LISTEN TO LUKE

This week saw some of the big league political stuff get under way — way under, that is.

In the state convention for the republican party in Mineral Wells the wishes of the majority of the party members as expressed in precinct and county conventions was pushed aside to the will of a few who would take the power of decision from the majority.

The same thing happened in the democratic convention in San Antonio, except it didn't work there. The majority of Texas Democrats told the delegates what they wanted, and got it — but still the question of which delegation will be seated in Chicago will tell if a majority will win or if a hand-picked few will nominate the man to represent the party in November.

That is a scandalous situation for both parties. Every American, who is an American, wants to see majority rule and not let the packed, sold and delivered delegation represent us at the national conventions.

Any candidate, if he is an honest man, would repudiate such shabby tactics. The men who stand in line for nomination on the leading tickets have the power to declare that the men and women elected by a majority must be seated.

If the potential candidates for the presidency do not demand that the group selected by the majority of the voters, then what claim would they, in honor, have on the name of decent people in either party. The unprincipled actions of the majority groups of both major parties would demand that there be a screening and see who the people selected and then seat that group.

President Truman has had much to say lately about his "inherent rights." Every citizen of these United States of America has certain inherent rights. Every citizen from the President down to the least ditch digger has certain rights, but along with those rights a privilege goes also a certain amount of responsibility.

The President has apparently assumed some sort of a "the king do no wrong" idea. With the thought of divine rights idea he flagrantly tossed out of the window the Constitution as well as the Bill of Rights. This column is of the opinion that if Divine Providence were responsible for the leadership of this nation, sure Providence would not have gone the rotten, corrupt Pendergast machine of Kansas City to find the best suited for the job.

Mr. Brannon will answer the following questions in his lecture concerning Russia: Will Russia fight the United Nations? Does the Bible describe the allies that will fight for and against Russia in World War III? Is there an alliance between Russia and Iran mentioned in God's Word? Shall militant Communism conquer and crush Christianity? Will democracy fall under the power of Russia's hammer and cycle? Is Communism to prevail over the United States and establish a world power? What lies ahead in the near future of our troubled world?

Reverend Bridges announced that everyone is welcome and that no admission will be charged.

Four services are planned for Sunday, beginning with a mass meeting for men only at the Masonic Hall at nine o'clock when the evangelist's subject will be "Wanted, a Man." At ten o'clock members of the Sunday School will come together at the church to hear a special message by the Rev. Brannon on "What Christ Means To Me." His subject for the eleven o'clock morning service will be "God's Great Imperative."

Sunday night at seven-thirty for the closing message, the evangelist will preach on "What Does Your Future Hold?" Some of the questions he will answer will include: Is the grave the end? Where are the dead? What are they doing? Are they conscious? When do they take up their abode? Is there a second chance after death? What does the Bible say about purgatory?

MAC EDWARDS DIES SATURDAY FROM ACCIDENT

Funeral services were held in the First Baptist Church at four o'clock Monday afternoon for McNeill Whistler Edwards with Rev. Claude Bridges officiating. Burial was made in Cedar Grove Cemetery with O. T. Sudduth, Inc., in charge of arrangements.

Mack, as he was familiarly known, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Buster Edwards. He died in a Fort Stockton hospital about 10 o'clock Saturday night after being hospitalized early Saturday morning following a car wreck.

Young Edwards had gone to a dance in Marathon with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Bell, Jr., and was returning with Willie Wolff and Mac Benge of Dryden. About eleven miles west of Sanderson, Wolff evidently dozed at the wheel as he approached a curve in the highway and the car overturned after hitting a soft shoulder off of the highway.

Wolff and Benge jumped from the car as it overturned and removed Edwards from beneath the wreckage but had to wait approximately two hours before a passing motorist brought the news of the wreck into Sanderson and sent out an ambulance for them. After examination by a local physician, Mack was taken to a Fort Stockton hospital and never regained consciousness.

Born in Sanderson October 20, 1936, Mack attended the Dryden school for three years and was a member of the eighth grade graduating class Thursday evening.

Besides his parents, other survivors include his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Whistler of Sanderson; two brothers, Bobby, of Fort Stockton, and James Owen of Sanderson; three sisters, Mrs. Johnny Bell, Jr., of Valentine, Thelma Dee and Bertha Sue of Sanderson.

Pallbearers were Jim Turner, David Mitchell, Eugene Hibbard, Nicky Hahn, Charles Stegall and Odell Carruthers.

Out-of-town relatives here for the funeral included Mr. and Mrs. Kieffer Edwards and daughter, Patsy, of Johnson City; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Whistler, Mr. and Mrs. Bozarth Brown, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Williams, all of Del Rio; Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Sheely of Marfa; Mr. and Mrs. Charley Sheely of Marathon; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Wilkinson of San Antonio.

He has a fractured vertebra and his neck was placed in a cast. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Benge, Sr.

NATIONAL HOLIDAY FOR VOTER REGISTRATION

For the past 50 years our Federal government has been growing bigger and more powerful at just about the same rate that the citizens have been growing apathetic and lazy in carrying out the vitally important responsibility of voting. Something drastic should be done on a nation-wide scale to get Americans to vote. I'm proposing to the National Association of Secretaries of State that a national "Registration Week" be sponsored by that organization and that state registration laws be made sufficiently uniform so the work can be observed at the same time in every town and city in the nation with all the fanfare of a great national event.

It would not be out of line to have "Registration Day" of this week designated as a legal public holiday. On this day schools and businesses and industries would close. Registration booths would be set up in schools and drug stores as well as in city halls and other public buildings. Parades would be staged and the combined resources of the nation's press—radio, television, newspapers, the movies, etc.—would be mobilized behind a gigantic effort to get all of our 90,000,000 eligible citizens registered.

A Dramatic Event

What could be of more dramatic value, in a world in which individual freedom and democracy are drying up, than for America to go all out in a great national demonstration of citizenship. For 150 years we've been celebrating Independence Day each July 4th, and then on election days about fifty per cent to eighty per cent of us have been defaulting on one of the greatest obligations to free men—the shaping of our local, state and national governments with our votes and our voices.

Today only 50 per cent of the eligible citizens vote in presidential elections and only 20 per cent regularly in all elections. Just 40 years ago approximately 85 per cent of the eligible citizens voted regularly. In those 50 years during which our freedom to vote has been transformed from local self-government to national bureaucratic government—and its cost has been multiplied 100 times, and our total taxes now demand one-third of the total national income. Grassroots local government is disappearing and the preponderance of power is being gathered into the hands of a far-away Federal bureaucracy. This is a fact no one can deny or ignore.

Can Be Done

Registering to vote is only the beginning, though it is an all-important beginning. Through our National Education Program, Harding College is promoting "Tag Day" for all election days throughout the nation this year to stimulate the registered voters to action, and in my column next week I will present some further ideas about getting more citizens to vote once they have registered.

Obviously there are a lot of problems involved in developing a national "Registration Week" and a legal holiday for "Registration Day," but there were far greater problems involved when our forefathers were winning our freedom to vote as free people in the fires of war at Concord and Yorktown. I've discussed with C. G. Hall, Arkansas' veteran Secretary of State and now president of the National Association of Secretaries of State, some of the problems to be encountered in trying to establish uniform vote registration procedures and dates in the 48 states, and he does not think they are insurmountable. Mr. Hall is going to propose some action in the matter at his organization's next meeting on June 23 at Providence, R. I.

Task Is Local

The task of establishing nationwide uniformity on dates for voter registration is one for the 48 legislatures. And the establishing of a legal holiday and a "Registration Week" would likewise be a job for the officialdom of the 48 states working together. Therefore, the National Association of Secretaries of State is a logical organization to spearhead the effort.

The Registration laws today are a hodgepodge of dates and conflicting requirements. Seven states have the general registration deadline of October 4, but their primary registration deadline is different in each instance. In other states 27 different dates are designated, ranging from July 3 in Mississippi to November 1 in Vermont. In most states the registration deadlines are not adequately publicized and millions of potential voters carelessly let this terrible important day slip by without registering.

If you think "Registration Week" as a national event has merit, you can help as a citizen. Write your Secretary of State urging his support. Send him this column.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
 A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

POWER OF ATTORNEY EXPLAINED BY BAR

There are only two ways to get a thing done. You do it yourself or get someone to do it for you. When you get someone to act for you he is your agent. This right to represent you may be given orally or in writing.

It is best to have the agency relationship carefully defined and written down. When written, the document often takes the form of a "Power of Attorney."

Any person legally competent to act for himself may give to another power of attorney to act in his place. With the growth and expansion of business, it is difficult for one man to handle the variety of complex tasks that come his way. It is more expedient to delegate power and responsibility to others, thus giving such persons authority to make binding contracts in his name.

The person who delegates the power is called the principal, and the person to whom the authority is given is the agent. Third persons can deal with a properly authorized agent with the knowledge that the law will enforce the obligation against the principal.

The law sets up two broad classes of agents—special and general. Most agents are special agents—that is, they have specific authority to do only certain things. When a person is named in a power of attorney as a general agent, he is authorized to act in all proper cases as if the principal were acting in person.

For example: A citizen-soldier leaves home to go to war. He needs someone to represent him while he is away. He names such a person—usually a parent, wife, or trusted friend—in a power of attorney, giving this person specific powers or a general power to act in his behalf. If the soldier wants to sell his home while overseas, he can give such agent the power to sell the home, and may limit the agent's authority to this one matter. When this agent begins negotiations for the sale, the prospective buyer can, by an examination of the power of attorney, know exactly what authority the agent has.

If the person is given a general power of attorney, he can transact all the serviceman's business as though the soldier were home to act for himself. Suppose the soldier owns a store and wants someone to run it while he is away. He may authorize this person through a power of attorney to buy, sell, extend credit, collect bills, deposit and withdraw money from the bank, and, in short, do business on the same basis as the serviceman could if he were present to run the store himself.

New Notes in Cooking

- A stuffed baked potato is fine, but even finer is the potato pulp mixed with creamed salt codfish or creamed finnan haddie and put back into the potato shell. Bake, of course, to reheat and brown lightly.
- Mix crisp-fried bacon bits with canned cream-style corn; season with Accent (pure monosodium glutamate), salt, pepper. Heat, serve, and sit back for compliments.
- Alternate buttered and seasoned layers of cooked macaroni, drained chopped spinach, and grated cheese in a buttered baking dish. Bake in moderate oven until cheese on top is browned and bubbly. A wonderful no-meat treat.
- Sunday or holiday supper, in a wink, is no trick at all. Spread deviled ham paste on split, toasted, and buttered English muffins. Top with creamy scrambled eggs. Good!
- Stewing lamb cubes, flavored with garlic and seasoned with Accent, then browned, are a good start for a one-dish meal. Bake with barley, carrots, and peas. Fragrant, flavorful and satisfying is this dish.

Headache Is Stop Sign

A headache is often the first signal that some part of the body is not functioning as par. It may be considered a stop sign, a warning that either excesses or deficiencies are working a hardship someplace in the body.

Since "par" in the body is the balance between constructive and destructive forces, the constant blooming and fading of all parts of the body, any change in that balance is most likely to be referred to the head in the form of an ache.

The head is the message-sender and message-receiver of the body. Certainly pains may originate in the head, but they also may originate someplace else in the body and not be "registered" until they get back to the "switchboard" in the head.

The nerves are the "wires" that carry the brain's messages; some nerves have small "switchboards" located in different regions of the body, and when a deviation from normal arises in that region, it is registered on the "switchboard" there, not sent back to the brain.

Other parts of the body have only the central switchboard in the brain to handle their "calls," and the message goes out as a headache.

Pains in the head arising from causes near the surface of the skin are usually sharp and burning, pretty well localized over the area that is affected. Pains in the head arising from causes deep under the skin are usually dull and aching and may be quite widespread, not localized in one area.

Since different people have different sensitivities to pain, a minor ailment may cause terrific anguish in one person, whereas another less sensitive person may feel only a slight headache when he should be feeling great pain.

So the degree of pain with a headache is not as important in itself as the change of pain reaction. The person who never flinches when he cuts his finger or gets soaked in the eye would attach more importance to a severe headache than the person who hurts all over with every minor affliction.

One phase of a headache which often helps in locating the source of the pain is the time of onset of the headache. The headache that breaks into sleep, awakening you with its pain, is often caused by some organ of the body, the headache that keeps you from going to sleep also may be of organic origin. Cold weather headaches may be from some sort of congestion within the channels of the body, when they draw up tighter as a reaction to the cold.

A headache arising in the morning often traced to high blood pressure, getting better as the day goes by. Those morning headaches are often the result of the "night before," too, from such causes as overindulgence in liquor, the well-known hangover.

Sinus headaches may often be timed by the clock. They have a way of recurring at the same time every day, lasting for the same length of time.

Mental and emotional headaches often occur towards the end of the day, a result of fatigue and stress. Though they may interfere with going to sleep, it is more often the problem behind the ache that actually creates sleeplessness, and the ache is cleared with the relaxation of a sound sleep—sleeping often helps the problem, too.

Eyestrain headaches are most often an end-of-the-day headache, too, thought to result from the weariness of the eye muscles that have been focusing so intently. Since some defect in the focusing of the eyes is also present a lot of the time, the muscles that have been working strenuously at a disadvantage lose no time in sending the message to the brain in the form of a headache.

There are dishes at my house belonging to local people. If you call me at 170J I will be glad to return them. Mrs. John Whistler, 15fc.

Braceros Not Covered By S.S.

Agricultural workers who are recruited and brought to the United States from the Republic of Mexico under contracts to do farm and ranch work are not covered by Social Security, according to Jack Calvert, manager of the Oklahoma office of the Social Security Administration.

"There is some confusion among farm and ranch operators in the area as to whether or not 'braceros' are covered by Social Security," Calvert stated. "Under an amendment by Congress, the Social Security Act specifically excludes those Mexican agricultural workers."

This exclusion does not apply to non-citizens generally, but applies only to those who do agricultural work under what is commonly called the "Bracero contract."

Other aliens who work on American employers are covered by the law the same as citizens of the United States.

"Accordingly, farmers and ranchers who regularly employ these contract workers should withhold social security taxes from their wages, or report them on their quarterly tax returns," said.
