LISTEN TO LUKE

Another old landmark in the town is disappearing this week, and like all other things, time and progress takes its toll, even among buildings.

The reason for the removal of the Newton building is to permit remodeling and improvement of the appearance of the service station just west of the building as well as to remove an old object that has served its purpose in the life of the town.

We feel a little close to the building since it was erected to house The Sanderson Times.

It was used to house various business over the years, but the edifice was crumbling and like the song, Mr. Newton decided that he was "going to need this house no longer".

But at least it is being torn down to make way for improvements. That is always a consolation.

The removal of such a landmark always brings to mind that many of us, as humans, are guilty of devotion to ourselves or to others or to things, which we think are indispensable to the going-on of humanity, and usually something comes along that is better and the world is better off after all.

It would appear from the lack of any apparent move on the part of any local organization, that our idea of establishing a museum was a poor one in the minds of others.

We still think it was a good one though and would like to see something done about it.

We have been through towns, large and small, and seen similar ideas that had been developed to the betterment of the town and to the financial betterment of a club or individual.

We can remember stopping in one place and paying perfectly good money to see real, honest to goodness live rattlesnakes, and GTO possums, coons, foxes, badgers and an eagle. And this was not in a regular zoo.

The enterprising owner of this small menagerie had gathered those things which are native to this particular area, bought some Indian beads, bracelets, ear-rings, an old tomahawk headdress and moccasins and with that and a big yarn about how he caught all of those animals barehanded, and killed several Indians to gather the trophies he was taking life easy on the nice income from suckers like me who would stop to see those things we had seen all of our lives.

We can remember stopping, also in a little out-of-the-way places to pay good money to see a collection of museum pieces that were no more interesting, by any means, than those we saw on display here during our celebration.

If no more than expenses could be reaped from efforts thereof, it would be a great attribute to the town and would be a worthwhile project for an organization.

We would be glad to donate the space necessary again to request the collection of such articles for a non-profit venture of an organization.

We also have room in our columns for soliciting such items for an individual, but there is a little difference in the price we charge.

There is a noticeable number of well-improved yards again this summer in Sanderson, and they are indeed a pleasure to see.

RAINS HELP AREA AROUND DRYDEN LAST WEEK-END

Rains fell in the Dryden area last week-end to help ranges that were sorely in need of moisture.

The rains were reported to have fallen on the Adams ranch north of Dryden with showers in the immediate vicinity to the south and east, but the heaviest downfall was reported in Dryden.

Heavy clouds which visited this area last week failed to materialize into water-givers, but the area around Del Rio and west to Langtry received beneficial moisture.

This week the weather has been clear and hot in the Sanderson area, with some clouds coming up late in the afternoon with no beneficial moisture resulting.

State Bar Head Names Committee For Grievances

Vigilance by State Bar Grievance Committees in Congressional districts throughout the state will assure that every Texas lawyer lives up to his qualifications as an "officer of the court," the head of the Texas legal profession declared this week.

This policy was announced by Maurice R. Bullock of Fort Stockton, president of the State Bar of Texas, in making appointments to the Sixteenth Congressional District Grievance Committee. Appointed to three-year terms were Doyle H. Gaither of El Paso; Wyndam K. White of El Paso; Frank O. Ray of Alpine; Will A. Hadden, Jr., of Odessa; and Rufus Burton Rawlins of Monahans. Other members whose terms have not yet expired are Harold S. Long, El Paso; Richard P. Langford of El Paso; William E. Ward, El Paso; Hart Johnson, Fort Stockton; Hunter O. Metcalfe, Marfa; John M. Hayre, Sanderson; Edward M. Winkler, Fort Stockton; Hamilton E. McRae, Midland; Malvern George McDonald, Odessa; and Richard L. Toll, Pecos.

Bullock explained that each congressional district has at least one Grievance Committee, members for which are recommended by a member of the State Bar board of directors who reside in the district. Director for the Sixteenth District is Frank Stubbemom, Midland attorney.

Grievance Committees are established to receive complaints, investigate and take appropriate action on any act of misconduct reported by members of the Bar. Any citizen, Bullock said, who believes he has been aggrieved in a legal matter by his attorney may make complaint to any member of the committee. Depending on findings of the investigation, the committee shall take action by dismissing the complaint, by reprimanding the attorney or by instituting procedure for suspension or disbarment.

"The overwhelming preponderance of the profession is honest and reputable," Bullock asserted. "We have not always had, however, adequate policing of the small number who are not."

In some cases, he said, lawyers do not have the esteem of the public to which they are entitled. "We don't want them pictured differently than they really are, but we feel no other group on the whole is rendering more public service."

Bullock expressed hope that trivial or personal complaints would not be filed with the Grievance Committee. He said only cases to be considered will be alleged acts of unethical practice or misconduct.

Cause of the derailment was not revealed.

It was stated that 42 of the cars were demolished in the wreck and the other three were only derailed.

H. E. Ezelle was conductor of the train; R. D. Treloar, rear brakeman; T. Corbett, head brakeman; Lewis Fletcher, engineer and E. W. Meeks, fireman. Treloar left Tuesday for Houston for examination for possible injuries received in the wreck. None of the other crewmen were injured.

Bids Awarded On Bridge, Road Work For This Area

It was revealed Wednesday that Hugh McMillan of El Paso was the low bidder on two highway construction jobs in this area.

Work is scheduled to begin soon on a concrete bridge across what is termed Cliett Draw, a fork of the Big Canyon Draw, about 25 miles north of Sanderson on US 285. This project will eliminate the dip which has been washed out several times in recent months by water from the west side of the highway.

High water had completely washed away the topping and base and a temporary detour was made around the wash-out.

The other job is the three miles of surfacing, grading, etc., involving in the three miles west of Sanderson on US 90 from the western edge of Sanderson.

This project is intended to eliminate the hazardous rise and curve near Jack Deaton's ranch house and will improve the intersection or junction of US 285 and 90.

One of Sanderson's Oldest Buildings Being Torn Down

One of the oldest business buildings in Sanderson is being razed this week as workmen began unroofing the Harry Newton building across the street from Cooke's Market Monday.

The building erected in 1902 or 1903 by Henry Carmichael as a home for the Sanderson Times, was until a few weeks ago occupied by Chester Smith for his grocery store business. Harry Newton, retired T & NO railroad engineer, is owner of the property, having acquired it with the home he now occupies in 1913.

Mr. Newton stated that the edifice had served to house many and varied types of businesses in the past. It was at one time an ice cream parlor, later a ladies' dress shop, and has also been used as a pool hall. In the more recent years, however, he says it has been occupied by grocers and as a warehouse.

Mr. Newton stated that the building was becoming an eyesore in its rundown condition, and in the interest of the appearance of that section of town on the highway he decided to clear the old structure away and utilize the space for entrances and driveways to the service station which is also on his property.

The station at present is being operated by Roy Haley.

FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT IN CLUB CAFE

A fire which probably was caused from a cigarette thrown in the trash box beneath the counter, according to reports, did considerable damage to the Club Cafe which was only recently closed for several days to be redecorated and remodeled.

The fire was discovered by A. W. Clay and his son who were walking by the cafe about 9:30 and the local firemen who responded to the call, arrived after the fire was extinguished by passers-by.

Dense smoke did considerable damage to the recently-painted interior. The counter and shelving were charred, fixtures blistered by the heat and both front and back doors will have to be replaced. The loss was covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Holt, owners, expressed gratitude for the early detection of the fire and prompt action on the part of citizens in helping to avert the complete destruction of the frame building.

GARNERS TO REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. J. Garner returned home Tuesday after attending the Cunningham family reunion near Comanche. This is the Centennial year for the Cunninghams in Comanche County. Ten families of the original 12 children were represented this year among the 300 present.

The family owning the old homestead opened the home and invited all the family over. The old rock home, large barns and corn cribs are as they were 100 years ago, since they were well built to resist Indian raids which were many to the settlers in that area.

Mrs. J. Garner is a daughter of the youngest son of this family, the late George W. Cunningham of San Angelo. Five of the six living children of this family were at the reunion.

The case of two local men who had been under $2,500 bond since the latter part of April after an alleged altercation in which both men received gunshot wounds was reviewed by the grand jury and no indictments were forthcoming.

The case involved Bill Haynes, local water well contractor, and Rudolph Wallace, a T&NO fireman. Wallace suffered the loss of his right eye from alleged gunshot wounds and Haynes received gunshot wounds in his head and shoulder.

Both men were held charged with assault until bond was made. Sheriff Lee Billings was the arresting officer. He was assisted in the investigation at the time by Texas Rangers F. G. Hardin and J. S. Nance.

Austin — Despite "go slow" warnings from top state officials, 28 or more Texas schools have announced plans for complete or partial integration.

Gov. Allan Shivers, in setting up a statewide advisory committee, cautioned against "hasty, ill-considered action." Earlier Atty. Gen. John Ben Shepperd had warned schools against "rushing headlong" into desegregation ahead of legislative action.

Though the Texas Education Agency makes no recommendations to schools, it is keeping tabs on locally-decided policies. Its file of newspaper clippings from over the state shows that about 36 schools have definite plans, either pro or con.

In numerous other district studies are being made by bi-racial committees. Questionnaires are measuring sentiment in some areas.

Texas Citizens Councils, similar to an anti-integration organization in Mississippi, have sprung up in some East Texas areas. Dallas and Kilgore have councils pledged to "fight desegregation by every legal means."

Austin last week was the largest city with a high percentage of Negro students to plan integration this fall. It will begin in the top three grades which are 15 per cent Negro. A liberal transfer policy is expected to ease adjustment.

San Antonio, with 77 per cent Negro students, is the largest school system to plan immediate integration. All grades will be included here.

Other towns adopting immediate, across-the-board integration include Corpus Christi, Lubbock, San Angelo, El Paso, Crystal City, Carrizo Springs, LaFeria, Mission and Brownsville.

Cities favoring this include San Marcos, Robstown, Bishop, Port Lavaca, Brownwood, Kerreville, Sinton, Weslaco, Harlingen, Amarillo, Kingsville, Friona, Rockport, Aransas Pass, Karnes City, Kenedy and Runge.

When it hears of a school planning to desegregate, the Education Agency writes local officials for a blueprint of the plan. These are made available to undecided school leaders who want to know how others are solving the problem.

A September 24th wedding is planned in the Sanderson Church by Christ by Miss Ginger Magill and Jack Harrell. Formal announcement of marriage plans was made at a tea Saturday afternoon, given by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Winnie Magill, in her home from four to seven.

The honoree and her mother welcomed the guests, the former wearing a pink broadcated cotton afternoon frock fashioned with a ruche of pink pleated net which also formed a panel down the front of the bouffant skirt. Her shoulder corsage was of blue asters and her shoes of pink pearlized kid. Presiding at the bride's book to register the guests were Mrs. Don Anderson, Miss Mary Landon Rose and Mrs. Charlie Riggins. The tea table was covered with a white linen cloth of Mexican drawwork, and an artistic ranch scene formed the centerpiece. In the foreground were miniature corrals with sheep, a few cows and horses. In the background, a cowboy and cowgirl stood beneath a rainbow with the lettering "Ginger and Jack - Sept. 24". "The Last Command", the story of the fall of the Alamo filmed at Brackettville recently, is coming to the Princess Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, August 24 and 25, according to an announcement made by Carlton White, manager, this week.

The movie received a lot of publicity in this area in the filming as many people of the Del Rio and Brackettville area were hired as extras and are well-known here.

The schedule of the local theatre had announced the showing of Walt Disney's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea", but this was changed to permit the showing of the Alamo defense movie.
