Quibbling over who to vote and why is now over and we have duly elected officials from the President down to the precinct officers. What platform or political party they were riding is of no consequence now. One I failed to see in any candidates platform was a promise to do away with these bicycle riders in Sanderson. If any one of the candidates would have openly favored legislation prohibiting the practice I would have voted for it.

I really believe that would have made me vote for Lyndon (Dipper) Johnson. The practice of some of the lads in town who acquired is for about three hours, mounted on bicycles, to race up the sidewalk and then to a pedestrian who might be wanting to use his constitutional right to walk on the sidewalk. There have been several near-accidents recently and some lady was struck by a rider and almost knocked over the pavement. It is about time for some enterprising business man to sit waiting with a stick ready to use until riders learn to ride in the street or at least ride slowly and be for the rights of others.

Sixth Grade Pupils Provide Program For P-TA Meeting

The Sanderson P-TA met in the high school auditorium last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. K. H. Stutes leader of the program on "Evaluation of Your Own School."

Following the Pledge of Allegiance recited by the group the pupils of the sixth grade were presented in a group of songs and a playlet. Two piano duets were played by Carolyn Kern and Jerry Carter and Sarah Pat Grigsby with Deanna Moorefield. A reading was given by Elodia Garcia.

Mrs. Ervin Grigsby discussed the findings of the Gilmer-Alkin Committee and pending legislation.

The attendance prize was won by the sixth grade with the most representatives present.

Mrs. C. C. Mitchell, treasurer, and Mrs. Sid Harkins, third vice-president, tendered their resignations and their offices will be filled at a later date.

of the enormous human and economic wealth we have been forced to spend to maintain our liberties, and to defend those principles upon which the dignity of man depends.

Armistice Day should bring us another thought as well. This nation has never provoked a war. No people on earth is more peaceful in intention. None will do more to achieve a just and lasting peace for all countries. If we are forced to engage in war, it will be because we can find no other means of maintaining those rights and freedoms which make up the American tradition.

The United States must build and conserve its strength. That means, on the surface, that we must have a strong military force capable of dealing with aggressors, and a mighty industrial structure to back it up. But these things, vital as they are, represent a reflection of our strength rather than the substance of it. For the core of this nation's strength and power lies in the spirit of its people.

That spirit is the spirit of freedom. It is based on the knowledge that every American has inalienable rights which cannot be abrogated. The right to speak our minds, the right to own property, the right to engage in a business of our own choosing, the right to be free of dictation by government—these and other rights constitute our strength. And that, too, is the significance of Armistice Day.

DEER HUNTERS AVERAGE HIGH ON GAME BAGGED

Approximately one-third of the hunters who went out seeking deer meat this year were rewarded, judging from the number of animals being returned through Sanderson in the opening days of the season. It was noted that a high number of hunters took to the open this year and also that many of them who had only the week end in which to hunt were returning empty-handed.

Some have reported the deer in some sections in good shape considering the ranging facilities, while others had not been faring so well. Most of the deer seen on cars and pickups have been ranging around 10-points.

One of the fattest deer seen was an eight-point buck shot on the Goldwire ranch by Mrs. Joe Chandler, Tommy Mansfield, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mansfield, killed his first deer, a 5-pointer.

Wednesday morning of this week there had been no accidents reported in this immediate vicinity due to carelessness on the part of the hunters.

Says UN Affects Us All

Myrna Loy

Myrna Loy, popular film star, recently stated: "Just as we were affected by the daily events in the recent war, so are we affected by the day-by-day efforts of the United Nations. The industry in which I earn my living is concerned by the actions of UNESCO, for example. And this is just part of the economic and social work of UN, which is trying to raise the living standards of all peoples. It is trying to build understanding among all races, religions and nations. Through the Human Rights Commission, the UN is attempting to secure basic rights and freedoms for men and women of every color and creed. That's why I'm giving UN all my support. That's why all Americans should back it too."

The jars will be well marked and the businesses are asked to display them prominently for the big-hearted support of the citizens.

EAGLES LOSE IN DISTRICT FOOTBALL RACE IN DEFEAT BY ALPINE 46-0 FRIDAY NIGHT

Area Mercury Dips As Snow Hits Slate

Sanderson and area was feeling the coldest blast of mid-autumn Tuesday morning as the mercury dropped to near freezing temperatures.

The temperature was 25 degrees early Wednesday morning and thin ice noted. Vines, flowers and vegetables bore mute evidence of the freezing temperatures.

The norther began to blow late Monday and by midnight was cold enough to make the weather bureau prophesies a reality. The cold blast forged ahead of falling snow in the Panhandle which had moved there from the middle Rockies point of origin.

Snow was falling in Amarillo at 6:30 where the temperature was 32 degrees. The snow was described as light. The cold wave started across the Panhandle Sunday night and by Monday night was heading southward from an east-west line across Big Spring. A light snow fell at Lubbock.

Nothing more than possibly low temperatures was forecast for this vicinity, with a lack of frost due to the high winds.

Alpine was determined not to drop their chances to a two-way tie in district football competition last Friday night and downed the Eagles in the lopsided score of 46-0 in Alpine. This was the second time this year that the Bucks beat the Eagles.

It was predicted last week that the game would be more of a contest, but as predictions often go, this one went also. Sanderson was unable to penetrate the Alpine line with any effect whatsoever. The Bucks improving with experience over their last tilt with the Eagles, were practically the irresistible force against the low-substituted Eagle squad.

Alpine will go into their game with Marfa Thursday each with one loss with the district title at stake.

Sanderson will play Iraan on the local grid Friday night beginning at eight o'clock in a non-conference game.

BILL LAUGHLIN SUFFERS FOOT INJURY TUESDAY

Bill Laughlin suffered a severe injury to his foot Tuesday morning while the west-bound freight train on which he was a brakeman had stopped at Tesnus.

Mr. Laughlin's foot was caught between the couplings on two freight cars when his foot slipped after he had stepped on the coupling to pass between the cars which were moving slowly.

He was placed in the caboose of the train and an ambulance met the train at Marathon taking him to an Alpine hospital. He was placed on the east-bound passenger train later in the afternoon and carried to the company hospital at Houston.

Jack Laughlin accompanied his brother from Sanderson to Houston. Mrs. Laughlin and little baby were visiting her parents and other relatives at Goldthwaite and joined him at San Antonio for the trip to Houston.

Relative of Local Residents Buried In Del Rio Saturday

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in Del Rio for August E. Herzog, 65, who died at his home in that city Friday afternoon. Dr. M. L. Baker officiated and burial was made in the Masonic Cemetery with the Masons in charge of rites at the grave.

Born in Washington, D. C. in 1863, Mr. Herzog had resided in Texas after coming with his parents to San Antonio when six months of age. He had resided in Del Rio since 1899 and retired a short time ago after serving as superintendent of the city waterworks for forty-six years.

Besides his widow, survivors include four sons and three daughters. George Herzog of Sanderson is one of the sons. Among the nine grandchildren are Bobby and Sara Herzog and Ruth Bendele of Sanderson.

DON'T GO TO CHURCH

If you would live a selfish, self-centered life, satisfied with your own sufficiency and subject to no power greater than your own; if sincere, intimate fellowship with others in seeking the highest that man can know is a waste of your time - then don't go to church.

If you would accept all the blessings that God has granted to life on this earth, the sun, the air, the moon and stars, spring flowers and the grass, the mountains and seas and running streams, without once gathering with others to lift your heart in praise and thanksgiving to the Giver of all these blessings - then don't go to church.

If you can benefit by such contributions to social welfare as hospitals, schools, prison farms, and other humanitarian advances, without giving a passing thought to the church as the mother of them; if you can live in a world made better by the countless men of good will, without trying to add your bit to this heritage, if you can thus draw on a bank of the saints without making any deposit yourself - then don't go to church.

If you so favor totalitarian forms of government that you cannot appreciate the fact that the church is the greatest bulwark against all forms of dictatorship - then don't go to church.

If you are opposed to war, crime, poverty, paganism and all that cheapens and wastes and destroys life today and you want to escape doing anything about it yourself - then don't go to church.

If your life has been stronger and more meaningful because your parents had a vital religion, and yet you want to deny your children the same wholesome influence and helpful example - then don't go to church.

If you would seek no word of encouragement or hope in your hours of distress; if in the tragic and bitter experience of life you care not for the courage and comfort and consolation of a living faith; if life presents you with no problems that demand clear insight and inspiration - then don't go to church.

"But, wait," you are apt to say, "Where is one who will confess to all this?" Theoretically, he would be hard to find, but practically many of us confess to it each Sunday, by our absence from church.

For over nineteen hundred years the church has answered deepest needs and called out the highest deeds of men. It still answers the calls. The question is, how much longer can some of us go without the church? -Way of Life

Economic Highlights

There has been very little personal mudslinging in the 1948 presidential campaign and practically none of the under-cover rumor movements which are designed to persuade the electorate that this candidate or that is morally, mentally, or physically unfit for office. Most of the critical digs have been of a general nature - as for instance, Mr. Truman's description of the 80th Congress as one of the worst in history, and Mr. Dewey's allegations that the present administration is incapable of doing an efficient job. Thus, judged by political precedents, the campaign has been unusually clean, and no one of importance has attempted to make either of the principal candidates appear to be a crook of the first water.

A good many voters, perhaps, will look back with nostalgic regret on campaigns in which invective gave color and life to the proceedings, reprehensible as these weapons may be in principle. And to find the campaigns which were most enlivened in this fashion, we must look back quite a distance. In the October issue of the American Mercury, Robert Bendiner presents an amusing and instructive brief account of "Mudslinging in National Elections" which indicates how tremendously the times have changed in the matter of political manners and weapons.

Even Washington was not spared from the vitriol. On the First President's retirement, a newspaper observed that "If ever a nation has been debauched by a man, the American nation has been debauched by Washington." And while he was in office, an opposition cartoon was published which showed the Father of His Country being led to the guillotine.

Jefferson, sainted as he is in these days, also came in for his share of attack. The then president of Yale warned the country solemnly that the Jeffersonian doctrine was designed to make "our wives and daughters the victims of legal prostitution." He was also accused, through a published tract, of being a man of very loose morals.

The opposition really turned on the blow-torches when Andrew Jackson ran. Due to a legal mix-up, the General had married his second wife before she was fully divorced from her first husband, and a second ceremony had been necessary. An example of the use of his political enemies made of this incident is found in this sentence: "Ough! a convicted adulterer and her paramour husband to be placed in the highest offices of this free and Christian land?"

At Smith came in for heavy abuse, too. A clergyman asked rhetorically: "Shall day America elect a cocktail President?" A pamphlet described the Governor as "the friend of prostitution." The Catholic issue was played up to the hilt. Herbert Hoover and the responsible Republicans had no part in this and considered such tactics contemptible. But they couldn't stop the vilification. And Mr. Hoover didn't get off scot free by any means. He was accused of fraud during his engineering career and other crimes.

To come down to the very recent past, Franklin Roosevelt was considered a consistent target of the rumor mongers. A lunatic fringe put out pamphlets to the effect that he was really Jewish and was a sufferer from unmentionable diseases and so on. Scurrilous attacks were made on Mrs. Roosevelt. Matters went so far that the late President once said that his enemies "have not been content with attacks on me, or my wife, or my sons - no, not content with that, they now include my dog Fala." Oddly enough, that was literally true. Fala being accused of viciousness and other canine sins.

It is a point of interest that vitriolic attack has been employed most freely and consistently against the more dynamic and colorful candidates Jefferson, Cleveland, Roosevelt etc. This caused Mr. Bendiner to say in his Mercury article "Given the comparatively colorless pair of nominees we have was improbable from the start that the 1948 affair would dip to the low and gaudy level of past classics."

Let's Weigh the Evidence

Your scales can be a valuable ally to your judging eye! For years livestock breeders have kept weight and performance records, as well as pedigrees. Now many commercial producers are taking a tip from them. Recording birth weights and weaning weights of calves, pigs and lambs. Using their records to help cull, to select their likeliest breeding stock.

There is lots of evidence of the value of your scales in helping your eye. Here are just a few examples:

1) At Purdue University they weighed 7,554 pigs from 784 litters. Here's what they found: Pigs that weighed THREE pounds at birth averaged 28 pounds at weaning. But pigs that weighed TWO pounds at birth weighed only 21 pounds at weaning. Of the heavy pigs, 77% lived to weaning age, against only 49% of the light pigs. And right up to market weight, the heavier pigs had a higher rate of gain.

2) The U. S. D. A. has kept a 14-year record on beef calves. Birth weights vary from 40 to 109 pounds. Their finding: heavier-than-average calves reach a 500-pound weaning weight and 900-pound marketing weight faster than lighter-than-average calves. You know what that means! Less feed. More and quicker profit.

3) Sheep Experiment Station men at Dubois, Idaho, find they can use the scales to select breeding stock for greater production in the future. Their ewe lambs, which are heavier than average at weaning time, prove to be the best producers in total lamb weight and fleece weights.

4) At the University of Wyoming they divided dairy heifers into light and heavy weight groups. The "heavies" weighed 24 pounds more at birth. But at six months they averaged 43 pounds more per animal.

You need a good "judging eye" to tell you whether an animal has good conformation, is true to type, etc. But the evidence of recorded weights does point strongly to a general rule which can help your eye: Keep or buy animals heaviest at birth or weaning!

MAP OF "STEER ROUTE"

From grass range to gas range, in our big nation most of the livestock is raised far from where it is eaten - an average of more than 1,000 miles. Swift & Company helps bridge this gap and balance the supply in one area with the demand in another. Efficient processing and distribution keep the meat moving to markets all over the country. For these services Swift earns a profit of a fraction of a cent a pound. This has no noticeable effect on either meat or livestock prices. It's the demand for the available supply in the nation-wide markets which governs the price of meat and thus the price of livestock. For the price we pay for animals must be based on what the meat and by-products will bring.

Conserving Grass Is Profitable

by B. W. Allred Soil Conservation Service Fort Worth, Texas

The safest way to maintain a thriving livestock industry is to keep the ranges well stocked with vigorous, productive grasses - and covered with a protective shield of left-over grass. In animal production, sound grazing management is as important as breeding.

Grassland vigor and durability depend upon cropping. Lenient use and alternate rests help the pasture to reproduce from seed, tillers, rootstalks and surface runners. When grasses flourish, greater animal gains are made.

Observations of bluestem show that when about half the top growth is grazed (on the average, livestock may be 25% higher than when 75% is eaten. One stem meadow mowed repeatedly 4 to 6 inches high yielded nearly 30% more hay than a similar area of inches high.

When left-over grass breaks the force of beating moisture penetrates six or seven times deeper than the ground is bare. Springs are sustained in even for leafy grasslands. Litter shades and cools the ground, slows down evaporation. It finally decays and unites with soil to form porous mould in which teeming millions of beneficial organisms process soil nutrients that plants must have.

That portion of grass consumed each year produces profit. The portion left maintains plant vigor, protects soil and insures continued production.

Prices of Hogs May Rise or Fall But Competition Sets Them All

I have been with Swift & Company for 46 years. Most of my work has had to do with the buying of hogs and selling of pork and pork products. I would like to make a point that I believe should be of interest to you, as producers.

Do you remember when the top price for hogs in Chicago was 5 1/2 cents a pound? Some sold for as low as 3 cents a pound. That was in December, 1932. This year hogs hit an all-time high of more than 30 cents a pound. No meat packing company can control either livestock or meat prices. More than 3,500 competing meat packers and 22,500 other commercial slaughterers see to that. So do 35,000,000 meat-eating families. No packer's buyer can hold down the price of livestock. No packing company could boost up the price of meat.

Now, here's the point I want to get across to you. Those prices, both lowest and highest, were set by (1) the supply of hogs, and (2) the demand for pork.

Mr. Lund, guest editor this month, is Vice-President of Swift & Company in charge of hog buying, processing and distribution of pork products.

Martha Logan's Recipe for INDIVIDUAL PORK ROASTS

- 4 1-inch-thick shoulder pork chops
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 cups bread crumbs
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1/4 teaspoon sage
1 teaspoon salt

Spread chops with mustard. Make a dressing of bread crumbs, seasonings with just enough water to moisten. Brown chops in a skillet. When well browned, top chops with dressing pressed firmly. Cover in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 20 minutes. Uncover and bake 15 to 20 minutes until dressing is crisp and brown. Yield 4 servings.

The Red Wagon

No doubt you've seen the food trucks so gaily painted red, that travel the country, helping keep our people fed? The story of these trucks is a story you should know - it started in New England, nearly ninety years ago. There a boy, Gustavus Swift, who had won renown, bought a heifer, butchered it, then sold the meat 'round the town. Stave made a little profit - two dollars - it is said. It wasn't much to start on, but it helped get ahead. His wagon - yes, you've guessed - it was which he sold his meat, was a vivid red in color. It was noticed on the street. Stave moved on to Boston where his trade began to grow, then headed for Chicago. He started Swift & Co. Now the Swift trucks are red, that all the world may know this trademark of the business Swift started years ago - and on each load delivered, Swift earns a service fee - a fraction of a cent a pound, saved by efficiency.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

To Dunk or Not To Dunk?

Making doughnuts is Sober's favorite morning pastime for a long time. Ma Hopkins was trying to break him of the habit. It sets a bad example for the children.

One morning she puts a heavy dose of chocolate on the doughnut, figuring that will stop him. She thinks it over for a while and says, "Dunk! Taste? Smile!! And compliments the missus on her mocha flavor!"

There'll always be two sides to every coin, that's the way of thought: to dunk or not to dunk. But from where I sit, it's a matter of personal choice and taste—like some folks prefer beer to cider, ale to beer. And the less we criticize those differences of taste, the better.

In fact, Ma Hopkins got so curious about the flavor of chocolate-covered doughnuts dunked in coffee, that she tried it herself. Now— you've guessed it—she's a daily dunker, too!
