THIRTY-NINTH YEAR

SUDAN, LAMB COUNTY, TEXAS THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1963

NUMBER 10

WOODWORK

BY DALTON

SUDAN principal Ralph Stewart submitted a poem on schools, and the publishers fitted it into a book they call an anthology, causing some of his friends to remark, "Golly Gee!"

AS CAN BE seen from the above, there are some who write poetry and some who print newspapers. The only poetry I ever attempted was never published (neither were any of my stories and columns until I solved all that by going into the publishing business).

However, some folks have real talent, and Ralph Stewart surely must be one of them, because his poem "Idle Dreaming" was one of 400 selected from a list of 85,000 (which sounds like my mother's Christmas card list) to be published in the 1963 poetry anthology.

It was sort of amusing how discomfited Ralph was when he learned that others had told the newspaper about his poem being in the current volume. Ralph can be justly proud of the achievement, but he's probably afraid of the more or less typical reaction of most uncultured persons he knows. Doubtless someone will say to him: "I hear you write poetry. What are you — some kind of nut?" I ran into the same attitude when I was an art student for a few years. I did one serious oil painting. However, most of those who looked at it laughed out loud.

Some people just ain't refined.

THE EIGHT-YEAR old boy who lives at our house (he's nearly nine) is firmly convinced that Mrs. Calvin Vernon, who teaches third grade at Sudan school, is the finest woman athlete ever to grace this earth.

Well, I'll be first to admit that LaDelta really is quite proficient at most sports, but some of our youngster's comments, especially on her baseball, nevertheless drew a smile.

"She threw Ricky Powell a fly yesterday that went so high I couldn't hardly see it," said he, who couldn't hardly be expected to learn no grammar so early in school.

"She really can pass a football, too," he said admiringly. "But, man, she throws that baseball harder'n daddy." (Which in itself doesn't exactly match Whitey Ford's fast ball).

"Does she play baseball better than I do?" asked his mother, and he replied emphatically: "I'll say!"

"Well," I interposed, "your mother did beat her one time in tennis." He looked at me with all the disgust he could muster: "That's not baseball."

Which should give you a pretty good idea of the relative merits of tennis and baseball in the minds of tomorrow's citizens.

Mike Masten, Sudan High School senior, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Masten, was hospitalized at Amherst Tuesday after suffering a back injury while running at the school's annual field day.

SWEETHEART ENTRY—Dyanne Curry, 17, of Sudan will represent the Littlefield District of the Future Farmers of America in the Area I FFA Sweetheart contest at Amarillo May 11. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Curry was Miss Lamb County in 1961, and was runnerup in the contest at Perryton for Miss Wheat heart of the Nation the same year. A majorette at Sudan for the last four years, she was selected as the outstanding high school band student at a McMurry College summer course last year, and as a saxophone player was named to the all-state high school band this year.

Little League Begins Friday

The Intercity Little League of three Sudan and two Amherst teams will get underway Friday when the Braves will play the Cubs at Amherst and the Dodgers will play the Cardinals.

The new team, the Sudan Angels, will open Saturday at Amherst against the Braves, and the Cubs will go to Sudan to play the Dodgers the same day.

A complete schedule of Little League is published elsewhere in the paper.

Popular, classical and march music will be featured in a concert of light entertainment by the Sudan school bands at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday.

EARN SCHOLARSHIP—Lily De La Riva, left, has a flower pinned on by Mrs. Don Ham, representing the Sudan Young Homemakers, who awarded a $50 scholarship to the Sudan High School senior. Miss De La Riva plans to enter nursing school.

The Young Homemakers of Sudan honored Miss Lily De La Riva with a tea Tuesday night. Miss De La Riva was presented

Department Store To Open Here

A new dry goods and department store will open in Sudan soon, probably with formal opening in July, it was reported this week.

C. L. Haygood of Floydada, who operates stores in Floydada and Seymour, has made arrangements to open the store in the former location of Wallace's. Manager and partner in the store will be Leonard Shanks of Floydada, who will move here with his wife and two children. The store will be known as Shank's Dept. Store.

Haygood is closing out another store he operates in Knox City, in order to open the store in Sudan, it was reported.

News of the store's plans to open here comes as good news to Sudan merchants who have found that such business is closely related to their own, and to Sudan consumers who have found themselves without any place to buy clothing items since Wallace's closed.

Brenda Drake Valedictorian

Brenda Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Drake, has been named Valedictorian of the Eighth grade class. Salutatorian is Sandra Lane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lane.

The Valedictorian averaged 96.10 for her year's work and the salutatorian 93.93. Dianne's average was 93.44.

Graduation exercises for the class are scheduled for Thursday night, May 23.

DEVOTIONAL

Scripture: Psalms 1: 32: 10; 33: 11 Timothy 2: 15.

How much do you know of what the Bible says? Have you read it, studied it, and sought to keep its teachings as a light in a dark world, to guide you through a day?

Being human, we get physically weary sometimes, and in our weariness we feel a special sympathy for all humanity in our struggle upward. But when I think of Jesus, He who in the human body, and how much He understood our weakness, temptation, and suffering, I get renewed courage and joy to "carry on" and to fight a good fight.

However, if Christians are to be strong in this time, enough to endure to the end, they must know God's Word to them, to help, to guide, to comfort, to teach, to encourage, to uphold and to strengthen. We need the Word, through the Holy Spirit's power to lead us in order to reveal Jesus to another man, woman, or youth, who is lost without any hope, without the joy of anticipation for the eternal life with Jesus.

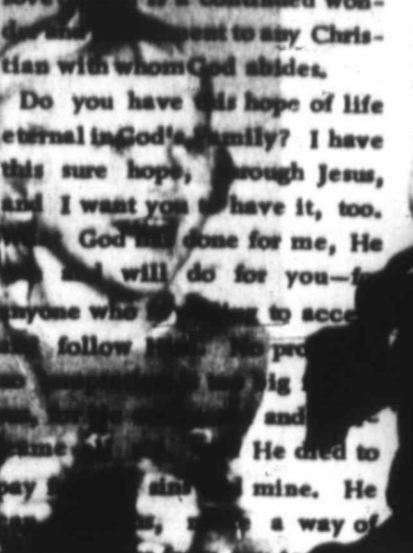

Do you have the hope of life eternal in God's family? I have this sure hope, through Jesus, and I want you to have it, too. God has done for me, He will do for you—
— if you will do for you—
— if anyone who is willing to accept it, will follow His teaching and His example, and will do for you—
— if you will do for you—

by those who do not know Jesus. The mercy and always unflinching love of God is a continued wonderment to any Christian with whom God abides.

NEW CHART RELEASED

Study Of Fruiting Habit Of Cotton Plant Cited As Valuable Aid To Cotton Farmer

A new, easy-to-understand chart showing the fruiting habits of the typical cotton plant has been released in this area. The chart is a simplified form of a continuing study by leading cotton research men, on fruiting of the typical cotton plant, under average weather conditions, if unhampered by insects. The chart is divided into seven weeks of cotton blooming and demonstrates that the greatest volume of mature cotton results from the early blooms. More than half of the total bolls and 64% of mature cotton results from the first two weeks' blooms. And 88% of the total mature cotton, is picked from the blooms of the first three weeks. For example, in the first week only 8% of the blooms occur, but they develop into 21% of the mature cotton. By contrast, the fifth week has 9% of the total blooms, which results in less than 3% of the total cotton.

This fruiting pattern clearly demonstrates the importance of keeping insect infestations to a minimum, particularly during the early season. It is essential that early squares be protected, and cotton experts agree that a systematic planned program using toxaphene and toxaphene-DDT has demonstrated its effectiveness in protecting these early squares from insect destruction, and allowing the plant to fruit normally. Besides this protection, toxaphene and toxaphene-DDT do not interfere with the plant's normal growth and maturity.

WHAT'S A TROPHY?

The cherished dream of every guy who wets a line is to eventually rack up a trophy fish. But would you actually recognize a trophy fish if you saw one?

The dictionary describes a trophy as being a memorial of a victory or conquest, note the Mercury outboard people. The magnitude of the triumph goes unmentioned. And when fishing is concerned, is it not possible that a trophy specimen earns that honor by virtue of qualities other than size?

Take, for example, a youngster's first bluegill or bullhead. Sure, it was caught with a cane pole and worm. But it definitely rates as a milestone in a fellow's life. Your first catch may have long slipped into obscurity, but wasn't it such a momentous occasion that it whetted your appetite for more?

What about a certain bass that cost you dozens of hours and so many lures you don't dare tell your wife? Although it didn't weigh more than five pounds, you were chagrined at the beginner who finally caught it on a minnow. He was probably pleased at the meal it provided, but never regarded it as a trophy.

And then there was a fellow who went fishing on a charter boat out of Miami... caught the largest snookfish of the season, too. In the process, he happened to snag a mere baby, about two feet long.

His wife wouldn't stand for six feet of stuffed snookfish in their living room. Claimed it ruined the decor. He's still happy, though. The two-footer went to the taxidermist. He's got a memento of a real trophy and a satisfied spouse.

Be it the first, the largest, the smallest, the last or the toughest... there's always one that stands out above all others in a fisherman's career. Although most fish trophies never end up on the wall, their immortality is assured in the pleasant memories and exciting hours spent fishing.

Stewart Poem Included In Anthology

A five-stanza poem by Ralph W. Stewart, principal of Sudan High School, has been selected for publication in the National Poetry Anthology, just published, Supt. W. E. Hancock told the Beacon-News this week.

The poem, "Idle Dreaming," was one of 85,000 submitted to judges for the anthology. From that number, only 400 were included in the 1963 volume.

The poem is as follows:
IDLE DREAMING

When I grow up, I am going to see
That schools are made like I want them to be,
With desks so smooth for upon to draw,
And clocks for targets on every wall.

With teachers as nice as they can be
Who will learn my lessons so I can go free,
And will furnish me food at my request
To satisfy my wants, ah, yes, my school is best.

A wonderful school I'd plan you bet
For students who would never to toil and sweat,
But so that students could enjoy a life of ease,
And serve mankind by just saying please.

And dear, sweet teacher I won't forget you!
I'll remember all things you have made me do,
But I'll be lenient and let you go
To the place you deserve for treating me so.

In my school, fellow students, all will be gay,
With entertainment for you all along the way,
But then I start thinking, what would I do
If schools weren't schools and you weren't you?

R. W. Stewart

Now there are diversities of gifts.—(1 Cor. 12:4).

We should always appreciate and make full use of our God-given powers and abilities. Instead of envying the talents of others we must remember that He has endowed us with many gifts; that we need only open our minds to the light of the Spirit, our hearts to the understanding of the Spirit and our lives to the power of the Spirit.
