LISTEN TO LUKE

This week the Wink Bulletin announced that hereafter that newspaper will be published in permit and will carry the masthead "The Winkler County Bulletin".

Howard N. Wall is publisher and Paul Foraker is editor of the newspaper. Mr. Foraker, under the column "Yours Truly" is outspoken and informative on subjects that should cause the citizens of Winkler County to take notice.

The Wink Bulletin has taken stand against the urban renewal project which cost the taxpayers from all over the country many thousands of dollars and only sped the exodus of the population to other parts.

Wink is suffering from an economic depression due to the lack of oil production and exploration from the folly of those who would take tax dollars from the rest of the United States to try to build their city on this false economy that has no lasting value.

Week after week we receive wonderful messages of encouragement from our readers in all parts of the country. Of course, those who take the time to write and send us material they see in other papers are due some kind of recognition and we are sorry that space in our column prohibits publishing an acknowledgment of all these kind acts of subscribers. We do appreciate their encouragement.

We feel that we read a little more of the daily newspapers than does our average reader. We read the San Antonio Express, the Houston Post, the Dallas Morning News, the San Angelo Standard-Times, the Fort Worth Telegram and countless periodicals of national circulation and many weekly newspapers.

We cannot publish all of the things we read every day, week after week out, that have pointed directly toward socialism in this country. And if we published it all, there are those who, in spite of realizing this, like the way things are going.

We know in our own mind that we cannot push all these facts aside and say there are no problems. We know that to ignore the concern of the fundamental issues before us daily is to encourage the progress into decay and moral degradation for the entire country. No nation can survive when our moral structure is at such a low level.

The increasing emphasis on material well-being seems to be made at the expense of those moral values and basic principles that form the foundation of this nation.

Armed violence, riots just for "riks", increasing evidence of corruption and venality in government all form an alarming counterpoint to the more-money-

Marking Ballot Is Important For Vote Counting

There has been much discussion over the state in an effort to clarify and stress the importance of marking a ballot. This is being done in an effort to assure voters that their votes can and will be counted.

The general election ballot will have three parties' candidates listed for some offices of the nation and state and any voter who scratches out only one of the columns, or scratches out only one of possibly three names for one office, turns in a ballot that cannot be counted by the election judges.

This illustration is given: If a person scratches out only the Republican column and does not make any mark in any of the other columns, his ballot can be counted in votes for only those candidates who do not have an opponent in the other party columns unscratched.

If a person wishes to vote for Democrats all the way, he must mark through the other columns on the ballot if he wishes his vote for all the Democratic candidates to be counted.

If a person wishes to "split" a ticket, which he may do in Texas, he should mark out each name for which he does not wish to cast a vote and leave only those names unmarked for whom he wishes to cast a vote.

Any questions a voter may have may be answered at the time of voting or he may question a person in whom he has confidence in correctly instructing him before he goes to the polls.

It has been stressed that the names of two candidates or of two parties left on the ballot disqualifies a judge from giving a vote to any candidate, since the choice of two or more candidates is the voters' and not his.

Settlement Made On Ranch Suit

A lawsuit which would have divided the Longfellow Ranch in Pecos and Brewster Counties was settled in Houston recently.

Judge Gordon Gary of Beaumont said the defendants have done no wrongful acts and acted in good faith. The defendants are F. B. Pyle, who operated the ranch for 31 years, P. H. Monroe, William B. Blakemore, II, Edwin Dyer and Robert H. Parseley, officers of the West Cattle Co.

Wesley West filed the lawsuit, complaining the defendants were mismanaging the ranch and disposing of its mineral rights and assets for less than their value.

He asked that West Cattle Co., which he, his father, James M. West and Pyle founded, be liquidated. When Judge Gary announced judgment on the first lawsuit, West withdrew the liquidation request.

.60-Inch Rain Falls Sunday

A light rain began falling before daylight Sunday morning and left near one-half inch on most of Terrell County.

There was very little or no run-off after the rain.

The rain continued most of the day and heavy dews accompanied the rain on successive mornings this week.

The area to the south of Dryden and north from Dryden all reported about the same amount of rain as was noted here, .60.

North of Sanderson some of the ranchmen reported up to one inch of rain.

The rain of last Sunday, coming on the heels of the previous soakers two weeks previously, have put a lot of moisture in the ground, according to most of the ranchmen.

A very light frost was noted in Sanderson on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings.

First Proposal Would Change School Fund Law

The voters of the state will decide on three proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution on November 3, at the time of the general election.

The first proposed amendment would remove the authority of the legislature to transfer up to one per cent of the permanent school fund annually to the available school fund.

Under the present law, the legislature is empowered to withdraw one per cent of the total permanent fund and made available for the current expenses of the state's schools.

Currently the permanent fund of $535 million is invested in government bonds and some corporate stocks and bonds and the interest and dividends go into the available school fund. Any increases in the value of the investments and increases in the mineral income from such things as oil and gas royalties from the school lands, are not subject to automatic transfer to the available fund. They increase the permanent fund which has been growing at an average of $26-million a year since 1948.

Advocates of the passage of the amendment believe that it will prevent depletion of the permanent school fund by removing the possibility of the legislators' dipping into the fund to avoid new or higher taxes which may become necessary, or in order to spend the money in some way which they deem expedient or necessary in improving the state supported schools. The opponents argue that mineral income is declining and the day may come when the fund will no longer be growing, and a constant drain on the now large sum could raise the cost of education in tax dollars considerably. They argue that the money is there, it is not sorely needed, and the time could come when it was most useful.

Opponents of the measure contend that the legislature has used its authority to draw on the permanent school fund prudently and reluctantly. They say the lawmakers should be allowed to retain the power for emergency use and that such revenues as they receive from oil and gas royalties should be considered as income for the available school fund, and not go into the permanent school fund at all.

Emergency Feed Available For County Ranchers

Terrell County has been designated an emergency area under Public Laws 87-127 and 86-299 making local producers eligible for assistance in buying emergency livestock feed. Under the designation, the prescribed period shall terminate April 30, 1965, but this date is subject to change depending on forage conditions.

Direct selling by the Terrell ASCS County Office of grain in government storage is available in the same manner as during last winter's emergency program. Corn is available only to stockmen raising sheep and goats. Milo is available in bulk for custom processing.

The new feature of this year's program is the availability of processed feed through regular feed dealers who have entered into agreements with county offices.

Eligible livestock is the foundation breeding stock owned by the ranchmen at least six months prior to application for feed assistance and which animals were in the emergency area on October 15, 1964, and the offspring of such animals. Stock purchased as replacement according to customary normal breeding operations are also eligible.

The sale price of feed grain approved for eligible breeding stock is 75% of the applicable support level. The support level for grain sorghum in Terrell County is $1.98 per cwt. and for corn is $2.41 per cwt. Seventy-five per cent of these prices make grain sorghum $29.70 per ton and corn $36.16 per ton. Program details and applications available at the ASCS office.

John T. Williams, manager of the warehouse, stated that the producers were well satisfied with the prices and that every bag of wool offered was sold.

The fall wool prices included both the top and the low prices paid at the sale. The 8-months wool brought 57-58 1/2¢ and the 12-months wool brought 57¢.

Ballinger Baling Co. of Ballinger was the biggest buyer of fall wool, 104,133 pounds. Other buyers of all wools included Delone and Tasney, of Fite, Dupe, Sawyer, Emery Wool Co., Colonial Wool Co., Prouvost-Lefebvre Co., Lobnitz Mills, Inc., W. F. (Son) Drake Jr., buying for Standard Felt Co.

Next Year's Grass Is Product Of This Year's Care

by Darwin Schrader
Soil Conservation Service

Rains came late in this year's growing season in most of the Rio Grande-Pecos River Soil Conservation District and grass growth in general has been very meager. How will this effect next year's growth? Does this seem odd to consider next year's growth by what happened this year?

Perhaps so, but what happens to grass one year has a great deal of influence on next year's grass production. The green leaves of grass are important to the rancher because they are good feed for his livestock. These leaves are also important to the grass plant because this is where the grass manufactures its food for growth and reproduction.

Contrary to popular beliefs, grass does not get its food from the soil. The plant leaf is the food factory for the grass and this is the only place that food for growth is manufactured. If this year's leaves are continuously clipped by grazing livestock, they do not have a chance to manufacture the food for growth and storage in the roots. The food stored in the roots greatly affects next year's grass production.

If food is not stored in the root from this year's growth, next year's grass production is greatly reduced even though we hope there will be adequate moisture. If grazing is postponed by deferment until after the frost the grasses will have a short time to manufacture food and store it for next year's growth. Recent research on semi-desert rangeland showed that grass production can be increased 76 per cent in a four-year period by deferment and grazing not more than 40 per cent of each year's growth.

Things to remember about grass management:

1. 83 per cent of the food value of a plant is in the top 50 per cent of the plant. The grass plant needs the bottom 50 per cent for its own use and protection.
2. Next year's grass growth comes from this year's care. It comes from the food stored in the root system by the previous year's leaf growth.
3. From 20 to 30 per cent of the roots of a grass plant die off annually. If we don't allow a plant to replace these roots, produced by adequate leaf surface, the entire grass plant will die from starvation.

It takes grass to grow grass!

Delta Kappa Chapter Has Meeting in Alpine

Delta Kappa regional meeting for eight chapters of Southwest Texas was in Alpine Saturday, October 17. Mrs. W. H. Savage, president of the hostess chapter, acted as toastmistress for the luncheon, at which time the state president, Miss Sara Tobolowsky, gave the keynote address.

Miss Tobolowsky reviewed the history of Delta Kappa Gamma, which is an honorary sorority for teachers, and then asked the members to look to the future for bigger and better plans. She stressed four characteristics of a good leader, which were outlined by outstanding honorary members of Delta Kappa Gamma: A leader must be informed; willing to work; must be a person of courage and dedicated to the purposes of the group she leads.

Members who attended the meeting were Mrs. W. J. Morris, W. H. Savage, Walter Grigsby, and E. E. Farley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Couch have sold their home to Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Rodriguez and have moved to the Lewellyn rest house.

for-less work philosophy that the liberals in government are emphasizing.

The alternative of the present state of affairs is not, as some liberals maintain, a retreat from reality. On the contrary, it is an awareness of what must be done to face the future as free Americans, not wards of a paternal state.

There have been threats issued and carried out within the Democratic Party against those who would endorse the candidacy of any person outside of the party. Political blackmail has been inferred against those who would not align themselves with "the party".
We, in American, can wait too long to halt this police-state move.
It is time now for action. Delay may be fatal to the democracy that we have so long cherished and loved.

Right-wing and middle-of-the-road Democrats who once tried to banish the ADAers from the party, now have embraced them with both arms in the naming of HHH as the vice-presidential nominees. Politics makes strange bedfellows!

Mrs. Weldon Cox has been in Houston visiting relatives and friends for several days.

Card of Thanks
We are very grateful and wish to express our sincere appreciation to friends for cards, letters, phone calls, and every thoughtful consideration while we were recuperating from our injuries.
Mrs. W. R. Turner and Tommy
