FORTY-SIXTH YEAR NUMBER 18

BY DALTON

THERE'S been a lot of yakking about the economy lately, by all of us common folks and by supposedly learned men right on up to President Nixon, who says he will not impose mandaprice and wage controls to combat inflation.

Inflation is a very real monster stalking all of us, and most of us figure we'd do okay if the government would just freeze all wages except our own, and freeze all prices after cutting them 50 per cent across the board (except, of course, the price of any article which we may have for sale).

Tom Tiede, a columnist for Newspaper Enterprise Assn., recently wrote a column in which he traced the average day of an average man in Yankee country. He started the day like this:

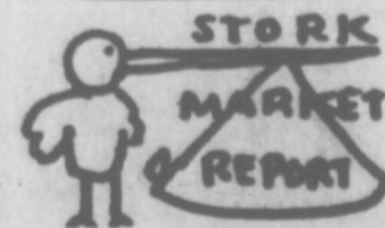

"The man you are about to meet lives in the state of New Jersey and works in New York City... He has a wife, two children, at least one mortgage and an automobile. He earns $10,000 salary..."

In the morning when he gets up, says Tiede, this man brushes his teeth with toothpaste that is 8 cents a tube more than it was last year. He uses soap a nickel a bar higher. He puts on a suit back from cleaning, with the bill up 50 cents from four years ago.

Anyway, this average man is carried through an entire day, and everything he does costs him more money than it used to. He mentions subway fares, health insurance, parking, tips, gasoline, sandwiches, clothing, aspirin, dental care, transportation and recreation expenses.

At home in the evening, he hears about coming tax increases. Then he goes to sleep, except for the time he stays awake trying to decide whether to borrow money at the increased interest rates.

It's a depressing picture, I guess, and most of us could expand his list of things that have gone up considerably. But still, most of us have more wealth than ever before in history, so we should be thankful.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eddings are parents of a girl, Christie LeAnn, born Thursday, June 18, weighing 6 lb. 11 oz. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Hayes of Hale Center and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Eddings of Littlefield. Mrs. Eddings is the former Kathy Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood of Grand Prairie are parents of a daughter, Dana Lynette, born May 11, weighing 8 lb. 8 oz. Grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. Willie Hazel of Plainsview and Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wood of Houston.

Just Hazel of Plainsview visited in the home of Cynthia Parrish and other friends Tuesday and Wednesday.

'TEXAS' OPENS FRIDAY

The curtain will rise on the fifth season of the musical production of "TEXAS" tomorrow night, Friday, at 8:45 p. m. in the Pioneer Amphitheatre located in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park. The opening ceremonies will feature a horseman carrying a flag to the top of the 600 foot cliff which serves as a backdrop for the stage.

The idea of a Texas-like production was formed in 1960 by the William Moores and Ples Harpers after hearing about Paul Green and his ability to recreate the past of a region by presenting the essence of its history in tremendous dramas with pageantry and music.

A group of area people brought Green to Palo Duro to investigate the possibility of using the canyon as a background for a production. He was impressed and in a rested and work was begun. Plans progressed in spite of many set backs and the seating area was built in 1962 from donations of area residents.

As interest broadened "Fandangle" came from Albany for performances in 1963. Sound and lighting equipment was donated in 1964, making possible the production of "Thundering Sounds of the West" which played to some 36,000 people in 1965.

Other buildings and concessions were added until a dream-come-true was realized in 1966 with the first production of "Texas". Some 61,338 persons attended the first year. Attendance for the 1969 season reached 71,590 with some 1,256 persons attending nightly. "Texas" will play this year nightly through August 31, excluding Sundays. For tickets and further information write to "Texas" Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2182.

TEXAS TECH NEWS

LUBBOCK — Forty-three investigators from nine departments of Texas Tech University are conducting research into production and use of grain sorghum.

They and former researchers no longer with the university have completed 197 reports of their findings regarding the crop, which continues to increase in economic importance to Texas.

These reports and the names of researchers have been catalogued by ICASALS Special Report No. 34 entitled "Grain Sorghum Research" by the colleges of Agricultural Sciences and Home Economics — available upon request.

Most reports are available in reprint form to persons interested in the crop research. The publication reports the 1969 grain sorghum output in Texas was approximately 310 million bushels, with more than half of it being produced in the High Plains of Texas.

The local supply "has been a prime factor in the tremendous growth" of cattle feeding, and the rapid development of the swine industry in West Texas "is also largely attributable to the region's production of sorghum grain," it says.

A 1966-67 survey showed grain sorghum represented 83% of all concentrates fed in Texas feedlots.

"As the dynamic billion dollar High Plains livestock feeding industry expands," the bulletin says, "the grain sorghum industry must continue its growth at an accelerated rate."

Grain sorghum is expected to become more important year-by-year as a source of food for human consumption.

It can provide "inexpensive, palatable and nutritionally complete food for humans when properly supplemented," the report says. "Several types of satisfactory food products have been developed but the manufacture of acceptable food from grain sorghum requires continued exploration."

Tech faculty and investigators agree that "new knowledge gained through research and education holds the key to future economic growth of the grain sorghum industry" and that Texas Tech "is in a better position than any other organization to make this contribution to the West Texas portion of the industry."

Departments and divisions contributing to the interdisciplinary grain sorghum research are Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Engineering, Agronomy, Animal Science, Food Technology, and Entomology, all in the College of Agricultural Sciences, Food and Nutrition in the College of Home Economics, ICASALS, and the Texas Tech Research farm and Killgore Beef Cattle Center at Pantex.

What's right about America?

Today, the surest means of a book becoming a best seller is for the author to highlight and denounce bitterly the faults of this country. The same can be said of television and the movies, which prefer in these modern days to depict the seamy side of life in America.

But there's hope. As I have moved across this state, I have sensed that our people are growing weary of gloom. It's becoming easier to strike up a conversation on what's right about America.

I always suggest that there are a lot more level heads in this country than we are sometimes led to believe. There are a lot more decent, law-abiding citizens than there are criminals and cheats and sharks. There are a lot more young people in the "now" generation who want to improve America than the handful of radicals who want to burn it to ashes and start all over.

I can understand why the "majority" has broken its "silence." There's a growing impatience with agitation and controversy. But I feel we should continue to approach our nation's problems with a cool head and an open mind. I've listened to the voices of dissent. I think I know what they're asking of their government.

One thing they want is confidence. They want the assurance that their public officials have the courage to meet the issues of the 1970s with imagination and integrity, and not with some form of "old politics" that thrashes around with problems but never quite locates the workable solutions.

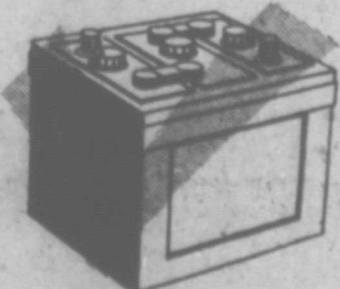

It was my desire to answer the urgent need that prompted me in January to seek the office of United States Senator.

My name is John M. Moley, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

THOUGHT FOR MOTIVATION

Kind words and flowers are much the same,
They bring us joy in life's great game,
You know what works
kind words will do
When they've been spoken just for you,
Such words we thing
bring happy hours
As well as do the lovely flowers,
So when the flowers
are scarce, are gone,
Just use kind words and carry on.
