GRAFTON, Tex., Feb. 20th '84 J. N. Rogers & Co. Blanks received in good order. Well pleased.

Yours respectfully, W. Netherland, J. P.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Fort Worth Gazette is very severe in commenting on the speech of Representative Robinson, of Jack.

Smith said Jones, "there are more rats on my farm than in all the balance of the neighborhood."

Smith said, "I'll bet there are more rats under my barn than yours."

"I'll take the bet," said Jones. And out they went to Smith's barn.

Smith placed Jones on one side of the barn where there was an opening under the floor and near a grain bin, and told Jones to watch the opening for the rats, and he would go to the other side of the barn and run a pole under and scare them out.

Smith ran the pole into the rat den, he heard the rats scampering and called out: "Jones do you see them?"

"Jones answered 'no.' Smith said 'look again,' and again he repeated the operation, and asked 'do you see them?' again the answer came: "No."

Smith dropped his pole and ran around the barn to see what Jones was doing, and beheld him standing there with his eyes tightly closed and more rats than a man could count, in fact there were enough to remind one of the rats of Hanover.

But of course Jones did not see them.

Conventions.

We commend the following timely remark of the Leader to our readers. There has been no time in the history of Texas, when more diligence and care should be exercised by our citizens than now in the election of State and County officers.

The greatest care should be taken that no man, should be elected to office—from constable, to governor, who is not a true patriot.

There never was a time when demagogues and prejudices need to be held in check more than now.

GEN. CLAIRBORNE, chairman of the State Democratic committee, is in correspondence with his colleagues relative to the selection of a place for holding a convention to send delegates to the National convention.

The democratic party seemed to have made very grave errors in nominating three candidates for the presidency—Greely, Tilden and General Hancock.

The first of the three never was in harmony with democracy on any political question. The second has been denounced by Reagan and other democratic congressmen as unworthy the support of the party.

Our last nominee is a very good man and was an able general in the war between the States; but he was a very weak democrat. After all these blunders we should have come from past experience, and by aside all prejudices and try and get candidates who are known to be thoroughly imbued with the principles of democracy.

If we should not meet with success in the contest, we will have no occasion to abuse the men we had selected for the highest position.

As soon as the committee select the place for holding the convention there will be a call for county meetings. There will be a resemblance of representatives from the people in the convention, but the first convention, the one that has only reference to the presidential election, will be mainly composed of men who are looking for office.

The second convention to nominate a State ticket ought to attract a great deal of attention. The people should take a deep interest in the State election this year, as it is very evident that Texas has been materially injured within the past year. The cause of our troubles may be partly owing to bad laws, but it is very certain that some of our State officers have aided land grabbers in defrauding the people of school lands.

The democratic party was organized for the protection of the people, but it will require constant vigilance on the part of the people to prevent bad men from getting into power. If the people leave the nomination of a State ticket to shrewd politicians the success is by no means certain.

Our large democratic majority has been decreasing rapidly ever since the second election of Governor Cook, and it is time we were looking into the causes that have led so many democrats to oppose the nominee of a convention.—Graham Leader.

Eps. CITIZEN.—Enclosed please find $2.00, for which send your paper to the following names and address:

J. S. Hackett, Weatherford, Tex. L. K. Crookmore.

The Alliance in Parker is doing much better, and I think the future is much brighter than usual. We have an organization in the town of which is in a good condition, it does seem as if the farmers and mechanics are determined to try and lift the yoke of monopoly and oppression from off their necks and teach the rich to respect labor in all its forms.

Bro. S. O. Daws passed through our neighborhood Monday, en route for his work in Hood and Somervell counties, wish him great success in his work.

Our old friend the Weatherford Times is ever ready to lend us a helping hand.

The Harmony Alliance is in good condition, we now have 20 members and 10 applicants for membership. I think our alliance will be able to furnish the CITIZEN with several new subscribers.

GENERAL.

In employ of railway corporations in the U. S. are 4,600 one-legged men and 2,500 men without the regular number of arms.

The disgusting eruptions on the face, the swollen eye, the pallid complexion, indicate that there is something wrong going on within. Expect the lurking foe to health. Ayer's Sarsaparilla was devised for that purpose; and does it.

A Berlin dispatch says: The German sanitary commission sent to Egypt and India by the imperial board of health to study the nature, causes, etc., of cholera has forwarded a report from Calcutta. The commission discovered a cholera germ in a water tank at Calcutta, found in suburban villages where the cholera made its appearance, the same microscopic organism which had been discovered in the lower intestines of cholera victims in Egypt.

Denver, Feb. 19.—The snow blockade throughout the San Juan district in Southern Colorado still continues. The Silverton wire was worked a few hours yesterday, when the first communication that Silverton has had with the outside world since the 3d instant. Business of all kinds is suspended in Silverton and other mining camps. The snow is six feet deep on a level. In some canyons where roads run it is fifty to sixty feet deep. People here use snow shoes to visit their nearest neighbors. It is thought the blockade cannot be broken before April.

STATE.

Dallas has sixteen newspapers. Ft. Worth is said to have fifteen churches.

Kanman is to have a $2,000 Methodist church.

Clarksville is to have a $10,000 court house.

As an article for the toilet, Ayer's Hair Vigor stands unrivalled. It cleanses the scalp and preserves it from scurf and dandruff, cures itching humors, restores faded or gray hair to its original dark color, and promotes its growth.

Washington Letter. A Congressional Budget.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

The first bill on the programme of the House of Representatives this week had a charitable object. The House voted three hundred dollars for the relief of sufferers from the recent floods. A whole day was exhausted, however, in discussion of the question before a vote was reached.

When the resolution was read Mr. Hiseock opposed it on the ground of unconstitutionality. He thought State legislatures should succeed and support their own citizens; that wealthy states like Ohio, Michigan, and Illinois had no authority for passing the hat for funds to the Federal Treasury. He said if his own state, New York, were here making such an appeal he would ask the House not to give it to her.

Mr. Follet replied that people were drowning and starving and that necessarily knew neither law nor constitution, and never had in this country; the latter remark causing laughter on the Republican side of the House.

A running debate followed, various members participating, and finally Mr. Belford gained the floor, delighted at another opportunity to mount his pet hobby. Amid applause and laughter he again shouted for the liberation of the surplus revenues, hoarded in the Treasury vaults, in the name of suffering humanity. During the debate telegrams were read from time to time, from cities and towns along the Ohio river praying Congress for help. Mr. Hiseock softened finally said he approved of the appropriation, but thought measures of this kind required a liberal interpretation of the Constitution. Mr. White of Kentucky also thought the constitution would have to be stretched a little for the purpose, and Mr. Eaton said something about the necessity of the heart acting even though the head doubted. Mr. Townsend spoke of the inability of hunger waiting for the slow action of State or private charity. Mr. Bland hoped the gracefulness of the measure would not be marred by words of opposition. Mr. Reagan said that a great many things had been done in the history of this Government for which it would be difficult to find a precise warrant in the Constitution, and cited the precedents set by Congress in granting relief to Italy, Ireland, the people of Alabama, and Mississippi. Still he was refreshed, even during the consideration of so grave a matter to hear some of his Republican friends assert there was a Constitution and that there was danger of violating it. Mr. Cox then made a short speech in which he mingled a little pathos, wit, poetry, and sarcasm. He began by alluding to the ironical manner in which he said the Democratic side of the House was challenged as to the constitutionality of the measure, but said in the presence of so great a calamity, he could not scrutinize critically for a warrant. He asked the other side of the House, "Who had torn the Constitution in twain?"

"Who had squandered money on all sorts of extravagant projects, without having the sweet mantle of charity to cover its sins?" and repeated the words beginning, "The little rift within the lute, That by-and-by will make the music mute."

In reference to these rifts made in the Constitution, he stated the first proposition for Congressional clarity since the war was made by republican members for pork to feed the starving negroes, washed off by the Tombigbee river, and that on that occasion the American hog had played a partizan and not a diplomatic part. He closed by saying if there should be any breach of the Constitution in voting for the measure the Almighty would pardon and condone it. During the discussion an Illinois Representative called the attention of a member from New York to the fact Illinois had paid this year into the Federal Treasury eight million dollars more than the Empire State. After repeated cries for "votes" the question was taken; and there were 234 yeas and 122 nays, 74 Members declining to vote. The Senate passed the bill without a word of opposition.

Petitions still pour into the Senate prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor in the District of Columbia, the last being signed by citizens in California, Michigan, Colorado and other States.

A bill has been offered providing that the rules for the preservation of health shall be branches of education in the Public schools of this District and the Territories, and that the pupils shall be instructed in regard to the nature of alcohol, and the intoxicating, narcotic, and poisonous substances in common use by the people, and their effects.

New Store! New Goods New Prices.

IT affords me great pleasure to inform the people of Jack county that I am once more fully prepared to supply all their wants. I have been subjected to delays and have thereby been rather poorly prepared to meet the wants of the public. But having now moved into my new Building can assure you that I am in a very much better condition to sell goods than ever before.

I have now in stock the largest and best assorted stock of General Merchandise ever shown in this market, and am fully determined to control a full share of the trade of the county, if low prices and fair dealings will do so.

It is needless for me to say that I am very grateful to the people of Jack county for their patronage in the past, for I feel that almost every one with whom I have had dealings feels assured that their trade is fully appreciated, and that I have ever been ready and willing to extend any favor in my power. For the future I will say that as I am well fixed for doing business, it shall be my constant aim and intention to see that my customers every want is supplied.

In conclusion I feel I am only doing myself justice in saying I now have the most convenient and best arranged business house in this portion of the country; and that after working long and hard in the old hotel I can but feel proud to be so well prepared to show and sell goods.

Hoping to see not only all my old but also new customers at the "same old corner" I am Yours very truly, JAMES W. KNOX.

AYER'S Hair Vigor restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. It is the only hair restorer that does not thin the hair, and is the only one that does not become a nuisance. It is the only one that does not become expensive, and is the only one that does not become a waste of money, and is the only one that does not become a waste of time, and is the only one that does not become a waste of health, and is the only one that does not become a waste of life.

Mr. C. P. Boucher writes from Aledo, O., July 12, 1884: "I had lost my hair completely, and was very much distressed. I had used many remedies, but none had done me any good. I had heard of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I bought a bottle of it, and used it as directed. In a few days I began to see the hair grow again, and in a month it had grown all over my head. I am now very much pleased with the result, and I can truly say that Ayer's Hair Vigor is the best hair restorer I ever used. I would recommend it to all who are afflicted with falling hair, and I would be glad to see it advertised in every paper."

Mr. J. W. Bowen, proprietor of the M. J. Miller & Co. Drug Store, writes from Aledo, O., July 12, 1884: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and I can truly say that it is the best hair restorer I ever used. It restores the hair to its natural color, and it makes the hair grow again. I would recommend it to all who are afflicted with falling hair, and I would be glad to see it advertised in every paper."

Mr. A. J. Patterson, writing from Ft. W. W., Tex., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and I can truly say that it is the best hair restorer I ever used. It restores the hair to its natural color, and it makes the hair grow again. I would recommend it to all who are afflicted with falling hair, and I would be glad to see it advertised in every paper."

Business is Business.
Standing upon the threshold of a new year it is pertinent to mark the points of the past and treasure up the lessons of its experience. The past year of 1883 leaves me at the end of the most prosperous business year ever experienced. The increase of business, the large sale, the new customers is only a guarantee for the year of 1884. Business conducted on entirely business principles based on the solid foundation of its merits is the only sure road to success. By strict attention to business, fair dealing, and placing every article sold on its merits, I hope to increase my business in the future as I have done in the past.
Being thankful for the large patronage of the past by adhering to the above principles I hope to merit a continuance of the same.

and all other diseases, such as Erysipelas, Eczema, Scabies, Ringworm, Pimples, etc., which are the result of the impurities of the blood.

To cure Scrofula the blood must be purified and renewed to a healthy and normal condition. This is done by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is a powerful blood purifier and a general tonic.

A Sufferer from Scrofula writes: "I have been afflicted with Scrofula for several years, and have tried many remedies, but have not been cured until I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has done for me what nothing else could do."

There is no doubt that Scrofula is a very common disease, and one that is easily cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a powerful blood purifier and a general tonic, and is the only remedy that will cure it.

DECLARATION OF PURPOSES OF THE FARMERS ALLIANCE
"Profoundly impressed that we as the Farmers' Alliance united by the strong and faithful ties, financial and home interest, should set forth our declaration of intentions, we therefore resolve:
1. To labor for the Alliance and its purposes, based on a faithful observance of the following principles will insure our moral, moral, and financial improvement.
2. To enforce the moral and financial principles.
3. To create a better state, morally, morally, socially, and financially.
4. To create a better understanding by explaining our civil officers in maintaining law and order.
5. To constantly strive to secure peace, harmony and good will among ourselves.
6. To suppress personal, local, sectional, and national prejudices, and all unwholesome and all selfish ambitions."
The Men Who Come From the Farm.

I have made my own way in the world. Why? Because as a boy I had time to reflect and think, and when I came to a city at the age of ten years, I had a right to say that I was as far advanced in my studies and the knowledge of what I had studied as though I had been kept at work all the time at school. Who is the speaker of the House of Representatives? Another man, born as I was, on a farm in New Hampshire. Who is the Mayor of Boston? He was born within six miles on a rocky farm than mine, if possible. I give you this advice of an old man who is passing away, and whatever may have been his mistakes, there was no mistake in since earnestness; and again, I say now as I begin, that the wealth, the property, the staffs, and the hope of religion, of liberty and of freedom to the world rests on the producing and on the country population of the commonwealth, and that of the United States.—Governor Butler's Speech in Middlesex.

Horses Flyer from Strange Causes.
Mr. G. W. M. Duck, ex-sheriff of Atascosa county, was in the city last Thursday, and informed us that there have been considerable losses of horses through a strip of country where the live oak, red and post oak, and the hickory grow. This district runs through Medina, Atascosa, Bexar, McMullen, Live Oak, Wilson and Pecos counties, and ends about the boundary line of De Witt. The land in this district is generally of a sandy nature, and does not produce a vigorous growth of grass, though it is for the better part of the year, on an average, a fair range country. Now there is little grass in this district, and stock have been subsisting, to an extent, for some time on acorns, to the eating of which the losses of horses are attributed. Mr. Duck, Mrs. O'Brien and others have lost quite a number of horses, and it is reported that there are some losses in W. W. Robbins' pasture, where stock have placed on account of fattening. The horses when first taken seem to be drawn together, as if in loin distemper, and appear to suffer greatly, virtually walking on the tips of hind hoofs. Then they gradually pitel forward, fall to the ground, and never get up again. The affliction does not rest on the condition of the animals in any respect, as some of the fattest horses in the county have fallen prey to the malady. Mares, or the stock, seem to suffer most, which is regarded as rather strange. Mr. Duck says the losses, so far, indicate that the disease is in its incipient, and greater losses are expected that have occurred. As has been said, Mr. Duck attributes the losses to acorns, which are not only wormy, but were not so well matured as in former years. Hogs, however, have grown very fat on them, though horses seem to fare badly if Mr. Duck is right.—[Fr. Worth Stock Journal.]

Sorghum Cane for Stock.
A writer in the Spirit of the Farm speaks in the following eulogistic terms of sorghum cane as a stock feed:
"In experience with the various kinds of food to fatten quickly and with least expense I find nothing equal to sorghum cane. I cannot say that my experience has extended sufficiently far for me to give you an article on the subject that will be of benefit to your readers, for my feeding experiments have thus far been confined to males and young cattle, and at the time of year when sorghum was abundant. The latter, however, would have made but little difference in an experiment had I been making a test, for as long as they could get the cane they would not even nibble the richest timothy grass. I have tried chopped sorghum, corn meal, clover and everything that would tempt a mule to eat; and they did eat and fatten on sorghum but I struck the sugar plump for them, rather they struck it for themselves for they jumped into my patch of three acres and helped themselves. I don't think I am over estimating it in saying that these three acres, cut and fed to the males, fattened them more than six acres of corn gathered and fed to the cow. I was so favorably impressed that I intend trying it next year in a field. If it only proved as good in winter as it has been in summer I can recommend it in all the ways which I put the 'big fat' on the males, or to carry young weaners through the winter in good condition, but with the limited experience I have had with it already, I can say, grow sorghum for stock feed."

Mr. Hailer—Imber tair.
A correspondent of The Southern Cultivator and Dixie Farmer gives the following, which we think will be of interest to our readers: "The Milo maize has certainly developed in withstanding dry weather. I had an acre of it on a high, rocky hill, dry, sandy soil, where it kept green throughout the summer, and for abundant green feed where all other crops were burned out. I cut it liberally, cut it in a stack under to two or three inch lengths, and it was eaten clean by calves, horses and cows, and those animals utterly refused Penn's millet after the first cutting was fed away. The forage, green or dry, from the Amber cane, was much better than the Milo maize. I had a good supply of the cane, but it could not grow in the drought, and was nothing better July was out, the Milo maize was in fine condition until the last bunch was cut about October 15th. This ordinary soil it grows stout, every ordinary cow it grows stout, every cow furnishes five to ten stalks, five feet or more tall, and a mass of leaves. I have been at some pains to find out what others think of it, and as a general rule the expressions are entirely favorable. Mr. H. C. Glisson, of Burke county, (Dr. Jones' neighborhood), says his stock would not eat it, but that it developed an astonishing capacity to withstand drought. Mr. F. Hopkinson, on Edisto Island, S. C., where I supposed it would do well, says he was thoroughly disgusted with it; it was poor forage, and the immense yield was a humbug. Down in Florida I have correspondents who report altogether favorably of it, and in Wilkes, Warren and Hancock counties, there is a general favorable opinion of it. Mr. W. J. Northern, of Hancock, than whom there is no more careful observer, writes me: 'I was so delighted with the fine prospect for forage that I had green only enough to determine whether my stock would eat it or not. The ate it ravenously, and I therefore reserved the balance of my crop for seed. I am highly pleased with it.' Mr. Satterthwait, of Aiken county, S. C., and Mr. Chaffee, of Lancaster and many others who had the seed in 1881 and 1882, are still cultivating it every year and express the highest appreciation of it. The only effect of the drought upon it that I have been able to see or hear of was to retard the progress toward maturity, and those who planted early have been able to save matured seed. On lands where it seeded and matured easily in 1882, but little seed was matured in 1883 before the frost of November 1st. Dr. Jones regards it as a most singular feat, that his crop, from seed he matured on the same land in 1882, should have been so much later this year in maturing.

Like the Amber cane exceeding ly. The quality of its forage is good, and it is fattening. I will not be without a good patch of it, and if the season is not too dry, will get a good mass of fodder from it. But, also, I would not be without Milo maize. It will stay when all else is baked to death.

Sons of Farmers.
The Dixie Rural, of Bangor, Maine, thinks that because one is a farmer's son no reason should be unduly made out against him. He is not a farmer's son, but he is a farmer's son, and he should be considered as such. He is not a farmer's son, but he is a farmer's son, and he should be considered as such. He is not a farmer's son, but he is a farmer's son, and he should be considered as such.

Stock Raising and Grain Raising.
R. A. Stinson writing to the Rural and Stockman says: "We don't propose to discuss these subjects in reference to the far west, for we are satisfied that there with an almost limitless range the expense is comparatively small, the feeding and freight are almost all the expense. We confine our say to Illinois in connection with land worth fifty dollars per acre. Now, we have a calf, shall we feed him or not? This is a question of two sides, some contend that a skin milk calf, that is after it is six weeks old will come out at two years old just as good as though it had been with its mother for six months or more. Doubtless accurate figures for each year would give us a more correct idea, but with the light we have let us look at it. We assume that the cow, not saying anything of Jerseys etc, will make us six pounds of butter per week for six weeks, worth twenty cents per pound, the half of this we charge to the calf, $3.69. The skin milk fed the calf after the winter of the calf on good hay, and some oats and corn, would be worth $3.00. Now we have $10.10 as the cost at one year old. The second summer we charge with pasture, eight months $8; four months to hay and grain $5. Next eight months pasture, $12, and four months wintering, $3. Cost at two years old, $41.10. The steer will
