WOODWORK BY DALTON

SINCE READING a story in the newspapers the other day about a break-through in producing a new low-cost building material, I've been thinking a lot of folks someday may go around singing, "Oh, give me a home, made of new plastic foam..."

Researchers say they have figured out a way to produce the plastic foam material so it will be inexpensive, and that it's ideal for building purposes.

However, they didn't say what they meant by "inexpensive". This is a very elastic adjective meaning different things to different people. But it is interesting to contemplate a house made out of plastic foam. The stuff is supposed to be strong, fireproof and have other advantages in building.

The story said definite plans are being made to mass-produce the material and sell it in pre-fabricated sections, so that any handyman can build his own room, or possibly his own house.

The stuff is so lightweight it probably would need pretty firm anchoring in this country. But maybe they could fix a house in the flood areas where it would just float when the water rises. Anyway, since the story shied away from any definite prices, the material probably still will be too expensive for many to work with.

PROOF that television will never replace girls as ideal companion for males was illustrated in Pittsburgh last week.

Officials of a zoo installed a television set in the cage of a 4-year-old gorilla in hopes it would ease his loneliness. His mate died of heart trouble in December.

The gorilla yawned, scratched himself, counted his toes, pounded his forehead, ate some fruit, hung upside down. He must have been watching My Mother, the Car.

A MEDICAL RESEARCH scientist in California says the U.S. may become a matriarchy—"a nation dominated by elderly widows"—unless some way is found to bolster male resistance to disease, accidents and suicide. He said, "not only are men becoming the weaker sex from the point of longevity, they have

Wind Erosion Is Problem To Lamb County Farmers

No farm in Lamb County is safe from the damage caused by high winds. Wind erosion, therefore, has a major influence on soil management. Effective control of erosion requires the cooperation of all farmers in an area, because soil blown from unprotected fields will damage the soils on adjoining farms.

The effects of wind erosion are serious and extensive. Many crops are lost, and soil fertility is greatly reduced. Railways and highways are sometimes buried under drifted soil. Traffic accidents are common during duststorms. Insects and weed seeds are blown far and wide with drifting soil. Fences, hedges and shelterbelts are sometimes buried or ruined. At times, farm buildings are ruined by drifts and sandblasting. Duststorms are disagreeable or unbearable both to farm families and to town and city people. The most serious effects of wind erosion are the loss of fine soil fractions that are gradually sorted and moved to distant places.

The wind acts like a sieve on some soils. It removes the fine fractions and retains the coarse ones. The coarse fractions are not fertile and are little more than the soil skeleton. The plants get their food from the finer soil particles. Each shift of soil by the wind removes more plant nutrients. After the soil has been moved a number of times, the remaining soil that forms the hummocks and fence-row dunes is mainly sand, regardless of the original texture.

The finer textured soils (loams and clay loams) are least affected by wind erosion because tillage usually roughens and clogs them so that they can resist blowing.

One of the least noticeable yet most damaging effects of wind erosion is the blowing of clay and silt from cultivated land to rangeland. These materials are carried many miles and deposited as a thin mantle on the rangeland. It increases runoff and water erosion and thus takes greatly needed moisture from the good grasses.

The best way to control wind erosion is by maintaining a vegetable cover or by properly managing crop residues. If adequate residues are not available, emergency tillage should be used to produce roughness and clogs. The rougher the surface, the higher the wind needed to start soil blowing.

Some areas in Lamb County have been eroded to the extent that they are no longer cultivated. It is evident that many other soils will eventually erode to the same degree if wind erosion is not controlled.

The 1935 Study Club observed its thirtieth anniversary at the meeting Monday evening held in the home of Mrs. C. E. Nichols. Mrs. S. D. Hay led the program and charter members were honored on the occasion.

Roll Call "The Year 1935" was answered by charter members present and Mrs. L. E. Slate gave tribute to those that are deceased.

A TRIBUTE

By MRS. L. E. SLATE

I would like to pay tribute and honor to the deceased Charter members of the 1935 Study Club; the former Mrs. J. R. Dean, Mrs. H. H. Johnson, Mrs. Everett Buck (Della Bear Shiley) and Mrs. E. J. Jones.

They were women rich in talents who were willing to devote their time and ability in the leadership of our Club. They were capable club women and active participants in community life. Women of education and culture with initiative and enthusiasm. These women made a great contribution to the club and endeared themselves to the hearts of all its members. Their spirit still lingers with us and all of them would have been proud to witness this 30th anniversary.

Other charter members include Mrs. W. D. Biggers, Mrs. Carrie Lee Bishop, Mrs. W. N. Bobbitt, Mrs. P. K. Dill, Mrs. J. B. Foster, Mrs. J. C. Huthinson, Mrs. Rubye McKelvey, Mrs. D. C. Morrow, Mrs. C. E. Nichols, Mrs. Arnold Purtehl, Mrs. W. C. Warren, Mrs. H. C. White, and Mrs. Travis Jones.

It was the interest of these fine women that made the club strong. Special recognition goes to Maxine Nichols for being the only charter member still an active member.

My roll call would not be complete if I did not mention the present club with Mrs. S. D. Hay, president, Mesdames J. S. Smith, S. D. Hay, R. S. Gatewood, organized by Rev. Jack Riley in the assistance of a Senior Citizen Club.

So it is with these combined efforts that the Club motto holds good—

Coming together is beginning, Keeping together is progress, Working together is success.

SOIL EROSION— The Work of Uncontrolled Water

By R. D. HOCKENSMITH and J. G. STEELE, soil scientists, Soil Conservation Service

When rain falls or water from any source runs downhill on bare soil, it moves soil particles, organic matter, and soluble nutrients. That is soil erosion.

Soil erosion by water may occur anywhere there is enough rain to cause runoff, or where land is flooded by irrigation, snowmelt, or other causes. To avoid erosion, the soil must be protected from moving water. Dense vegetation—cover crops, mulches, grasses, or trees—will intercept rain and slow runoff. Where tillage leaves the soil exposed, barriers like terraces or sown strips of different crops can help control runoff. Otherwise, tillage needs to be confined to nearly level soils where water moves slowly.

Land used for grazing or wood crops also may be eroded by water if harvesting leaves the soil exposed. Too-heavy grazing or careless cutting and burning can do this. But with good management, grasslands and woodlands usually are safe from erosion.

Erosion by water has already damaged much of the farmland in the United States. Some soils inherently unsuited for cultivation, or so badly damaged they cannot be restored, need to be converted to other uses.

On soils kept in cultivation, the prevention of excessive erosion is a major conservation objective. Positive steps to improve the soil and use it efficiently are a part of modern soil conservation. But without protection from erosion, soil-improvement efforts fail.

Erosion control requires the attention of each farmer to his land acre by acre. It also requires cooperation between farmers on adjoining land, for water knows no property boundaries.

Postal Rate Hike Starts Saturday

Increases in money orders, insurance, registry, certified mail and C. O. D. rates became effective March 26, Postmaster Ken Minyard announced.

The cost of operating these five special services now exceeds revenues collected from these services by $60 million annually. The fee increases will narrow the cost-revenue gap by $36 million, based on business handled in fiscal year 1965.

The increases include Money Orders, domestic and international, to be increased by 5 cents; Insurance Fees will be increased with the minimum fee now being 20 cents instead of 10 cents; Registry fees will be changed in that the present 60 cents and 75 cent fees will be combined into a single fee at 75 cents for values up to $100, fees for articles valued over that amount will remain unchanged; C. O. D. fees for articles up to $10 will increase to 60 cents and rates above that value will remain the same; Certified mail items will have their fees increased from 20 cents to 30 cents.

Losses incurred in the operation of special services are paid from the Federal Treasury. The fee increases will shift a substantial portion of the special service cost born by the public to the users of these services.

Postmaster Minyard has suggested to watch the Post Office Bulletin Board for Special Bulletins issued by the Federal Government. At present is posted the latest information on the Selection Service Qualification

WE CONQUERED THE WILDERNESS

...OR DID WE?

CONSIDER OUR WATER... the stream of life!

Since World War II, irrigation has become widespread in Lamb County.

The quality of the water is very good. Sprinkler and surface-flow methods of applying water are used in the county. Sprinkler systems are more practical on sandy soils or soils that cannot be leveled economically. An irrigation system must be designed to distribute the water evenly over the field without causing erosion or excessive losses.

Irrigation wells should be spaced far enough apart to prevent interference between the wells. Water moves very slowly through the water-bearing formation, so that an inverted cone of water depletion temporarily occurs beneath a well that has been pumping water. The depth of this depletion below the level of the static water table is known as the drawdown.

If wells are located too close together, the yields of both wells are greatly reduced.

Engineers in the Soil Conservation Service or the County agricultural extension agent will aid in designing an irrigation system or in solving other irrigation problems. They will help you design a conservation irrigation system that is suited to your soil, water supply, and selected crops.

Maintaining or increasing soil productivity is most important. Unless the soil is managed well, the best system for control and distribution of water will not be successful.

By HAZEL HOUSE

THE TREE OF LIFE

Scripture: St. John 12; St. Luke 22: 39-46.

Next week is "Holy Week", and at the approach of the Easter season, I think of Jesus with His face set toward Jerusalem, knowing He was going there to die on a cross. . . .

Then I think of the supper at Bethany which Jesus had with His friends at the home of Mary Martha and Lazarus. And I see anew the great understanding faith of Mary as she alone comes to anoint Jesus at His feet. She came, not to have her needs met, but to worship and give to Jesus His due, recognizing Him as Lord of Lords even before His Crucifixion and Resurrection. She understood by faith in Him that He was the Lamb of God to become the offering for the sins of the world.

Then I think of the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem on that first Palm Sunday. He fulfilled the Scripture, the words of the written prophecy of His coming in every detail, for he rode into Jerusalem on a colt, as it was written "Fear not, daughter of Sion: Behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt." And the crowd of people waved Palm branches and shouted "Hosanna!". The crowd, who only a few days later were to cry out "Crucify Him!", this crowd only knew the miracle which they heard Jesus had done, the raising of Lazarus from the dead—it was not enough to keep them from crying "Crucify Him". Instead of confessing Him as Lord before the Pharisees and others when the testing came, they deserted Jesus and followed the crowd that seemed to have the rule and power. They loved the praise or acclaim of men.

But do you see Jesus there, talking to His disciples, and hear His words as they come down to us through these almost 2,000 years.

"If any man serve me, let him follow me; and (glorious promise!) where I am, there shall also my servant be; if any man serve me, him will my Father honour . . . walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you . . . and he that seeth me, seeth Him that sent me. . . I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness . . . for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world."

In the Garden of Gethsemane, I think of Jesus as He prayed, alone, knowing what He was to face for me—and you, and still praying "Nevertheless—not my will, but thine, be done". I think of His agony, along—and my heart is broken and I cry anew "How could He love me so?" Yet how He does love me, and I praise His glorious Name for that everlasting love that will not let me go!

"Why sleep ye?" Let's praise God anew for again making available to each and every one of us the Tree of Life in Jesus Christ the Lord. (Read Genesis 2: 7-9).

The choice is mine; the choice is yours. Jesus is the Bread of Life, and He said "I am that Bread of Life. This is the Bread which cometh down from heaven that a man may eat thereof, and NOT DIE."

Do you want to die, or to live forever?—The fruit of the Tree of Life eternal is just as near and available to you, as it originally was to Adam and Eve in another garden. They chose the fruit of knowledge of good and evil against God's Commandment and will. What are you doing?

Will you take Jesus, the Living Word, "eat" of Him daily and Live forever?

You can live, if you will! Just choose to eat the fruit of the Tree of Life—take Jesus now as your personal Savior, then live daily by Him. He will never leave you, nor forsake you. Jesus loves you and seeks you—will you accept and follow Him!

We wish to acknowledge our heartfelt thanks for all the kind deeds you have shown us during the illness and death of our baby, Ken.

Survivors include his parents and brother, Jay, all of Sudan; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Nelson of Dimmitt and Mr. and Mrs. U. E. Thompson

Mrs. M. M. Gann has returned home after visiting with her relatives in California.

Jay and Hazel House will be attending Revival Services in Lazbuddie tonight.

A/2C Jerry Cardwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Cardwell, left Monday for Minot, North Dakota, where he will be stationed with the Air Force. Mrs. Cardwell and children will join her husband soon and is now visiting her mother, Mrs. Bill Davidson, of Salinas, California; great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Nelson of Dimmitt and Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Bailey of Leveland.

SAVES LINE LOSS—Lots of live bait fishermen use a sinker at the tip end of the line. Most attach the sinker to a weaker line than the regular line. This way if the sinker fouls you can break the leader line off and not lose the entire rigging.

KEEPS HOOKS FROM RUSTING—Carry a piece of cork in your tackle box. Then at the end of the day's fishing stick your fish hooks in the cork and you'll keep the points from rusting.

PIN-POINTING FISH—You can make an inexpensive fishing buoy with a discarded plastic detergent bottle. Tie a line to the handle and add just enough weight to keep it in one place. When you locate a school of fish, you can pinpoint the spot simply by anchoring your home-made buoy.

STOPS OARLOCK SQUEAKS—When oarlocks creak, rub them with paraffin or soap. That will eliminate the noise.

EXCELLENT FIRE STARTER—Cement-type glue is mostly acetone. It will burn with intense flame. Makes an excellent fire starter even in wet weather.

HANDY DRINKING CUP—Cellophane from a cigarette pack can make an emergency drinking cup. And those light-weight plastic containers some cigs are packed in make even better cups.

NO BROKEN EGG WORRIES—Best way to carry eggs to camp is to break them in a jar or leakproof plastic container and carry them in your cooler. Then you don't have to worry about breakage.

KEEP CHAMOIS HANDY—On a hunting trip carry a top-quality chamois soaked with oil. Chamois never looks oily, yet never seems to run out of it either. Great for rubbing down your weapon after each day afield. Keeps rust away.

BOTTOMS-UP FOR WORMS—Can't get a worm out of your bait box? Well, keep the box top-side down when not in use. Then turn it over when you need one to bait a hook. These little rascals always work their way to the bottom of the container.

SILICONE SHINES SPOONS—Small silicone-treated patches that you use for cleaning eyeglasses are a handy item in the tackle box. They'll shine spoons, spinners and all kind of metal in a twinkling. And silicone helps keep the shine fresh.

BROWND ELECTED PRESIDENT OF FRATERNITY PLEDGE CLASS

Home-Sweet-Homemade Sweets

Sweets to the sweet—and what better and more thoughtful and delicious way to say "thank you" to a hostess. Homemade candy, when prettily wrapped in a useful canister or box, is truly a gift that will be enjoyed and welcomed. Crunchy peanut butter, due to its high protein content, gives these goodies extra flavor and extra nutrition. The candy is so simple to make that teen-agers can whip it up in a jiffy.

PETER PANOUCHE (Makes about 1 1/2 pounds)

- 3 cups firmly-packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup Peter Pan Crunchy Peanut Butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Flaked coconut

Combine sugar, milk and salt in saucepan; cook over medium heat, stirring, until sugar dissolves. Cook without stirring, until candy thermometer registers 236° or when a small amount dropped into cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from heat, cool slightly, about 3 minutes. Gently stir in peanut butter and vanilla; stir until smooth. Cool to luke-warm (110°). Beat until mixture is thick and loses its gloss. Shape into a 12-inch roll, with the aid of waxed paper; roll in coconut. Cool. Slice to serve.

CONSERVE OUR SOIL

YOUR SOIL— CRUMBLY OR CLODDY?

By A. M. O'NEAL and A. A. KLINGERIEL, soil scientists, Soil Conservation Service

Why do crops often suffer from lack of moisture in midsummer, even when rainfall is normal? Why does level land stay wet longer in the spring than it used to? Can anything be done to make soil dry out faster after heavy rains and at the same time store moisture for those hot, dry days in July and August? What can be done to prevent soil and plant food from washing away? There are answers to these questions; a great deal can be done to improve poor soil conditions.

Nearly everyone recognizes the importance of fertilizers and limestone in growing good crops. Soils should be tested to see how much fertilizer and lime the crops will need. When these needs have been filled, then water and air become limiting factors affecting crop growth and yields on many soils. If it were possible to conserve the rain that falls during the summer months the chances of getting a "bumper crop" would be greatly increased.

Plants Need Air and Water

Soils need a certain amount of air if plants are to grow. If soils are saturated with water or have "run together" at the surface, air cannot get in. As a result, poisonous gases may accumulate, less plant food may be available, and plant growth and yields are reduced. Plants, like people, require air, water, and food. Reducing the amounts of any one of these will cut growth and yield of crops.

If you can make more water enter the topsoil, a number of problems will be solved. In the first place, the more water that enters the soil the less there is to run off. Less runoff means less erosion of soil and less loss of plant food by erosion. Secondly, if most of the rain that falls in July and August soaks into the soil, there will be more water available for plant growth during this critical period. Thirdly, since air and water movement in soils are closely related to each other, any condition that causes more water to move into the topsoil will also insure better air circulation.

Tilth Affects Air and Water Movement

The physical condition of the soil that has most to do with air and water movement in the soil is called "soil tilth." A soil in good tilth breaks up easily into crumbs, or granules, about the size of wheat grains or soybeans. These crumbs are porous. They are made up of tiny bits of soil linked together something like popcorn in a popcorn ball. They hold this structure even when soaked. Because of the pores in the crumbs themselves, and because the size of the crumbs keeps them from fitting together as tightly as smaller bits of soil, there is space for air and water. In other words, to have good soil tilth is to have proper air-water relationships in the soil.

Respect for good soil tilth is nothing new. Agriculturists centuries ago said that good soil tilth was essential if the highest yields of crops were to be grown.
