatever to do with crop control, subsidy payments to the farmer, or soil conservation.

This is the way the wheat insurance company, insuring any farmer a wheat yield up to three-fourths of normal, provided he has first planted it in good fashion and makes a reasonable effort to bring about a harvest.

The farmer pays premiums in advance for this insurance as in any other insurance. However, the premiums are not estimated in dollars and cents, but in bushels of wheat.

The farmer pay his premium in actual wheat. Most of them pay it in the cash equivalent, however. When the government receives a premium in cash it immediately spends this cash to buy wheat off the open market and place it in storage.

Then when the farmer fails to make a crop, and collects his insurance, it is paid in wheat or the cash equivalent. If the farmer chooses to take the cash, the government sells enough wheat to bring in the necessary cash.

Results of such manipulation as this would not only be a leveling of the farmers' income from wheat, but also a leveling of the market supply. For on lean years when the government was paying out insurance policies, millions of bushels would be released on the market from U. S. warehouses; and on rich years when Uncle Sam was collecting many premiums but paying few policies, he would be taking wheat off the market and putting it in storage bins.

Although they are not related to wheat insurance, two additional activities of Uncle Sam in the wheat farming business may be mentioned here.

These are the paying wheat subsidies or parity payments and the making of what loans. Both are on the same basis as cotton loans and parity payments described in the previous article.

Wheat parity payments were made on the 1939 crop at the rate of 11 cents per bushel.

Loans were made at a rate of about 85 cents per bushel, minus 20-odd cents for freight to terminal points. This made the price so low that it was unattractive to farmers and few in this section obtained the loans.
