LISTEN TO LUKE

We attended the Christmas program presented by the three choirs of the local school system last week and we were happy to have had the opportunity. We enjoyed the program.

Possibly due to a special liking for choral singing, we think that the institution of instructions in singing in our local schools is one of the most valuable things taught in the system. And we were careful to say "one of the most valuable"! Regardless of what road any student takes, he can take singing or the appreciation of music with him from now on. And if he or she maintains a connection with a group of singers in a choir or such then fortune is doubly his.

We commented before about the youth group "Up With People" and what they are doing and we notice that they are spending some time in Texas and are in this general area. Getting the right kind of music in one's heart and soul changes a personality as quickly and completely as does any other philosophical change. It's difficult to sing "Up With People" and walk on your fellow man.

We hope that public school music will continue in Sanderson and that there will be more and more participation and more and more programs.

The first of the year is supposed to bring on resolutions of this and that kind. We have run the gamut of resolutions and there's few of them we haven't broken, but none intentionally. That doesn't discourage us from resolutions, nor do we want to discourage others. We just decided to try and make our resolution short - to try to do better.

At the onset of basketball season, we wrote the following article, which we never published for one reason or another. With the beginning of school after the holidays, and the soon beginning district basketball competition, which is usually a little stiffer, we felt the information was still timely, if not morose, and so we are using it.

During our attendance at some of the very close and interesting girls' and boys' basketball games this season, we noticed that the statement about sportsmanship, the officials, etc., was read, and there was a prayer given. We learned that this practice was in order to try to quell or prevent a disturbance at the basketball games. We learned, too, that some places had to have police protection for the officials at, during, and after the game and for the visiting team after the game and on leaving town. It is also recommended, we are told, to have the National Anthem played in order to aid in keeping the crowd in order.

We have seen few times in Sanderson when there was any disturbance at all at the basketball games during the past 20 years, and we hope that we see very few more during the next 20. And we would hope that all of our local fans who visit other towns as fans continue to act as they have in the
