PLAINS RUNS OVER SUDAN 28-12

THE BIG QUESTION that comes to my mind, after idly noticing my own scalp showing through the thin foilage is this: Why don't women get baldheaded?

Women are known as the fair sex, but there's nothing fair about the fact that baldheaded people are almost always men or reasonable facsimiles thereof. If there is any scientific reasons for such, I'd like to know about them. I can think of several non-scientific reasons.

It's not that I wish women were bald, necessarily, although many of the ones I've seen in recent years would look as well bald as they do with their kooky hairdos. It's just that there may be some component of female scalp which causes each strand to cling tenaciously, and maybe this component could be isolated and rubbed on men's heads, or something.

Could it be that because women let their hair grow longer than men, they have deeper roots and better protection of the scalp? It may be interesting to check in a couple of decades to see if any of today's semi-males, the boys with the girl-type hair, become baldheaded when they reach the vicinity of 40.

More or less related to the same topic might be this information: A lot of fun is poked at bearded hippies and beatniks, but men who wear beards always have been vain of them. During the 17th and 18th centuries gentlemen of class even wore cumbersome cardboard boxes in bed to protect their chin whiskers while they slept.

Hair about that?

KNOTHOLES IN the Woodwork: Man's next frontier will be an old one — the undeveloped tropics, says the Associated Press. The tropical zone includes more than a quarter of the earth's land. Not many people are living in the area yet, but about four-fifths of all existing plant and animal species dwell in the tropics. The chances are reportedly one in six that you have some kind of allergy, or that you will develop one during your lifetime. That's a national average; in this country I'll bet the percentage is a lot higher. There are more than 6,000 species of grass. I wonder how many kinds of weeds there are.

TECH TO PLAY A G M SATURDAY

The Texas Tech Red Raiders, trying to get back into the win column after last week's 7-3 defeat at the hands of Mississippi State, will battle the Texas A&M Aggies this Saturday before an expected sellout crowd in Jones Stadium.

Texas Tech is currently 1-0 in Southwest conference play by virtue of a win over Texas.

Kickoff is 7:30 p. m.

Cowboys maintained their lead.

However, the pounding Jones broke loose and ran 32 yards for another Cowboy score before the half. Lowe's kick was true to the mark and the Cowboys led 14-6 at halftime.

The third period was a defensive battle as both teams dug in and were determined to hold the other.

Early in the fourth Jones went in for another Cowboy TD with Lowe kicking the extra point.

This gave the Cowboys a comfortable lead of 21-6. However, the Hornets were determined to get back in the ballgame as QB Ronnie Hill connected with Bellar on a 28 yard touchdown pass play. Steve Martin and Shawn Potter both set up sufficient blocks to aid Bellar in the scoring. The Hornets' try for two points was unsuccessful and they still trailed 21-12.

The score-minded Cowboys kept up their pace and went in for the final score with six seconds remaining in the game. Again Lowe booted the ball through the goal posts and the Cowboys went home with a 28-12 victory under their belts.

The Hornets go into conference play tomorrow, Friday, when they will host Bovina. Game time is 8 p. m.

Pastoral Scene at Berlin Airport

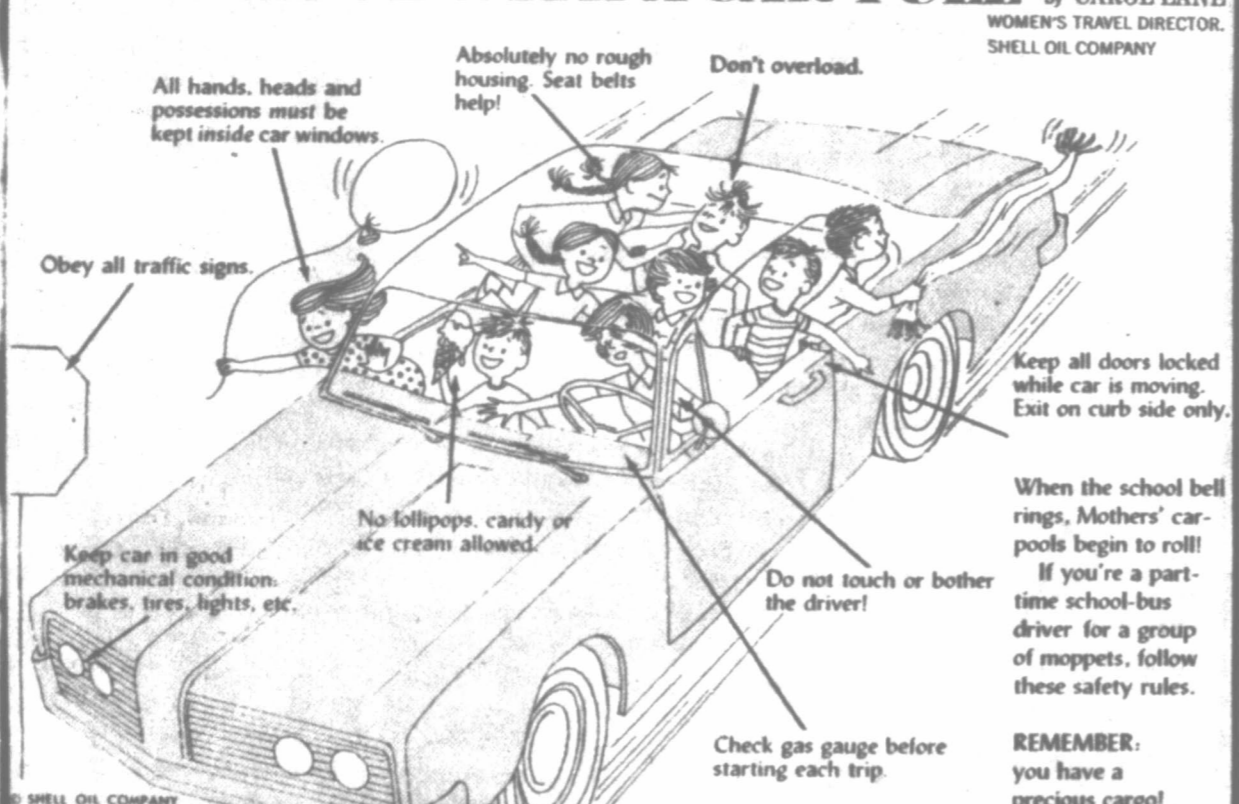

Far from having outlived their usefulness, the anachronistic shepherd and his flock at West Berlin's Tempelhof Airport perform a double function essential even in the 20th century: Wilhelm Laepfle's sheep are not hungry, the grass around the runways must be mown, and both tasks are accomplished perfectly.

Now 63, Wilhelm has tended sheep for 16 years. His unique, 15-year-old arrangement with the airport calls for him to make the grass and weeds disappear as fast as they grow. If his 600 sheep and 300 lambs are not hungry enough, he finishes the job with mowing machines. The position is unpaid, but saves him the cost of fodder. Also, it's a healthy life: he can't recall a single day of illness, and has no plans to retire.

Aside from his faithful dog, the shepherd has for company the huge planes that ceaselessly come and go, for Berlin's two commercial airports are busy places: in 1966, landings and take-offs at the Tempelhof and Tegel terminals totalled an impressive 71,175. They brought 1,674,285 passengers that year, and carried 1,677,681 away. In the first 8 months of 1967, arriving and departing passengers have already numbered 2,375,250 on 48,751 separate flights.

Despite its highly industrialized character, Berlin's over-all land area contains nearly 500 farms (dairy, hog, poultry and egg, crops, etc.) Unusual in a metropolitan community, these produce 6% of the eggs, 9% of the fresh milk, 25% of the fruit, and (depending on seasonal crops) 9-25% of the vegetables consumed by Berlin's 2.2 million people.

You are the place where God shines through. As you relax and trust in God to carry out His divine plan through you, as you begin right where you are to let Him express Himself through you as love, peace, and faith in the good, everything in our life will begin to respond to your changed attitude. In our oneness with God you have all that it takes to live successfully. Make a new beginning with God today. He needs you to shine through and to work through.

Best of thoughts most always start from the region of the heart. That's the place where we acquire thoughts that prove our hearts desire. Evil thoughts won't stay around where the best of thoughts are found. So when searching for the best, take a look within your breast.

This writer received a letter recently from the WHITE HOUSE. The most gracious letter stated that Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson had received my "Dear Gladys" letters (which have appeared in this column) and had enjoyed reading them. Also that she would be happy to accept the two volumes "Links That Bind", books written by this columnist on Family history. It was signed, Bess Abe' Social Secretary.

TWO SUDANITES ATTEND AUTOGRAPH PARTY

I must include in my column this week, Mrs. S. D. Hay, a Sunday pioneer, continues to pioneer and attended the autograph party Friday afternoon in Littlefield, which was the first of such an event ever to be held in the county. The occasion was hosted by the A & B Printing Company with Betty Pearson Hodges there to greet guests. It was in honor of the two authors of the book "Paha Sapa, Land of the Gods", written by the two Earl Luce of Littlefield, Earl B. Luce and daughter, Elizabeth Earl Luce Nelson.

Mrs. Hay kindly allowed this columnist to tag along, and when the writer grabbed a book and started reading, she whispered tactfully, "I'll loan you my copy to read". Upon discovering the book contained some history of the area the writer "jarred loose" and bought one for herself, being something of a historical buff. And as Mrs. Hay seems to know everyone in the county, the late Simon Hay having a county official, it is a privilege for ye writer to be able to tag along as she is introduced to people she has heard of for years, but never met; and Mrs. Hay also remembers to gently remind them I need their historical biography for my forthcoming book on Lamb County. A million thanks to the good Mrs. Hay.

Also we hope to continue to make history Friday afternoon at the meeting of the Young In Heart Senior Citizens meeting to be held at 2:30 in the Community Center. As the two of us are planning to work together and hope to be able to operate a tape recorder and gather some interesting reminances of those present; as well as play the memoirs of Mrs. Hay, Mrs. Ota Bacon and Griff Boyles when they were interviewed by Littlefield Counselor-at-law, Bill Kirk, at this year's Lamb County Pioneer Celebration.

GETTING THINGS DONE

National Newspaper Week, being celebrated October 8 to 14th, is dedicated to greater public recognition of the important functions of newspapers in the everyday lives of Americans.

The theme for the week is "Newspapers Get Things Done," providing an opportunity for editors to point to accomplishments for people, communities, and the nation.

Newspapers inform, entertain, educate, and act as the public's "proxies" wherever public business is transacted. They are a constructive force for the growth and development of their communities. They stimulate progressive action; they encourage good citizenship; they back efforts for better schools, better teachers, and quality education; they act as a watchdog in keeping government in line.

Today's newspapers help with health and safety education and in raising funds for worthwhile purposes. In addition, they give generous support to their communities' spiritual and cultural needs and activities, and help stimulate the economy by moving merchandise for stores and services and ideas.

These are only a few of the many facets of public service. Yes, it is true that newspapers get things done.

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

When you lose a lure while casting, or lose a fish when reeling in, you'll usually discover the end of your line is curled.

This means that your line was not knotted securely. And the weight of the lure or the fish caused the knot to untie.

Lesson learned is to test the holding power of your line by exerting a strong pull on the line as soon as you tie on a lure.

A hefty tug on the line will serve to test holding power as well as line strength. That's the time to also learn whether the line is frayed or weakened by previous use or age.

It's not only surprising, but downright disgusting, for any fisherman to cast out then watch the lure sail over the water disconnected from the line. Sure is an "empty" feeling. Makes you feel kinda silly, too.

Only consolation is it has happened to nearly every angler some time in his fishing experience. So, don't think you're alone in this unhappy experience.

Same goes for the Isaac Walton leaguer who locates the fish, sets the hook, then to his disgust reels in nothing but a bare line with a corkscrew shaped end.

Here are some tips that may help you be sure of a secure tie, especially when using monofilament line.

Most popular knot today is the "cinch knot." It is started by running about eight inches of the line through the eye of the lure (or the hook, if bait fishing). Take two turns if you'd like some added strength. Now take about six or eight turns of the short end of the line around the main line.

Next, run the end of the line through the loop formed at the end when the wrap-around procedure was started.

This next move is one often overlooked, but very important.

You've just made a big loop extending from the last turn around the line to the hook eye.

Now—run the end of the line through this big loop!

Then, while you hold the tag end of the line firmly in one hand (some anglers hold it with their teeth) pull slowly but firmly on the main line. The knot begins to take form in front of the eye of the lure. The stronger you pull . . . the tighter becomes the knot.

If you've wrapped the monofilament line about itself too loosely, you can help the knot form by pushing it together with the fingernails.

When the knot appears to be securely tied, nip off excess line with fingernail clippers (or cut with knife). We find the clipper mighty handy . . . especially when suspended from a belt loop.

Leave about an inch of excess line on the end.

If you want to add some insurance to the knot, and you're using monofilament line, burn the end of the line slightly. The flame will immediately cause the mono to "ball up" at the tip of the line.

Be careful here that none of the hot mono drips onto ANYTHING—especially you or your clothes. It gets boiling hot and sticky, quickly. The droppings are like liquid fire. If they fall on you once, you'll never let it happen again. The hot mono will adhere to the skin or clothes and leave a bad burn.

So, blow out the flaming match or lighter as quickly as the ball begins to form. Once the mono cools, the ball hardens. But don't touch it until it has had plenty of time to cool. If you're in a hurry (which all of us seem to be) dip it in water or cool with saliva.

This hard ball will prevent the line from slipping through the knot . . . and eliminate the possibility of an untie.

We've experimented with mono and find that if you'll burn a ball on the end of your line, FIRST OF ALL, before you start the tying process, you can handle the line easier. This since you have the little solid ball to work with rather than a limber line that's sometimes hard to control in the wind.

Also, it's safer to burn at the start rather than the end of the tying process.

With a little practice, you will have just enough of the line protruding from the knot . . . and a second burning is unnecessary. This eliminates the cutting or nipping of the end of the line and further burning.

Try this trick next time you want to tie on a lure, swivel, or hook.

Devotional

By HAZEL HOUSE

PREPARE TO MEET THY GOD!!

Scripture: Genesis 6:13-22; 19:14-16, 23 26; St. Luke 17:25-37.

Jesus, in talking to His disciples, tried to tell them what was in the future for Him, but they seemed not to understand; only Mary, who anointed Jesus in preparation for His burial.

Jesus of Nazareth said He was to suffer, and to be rejected by the generation in which He lived on earth. But then He told of the "days of the Son of Man". He said when the Son of Man returns for His own followers, people would be doing as they did in the days of Noe (Noah); they would be eating, drinking, marrying — and the flood came and destroyed them all. All except those who were safe in the Ark.

And it would be as in the days of Lot: they would be eating, drinking, buying, selling, planting and building — but in the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all. "Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed".

Jesus kept telling His disciples of His coming death, and finally of His resurrection. And He told them of His going to the Father, and of His intention of coming back to claim His own.

He tells us in His word of this time to be, yet in the future. And He said not to return back for anything. One shall be taken and another left.

So the disciples asked, "Where Lord?"

And He said "Whosoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together."

Jesus has returned in the Holy Spirit to live within each person who has received Him into their heart as Savior and Lord. And we must follow Him, ever looking upward in confident trust to Him who can save and keep us safe in Him forevermore. He is our ark for the living of these days, as Noah's ark kept him safe through the flood. But now is the time which we have to make preparation for and to look eagerly toward the future return of Jesus of Lords. This time He will not come as the Babe in the manger, but for every eye to see Him in His glory as King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

Jesus cares for us as He cared for Lot, but we must not turn back and look at what we have left behind — remembering Lot's wife. We must go out, even while we remain safe in Jesus Christ, because there are others who do not know, really know, that Jesus cares about them. They do not know how powerful He is, and how He wants to save each and everyone of us from death into eternal life. The Lord is merciful, and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy. His children must go out into the world and tell this to others.

Many are seeking to save their lives, and losing them. But whosoever (and that means you or me) shall "lose his life shall preserve it."

Lose your life, and let Jesus live in you — then you have eternal life. Ask for His forgiveness, trust in His Almighty power and love.

His Word says in I John 1:9 "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness". Do you believe His promise? He forgives any and all sin! He says "Come". Will you?
