SWPS To Invest $20 Million In '67

CONSTRUCTION PLANNED - Continued construction on a 210,000 kilowatt generator at Nichols Station, northeast of Amarillo, is part of Southwestern Public Service Company's $20,000,000 improvement program for 1967. Pictured is the installation of a 225,000 pound boiler drum for the new generating unit.

A 1967 construction program calling for the investment of more than 20-million dollars in new electric facilities was announced today by A. R. "Lon" Watson, president and general manager of Southwestern Public Service Company.

The new investment is being made, Watson said, in order that the electric company can continue to provide economical service for its customers at the same time that it assures them of reliable service.

"Electric service seems to be the last holdout against inflation. The purchasing power of today's electric service dollar is $1.07 - or 7 percent more than its 1952 value. On the other hand, the dollar you use to buy other goods and services is worth just 77 cents today, when you compare it with 1952 dollar.

"There are two reasons for the increased value of the electric service dollar. Our customers are using more service, and the more they use the less they pay for each unit. This increased consumption, in turn, has made it necessary for us to have a continuing program of construction. The new equipment being modern, larger and more efficient helps us keep our service economical at the same time that we improve its dependability," Watson said.

Southwestern Public Service Company has not had a general rate increase for electric service in more than 15 years. Since that time, a rate simplification program, designed to reduce the number of rate schedules in the commercial and industrial fields resulted, generally, in lower costs for users.

The major item in the 1967 program is continued construction on a 210,000 kilowatt generating unit at the company's Nichols Station, northeast of Amarillo. When the new unit goes into service in mid-1968, it will double the generating capability of the station. "We design, engineer and supervise the construction of all of our generating stations. This 'do-it-yourself' approach assures our customers of the best possible plant at the lowest practical cost. Right now, for example, our cost per installed kilowatt of generating capacity run substantially below the nation wide average for units of comparable size," Watson said.

Watson also pointed out that the major additions made to the company's generating facilities in recent years are using less fuel and water for each unit of electricity produced, enabling the company to partially offset substantially increased costs for gas fuel and to conserve water resources.

Automation is also playing a major role in holding the price line. Some 70 percent of the company's total generating capability is now controlled by a computerized automatic dispatching system. The ADS constantly computes the cost of generating and transmitting the power so that the most economical means are utilized under all load conditions.

Additional power for the South Plains section of the company's service area will be provided by a 230,000 volt transmission line which will be built from Plant X, in Lamb County, to Tuco Station, in Hale County.

The new line will result in a fourfold increase in the amount of power available in the South Plains area. It will be the second 230,000 volt transmission link to the region, complementing a circuit of this size which now delivers power into the area at a point south of Lubbock.

"Our interconnected generation and transmission system provides every corner of our 45,000 square mile service area with adequate power resources for future growth. Every community that we serve, from the smallest to the largest, can be assured that adequate economical power, is one of the assets it can include in an industrial development effort. Working in cooperation with all the cities that we serve, we have embarked upon a new area development program which we hope will add 10,000 industrial jobs to the region in the next ten years," Watson said.

Southwestern Public Service Company anticipates a 1967 gross peak load of 1,368,000 kilowatts and will have generating capability of 1,609,000 kilowatts to meet this demand.

"Our investment in this area has doubled in the last ten years, going, in round numbers, from 200-million to 400-million dollars. There are only two reasons for this investment. First to provide the best and most economical service for our customers today; and then to provide the base on which we will meet the needs of the future. The continued opportunities for growth in this region are apparent, but if they are to be realized they will call for the full cooperation of all of its citizens. Your growth makes ours possible, and we pledge our every effort for continued progress for this region," Watson concluded.

Seed Meeting Set Saturday

ASCS FARMING PRACTICES OUTLINED FOR 1967

The Lamb County ASCS office announced that the 1967 agriculture Conservation and Stabilization Program approves eight of sixteen practices listed for Lamb County. The federal government shares the cost with the farmers and in most cases pays up to 50 per cent of the cost.

$124,523.00 has been allotted to Lamb County for the coming year, slightly more than in 1966, with some $6,000 going to the Soil Conservation Service for technical services rendered to farmers in carrying out permanent practices.

Practices approved for Lamb County concern establishing vegetative ground cover of some sort and developing better ways to keep water on the farm land. They are: Establishing permanent grasses; control of blind weed; establishment of permanent sod waterways; constructing terraces, either standard terraces, enlargement of terraces, or construction of parallel terraces; construction of diversion terraces; reorganizing farm irrigation systems which includes installing underground tile; leveling ground; establishing vegetative cover for summer protection from erosion.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Nelson visited relatives in California during the holidays.

Bird Bounty Posted Here

A "bird bounty" of fifteen cents has been announced by Sudan Livestock and Feeding Company in an action to do-away-with some of the sterlings that have been causing damage here in the past few weeks.

The small black birds which have been plaguing the feeding company by destroying feed and irritating cattle, have been seen rooting in the trees around the community center by the thousands.

The "15¢ per head" bounty should reduce the number of pests although city officials stated that firearms cannot be used in the city limits. The feeding company will pay bounty on all dead birds, delivered to their office and killed within a 2-mile radius of Sudan.

Pasture Planting Tips Discussed

PASTURE PLANTING - Weeping Lovegrass seeded on dryland in existing grain sorghum stubble on area farm. Grass is used as cover crop and fall grazing.

Pasture planting has always presented a problem, especially to the person who is not familiar with grasses and their growth habits.

In this area we have both dryland and irrigated methods of grasses and the firmer the seed bed, the better the odds for a grass stand.

There are several methods that can be used to establish grasses on dryland widely used to plant a dead litter crop of sorghum for protection against wind and to form much of the soil surface which protects the young grass seedling and helps prevent surface crusting of the soil. Cotton bolls also make an excellent mulch for the seeded area.

Grasses may also be seeded in the existing stubble of grain sorghum provided that the volunteer grain won't be so heavy that it will choke out the grass.

Where irrigation is used a good firm seedbed is needed plus watering often enough to keep the surface moist and to prevent crusting until the grass is up. Then shredding should be done to control the weeds.

The planting dates for warm season grasses is from Dec. 1 to June 1 and the cool season grasses is from Sept. 1 until March 15 with seeds planted from 1/4 to one-half inches deep. Grasses should be planted on the soils best suited for them.

Information on grasses, soils, planting methods, and management of the grass can be obtained by contacting any of the soil conservation service personnel in their offices at Littlefield.

DIVISION MANAGER - Curtis C. Scott was named manager of the western division of the General Telephone Company recently. His office will be in Brownfield.

HARRY B. ELAM, who has served as western division manager, will become eastern division manager for the telephone company beginning the first of the year.

A distinct possibility for consumption of up to a million bales of short staple, low quality cotton which might otherwise be left in storage has come to light in the course of a short staple market survey being conducted by the National Cotton Council at the request of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson reports that according to NCC projections the cotton batting market could use about a million bales of such cotton over the next three years in addition to their use of cotton linters. This was learned recently when Charles Russell, NCC Economist, was in Lubbock to give Johnson a preliminary report on progress of the study.

Cotton linter prices have risen this year to around 10 cents per pound because of the short supply brought on by reduced cotton production in 1966. And according to the survey, the shortage is expected to continue and perhaps worsen under the conditions imposed by the current cotton program, which will remain in effect through 1969.

In the past few years cotton batting made from first-cut linters captured a sizable portion of the automobile seat cushion, furniture padding and mattress markets. Cotton batting that could be pre-formed and would meet the other specifications required by manufacturers was developed from research involving both USDA funds and money supplied by the Cotton Producers Institute.

Johnson points out that price is the only apparent difficulty in using the cotton held by Commodity Credit Corporation to fill the gap between supply and demand for linters.

In order to successfully compete with foam rubber in the batting market, makers say they must have cotton or cotton linters at around 8 cents per pound. If an adequate supply is not made available in the neighborhood of that price, they are fearful that markets gained through research may be lost.

Consequently, the National Batting Institute has been in Washington recently seeking USDA approval of a subsidy on the shorter staple, lower quality cotton in CCC stocks for use in cotton batting. The money would come from what is referred to as "Section 32 funds," collected on agricultural imports and earmarked by law for the development of new uses for U. S. agricultural products.

Some of these funds were used in recent years to subsidize the development of an all-cotton bale bagging which, to date, has not gained industry acceptance because of a price disadvantage. PCG provided the leadership and most of the research in the development of this bagging.

Johnson points out that the expenditure of such funds to subsidize cotton in batting would appear to be a good investment on the part of Government. It would reduce Government stocks of low quality cotton by about a million bales over the three years and would hold markets gained through research in which USDA and cotton producers already have a sizeable investment.

storage costs, but it would prevent there being a surplus of linters when cotton production returns to normal levels," Johnson said.

Details of the National Batting Institute proposal to USDA are not yet known, but Johnson said "It now appears that this is something to which PCG can lend its wholehearted support." CCC stocks of cotton one-inch and below now stand at just under 5 million bales.

And Johnson envisions that if a million of these could be moved to the batting manufacturers, there is also a possibility that another million might be sold to the makers of fine writing paper on a similar proposition.

PCG has been researching the possibilities of raw cotton in the paper industry to supplement a shortage of linters and all-cotton rags for the past three years, and the paper makers are extremely interested.

With 2 million bales taken from the 5 million bale CCC stock of cotton one inch and shorter, the remaining supply could well be reduced to what USDA and others consider to be manageable levels.

Scripture: St. John 6:28, 29, 40; St. Luke 11:1-4

Jesus prayed much and with such moving power that the disciples said, "Lord, teach us to pray." And Jesus answered their request.

Do you want to know how to pray? Or how to live forever? Then read the Scripture given above.

Jesus gave us a new basis of prayer in the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 6: 9, 29-32) "Our Father..." The believer is a child of God through acceptance of Christ by faith—"born again" into God's family.

Mr. Scofield says that the clear revelation of this fact establishes the reasonableness of prayer. God is more than a creator, He is our Father; and we commune or talk with our Father in prayer. Above all this universe, with its laws and wonders is the divine family of God, for whom the universe exists. Jesus said, "When ye pray (speaking to His disciples) say, Our Father..."

What God habitually does in His material world affects all of mankind, and concerns all who will investigate. What God does in His own family (the Church of Jesus Christ) concerns only Him and His children and is a matter for divine promise and revelation. Science, which deals only in natural phenomena, cannot intrude into God's family life! It is as simple as this: an unborn child cannot understand or be aware of what is happening in the outside world.

Prayer is a child's petition to a loving Father, who knows all things and takes upon Himself to answer all prayers of those who believe in and accept Jesus Christ as Savior.

There is only one prayer which a sinner can pray that God will hear and answer, and that prayer is "God, be merciful to me, a sinner." When this prayer comes from a sinner's heart, he is really saying, "I know I have done wrong (as the thief on the cross said to the other thief in St. Luke 23) and I know you are God who loves me like a Father. I know you love me, for you sent your only begotten Son to die that I might live forever. I know my sin grieves you, and I am sorry. So forgive me, and remember me..." Such joy as there is in heaven over a prayer like this! God hears this sinner's prayer, and then he is no longer just a sinner, but a sinner saved by God's grace!

God hears and answers all His children's prayers. He answers, not as we plan, but according to what is best for us, for He sees and knows what is best. Our part is to believe that He will do just that; to trust Him especially when we do not understand His way.

Look at this prayer He taught the disciples: Worship first, putting the interest of the kingdom before personal interest; to be willing to accept God's will, not as we will; then to ask for present needs, trusting and believing the Father for the future.

Never should we be disheartened over a delayed answer to our prayer, for our trust in the Father is that He loves us. We should not pray unless we believe He hears His children's faintest cry, and always answers. As children saved by the grace of God, we are to ask for definite desires, to share all our burdens and joys with Him. To turn to God in prayer is to turn on the greatest power switch that has ever been turned on.

May God, our Father, help us to know this, and to be more thankful for the privilege of prayer.

And, may we, His children show more love for the world; and show more love toward one another that the world may know we are the children of God.

Plan A Perfect Party

It's what's behind that welcoming smile that makes for a successful party—confidence because you have planned ahead.

Take a realistic look at your assets—the space for entertaining, your budget, time you have for preparation, available serving dishes, and your cooking talents—and make the most of them. Don't overdo; keep it simple.

Buffets are popular today because they are easy and informal. The trick is to feature one hearty meal-in-a-dish, such as a chowder, a stew or a casserole (canned condensed soups are delicious ready-made casserole sauces, or a base for chowders or stews).

In this menu, the main course fits on one plate—and it's all fork food, easy to manage even if you're eating from a tray. The casserole can be assembled ahead, ready to put in the oven.

Make a festive centerpiece. Set the buffet in logical order; napkins, dinner plates, main dish, vegetable, salad, buttered rolls, forks. While guests are finishing the main course, slip into the kitchen and get the coffee and dessert ready.

Menu: Ham and Potato Bake, Green Beans, Tossed Green Salad, Dinner Rolls and Tahitian Ice Cream Cake*

HAM AND POTATO BAKE

1 can (10 1/2 ounce) condensed cream of celery, chicken or mushroom soup	4 cups sliced potatoes
1/2 to 3/4 cup milk	1 cup sliced cooked ham, chicken or mushroom
Dash pepper	1 small onion, sliced
	1 tablespoon butter or margarine
	Paprika

Combine soup, milk, and pepper. In buttered 2-quart casserole, arrange layers of potatoes, ham, onion, and soup sauce. (Be sure ham is covered to prevent drying.) Dot top with butter, sprinkle with paprika. Cover. Bake in a 375° oven for 1 hour. Uncover; bake 15 minutes more or until potatoes are done. 4 to 6 servings.

* Tahitian Ice Cream Cake: Line the bottom of an 8-inch square pan with 12 ladyfingers. Spread with 1 pint softened strawberry ice cream; top with one 8-ounce can crushed pineapple. Cover and freeze.
