THIRTY-FIFTH YEAR

WOODWORK BY DALTON

LET'S FACE IT, all you other guys and dolls who are over 30. Once you get in the upper 20s, you start on a downhill slide. Now, when I was a youngster of 13 or 14, I always figured that 30 was about as old as anyone ever got and still amounted to anything, because past that you had had it. Of course, as I grew older, my sights moved up, until now I no longer consider 40 or 45 as old, and doubtless there soon will come a day when I no longer consider 40 or 45 as old, and doubtless there soon will come a day when I will feel the same way about 60 or 70.

But my reflexes won't flex like they used to. I find this out on the tennis court and when I play ball with the kids, and sometimes when I am behind the wheel of the car.

Getting one year older every 12 months is one thing you can't do anything about (excepting for one rather drastic and permanent measure), so we may as well do it gracefully.

Even more noticeable at times than the physical differences between now and 15 or 20 years ago is the way my mental processes often slip in low gear, or neutral. I've got so I can't remember anything any more (but I won't tell that old joke again). More and more I find myself relying on notes. Each morning I sit down and make a list of all the things I need to do that day, and I rely on that list heavily.

Of course, by the time I get the list completed, the morning is half gone, and I may as well scratch two or three items off, or move them to tomorrow's list. Each day, I carry one list in my shirt pocket, another stays on the spike on my desk, another in the desk drawer, one at home on the dresser, one stuck on the visor of the car, and one in my cigar box. These lists will be generally the same, but often I think of something new and put it on whichever lists are handiest, or maybe just make a new list.

Then, of course, I have to check each one of them to find out if I've omitted anything important (I almost always do miss something, because I just don't have enough time in the day to do all those things, what with making lists and all).

It is becoming increasingly difficult to keep track of all my different lists, but I think I have an idea which will solve that problem. I will make myself a list each day of where I keep all the other lists.

Sugar Beet Plant Work On Schedule

Colorado Springs, Colo. (Special)—A progress report on construction of Holly Sugar Corporation's new $21,000,000 beet sugar factory at Hereford, Texas, was issued here this week by President Dennis O'Rourke, who indicated that work thus far is proceeding on schedule.

Steel erection on the main building of the sprawling factory complex, being built on an 1,800-acre tract of land southwest of Hereford, started at mid-July and is scheduled for completion in late September.

Meantime, a great deal of less spectacular work has been done. Rail spurs of the Santa Fe Railroad have been completed from the main line onto the Holly property, including an overpass across Highway 60. This enables shipment onto the construction site of heavy materials and equipment.

Permanent roads and parking areas have been graded and rolled, and the property has been fenced.

"Work on the main building is being pushed so that it can be enclosed before winter and thus provide for continuation of interior work, including installation of equipment, during the winter months," O'Rourke said.

The Holly chieftain said that the work schedule toward a target completion in time to process the 1964 sugar beet crop, is a tight one.

"It is necessary that every effort be exerted if this new facility is to be in operation in 1964," he said, adding:

"This new facility will be an important addition to the nation's productive ability in sugar, and at a time when such expansion is particularly needed to help assure adequate supplies for increasing domestic requirements."

The progress report stated that excavations have been started for the foundations of the concrete bulk sugar storage bins, which will be about 200 feet tall and are designed to contain 60,000,000 pounds of sugar.

D. W. Lillie has been stationed at Hereford as manager, Hereford District. Wesley S. Fisher has been assigned as assistant manager for the district.

Production of sugar at the Hereford facility, when optimum conditions are reached, is expected to be as much as 200,000,000 pounds of sugar annually. Initially, it was pointed out, production is not planned for peak capacity.

The plant will make available to livestock feeders a large quantity of molasses and dried beet pulp. The facility will serve sugar beet growers in West Texas and, to a limited extent, farmers located in the vicinity of Clovis, N. M.

Holly also plans construction of a livestock feed lot adjacent to the plant which will have a capacity of about 7,500 head of cattle.

Mrs. J. W. Olds has returned home after being confined to a hospital in Muleshoe.

TENNIS FINALS SET THIS WEEKEND

Local tennis players saw action in early rounds of the second annual Littlefield Tennis Tournament open to Lamb County residents and others from nearby towns.

Monday night action saw a couple of surprises, including a win by 13-year-old Kathy Minyard of Sudan over Kathy Barnett, a Sudan senior, in the high school girls singles. Miss Barnett, winner of the Sudan singles title earlier this year, won the first set 6-3, but developed blisters on her hand and also ran into some fine play by Miss Minyard in losing the last two sets. Miss Minyard won the second set 6-1, and was leading 3-0 in the final set when Miss Barnett had to default because of her hand.

Also in girls singles, Linda Williams of Sudan ousted Candace Mudgett of Sudan 6-2, 6-1 and will play Miss Minyard in the finals at 6 p. m. Thursday (today).

In men's doubles, one match was played Monday, as Orville Bassett and James Timian walloped Allen Pardy-Dan Staggs 6-1, 6-0. Finals in men's doubles are scheduled for 9 p. m. Saturday.

In women's doubles, Lamoyne Grisom-Patty Maner beat Williams-Bassett 6-2, 6-4, and Lenda Wood-Gina Nichols downed Pardy-Palm 6-0, 6-0. These two winners will meet in finals at 9 p. m. Friday.

El Ray Rasco moved to the finals in novice singles by beating Tommy Adkins 6-3, 6-4 and Speedy Nieman 6-3, 6-3. Kip Cuthall def. Kermit Sorrells 6-0, 6-3 and Pat Privett def. Jerry Sanders 6-1, 6-1.

Jim Black def. L. J. Walker 6-4, 6-4 and Ralph Stewart won by default over Hill Rogers in veterans singles Monday.

In men's singles Monday, Eugene Reeves defeated Bassett 6-4, 6-3 and will play Charles Fazley in the semifinals at 6 p. m. Friday. Finals are at 9 p. m. Saturday. Farley won over Bob Smith by default, then downed Bob Smith 6-4, 6-2. Bob Smith earlier defeated Floyce Pierce 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Tuesday night action featured several marathon matches which went more than two hours. Results included: men's doubles—Grisom-Harmon over Wingo-Stewart 4-6, 6-3, 6-2; Abeyta-Reeves over Beestrup-Thompson 6-4, 6-1; Pierce-Garner over Jim Black-Bob Smith 6-4, 9-11, 6-2. In boys singles—Robert Williamson over last year's champion, Jimmy Butler, 6-3, 4-6, 10-8; Mike Smith over Jay Elms 6-2, 6-2. Men's novice—Cuthall over Pat Privett 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

Veteran's singles—Pete Smith over Billy Smith 6-0, 6-1; Pete Smith over Ralph Stewart 6-0, 6-2.

Men's singles Abeyta over Wingo 9-7, 5-7, 6-4; Joe Giddins over Dalton Wood 4-6, 9-7, 6-3.

Women's singles—Linda Williams over Linda Hodge 6-1, 6-0; Lenda Wood over Patty Maner 5-7, 6-3, 7-5.

"Therefore every scribe which is instructed unto the Kingdom of heaven... which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and

Treasure — what is my "treasure"? What is my pearl of great price? (What is your treasure?) This is my answer in testimony: I'd rather have Jesus than silver or gold, I'd rather be His than have riches untold, I'd rather have Jesus than houses or lands, I'd rather be lead by His nail-scarred hand.
So, Jesus, who has forgiven all my sins and has given me eternal life in Him is my treasure. In Jesus I live and move, and have my being. Jesus heard me in the day of trouble or need, Jesus knows my joy in His holy Presence; Jesus knows my errors, and cleanses me day by day even from all my faults that are "secret" from me. Jesus is my Saviour, my strength, my Redeemer, my Lord, my God and Father Almighty!

Jesus hears my faintest cry, as He hears yours, too, if you are His child with your "treasure" where He is. Do you know Jesus in His saving power? Then do you know Jesus in His cleansing power, in His saving strength over all your sin and temptation, in the joy of His ever-abiding, loving holy Presence; in His power to keep what is His forevermore? Do you know who Jesus is?
What, and who, and where is your treasure? Is it worth selling all you have to possess it? If you have Jesus, you know the peace that passeth understanding. You have joy, eternal love and eternal life. Is any other thing worth this?
Jesus is Yours when you are His.

MASONS START BUILDING FOR LITTLE CHILDREN

The cornerstone of a building for pre-school age children of Masonic Home and School in Fort Worth was laid recently by George E. M. Montgomery of Fort Worth, right, Past Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas and president of the Masonic Home board of governors. The building is scheduled for completion about January 1, 1964.
A substantial part of the building cost came from the Mary E. Bryant Estate. The building is the fourth addition to the Masonic Home campus in its current modernization program. A new high school building will be occupied this fall.
Shown putting mementos in the cornerstone box are several three-to-six-year-old children who will benefit from home-like facilities of the new building. On the left is Hugh M. Craig of Fort Worth, Masonic Past Grand Master and member of the Masonic Home Independent School District board. He is a graduate of the school.
Children and grandchildren of Masons are eligible for admission to Masonic Home and School.

Proposed CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT
NUMBER ONE ON THE BALLOT

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED ON AT AN ELECTION TO BE HELD ON NOVEMBER 5, 1963.
SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 1
I proposing an amendment to Sections 2 and 4 of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of Texas so as to repeal the provision making payment of the poll tax a requirement for voting and so as to authorize the Legislature to provide for the registration of all voters.
BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:
Section 1. That Sections 2 and 4 of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended to read, respectively, as follows:
"Section 2. Every person subject to vote in the following districts, districts who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and who shall be a citizen of the United States and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election and the last six months within the district or county in which such person offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector, provided that any member of the Armed Forces of the United States or component branches thereof, or in the military service of the United States, may vote only in the county in which he or she resided at the time of entering such service or last as he or she is a member of the Armed Forces; and provided further, that before offering to vote at an election a voter shall have registered if required by law to do so. The Legislature may authorize election setting. This Amendment shall take effect on December 1, 1963."
Section 4. In all elections by the people the vote shall be by secret ballot. The Legislature shall provide for the numbering of ballots and make such other regulations as may be necessary to detect and prevent fraud and preserve the purity of elections, and may provide by law for the registration of all voters. Should the Legislature enact a registration law in anticipation of the adoption of this Amendment, such law shall not be invalid by reason of its anticipatory character."
Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1963, at which election all ballots shall have printed thereon the following:
"FOR the amendment of the Constitution of the State of Texas so as to repeal the provision making payment of the poll tax a requirement for voting and so as to authorize the Legislature to provide for the registration of all voters."
Section 3. The Governor of the State of Texas shall issue the necessary proclamations for the election and this Amendment shall be published in the manner and for the length of time as required by the Constitution and laws of this state.

New Grain Cars

Good news for grain shippers is coming from Cleburne, Texas, where Santa Fe Railway crews are producing three specially-equipped cars a day on an assembly line. Nearly 450 are being built, featuring a double-plug door with a leak-proof gasket, instead of old-style doors that must be backed with a removable grain door or liner to keep loss to a minimum. The small upper portion of the door is used for loading and provides access for sampling by grain inspectors, while the bottom remains tightly sealed until unloading. The new door expedites loading and virtually eliminates loss in transit, the railroad reports.

ALL IS WELL

(OR IS IT?)

Some may wonder! When government operates 19,000 businesses, in direct competition with its taxpayers, they cannot be blamed for wondering. A case in point is the electric industry. Already over 15% of the nation's electricity is generated by the federal government. If you don't think all is well, write to your elected representative. He'll be interested in hearing your view.

Oklahoma Miss Types Her Way to Sweden

A teen-ager with a purpose is in Sweden collecting on her prize as U. S. national champion schoolgirl typist, won against 7,000 competitors in a national contest. Heidi Pointer, 18, a senior at Lawton High School, Lawton, Oklahoma, flew to Stockholm on an all expenses-paid trip by Facit-Odhner, Inc., Swedish typewriter and business manufacturer, who sponsored the contest.

Heidi was accompanied by Mrs. Jean Wortham, her business course teacher, who entered Heidi in the contest and won an expenses-paid trip for herself, too.

For both of them, sight-seeing began in New York with a business man's holiday—a visit to the High School of Fashion Industries to see a New York School in session. Winning honors and prizes pleases Heidi, a quiet, self-possessed, smiling young lady, but it is no novelty to her.

She stands third on the Honor Roll in her school of 2300 pupils in Lawton, and will start her term as president of the Future Business Leaders of America chapter at Lawton High when she returns for her senior year in September. Her room is lined with trophies she has won at bowling and tennis but there are none, she says, "yet" at golf which she has just started playing.

It's not Heidi's ambition to be a secretary. Her business courses are just for insurance, in case she fails to win a scholarship and cannot go to college. She thinks she would like to be a teacher. Last year, besides making the Honor Roll, winning the Facit contest, and winning sports trophies, Heidi worked as a secretary in the Lawton YMCA.

Intermediate-Speed Data

SAN CARLOS, Calif., (GNS) — Development of an intermediate-speed data transmission system which sends business information over private-line telephone facilities with greater accuracy than that of conventional telegraph equipment has been announced by General Telephone & Electronics Corporation.

The new 25A DATATEL system is presently being produced for companies whose communications requirements do not involve the large, concentrated amounts of data which would require complex, high-speed systems, CT&E said. It is capable of twice the speed of present telegraph transmission systems, together with more than double the accuracy of intermediate-speed data systems currently being used for such applications over private-line facilities.

SPECIALIZED NEEDS
Private-line systems are supplied by telephone companies to meet the specialized communications needs of individual customers. Similarly, large industrial organizations such as railroads, utilities, and pipelines may operate their own private communications systems.

By combining the optimum features of telegraph and intermediate-speed data systems, the 25A is expected to reduce the operating costs of the customer up to 50 per cent — depending upon the type of equipment presently employed for communications purposes.

The speed of the 25A would reduce the operator handling and original transmission time on communications networks of companies presently using telegraph systems, while its accuracy would reduce the time required by intermediate-speed systems for the repetition of information when errors occur. Reductions in transmission time bring reductions in cost.

BY LENKURT
Developed by Lenkurt Electric Co., Inc., a subsidiary of GT&E, the 25A system has a top speed of 200 bits per second, or 11 punched data cards per minute when it is operated with currently available punch-card equipment.

With the widely used 80-column card fully punched, the 11-card speed would be the equivalent of approximately 140 words per minute — which compares with five cards or about 25 words a minute when the same business machine equipment is used on a telegraph channel.

Information may be transmitted at the 140-words-per-minute speed over seven channels simultaneously with the 25A, channels which are derived from one private-line voice circuit.

HIGH ACCURACY LEVEL
The 25A performs with an average error rate of one error in 1,000,000 bits of information transmitted — a level of accuracy more than double that presently available for transmission over private-lines with intermediate-speed equipment. The high degree of accuracy of the 25A reduces substantially the costly and time-consuming repetition of data on the communications circuit which is required by other intermediate-speed punched-card systems operating at an 11-card rate.

"Broad applications are expected in the railroad, utility, and pipeline industries, and in similar fields where business data is transmitted over private line facilities such as open-wire, cable, or microwave radio systems," said John J. Douglas, President of Lenkurt. "Marketing, inventory, payroll, and other urgent information can be relayed swiftly in this fashion between branch offices and the customers' centralized data processing center."

"Because it is extremely simple in concept and design, the 25A system requires a minimum amount of maintenance and no additional skills whatsoever on the part of maintenance personnel," Douglas said. "Moreover, it is completely compatible with most punched-card data processing equipment."

Oil Plays Role In Lamb County Economy

With oil production worth about $2.8 million a year, Lamb County citizens have a financial stake in the worldwide demand for energy and the complex economic and political problems involving the petroleum industry, according to statistics released this week by Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn.

"We have pulled together some figures from the most authoritative sources so residents of Lamb County can see how local pocketbooks are affected by some of the issues which involve our industry," said J. Clyde Tomlinson, Association president. "Issues of current concern include the proposals to cut percentage depletion rates, extension of federal controls over prices at which Texas producers sell their gas, and development of laws and production methods that will help Texas compete with other states and nations for markets."

The latest year for which U. S. Bureau of Mines figures are available (1961) shows Lamb County producing more than 929,000 barrels of crude oil, valued at about $2.8 million. In 1961 there were 95 producing oil wells in the county, according to the Texas Railroad Commission.

Although its first field was discovered 18 years ago, Lamb County is the scene for the industry's continued search for oil and gas. Three wells were drilled in the county last year, with all being wildcat exploratory wells, according to The Oil & Gas Journal. The association estimated that more than $170,000 was spent last year on geophysical crews using seismic devices to probe the underground formations of Lamb County for possible drilling locations.

Lending adds many thousands of dollars to the county's economy. Tabulations by the International Oil Scouts Association show major companies in 1961 were paying rentals on about 90,000 undeveloped acres, which comprise about one-eighth of the county's area.

Royalty payments to Lamb County farmers, ranchers and other landowners are running at more than $345,000 annually the Association calculated.

Lamb County producers and royalty owners also make a stable contribution to the support of state government, with production tax payments of more than $127,000 a year.

Industry taxes likewise are important to the county government and school districts in the county. For instance, 19 per cent of the local property taxes collected for the Littlefield Independent School District comes from oil and gas operators.

Some impact on the Lamb County economy has been registered by petroleum industry payrolls. According to figures from the Texas Employment Commission, the industry payroll is more than $355,000 a year, with the average employee receiving more than $4,900 annually.

TEXAS' CIRCLE OF REJECTION More Old Than Sick

By Millie Douglas
Staff Writer for the Texas Association for Mental Health.

The old man stares out of the window, his veined hands absentmindedly stroking the edge of the blanket covering his shrunken body. Bed-ridden, unable to eat or care for himself alone, he is a patient abandoned in a Texas state mental hospital.

Over the years, several thousands like this man...not mentally ill, but too old, have been admitted to the state hospitals. Right now there are more than 2,800 of these elderly patients living out their days in Terrell, Austin, San Antonio, Big Spring, Wichita Falls, Kerrville, Rusk, and the Confederate Home for Men.

How did they get there? Why have thousands of Texas' older citizens been dumped in mental hospitals where many do not actually belong?

The answer is, in a sense, a commentary upon our times and changing social customs. As more and more Texans migrated to the cities, small apartments and homes took the place of the sprawling farmhouses of yesterday which were capable of housing many families and generations.

Builders no longer erect the multi-bedroom, multi-floor residences where grandparents had a niche of their own.

In the new urban pattern of living, there seems to be no place to care for the senile grandfather or the troublesome aged relative.

Often the oldest is not truly mentally ill, but he may in his senility cause sufficient disturbance to be an annoying or disruptive influence to the family circle. And so, he is sent off to the hospital. He is gotten out of the way. Let someone else worry about and care for him.

There is very little legal basis for the State Hospital system taking responsibility for the growing legions of aged sick who are not diagnosed as "mentally ill". But they have no choice.

As a tax-supported public institution, the state hospital cannot be as heartless and ruthless as the individual Texan who dumps an elderly unwanted relative at the hospital's door.

During the past few years, many groups such as the Texas Research League, the State Board for Hospitals and Special Schools, and the Governor's Committee on Aging have studied this serious and perplexing problem. The disadvantages of this arrangement are two-fold.

First, the physical and social needs of the senile older folks are not best served in a mental hospital geared to caring for acutely disturbed patients. In the face of serious overcrowding common to all of Texas' state hospitals, the elderly patient, whose main complaint is a wealth of years, cannot receive special attention or special placement and usually resides in wards containing a mixture of varying degrees of mentally ill patients.

Secondly, their very presence in large numbers reduces the number of beds available to the acutely ill mental patients and siphons off the services of the already overburdened medical staff. Thus the mental patients who could benefit the most from intensive psychiatric care cannot receive maximum attention, while the aged patient often deteriorates further in the institutional setting.

MOUNTING NUMBERS, COSTS
At present the Texas State Mental Hospitals care for the 2,800 patients suffering more from age than mental illness at a cost approximately $3 per day, per patient. This means a minimal expenditure of $90 per patient per month and an annual expense of $3,024,000 to the state of Texas.

The progress of medical science has lengthened the average life span. There is little doubt that an increasing number of patients, old and alone, will become charges of the state.

With the passage of the years, the Texas hospital system will have to set aside an enormous percentage of the available mental hospital beds and a comparable slice of the total medical budget for the care of elderly persons who are not truly mental patients in the strict sense of the word.

This is the disturbing picture confronting us, unless a new approach is taken to the welfare of senior citizens who are unable to care adequately for themselves.

MORE LIKE HOME
In state hospitals such as Terrell, the admission and treatment of geriatric patients continue to be a grim and pressing burden.

Last year alone, 519 patients over 60 years of age were admitted to the Terrell hospital. In reality, 26% of the total population in our state mental hospitals are over 60 years of age, and 37% are over 65 years.

The most widely supported and hopeful view is that aged patients could be cared for in private homes on a contract basis. Such a plan has already been successfully demonstrated by the nursing home placement program of the Austin State Hospital.

By January, 1962, more than 2,000 patients had been placed in nursing homes, making up about 50% of the nursing home population in Travis County.

In comparison with other states reporting to the American Psychiatric Association, there were more Texas mental hospital patients living in nursing homes than reported by any other state, indicating that Texas may have the most active program of this type in the country. Because of the gratifying results, more use of the nursing home placement is planned for all Texas State Hospitals. Such programs have already been started by the hospitals at San Antonio and Terrell.

Why does the nursing home program work so well?

Perhaps, most important of all, because the senile patient is not hopeless and much of his disoriented behavior is part of his basic unhappiness with unsatisfactory surroundings. The sooner he can be returned to a setting more like the everyday world, the better are his chances for emotional adjustment.

If the aged patient cannot be completely cured, at least he is more manageable and contented in a home-like atmosphere than in a large institution. Often, however, a patient in a nursing home will improve to a point that he can return home if family circumstances make this possible.

In cases like these, the nursing home placement serves as a humanitarian bridge between hospital care and a return to the community.

Cooperation between key hospital personnel—medical staff and social service—and the nursing home operators is a fundamental factor in the success of such a program.

WHAT'S AHEAD?
The field of medical services to the aged in Texas is in a state of flux. Federal regulations are constantly being revised and future coverage may include welfare payments for mental patients furloughed to local facilities, nursing home coverage may be expanded to include senile and psychiatric conditions as well as the present medical benefits, and some nursing home care under social security may be in the offing.

But help for the growing legions of Texans, more old than sick, must come for many quarters. The Texas Association for Mental Health in Austin, voice of the people in matters of mental illness and mental health, is gravely concerned at the lack of public interest in the vast problems of the elderly patients in Texas State Mental Hospitals.

The vigorous educational program carried on by the Association stresses the urgency of informed awareness of the problem and coordinated effort to deal with it. Individual citizens, civic and professional organizations, and governmental agencies must pool their interest and their resources in order to provide adequate solutions to a human problem which multiplies alarmingly each day.

This is a problem which affects every Texan. Little imagination is needed to picture one's own parents or elderly friends in the unhappy place of the nearly 3,000 aged sick who find themselves spending their waning years in a mental hospital, largely because they have no other place to go.

Such shoddy treatment of pioneer citizens, many of whom helped to forge the bonds that made Texas strong and great, is unthinkable to people who know the facts and care.

Are we willing to let this tragedy continue?

World Health Planners

These two MD's whose homelands in Africa and Latin America are continents apart were recently the moving forces in Geneva, Switzerland in the planning of a global health program for next year.

Presiding over an assembly of public health specialists from 120 nations that charted the World Health Organization's future programs was Dr. Moses Adekeye Majekodunmi, Nigeria's health minister—the first assembly president elected from the newly independent African nations.

Here, Dr. M. G. Candau, Brazilian WHO chief, talks to him against a background of the WHO flag as the assembly recessed briefly. During the three-week session, Dr. Candau, world wide health program administrator, won election to his third five-year term as WHO Director General, beginning July 20.

To finance some 800 projects around the earth, the international experts hiked the 1964 health agency budget to $4 million, an increase of 7.5 per cent over this year's figure. Slightly more than $1.3 million, the largest sum allotted to a single project, goes to wipe out malaria, since 1955 a main aim of the health planners.
