AT TEXAS AGM next Wednesday there's going to be a discussion on "Exotic Newcastle", according to a release from the university. We don't know what those Aggies will come up with next, but there's just no way you could logically describe Newcastle as exotic.

Newcastle is a little community in Young County, between Olney and Graham. Not many folks live there, and buildings that once housed businesses have been standing vacant for years. Undoubtedly the folks who live in Newcastle are good people, but still the community doesn't come across as exotic, a word which belongs to Miami Rio de Janeiro, Tahiti, and the Polynesian Bar and Grill in Bronco, N.M.

Newcastle is the place where a few years ago a man named Neal operated what was possibly the only remaining handset weekly newspaper anywhere. This means that every letter in paper was set by hand, from a drawer full of type, the way people used to do in the days of Ben Franklin. Believe me, if we had to set every letter and every word of this newspaper by hand, we'd be plenty frugal with our words. There wouldn't be any Mrs. Jones visited Mrs. Smith stuff, as important as this may be to a small town newspaper. Every word would be a dynamic revelation.

On reading further into the AGM release, one learns that Exotic Newcastle is a poultry disease. How it got that name surely must be an interesting story, but that information isn't included in the story.

OKAY, Dr. Von Braun, I plead guilty to being apathetic about the space program. Or, like Kingfish in an old Amos 'n Andy show I remember, I'd like to plead "partly guilty."

Dr. Wehrner Von Braun, deputy associate high mogul of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), attacked public apathy and urged continued support for the U.S. space program during a speech on Texas Tech campus Monday. He could hardly have been expected to take any other stand.

Funding for the NASA program has been a matter of raging controversy in Congress and over the nation in recent years. Many argue that money spent on space exploration would be better spent on something else, but exactly what that something else should be opens up some new arguments. To fight pollution? To increase welfare giving? To buy summer homes for politicians? To promote bus-

The first might be okay. As for the others, we'd be better off shooting the money into space.

Personally, I can see where there might be some benefit in the skylab program, or some of the NASA projects to learn more about weather and climate. But to go to the moon again? No, thank you. I was much in favor of the first moon trip (but like my kids, kind of disappointed there were no monsters wandering around up there), and even the one where they first walked around. But we've been there now, and we didn't find anything worthwhile, or at least not worth the expense of going, so how about let's sending our spacemen somewhere else?

Of course, if they'd take a good payload of liquor, dirty movies and albums by the Guess Who and the Three Dog Biscuits, it might be worth the expense.

bers. Tuesday was Happiness Day when members presented students with a smiling face cut-out to be worn on their lapel. Wednesday was Locker Patrol Day when 'waste basket' tickets were displayed on lockers depicting "a clean school" or "school pollution". Today, Thursday, Mr. Irresistible will be selected. Each FHA member will begin the day with 10 red hearts and must present one to each boy they speak with. At the end of the day, the boy with the most hearts will be selected Mr. Irresistible. Tomorrow, Friday, has been designated Kid's Day when all students are asked to dress as kids. The teachers will select the best-dressed boy and girl.

Q Are tax rates any lower for single people this year?

A Yes. The lower tax rates for single persons are reflected in the tax tables and tax rate schedules in the instructions for your 1971 Federal income tax return.

Q I know that the proceeds of a life insurance policy received upon death generally are not taxable, but what about the lump sum I receive when I cash in my policy? Is that also tax exempt?

A If you surrender your life insurance policy for a lump sum, you must include in income only that portion of the proceeds of the policy in excess of what you paid for it.

Q I have two jobs. Can I deduct transportation expenses between one place of work and the other?

A If you work at two places in a day, whether or not for the same employer, you may deduct the expense of getting from one place to the other. However, if for some personal reason you do not go directly from one location to the other, you may deduct only the amount it would have cost you to go directly from one location to the second. Transportation expenses incurred in going to and from a part-time Saturday job are commuting expenses and nondeductible.

Q My son earned over $2,000 from a summer job last year but banked most of it. Do I count the earnings he saved as support furnished by my son when figuring out whether I can claim him as a dependent?

A Income not spent by your son does not have to be counted towards his support. However, if your son spends part of his 1971 savings this year on support items, that amount counts toward support for 1972.

Army ROTC Allowance Now $1,000

University of Pennsylvania Army ROTC cadet Glenn M. Harned (right), receives his $100 monthly allowance check from Major Pierre D. Labat of the Military Science Department staff.

PORT MONROE, Va. — Congress and the President have offered one more good reason for young men to take a longer look at the Army ROTC program. It's called money.

Under a new law passed in the current session and signed by Mr. Nixon, college juniors and seniors taking Army ROTC now receive an allowance of $1,000 a year—or $100 a month for the 10 months of the school year. That's about double what it used to be.

Freshmen and sophomores on Army ROTC scholarships also are paid the increased allowance. And this money is in addition to the Army ROTC's payments for these students' tuition, textbooks and lab fees.

With the cost of college education high—and likely to go even higher—the increased allowance is a tidy sum for a college or university student to count on. It's available at any one of more than 280 colleges offering Army ROTC across the country.

The increased allowance is another incentive for young men who would like to learn to be leaders. That's the major goal of the Army ROTC program.

If you'd like to find out more about the program's benefits, drop a line to Army ROTC, Box 12703, Philadelphia, Pa. 19134.

Mailing the letter will take only a few moments. But they could mean an education and a career that will be of invaluable aid for a lifetime.
