Audit Report Shows Water District To Be Financially Sound

This week we have the news about the good financial condition of the local water district.

The auditor's report of the financial condition of the Terrell County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 shows that organization to be on sound financial footing, according to the members of the water board who are: Greene Cooke, president; Jimmy Caroline, manager; Edward Kerr, secretary; and M. W. Duncan and D. E. Anderson.

A full financial statement will be published soon, in compliance with the state law, and from that readers may get a complete picture of the transactions of the body and of its financial condition.

Since the organization of the water district, $15,000.00 has been paid on the principal indebtedness of $200,000.00, all of which is scheduled for retirement in 1977. The retirement of the first two years' bonds totaling the $155,000 has been according to the retirement schedule, according to the board of directors.

Copies of the auditors' report are in the hands of each of the board members.

As far as we can say, the best about the report is that it gives us hope of meeting all of our obligations and doing what needs can be foreseen without the necessity of a tax on property within the district.

There are some who might cry immediately, "If we are in such good shape, let's lower the water rates!" And that is always a good idea, in Sanderson, or in any other place, regardless of the cost of water.

But it's unsound business, now, according to the board of directors and to many others who are followed closely along with the operation. And we are one of those.

Rain Clouds Visit After Several Misses Earlier In Week

Rain began falling about 4:00 Wednesday afternoon to break the custom of clouds by-passing Sanderson in their eastward run.

The rainfall Wednesday totaled a quarter of an inch locally.

A trace of rain fell in Sanderson Tuesday afternoon late.

Will J. Murrah reported a nice rain Tuesday afternoon on the ranch south of Sanderson and the rainfall is presumed to have fallen on other ranches in that vicinity.

Good rains have been reported on the S. L. Stumberg ranch to the west in recent days and Wednesday's rainfall there was reported to be 1 inch.

N. W. Carroll reported a 3-4 inch rain on the Stumberg River Ranch and it was still raining as the report was given.

Rain clouds have by-passed Sanderson in recent days, and indications are that some rain has fallen to the south of Sanderson.

The thunderheads building up in the west, approached Sanderson, but all have gone to the south, causing some heavy winds locally at times, but leaving no moisture. Overcasts have indicated a strong possibility of rain on two or three occasions this week, but none has fallen since last week.

Austin - Store windows already are featuring school clothes, and mothers across Texas are budgeting money for new blue jeans and calico dresses.

But money with which to open the schools is not yet in sight.

No one seriously doubts that new taxes will be voted and new appropriations made before current appropriations run out August 31.

Gov. Price Daniel has asked the Legislature to provide $359,000,000 in new revenue to get the state out of the hole and cover future needs. Even in "good times" raising this much money is a staggering problem. It will mean passing taxes to which a good portion of the Legislature - and possibly the governor - are bitterly opposed.

It could not be done - except that in a few weeks those blue and calico-clad youngsters must go to school.

Senate Works On Tax

Senate's enthusiastic attitude toward the House-passed tax bill may foreshadow another end-of-the-session deadlock between the two houses.

Even if all senators heartily approved the House bill, they would still have to expand it. State Comptroller Robert Calvert, whose word is final on revenue forecasts, estimates the House bill will raise only $254,000,000. This is over $100,000,000 short of anticipated need. At the time it was passed, House sponsors thought it would bring in about $328,000,000.

House measure would raise money from these sources:

1. A 2 per cent sales tax on all power-driven objects, construction materials, utility services and on other items costing more than $5. (Bulk of expected revenue would be from this provision.

2. A minimum levy of one cent per thousand cubic feet on natural gas. Holders of dedicated reserve contracts would be liable for paying the difference between present gas production taxes and this minimum requirement.

3. A one-third increase in drivers' license fees.

4. A revision in the corporation franchise tax formula to get more taxes from out-of-state corporations operating in Texas.

5. A one per cent transfer ($12,000,000) from the Permanent School Fund to the Available School Fund.

6. A bookkeeping change to transfer to the schools in August the portion of gasoline tax money that is slated for school purposes.

Budget in Conference

House and Senate general appropriations bills, each calling for spending in the neighborhood of $2,500,000,000, are in the hands of a joint conference committee.

House bill calls for $16,000,000 more than the Senate version. In addition to what it already had passed, the House instructed its conference committee to hold fast on provisions for a 40-hour week for state employees. Money already was in the House bill to put state hospital employees on a 40-hour week. To this, the House added in its committee instructions, a 40-hour week for prison system and Department of Public Safety employees.

Governor Opens Gates

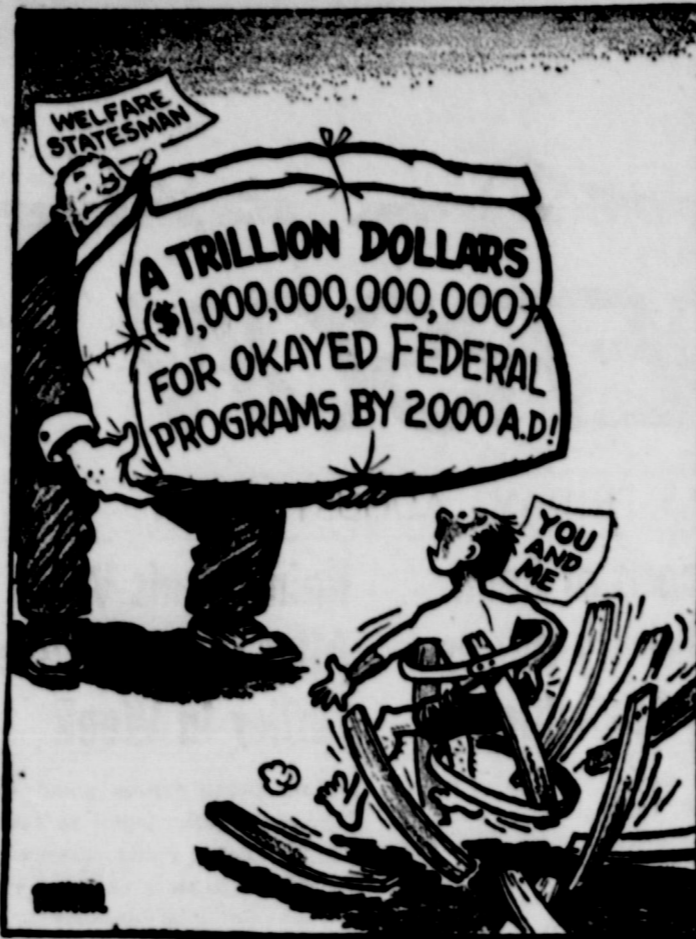

Just when legislators thought they were going into the stretch on the drive to solve fiscal problems, the governor opened up the session to bills on 21 additional subjects.

Only subjects listed by the governor may be considered in a special session.

Daniel opened the door to legislation on unemployment compensation, law enforcement, and traffic safety, the election code, Sunday closing laws, municipal annexation, and some 15 other subjects.

Not included in the list were three bone-in-the-throat issues left over from the regular session: small loan regulation, changes in the auto insurance plan and ceding part of Padre Island to the federal government for a park.

EVEN THE BARREL'S GOING!

Some legislators protested that the avalanche of bills resulting from the governor's broadened call would make it harder than ever to pass a tax program.

Cost-Cutting Plan

In view of the House's money-finding problems, a bill was introduced to lop $97,000,000 off of the state's revenue needs for the next two years.

The author is chairman of the House revenue and taxation committee. He termed his bill an "economy" measure. But many of its provisions, which are likely to arouse opposition, call for getting more money rather than spending less.

Among the bill's provisions, combine the Game and Fish Commission and the State Parks Board; raise tuition for state-supported colleges; pay county superintendents from county, rather than state, funds; finance the Department of Public Safety from state highway funds and put DPS collected funds into the general fund.

Insurance Hike Studied

Lawmakers, though they cannot legislate on insurance in this session, are giving the new, higher auto insurance rates a thorough going over.

Conflict began when the State Board of Insurance instituted insurance premiums based on driving records in January 1960. Many legislators protested effects of the plan during the regular session. Then during the summer the Board ordered an across the board increase in auto insurance rates, averaging about 15 per cent.

Both House and Senate set up special committees to investigate need for the increase. A rate expert representing the Insurance Board told the House committee that drivers, not the Board, actually determine rates. As proof, he said rates dropped 30 per cent during World War II when drivers knew if they wrecked a car, they'd be walking for the duration.

Spate of Bills

Governor Daniel's broadening of the legislative call brought a hopper full of new proposals. Among them are measures that would:

1. Require public school children to take a standard state test in the basic subjects once every three years. Purpose is to focus more attention on academic quality.

2. Raise the present $28 a week maximum on unemployment compensation to $37 a week.

3. Allow school districts, on petition of 5 per cent of the voters, to hold a referendum on whether to establish free public school kindergartens.

4. Require a run-off in special elections to fill seats in Congress and the State Legislature. Such an election is due this year to fill the post vacated by the death of State Rep. Marshall O. Bell of San Antonio.

5. Levy fines from $100 to $500 for selling certain types of merchandise on Sunday.

Obesity Can Be Linked To Diabetes

Various educated guesses as to the number of undiscovered diabetics in the United States place the figure somewhere between one and two million. Undoubtedly a fair proportion of them are Texans.

Diabetes is a systemic metabolic disease in which the body loses its ability to use sugar normally. It can develop at any age, but most new victims are 50 or older.

Normally, the gland called the pancreas produces a secretion called insulin which is released into the blood. In the presence of insulin, sugar in the blood is burned, especially by muscular activity. Any excess of sugar in the presence of a normal amount of insulin is stored temporarily, mostly in the liver, and released into the blood stream as needed. This is the normal pattern. But in a person suffering with diabetes the pancreas fails to produce sufficient insulin. And when starches are eaten and absorbed as sugar, the body is unable to control the sugar normally by storing it in the liver or to burn it effectively in muscular exercise. Result: the sugar content of blood increases abnormally.

Because a diabetic is unable to burn sugar efficiently for energy, he becomes weak and tired, hungry and undernourished.

When blood sugar gets too high, the kidneys, in an effort to lower it, removes some of the sugar by excreting it in the urine. This makes the body dry and creates thirst.

Proof of the hereditary nature of diabetes is the fact that surveys of diabetic children show 80 per cent are from families with a history of diabetes. Recent studies have shown that both mothers and babies weighing 10-12 pounds at birth have a pronounced tendency to develop diabetes in later life.

Overeating and lack of muscular exercise tend to promote obesity which in turn create a tendency toward diabetes. It has been shown that 20 fat persons develop the disease for every thin one who does. Moral: don't overeat, don't get overweight, but do get plenty of exercise.

You can judge your own disposition toward diabetes. Are you overweight? Do you overeat? Is there diabetes in your family? Were you a "heavy" baby at birth? Do you have any of these symptoms: persistent hunger or thirst, loss of weight or strength, excessive urination? If so, you're a fair candidate for diabetes and ought to promptly consult your family physician.

A Medley Of Fruits Hot Fruit Compote — Fine Guest Fare

A medley of fruits will make a delicious ending for a party meal.

This interesting combination features canned sliced pineapple, apricots, oranges and sweet canned cherries, in a hot fruit sauce, delicately flavored with Cointreau, if desired.

It is served warm with whipped cream or sour cream flavored with cinnamon or shredded orange rind. Bake the fruits in an attractive casserole and bring to the table for service.

HOT FRUIT COMPOTE

- 1 (8 1/2) can pineapple slices
- 1 (#303) can whole apricots
- 3 oranges
- 1/2 cup mixed syrup from pineapple and apricots
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 teaspoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 cups canned or frozen dark sweet cherries
- 2 tablespoons Triple Sec or Cointreau, if desired

Drain pineapple and apricots; save syrup. Put fruit in shallow oven-to-table baking dish. Grate or coarsely shred peel of one orange over fruit. Squeeze its juice and mix with the mixed fruit syrup, honey and cornstarch. Peel and section 2 oranges, add to fruits. Cover all with honey mixture. Dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about 20 minutes. Baste frequently. Add cherries and a little of their syrup. (If you want the sauce golden and clear, save the cherry syrup for a delicious molded salad.) Baste fruit again. Heat about 10 minutes longer. Dash with the liqueur, if desired. Serve warm with whipped or sour cream flavored with shredded orange rind and cinnamon.

Yield: 6 servings.

interest given by the consumers. We think there is nothing like a healthy business, and one that is able to best serve the customer is the one that serves the customer most.

This is a two-sided affair - and it works only from both sides.

No store in town nor all of them combined can have what all people want or need all the time. But if the consumer tries to help the merchant who is trying to do business here, pay taxes, and be on hand when needed, then the merchant probably will be in better position to have a more complete stock and better help the consumer.

It goes along with that old adage of you scratching my back and I'll scratch yours.

This columnist and the Mrs had the opportunity of going to Alpine with a carload of Little Leaguers Tuesday night. It was one of the pleasures we seldom get to enjoy.

The all-stars from the local teams went to the baseball capital of West Texas to play an all-star team there. While our local players were badly beaten, they enjoyed the chance to play on the grass under the lights with an out-of-town team.

The boys played hard and ate like they enjoyed it. One in our group remarked that the beautiful green mountains looked like they were covered with green snow. The country is beautiful after the good rains in this part of the country.

We will not try to mention all the adults who have helped so unselfishly this summer with the kids. We might not know all who have had a part in the work, but we know Bob Turner, Ernest Couch, Gary and Larry Harrell, Brucks Bader, David Flores, and others have done a fine job. They have met with them and coached them and kept up the grounds and equipment so that the season's play could be helpful to the boys.

Our hats are off (in fact I left mine in Alpine) to this fine group of interested citizens and the fine boys who have cooperated with them. Let's resolve to make next year show more effort on the part of more adults and get baseball going in Sanderson.

LUCKIES DON'T SKIMP

They're so round, so firm, so fully packed - so free and easy on the draw. They're fully packed with fine tobacco. They're firmer than any other regular cigarette. And Luckies smoke longer. THAT'S WHY THEY TASTE SO GREAT.
