Veterans living in Alaska are not eligible. Veterans living in Hawaii are eligible if they meet all other eligibility requirements.

HOTELS for LIVESTOCK

The central livestock market is as American as the "hot dog." No other country has the like of it. European sellers and buyers haggle over individual animals. In South America most of the dealing is done right on the estancias, where the livestock is raised. But here in the leading livestock nation of the world, for 75 years central markets have played a big part in the job of moving meat toward dinner tables of the United States.

When a carload of livestock rolls off the prairies or out of the mountains into one of the 65 or more great central markets, the animals are "greeted" and "registered" at the unloading dock, much as travelers are received and registered in hotels. From there they are sent to their "rooms"—the pens assigned to the commission man to whom the owner has shipped his animals. There these hogs, cattle, calves and lambs are rested and given food and drink.

Just as hotels compete for guests, so these central markets compete with each other for the business of accommodating the 88 million head of livestock which come in each year. Thousands of livestock buyers and order buyers bid against each other and the sale is made to the highest bidder. With 26,000 meat packers and other commercial slaughterers active in livestock buying, it is easy to see that the American livestock marketing system is the most competitive in the world. These "livestock hotels" are a separate branch of the livestock-meat industry. They are privately owned. Swift & Company does not own a single share of any stockyards company.

Thanksgiving

In this Thanksgiving month, the people of our nation—and of many other nations—owe a debt of gratitude to the ranchers and farmers of America. All through the war, in spite of its tremendous requirements, our people ate well. And in spite of sharing with the earth's hungry, our people are still eating well. Today, to be sure, not all the meat they would like to have . . . but plenty of nutritious food to keep them well and strong. That is because for long years millions of farm and ranch men, women and children have kept the food supply up, working harder than ever before, overcoming shortages of help and machinery and many other obstacles. Yes, Americans may well offer thanks this month to all those who produce our food.

FERTILITY OF RANGE BEEF CATTLE
 by A. L. Baker and J. R. Queanberry
 United States Department of Agriculture
 Cows in the western ranch states drop from a 40 to a 70 percent calf crop with an average of 63 percent. This means that for every 100 cows the average rancher can expect to get only 63 calves.
 However, the following recommendations, based on a study made, should aid the rancher in increasing his production:
 1. Cows should be identified by proper markings so that shy breeders can be culled from the herd at an early age. Good producing cows may be kept until at least ten years of age without loss of fertility.

SPREAD

 When visiting with livestock producers on farms or ranches, or at meetings, the subject of "spread" often comes up for discussion. Then I give them an explanation of the difference between the price they get for livestock and the price we meat packers receive for the meat we sell.
 To me it is a source of continual surprise that the spread is not greater than it is. During my years of experience in the livestock-meat industry, here is what I have learned about spread. We at Swift & Company have been paying farmers and ranchers approximately 76¢, on the average, out of every dollar we receive from those to whom we sell, for all products we process and handle, including hides, glands, and all by-products. That leaves us 24¢ to cover the cost of processing and marketing.
 Out of the 24¢ comes the cost of buying livestock and other agricultural products. The cost of preparation and refrigeration. The cost of loading them into cars and trucks. The cost of transporting them to our branch houses or to retailers. The cost of branch house operation and of selling and delivering the products to the retail dealers. In addition, we have taxes to pay; plus insurance and all the other necessary costs of doing business. When all these expenses have been paid, we make a profit, which over a period of years has averaged a fraction of a cent a pound on the 6½ billion pounds of products we handle annually.
 There is no other business in the country that does so much for so little.

Soda Bill Sez:
 . . . to be a success at farming, you have to dig in.
 . . . if you want to realize that cattle in the air, you had better get down to earth first.

The mechanical device pictured above shoots the ball marked B straight down. It certainly looks as if B will hit the ground first, since ball A has so much farther to go. But the fact is that they will both strike the ground at precisely the same instant. In our business, too, things are not always as they seem. On September 1, 1946, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture reported that in the entire country there were 356 million pounds of meat stocks in cold storage. That is a lot of pounds. But actually it is the lowest on record for that date . . . and compares with 626 million a year ago and a 631-million average for 1941-1945. Here in America we eat about 50 million pounds of meat a day, so the September 1 supply of meat in cold storage was barely enough to feed us for seven days.

Rev. J. W. Byrd Addresses P. T. A. At Regular Meeting

"Giving Thanks," was the subject discussed by the Rev. John W. Byrd before the Sanderson Parent-Teachers Meeting which was held last Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the High School Auditorium.

Rev. Byrd followed the subject as discussed in the Texas Parent-Teachers magazine. He brought out the following thoughts in his address before the gathering, namely that Americans are a nation that has been founded by a mingling of all races to form a guest people is one of the first things we have for "Giving Thanks." That we have schools with their blessings of learning; that we are able to vote as we please; that we are free to go to church and to the church of our choice; that walls do not have ears; and that we are still free to struggle for the good things and that this struggle is not always easy and lastly that we have such a great part in the United Nations, as being among the many other things that we have to "Give Thanks."

The president, Mrs. Sid Harkins, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Malone Mitchell was the program leader.

Mrs. C. C. Mitchell gave a devotional reading using for her reading the 100th Psalm.

"Book Week," was the subject used by the Fifth grade to form a very clever and informative playlet. Pupils dressed in characters, acted out short sketches of their favorite books and comics. Mrs. Walter Grigsby is the Fifth grade teacher.

Rev. Lawrence Menefee, sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Mae T. Wilson at the piano.

The president asked that any member who could go to the State Convention, November 21-22 at Amarillo, to get in touch with her. This member would be the delegate from the Sanderson Parent Teachers Association.

BETTER SERVICE through PLANNED ACTION

Great and enduring things seldom happen by chance. Only through vision and planned action can man discover new and better ways to serve.

In pursuit of this policy, Southern Pacific maintains a constant program of research and improvement... seeking new ways to better Southern Pacific's services to the traveling public and the nation.

Typical of the accomplishments of this program is the new Pecos River High Bridge, recently built by the Southern Pacific at a cost of over one million dollars. This giant structure spans a gorge having a depth of 321 feet below rails, located on the Pecos River on SP's famed trans-continental Sunset Route, New Orleans to California. It is the third bridge to be built by Southern Pacific over this crossing. Southern Pacific's first Pecos River bridge was a short, low structure that took trains miles out of their way in crossing. Later, the development of better materials that could span deeper parts of the river made possible the building of a larger bridge, completed in 1892, which saved over eleven miles of trackage and was at that time one of the highest railroad bridges in the world.

With the coming of World War II, the Pecos River crossing attained a strategic importance beyond comparison. Heavy East-West military traffic flowed with ever-increasing tempo over Southern Pacific's main line, and, in order to speed up traffic which was restricted by slow orders over the old bridge, the progressive management of the Southern Pacific proceeded with plans for a modern high speed structure.

Future needs and expansion were anticipated and the present bridge was built. Into the building of this structure, 1390 feet in length, went 18 months of labor by 300 men... 2700 tons of steel... 15,000 cubic yards of concrete... and the combined knowledge and conscientious effort of many of our nation's most learned engineers.

The Pecos River project is an outstanding example of Southern Pacific's policy of continuous improvement through peace and war. This program, pursued consistently in the "retrenchment" days of 1930-35, resulted in Southern Pacific's ability to meet the tremendous military demands during World War II... today, it enables Southern Pacific to serve you with the finest, latest, and most dependable rail transportation in history.
