EVERY NOW and then somebody does something that makes you want to cheer. The most recent one I've noticed was an action by the U. S. Forest Service for which they should get a bouquet, especially from the nation's taxpayers.

In a move almost unheard of in the federal government, the Forest Service asked Congress to cut back its budget authorization for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The House Public Works Roads Subcommittee was asked to slash the authorization from $170 million to $100 million for forest development roads and trails.

The committee was told that although the service wants the figure restored to $170 million the following year, there is substantial carry-over authorization this year.

Let us hope that they get the full $170 million next year. Without doubt, many other federal agencies could operate at some times on less money than has been authorized, but most would be aghast at the idea of turning down any amount for fear they would be restricted to that the following year.

I've heard the same thing in schools and large corporations. When a set amount of money is authorized for a department, that department always tries to spend it all, even if it may not be needed that particular year. Their reasoning is that if you don't spend it, you'll never get that much authorization again.

They could have a valid point. But certainly most of us would like to see economy rewarded. And in most cases, if some agency turns back some unneeded funds, that agency certainly should get special consideration for any additional funds requested in the future.

WITH my usual brilliant timing, I recently invested a tiny amount (tiny for Wall Street, big for me) in stocks. And anyone with any stocks knows what has happened to the market lately. Stockholders and brokers are lining up again to jump out windows.

My wife didn't want me to put that money in stocks because she figured savings accounts are better. But I assured her that it would make more money in mutual funds.

We don't discuss this around our house anymore. It's too much like jumping up on the counter at Levine's and shouting "Long live the Arab Republic!"

Cubs Lead LL Pack

According to scores reported, the Cubs remain as the only undefeated team in the Inter-City Little League. The Cubs defeated the Cardinals 9-5 in Amherst Friday night. Friday night also saw the Angels and Dodgers battle out a tight game with the Dodgers scoring four runs in the

CENSUS SHOW POPULATION DECREASE

According to the preliminary reports from the Census Bureau, the 1970 headcount for Lamb County will be approximately 4,000 shy of the official 1960 count. Some 17,427 have been counted in the preliminary count with some 21,896 being counted for the 1960 census.

The Census Bureau will commence in the fall of 1970 to publish official population figures for all areas in the United States - states, counties, cities, towns and villages.

The final count is expected to be some higher. However, the census will show that the county has lessened in population during the past decade.

Entrants will compete within their age groups, based upon their age as of July 1, 1970. Each entry will compete in individual basis in three categories—pitching, hitting, and throwing.

In pitching, a full windup and overhead throw are required for each pitch. 25 points will be scored for each ball pitched into the target from a distance of 46 feet. Five pitches will be allowed.

In hitting, one point is awarded for each foot of distance the ball is hit in fair territory. The entrant will get five chances to toss the ball and hit a fly. The longest fly will be measured.

In the throwing event, one point will be awarded for each foot a ball is thrown on the fly, minus one point for each foot the thrown ball lands right or left of the foul line.

Judges decisions will be final. Local winners will be eligible to compete in the district competition. District winners will advance to division and then to national competition which will be held during the All-Star Game on July 14, 1970.

Recovery Efforts Underway At Lubbock

In a "first-time-ever" operation, the federal government is establishing a one-stop referral system for Lubbock-area tornado victims.

George Hastings, chief of the 600-man federal relief force now operating in the 10 West Texas counties declared a major disaster area by President Nixon, said that two such centers are being established in the City of Lubbock, where the need seems to be apparent.

Slated to begin operations Monday, the information and service units will be located at Mi Casita, the Northeast Community Center at 2420 E. Erskine St., and the Guadalupe Center at 1st St. and Avenue P. Hastings said the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness is sponsoring the centers, to be staffed with Spanish- and English-speaking recovery experts. Included will be representatives from the following levels of government and agencies to give advice and assist in preparing necessary paperwork: State of Texas, City of Lubbock, Salvation Army, Red Cross, Office of Economic Opportunity, Small Business Administration, Federal Housing Administration, and the Office of Emergency Preparedness.

In a round-up of other disaster recovery highlights, the Office of Emergency Preparedness late Saturday night reported:

The VETERAN'S ADMINISTRATION has supplied 38 housing units to the City of Lubbock for rental and is processing an additional seven units for use by disaster victims.

The DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE'S Soil Conservation Service has completed a survey of Lubbock County to determine the density and location of debris.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is initiating actions in Lubbock and Cochran Counties for removal of debris from private property.

The Farmer's Home Administration reports that, while no major damages were sustained in Lubbock County farm operations, earlier tornadoes in Cochran, Hockley, Lamb and Dale Counties have resulted in 20 applications for agriculture recovery loans.

The Food and Nutrition Service has supplied an initial 70,000 pounds of USDA-donated foods to the City-County Welfare Department for the new St. Vincent Pallotti Mission food distribution center. The Center reports that over 300 persons were given a two week emergency supply of food Saturday.

The SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION has issued over 500 disaster loan applications to date and 19 loan checks were presented Saturday.

Loan specialists from all over the nation are staffing SBA offices seven days a week. Additional assistance is being rendered by Texas Tech students acting as counselors, and by area banks.

REESE AIR FORCE BASE is supplying some 100 volunteers, six trucks and vans to assist the City of transportation of food and clothing to the Guadalupe Center, the Red Cross, Salvation Army, and Warehouse 41. A 2-1/2 ton truck has also been loaned to Guadalupe Center for food distribution. In addition, the base is supplying photo support to the Office of Emergency Preparedness and the Corps of Engineers with aerial reconnaissance photographs of the damaged areas.

The ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS announced Saturday that the first debris clearance contract for the city has been awarded to the Don Bandy Contracting Co. of Midland. The contract, for $41,700, will cover debris clearance from streets and alleys in a 240-block section in the central part of Lubbock. The work will take about 10 days to complete.

The Labor Department's NEIGHBORHOOD YOUTH CORPS enrollees are working in the Lubbock disaster area assisting in debris clearance and housing location, and aiding the Salvation Army and other disaster aid agencies.

Devotional

By HAZEL HOUSE

Scripture: Psalms 25:8-12; 27:11; 33:6-22; St. John 1:9-13; 3:16-17; 5:36.

"Teach me Thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path." How can the Lord teach me His way, unless I turn from my own selfish way and take time to listen to Him, to read His Word, to pray? How can He guide me in a plain path until I am willing to follow Him? The man or woman who in amazed and reverent awe, recognizes God's Almighty power and eternal love is the one whom God shall teach in the way that He shall choose, according to God's own Word.

Do you know who Jesus really is? If you have met Him as Savior and Redeemer, then have you been with Him day by day and learned to know him as Friend, Elder Brother, Comforter, Teacher and Guide? Do you really know what is Jesus' nature and how He does keep His promises? Does your "Soul" wait for the Lord because He is your help and shield? Does your heart rejoice in Him because you have trusted completely in His name? Do you know that Jesus really is the SAME yesterday, today, and forever?

The works that Jesus came to do here on earth is: to seek and to save that which was lost. He came to reveal the heart and nature of the Father—the undying, eternal love the Father has for you and me; He died to pay for our sins; and He arose from the dead and ascended into heaven, to reveal to us how we, too, can have eternal life through Him; now He sits at the right hand of God to intercede for us.

Do you know Jesus? Do you believe Him? I plead with you, hear Him, seek Him, search the scriptures—learn What a Friend we have in Jesus!

Spring Swings with Fresh Strawberries

Here's something for which you've been longing: fresh strawberries. Enough to send you dancing with glee around the Maypole? You bet! At their peak as chilly weather melts away and warm weather sets in, strawberries capture the beauty of spring with their fragrant taste. Spectacular morning, noon and night, fresh strawberries are thoughtfully low in calories and hearty with vitamin C. Come join our annual Fresh Strawberry Festival with a glorious luncheon or supper salad featuring the lusciously plump berries and two great "put-ons".

STRAWBERRY-PINEAPPLE SALAD

7 cups torn lettuce
3 cups fresh strawberries, cut in half
3 cups fresh pineapple chunks

Place lettuce in salad bowl. Arrange strawberries and pineapple in sections over lettuce. Garnish with whole strawberries, if desired. Makes 6 servings. Serve with one of the following dressings.

HONEY-LEMON DRESSING: Combine 1 cup sour cream, 2 tablespoons honey, 1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon juice, dash salt. Refrigerate 1/2 hour to blend flavors. Makes about 1 cup.

FRESH FRENCH DRESSING: Combine 2/3 cup salad oil, 1/4 cup fresh lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar (or to taste), 1 teaspoon paprika, few grains pepper, in jar with tight-fitting cover. Shake well before using. Makes about 1 cup.

Does Christianity Have Answers?

By DAVE LLEWELLYN

"Christianity is a religion for peasants and women," people used to say.

Now some charge that Christianity is a faith for middle-class Americans. On university campuses it is condescendingly explained, "I went to church sometimes when I was a kid, but I grew up."

It is true, of course, that Christianity is for peasants, women, children, and middle-class Americans. But the implication is not true that Christ has nothing to offer mature, intelligent, and thoughtful people.

Jesus, the man popularly accepted as the greatest Teacher of all time, has been passed off by our academic structures as unworthy of consideration.

Yet this is not a new trend. People who prided themselves on their intellect rejected the message of Jesus in the first century, too. In Athens, Greece — the cultural center of the world — Paul was received by the academic vanguard as an "idle talker."

Message for Intellectuals
Paul did have a message for intellectuals, though, and in 19 centuries its significance hasn't changed.

It begins with the problem: "You don't know God."

The Athenians admitted that they didn't know God. They even had an altar with the inscription, "To An Unknown God."

But not knowing God was not then — and is not today — the usual conception of the problem.

"Yes, we are agnostic, but it isn't God we need to know — it is man. Let's study psychology, sociology, city planning, political science, ecology, and medicine. Our problems aren't with knowing God. They are with understanding our fellowmen and our environment."

What does Paul have to say to that?
"The God Who made the world and all things in it . . . made from one every nation of mankind . . . that they should seek God . . . for in Him we live and move and exist." (Acts 17:24-28)

If our problems are with man and the environment, why not find out what God has to say about them? After all, He made them both.

Simplistic? Most people think so, because most people haven't taken the time to think it through — and certainly not to try it out.

See What Bible Says
Some few, to justify their opinions, study the Bible to discredit it. Such negative investigation, however, is unscientific.

Dr. Francis Schaeffer, of Switzerland, suggests, "Let's not ask first of all, 'Is the Bible true?' Let's see what the basic questions are and find out what the system taught in the Bible has in the way of answers."

Doubtless, many observers have concluded that the failure of the organized church is sufficient testimony to the invalidity of the Bible. But those who realize that truth must be evaluated first-hand are likely to come to different decisions.

If you have assumed Christianity to be intellectually unsound, gather up some serious questions about life and see for yourself what the Bible has for answers.

You might discover that God has learned a lot while you've been growing up.
