ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings that affect the dinner pails, dividend checks, tax bills of every individual. National and international problems inseparable from local welfare.

In its issue of September 6, the Saturday Evening Post printed an article than an editorial note characterized as "perhaps the most desparately important message" it will be published this year. Entitled "Are we Ready for a Push-Button War" and written by Joseph and Stewart Alsop, it deals with the much publicized and little understood topic of guided missiles.

The principle of guided-missile warfare is simple enough. A button on a switchboard will be pushed, and a few minutes later a rain of missiles of incredible destructiveness will descend on enemy targets. There will be no warning. The missiles will travel infinitely faster than sound, and so will arrive in complete silence. Factories, bridges, power plants, railroads, communications, even whole cities will be instantly destroyed—along with thousands and perhaps millions of people. The enemy's capacity to make war will cease to exist, and the conflict will be decided in a matter of hours.

That is the concept. We already have, in the atomic bomb and other weapons, the charges these missiles will carry. The problem is to produce a suitable missile. It is, in other words, purely a problem of developing a vehicle.

The Alsops begin their remarkable article with two statements made to them by a researcher in the field. He said: "The first thing to understand about guided missiles is that there aren't any. But the second thing to understand about guided missiles is that there will be."

When will practical missiles be ready to take to the air—and to the spaces beyond? The Alsops offer an answer to that based on extensive interrogation of the scientists. It is expected that an antiaircraft missile which will be guided by wonderfully perfected radar, and whose purpose will be to destroy invading planes, will be ready in two to five years. The intermediate strategic missile which will be fired from planes, ships or forward bases, may be practical in six to ten years. Finally, missiles of the ultimate destructive power, with ranges up to 5,000 miles, which will make possible direct intercontinental warfare, may appear in ten to eighteen years.

Readers may wonder why no mention has been made here of the German V-2 missile which caused tremendous destruction in the last stages of the war. The reason is that researchers regard it as having been primitive in the extreme, even though it was a marvel of mechanical ingenuity and daring. Its range was short, and it could not be accurately guided. The V-2 by comparison with the missiles now on the drawing boards, will be like a muzzle loading blunderbuss opposed to a naval rifle.

The technical problems connected with the development of

Tomatoes Grown In Pecos County Match Mississippi's

You wouldn't think of Pecos County as the spot to raise tomatoes in Texas. But it's being done!

Mrs. H. W. Mathews, of Fort Stockton heard her grocer say "Wouldn't it be great if we could grow tomatoes like this in Pecos County?" She looked at the tomatoes in his hand and said, "Come out to my place. I'll show you some bigger than that."

She is raising five varieties in the garden at her ranch. She prefers the Brimmer as a table tomato, as it has few seeds and grows to a large size. The Pan-American is her favorite for canning, but she says that the Rutgers and Scarlet Dawn are good also.

She has sold 15 bushels from the garden and expects to harvest around 120 bushels before the growing season is over.

Mrs. Mathews told Miss Pauline McWilliams, Pecos County home demonstration agent, that a friend from Mississippi, had been amazed at the tomatoes. "We grow tomatoes like these in Mississippi, but we didn't know it could be done in Texas," she said.

And especially in West Texas.

missiles literally stagger the lay mind. Even the Alsops, in a long article, have room only to touch some of the high spots. Ordinary metals would burst into flame at speeds far below those projected. Launching a missile which will proceed in seconds from the ground to heights of 60,000 feet or more and there start for a target, is an incredibly complex operation. Desirable fuels—capable of giving both sufficient thrust and range—are still in the laboratory phase. And, dwarfing all other difficulties, is that of guiding the missile with bullet like accuracy to a target thousands of miles away.

As an example of the Jules Vern-like conceptions into the guidance problem, the Alsops cite one projected method whereby what amounts to a navigation bridge will be built into a missile. As the missile proceeds, instruments will take position from the stars and constantly communicate orders to other instruments which in turn will operate on controls. The missile will thus be brought to its target precisely as a ship is brought into a port.

Achieving great distance is another terrific problem. One scientist believes that may be ultimately solved by joining two or more missiles together. One, for instance, would furnish the thrust for taking the missile off the ground and into the atmosphere where, at a given point, the second missile carrying the warhead would be "kicked off" its engine would automatically start, its guidance equipment would take over, and it would proceed to the target.

What will be the cost of all of this? No one really knows. Missiles will cost $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 each to build, once we—or another nation—learn how to build them. A suitable wind tunnel for testing will cost more than $1,000,000,000, not counting maintenance. The total cost will obviously be incredibly great—greater perhaps than the cost of developing and making the atomic bomb. The science of utter destruction becomes more and more expensive.

Finally, we must give our money and our scientific energies to perfecting and manufacturing missiles! The Alsops feel that we must in the name of self-preservation. It is known that the Russians are working on them at fever pitch, precisely as they are working with the problems of atomic power. Beyond the Urals, Soviet scientists are getting ready for another war. The American scientists, with all the resources they can command, are doing exactly the same thing.

POLAR RENDEZVOUS

The far-flung activities of American submarines during World War II that brought the undersea craft to the home waters of the Japanese Empire in the van of the fighting fronts, are continued into peacetime as the submarines, like the USS Sennet (above), penetrate the Arctic and Antarctic. Submarines are important units of the Navy's postwar expeditions and projects probing the mysteries of distant oceans for scientific data to be used for future planning. (Official U. S. I LOVE MY HOSS

By FRANKLIN REYNOLDS

Nod your head and rest, old grey hoss—
You've carried me many a mile today,
An' I've been thinkin' as we jogged along,
Don't I owe a bigger debt than I can pay?

I was thinkin' of a sick baby on a dark night,
When death was buildin' up a loop, just so—
An' you carried me fast to a tired old doctor,
An' because of you death missed his ugly throw.

An' I've was thinkin' of father an' mother,
Comin' out here to build their lives anew—
How could they ever have made it, old hoss,
If it hadn't been for th' likes of you?

I'm rememberin' your courage, old-fellow,
When that bull caught me, boots on th' ground—
An' you stood without tremblin' or fear, old partner,
'Till I was back in th' saddle safe an' sound.

I've been thinkin' a lot of thoughts today,
As we've traveled along, you an' me together,
Of how much a man owes to his good old hoss,
That's made him a king settin' in saddle leather.

I love my family th' best of all, I know,
An' God, an' Christ that died upon the cross—
An' then there ain't no doubt whereat I stand,
Cause next it's you I love, my good old hoss.

Editor's Note: The above poem, "I Love My Hoss", by Franklin Reynolds, was requested by Jewel in memory of W. E. McSparran.

Square Biscuits, Yet!

I see by a neighboring paper, that the round biscuit is on the way out. Yes, sir, home-management specialists have found that the square biscuit lends itself to assembly-line production and easy storage better than those customary ovals.

Well, we're all for progress, but that's one new idea we just don't cotton to. A round biscuit, spread nicely amidst with snappy country cheese, looks like a biscuit! And accompanied by a milrow glass of beer, it's a combination that you can't improve on!

So at the risk of being called old-fashioned, I'm voting for round biscuits, that fit a hungry man's mouth like no square imitation ever will ... and for American beer served in the good old-fashioned way, in tall, cool mugs or ordinary glasses, with frosty sides and bubbles winking at the brim!

Think I'll step out to the kitchen for a snack right now!

Eagle Band Plans To Attend Clinic Meet in Del Rio

Reports from Del Rio indicate that plans are rapidly being completed for a band festival to be held in that city sometime in February.

It is understood that three outstanding judges have been secured for the occasion and they will direct sections of the band in which they specialize. The judges will spend four hours in a clinic session on contest numbers, using this time to help on numbers to be used at the San Marcos meet in April.

At noon the band sponsors and members will be fed by the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce after which a parade of all participating bands and dignitaries will be staged on Main St.

A three hour rehearsal of 150 of the best musicians chosen from all bands will follow the parade.

The 150 musicians will present a concert in the Del Rio High School auditorium in the evening to which an admission will be charged. The visiting directors and judges will direct the musicians.

Five bands including Sonora, Sanderson, Eagle Pass, San Felipe and Del Rio have signed up for the meet. Invitations have been sent to several other bands in this area.

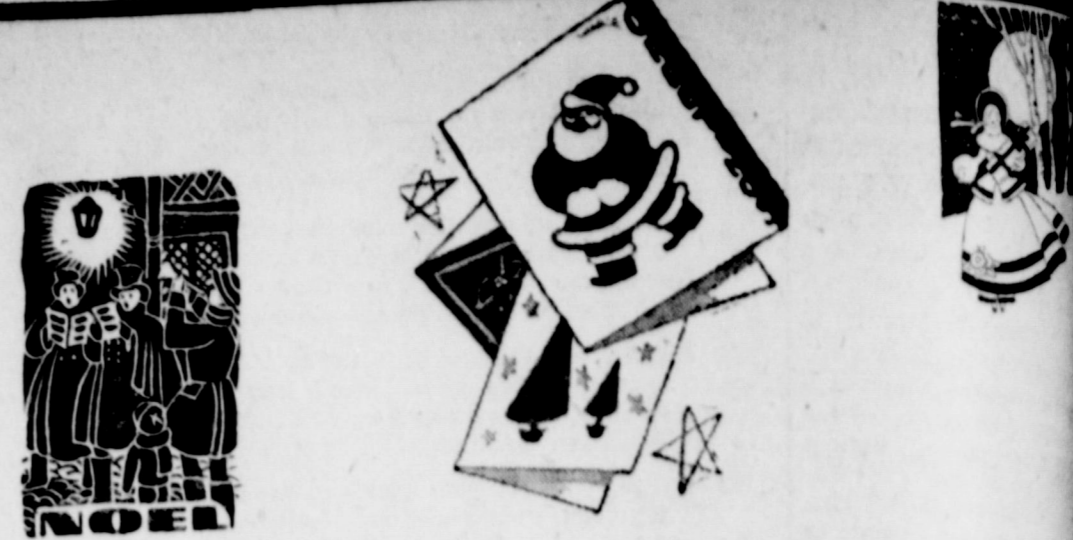

Director W. H. McCullar has expressed the hope that the Eagle Band will place well in this event and that the clinic will serve the band well in its future programs.

William Lea and his sister, Mrs. Nell Appel, attended the Sul Ross College homecoming in Alpine last week.

REGARDING CREDIT...

We appreciate the customers who have charge accounts with us, and invite those who do not have to take advantage of this privilege.

We carry charge accounts for the convenience of our patrons, and are always glad to offer charge privileges to persons who come into our store whether they be old customers, new customers, or new comers to our town and community. Charge privileges are almost a necessity in our present way of life in this section of the country, and certainly we want to offer every means possible in making our store a convenient and pleasant place at which to trade.

Since we agree that a charge account is a convenience and privilege for our customers, we feel sure that you, in turn, will agree with us that our credit purchases from wholesale houses is a convenience and privilege for us. To retain the convenience of purchasing items for our store (for you) on a credit basis we must not abuse the privilege. Some houses require that we pay within ten days—none allow more than thirty days.

With this in mind we do not believe you will think us unfair when we ask that you pay your account by the 10th of the second month following date of purchase, or that you make proper arrangements for extended credit.

If payment has not been made according to the above policy, or arrangements for credit has not been made, then it will be necessary that the account be closed to charge sales until payment is made or arrangements for extended credit are made. This policy will apply to each and every charge account alike and no deviation will be made.

We have made arrangements for extended credits and easy term payments where they are needed or desired. If you need extended credit the easy payment plan keeps your charge account open for current purchases.

It has been a pleasure serving you in the past — may we continue to serve you in the future?
