LISTEN TO LUKE

Things change so fast that we have a hard time keeping up with the times. We read our Mountain Peaks in the paper and see that the Espee whistles. That worried not the whistles but the fact that they were cause for disturbance in a thinking brain. It seems that if it were not for the whistles here in Sanderson we would be disturbed by the Espee. Of course, the Espee stops all their trains and the engineer has to whistle at least five times when he is ready to go so the conductor will know to catch on the end as he pulls out. After the customary five blasts the conductor or somebody waves his cap and that seems to be all for a "highball"—not the kind some people are thinking of.

Alpine has a new depot so all she needs just blow a whistle as part of salute as they go by. It were not for the engines and the tourists would think the depot was a community center of some kind since the Espee don't stop there unless they happen to have a passenger from Sanderson who wants to make a trip and only has enough to take him to the Mountain Peaks' home and return.

Speaking of changing times we occasionally tempted to touch a lady's arm and tell her that her slip is slipping. We are suddenly reminded that they aren't slips—they are petticoats—they are supposed to show, they are showing they are petticoats, if they are covered they are still slips. We have yet learned the difference we'll just try to curb that impulse and keep our mouths shut and if their petticoat or drops off I won't let on. It's none of my business—besides maybe I couldn't be looking.

In order to clarify any misconception about my loyalty to powers that be let me state I have endeavored at all times to render the respect due the authorized authority from President down. I may oppose the incumbent in a particular office but will, nevertheless, abide by their edicts to the best of my ability. I can slip up on us and all I can do admit my failures. Ordinarily Governor issues a proclamation setting aside a certain day as "straw hat day". The proper remedy for the edict is for the voters of the state to issue a proclamation on the pattern as the governor's people are supposed to be by the mayor's proclamation and put on a straw hat. If it is an old worn out straw hat. In all the humdrum rush of business and stir around to get new candidates to announce for some of us inadvertently ignored proclamation from Austin. If Sanderson had a mayor to bring the significance of the day to our attention we would have been more diligent more observing of our duty to the state. Since there is no mayor here we would like to see responsibility of proclaiming "Straw Hat Day" put on the shoulders of the Justice of the Peace or some other official so all the citizens of Terrell County will be properly notified of the time to appear in a straw hat at the right time. I'm wearing an old flopped hat.

Local politics are cup of coffee discussions nowadays but they ever enlightens anyone as to who will win what. The candidates here seem to be running good clean races the only comment we can make is that the names of the candidates are in the paper and campaign promises have been made so the voters just to pick out the one of choice and vote for him. Local politics has pepped up since last week's Listen. Dies has stepped into

A public installation service for the new officers of the Order of Eastern Star was held at the Masonic Hall Monday evening with Mrs. Mora Cochrane of El Paso as the installing officer. Hahn, Associate Patron; secretary, Mrs. Bess Ezelle, treasurer, Mrs. Bernice Murray, conductress, Mrs. Ruth Robbins; associate conductress, Mrs. Raye Monroe; chaplain, Mrs. Magie Halley; marshal, Mrs. Mary Cox; organist, Mrs. Geneva Charlton; "Ada", Mrs. Elsie Grigsby; "Ruth", Mrs. Maybelle Stavley; "Esther", Mrs. Ruth Adams; "Martha", Mrs. Eloise Hahn; "Electa", Mrs. Willie Mae Laughlin; warder, Mrs. Ida Bodkin; sentinel, W. H. Nessmith. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Dora Trotter, a former Worthy Matron now residing in Siloam Springs, Arkansas; Mrs. Northcut and Glen Longley, retiring Worthy Patron. LOWELL JESSUP IMPROVING SATISFACTORILY IN ALPINE

Lowell Jessup, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Jessup, was moved to an Alpine hospital last Friday afternoon. His father reported Thursday that his condition was very satisfactory and he is able to sit up for brief periods.

Young Jessup was injured last Wednesday when he fell from a horse on the ranch. He was unconscious when found about eight hours after the accident and did not regain consciousness until Saturday. He is reported to have a double concussion.

REV. R. A. (BOB) ENGLISH TAKES YOUTHS TO CAMP

Rev. R. A. (Bob) English, pastor of the Methodist Church, accompanied by Barbara Rose and Barbara and Jimmy Clark of Dryden left Monday for Sacramento, N. M., to attend the Methodist Intermediate Youth Assembly of the Pecos Valley District this week.

The Senatorial race with the pronouncement that he intends to bring charges against each candidate for the office who spends more than the legal sum of $10,000. He has written to Attorney General Price Daniel and asked if the candidates could legally spend more than that for campaign expenses. So far the Att. Gen. hasn't replied to the former congressman. Dies is full of fire and vinegar and there is no doubt in the minds of many how he stands on any un-American activities after his service investigating during the war. Lyndon is recuperating from a minor operation and his campaign headquarters has sent this paper a little ad asking the people to elect him. Coke has been in the Piney Woods of East Texas this week. We hear he's coming out here before the primary. If he does we want to drink coffee with him; once we'd be willing to grab the check—just to see how long he takes to cool his coffee. We know he spent several years in Austin and it was reported that all he did was cool his coffee. Remember Coke, the coffee's on us when you get here. Col. Peddy, another aspirant to Senator Pappy's job, has got Jimmie Allred for a mouthpiece in the past week. Knowing what we know, that isn't much help to him. We did have him (Peddy) placed up pretty high on the list but with Jimmie on his side it brings him down two or three notches. Of course we have no hot oil problems in Terrell County to worry about.

In one of the closest contests of the year the Railroaders lost their game to the Legionnaires in the last half of the first inning by the lead the Legionnaires took their first time at bat. The game went into the second frame with the T&NO boys trailing 11-1, a lead they were never able to overcome. It was nip and tuck from then on. The Legion made four more runs and the Railroad team

Treasured moments of Texas History. On December 10, 1836, the Congress of the Republic of Texas saw the need of having a Seal for the proper conduct of business. To give it form, provisional governor Henry Smith stepped forward and made an impression of a brass button cut from his coat. On it were a five-pointed star and a wreath of liveoak leaves signifying "strength." Later, the olive branch, signifying "peace," was substituted on one side and the words "The State of Texas" were added. This is the Seal as we know it today. A great State . . . Hoof and Mouth Disease Control Urged By Lawrence

In a talk made before the Rotary Club at Bracketville last week, Clifford O. Lawrence, attorney in that city and candidate for the House of Representatives of the 37th Legislative District, said:

"Fifty-three per cent of our nation's economy is dependent upon our cattle industry and its by-products, and within a stone's throw of us, comparatively speaking, is a progressive disease raging which threatens to wipe the cattle industry off the face of North America."

"That disease is the hoof and mouth disease, which affects only cloven footed animals."

"With reference to the history of this disease, it has prevailed in European countries for many years, resulting in tremendous financial losses to the respective governments whose cattle were affected by it. For instance, in the years 1920-21 the hoof and mouth disease cost Germany 119 million dollars."

"The same year the little country of Switzerland paid out 70 million dollars to dispose of the disease, and at that time, of the susceptible animals in that country, there was less than one-fiftieth of the number of unaffected cattle of the United States for those same years, and then, too, the area of Switzerland is less than one-half the size of our state of Maine."

"With reference to the disease in our country, there has been seven outbreaks since 1900 at a cost of more than 200 million dollars to our government."

"The most serious outbreak was discovered in our state of Michigan in October 1914. The last infected animal of that state was slaughtered in September of 1916. At that time the disease spread throughout our cattle industry in 22 states in a very short time. It was necessary to slaughter 172 thousand animals and it cost our government 9 million dollars. That particular outbreak was traced to imported infected cattle and equipment from some of the European countries."

"The present hoof and mouth disease prevalent in Mexico dates back to the fall of 1946 at which time approximately 150 Brahman bulls were imported into Mexico through Vera Cruz from Brazil and Spain. Immediately upon receipt of those animals Mexican authorities allowed them to be distributed throughout Mexico and 14 of them were sent to Texas. At the time these bulls were sent from Spain and Brazil both of these countries were known to be infected with the hoof and mouth disease. All of which was in violation of an existing treaty between Mexico and the United States, designed to safeguard livestock interests in both countries through prevention of infections and contagious diseases."

Further, the present outbreak in Mexico has been definitely traced to the Brahman bulls from Spain and Brazil as previously referred to."

Likewise, the outbreak was confirmed in December of 1946 and immediately the Mexican border was closed to cattle shipments from Mexico, and Congress appropriated $10,500,000 toward a campaign to stamp out the disease.

"Since that time the disease has spread over the central one-third of Mexico, in which area it is now confined under present efforts to control the same, but has by no means been controlled or destroyed."

"To date our government has contributed something over 36-million dollars in an effort to dispose of the menace and according to good authority very little has been accomplished due to disorganization and the lack of appreciation of the facts pertaining to the disease."

"All the foregoing relates to a sketchy history of an unruly situation that has every possibility of breaking through the confines of its present location and lap over into the cattle industry of our own country; and considering the future of the situation, we would be guilty of the highest degree of negligence and carelessness if we overlooked the fact that hunger is the greatest ally of nations who seek to destroy us by revolutions and dictatorship, and in the light of that fact it can be readily appreciated that we are placed in a very vulnerable position in the eyes of the nations referred to, as long as the hoof and mouth disease continues to exist so near our own border. Therefore, something must be done before it is too late and thereby allow that disease to passively accomplish what any potential enemy country might be unable to do otherwise."

"Then, too, it would be practically impossible for our country to fight a global war and feed our army throughout far-flung battle fields, of the world with the hoof and mouth disease raging throughout our own country."

"Another point should be seriously considered in cooperation of the foregoing to the effect that if that disease sweeps our country we would not only face staggering financial losses in scores of industries dependent upon our cattle industry, but our milk supply would drop immensely. Our children would go hungry and our nation would suffer generally."

"Likewise, quarantines would be necessary, which within our own locality would affect our Rio Grande Valley to the extent that citrus fruit, cotton and vegetables could not be shipped.

"The hoof and mouth disease is caused by a virus so small that only the strongest microscope can detect it, which adds to the possibility of the disease spreading undetected at any time. For instance a person who has walked upon the ground in Mexico where susceptible animals are now being confined can step into an airplane as a passenger and within a few hours be walking in the larger stock yards of this country with the undetected virus on the sole of his shoes or in the cuffs of his pants and thereby innocently or intentionally convey it to our own cattle."

Then too, it will soon be time for large flocks of Mexico buzzards to migrate deep into the heart of the United States and it is highly possible for them to bring with them that contagious disease and to spread it in our country.

Through the instance of some of our country's outstanding cattlemen, and statesmen, Congress has made provision for the creation of a research laboratory to be located off the mainland to make a thorough study of the disease.

"Heretofore practically no research of any significance has been completed, however, the presence of the danger of the disease spreading into the United States makes it imperative that such research be immediately begun and continue to a final conclusion."

"Those interested in the control of the disease, who are considered as an authority, are of the opinion that the entire program should be placed under the leadership of one man vested with adequate authority, who is capable of handling the situation. In substance and principally they also believe that the only possible means by which this disease can be wiped out is to slaughter all susceptible animals, bury them on the spot and replace the slaughtered animals with clean healthy cattle from our country."

Those in authority also estimate that in the event the disease breaks through to our country, the cost of the same will cost our government in excess of a billion dollars.

"In conclusion it seems very imperative that it be a moral obligation on the part of each and every one of us along the border to lend our assistance in any way possible to those who are striving to prevent the hoof and mouth disease from spreading into our country. And this we can do by keeping our public informed on the subject and actively support those who have the foresight to appreciate the ulterior dangers the disease presents which may eventually affect us disastrously and who have the initiative to do something about it."

"Undoubtedly the question of the proper control of this disease within our own area will be one of the major problems of the 51st Legislature in 1949."
