FORTY-EIGHTH YEAR NUMBER 12

BY DALTON

ONCE AGAIN it's time for all the poll cats to come out into the open, as those of us who have been properly registered, stamped and approved may cast ballots Saturday in primary elections, the first of two (and probably three) big elections scheduled this year on state and national levels.

Most folks around here will cast Democratic primary ballots, in order to vote on the county races, although many may cross party lines when the general election comes up in November. And from the looks of things, there will be some kind of Democratic primary runoff. And maybe Republicans, too, since the GOP has six candidates for the nomination for the governor's race.

One thing that always surprises the average voter when he gets his ballot is to see on the list of people running for major offices all those names he never heard of before. It's obvious that some folks have more money than judgment, because they paid their filing fees and got into the race for governor or lieutenant governor or some such office, but never were able to run a full-fledged campaign and get their names before the public.

For example, take the governor's race, Smith, Barnes, Briscoe and Mrs. Farenthold we have heard of, but who are Gordon Wills, William Posey and Robert Everett L. Looney whose names are on the ballot? On the GOP governor list, I've heard of Albert Fay, David Reagan and Thomas McElroy, but the names of Joseph Jenkins, Hank Grover and John Hall ring no bell.

Several persons have inquired as to whom this newspaper endorses for governor. Frankly, of the 13 candidates, we aren't sure we want any of them for governor. However, West Texans definitely should not vote for Mrs. Farenthold, who spoke out recently against the water plan for this area.

Unfortunately there's no place on the ballot to mark in favor of abolishing the offices of governor and lieutenant governor, and limiting the legislature to an annual session of one day, so they can do us a minimum of damage.

Texas will get a chance to vote for or against busing students to achieve racial balance in school, and of course, everybody is opposed to this idiotic practice of making kids go to school five miles away when they have schools two blocks from home. The only problem is that the wording of the referendum on the ballots will confuse some folks. The thing to remember is this: if you are against busing, you mark "For" the referendum statement, which opposes busing.

Referendums have no legal effect; they merely poll public opinion, with the results used by politicians later on to try to get legal action taken. Incidentally, if you want to express your opinion on daylight savings time, you will have to vote on the Republican ballot, which includes this as a second referendum question. The Democratic ballot does not include this issue.

DAYLIGHT TIME, which just started again, is a big issue with some people, although personally it doesn't matter much to me. No matter where I set the clock—up an hour, back an hour, or out in the backyard—I still don't like to get up in the morning, and I still never have enough hours in the day to do all the things I want to.

One fellow we know always leaves his watch and clocks on standard time, refusing to go along with the change. Those of us who don't care one way or another perhaps should compromise and run our clocks up 30 minutes.

"INDEPENDENT LIVING for the elderly" is the theme of Senior Citizens Month which began May 1 in Texas. Gov. Preston Smith, in proclaiming the month, cited a need for greater public awareness of the contributions of older Texans, and also "concern for the problem's many face as they grow older."

Supportive services which enable elderly persons to remain in their own homes for a longer period of time will be stressed and publicized. These include delivery of meals to elderly persons who no longer can cook for themselves; transportation for the elderly to doctors, groceries and churches; and weekly visits from homemakers to clean house and provide other needed services.

Many communities this month will select and honor an outstanding elderly person. The only problem here is that a lot of older persons I know who really are outstanding don't like to be labeled elderly, because, after all, this is usually more a frame of mind than a chronological factor.

Old age to most of us is 10 years older than however old we happen to be. When I was 15 I thought 30 was ancient. I was amused last week in a conversation with a man about 27 or 28 years old. He mentioned that his father "is getting up in years and won't be able to work much longer... after all, he'll be 55 this year."

Gas, that's not old at all. Last year, one of my motor-cycling buddies was 72. His wife, who also rides, is only 68 or so.

Theme for the affair was "Show Boat" and decorations included a wharf scene in the foyer. The hall was decorated with star covered paper and streamers. The tables were laid with blue cloths and featured candles, name cards and mint cups. Highlighting decorations was a wheel depicting a waterwheel taken from a paddleboat. Dinner music was provided by an authentic gramophone provided by Kevin May.

The meal, catered by Kern's Korner of Levelland, was served by Jo Gaye Doty, Kaye Warren, Debbie Ritchie, Debra Edwards and Donna Provence, Mark Hanna, Curtis Chester, Pat Hedges, Roby Lynn and Tommy Seymour, who were dressed in costumes depicting the pre-Civil War era in the deep South.

Here to Help

People need help.

That's why Jesus lived, and that's why the followers of Jesus remain alive. If you have a need, God has provided people to help you. If you can help, God has charged you to find the people in need.

Probably you who need help have received little, and you who can help have given little. There are several reasons why.

First, the need is not clear to some people. I don't mean, primarily, those people who live so isolated from other people and the realities of life that they never see the people with obvious needs. I mean people who see the apparent needs but misinterpret them.

If a man is dirty and hasn't a job nor enough food for his family, some people see his problem as spiritual. In a way they are right because every person's most important problem, whether he realizes it or not, is his relationship with God. But he still has a very real physical problem. The recognition of his spiritual need should not deny his need for food and clothing and a job.

Second, some people with help never meet the people in need. They see them, but how should they make contact? They can't just walk up to the house and say, "You look like you could use some help." Can they?

Sunday School Lesson

Church meetings should solve this problem, but they don't. Many churches draw people only from a neighborhood of people with similar incomes. If people with needs do come to church they often find it a social gathering where people are looking for their friends, not new people or people to help.

If a businessman has a service he wants people to use he advertises. The students at Bryan College put their Christian commitment into practical action by forming an organization called Fish and advertising their free services for the needy through the local welfare offices and civic clubs and through public service announcements on the local radio station. They found plenty of helpful contributions of time and labor to make.

Some Christians, perhaps, do not realize that faith in God cannot remain alive without producing good works. As James has explained, "If a brother or sister is without clothing and in need of daily food, and one of you says to them, 'Go in peace, be warmed and filled'; and yet you do not give them the things which are necessary for their body, what use is that? Even so, faith, if it has no works, is dead by itself."

If a believer is not helping others, he needs help.

THE ULCER PERSONALITY

Most people assume corporation presidents, advertising copywriters and ambitious executives are the only ulcer sufferers. But the gastro-intestinal experts at Smith Kline & French Laboratories report more than 5,000,000 Americans have ulcers and they vary in age and occupation. What they have in common is a need to control the stomach's acidity. Many doctors recommend 'Ducon', a new, pleasant tasting, antacid... and they urge the ulcer victim to try to relax.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS
BY VERN SANFORD

There is more, much more, to catfish farming in Texas than subdividing the land with dikes, filling the ponds with water and then dumping in brood fish.

Billy Edwards of Winnie, Texas, who owns and operates a 450-acre catfish farm, assures one and all that raising catfish requires more than just letting nature take its course.

Edwards' farm is called "Catfish Acres." It is located on State Highway 124 about midway between Winnie and High Island. (Winnie is on Interstate 10 between Houston and Beaumont.)

A network of dikes cuts the acreage into 45 ponds that in turn are connected with a maze of underground pipes. The ponds range from a series that are 1/10th acre each in size to the largest which covers 214 acres.

The 1/10th acre ponds, Edwards says, represent the pet project of his resident manager and biologist Joe Surovik. "Joe uses these ponds for selective breeding," Edwards says, "because he is interested in improving the strain."

Edwards keeps his ponds filled by pumping in water from a bayou that meanders across his property. This water, however, is not pumped "raw" into his ponds.

"If we didn't that way, we could ruin the operation in a hurry," Edwards says. On its way to the holding reservoir, the water goes through a giant filtering system that keeps out rough fish, spawn, dirt and weeds.

In addition to filtering the water to prevent contamination, Edwards has to carefully control water levels within the ponds. The water must be kept shallow enough so attendants working the ponds don't have to resort to boats. But at the same time the water must be kept deep enough to keep out the long-legged wading birds.

"When the water is shallow, the wading birds (cranes, egrets, etc.) get to the fish," Edwards says. "Regardless of the water depth the aninga (water turkey) is the one bird that really gives us fits."

Right along with filtering and water levels, close tabs must be kept on ponds to see that they have adequate oxygen content.

At the entrance to "Catfish Acres" Edwards has two ponds totaling approximately four acres. The area is landscaped and complete with picnic tables, benches and shelters. His ponds are stocked with 12,000 pounds of channel catfish ranging from one to 14 pounds in size.

From 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily except Mondays, the ponds are open to public fishing for a small fee. Anglers pay only for the fish they keep.

Edwards' "Catfish Acres," which is one of the largest in Texas, also supplies fresh catfish for cafes and restaurants specializing in catfish dishes. At the present time the catfish population on Edwards' layout totals approximately 240,000 fish.

4-H'ers in Bread Program Doing What Comes Naturally

SPECIAL—With the current food scene filled with words like "organic" and "macrobiotics," young people are experimenting more and more with the old-fashioned art of bread baking.

"Bread making is a part of the 'return to the natural' movement," says Miss Lois Howard, National 4-H Service Committee home economist. "And everybody appreciates the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked bread."

There are over 650,000 young people learning to perfect the techniques of baking through enrollment in the 4-H bread program supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Sponsored nationally by Standard Brands Incorporated, boys and girls discover the importance of bread in their diet every day and have the fun of preparing tempting, nutritional yeast breads for their family and friends.

Besides the pleasure of eating the results of their efforts, the 4-H members may receive other benefits as well. Standard Brands' sponsorship includes incentives and recognition culminating in educational scholarships of $700 each for six national winners in the bread program. State winners receive an all-expense trip to the 51st National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. And up to four medals of honor are offered in each county.

One of the 1971 national winners was Bill Kuntz, 17, of Indianapolis. The only boy among the scholarship winners, Kuntz has produced scores of Santa Claus cakes, gingerbread houses and a dozen different kinds of yeast breads from raisin and rye to sweet rolls and stollen during his eight years in the project. The young baker has a collection of more than 60 cookbooks, including one which carries one of his own recipes.

Another of last year's national winners was Deborah Ann Soper, 18, of Westminster, Md. Excelling in baking almost all varieties of yeast breads, Miss Soper began her own countywide bread workshop for nine to 12 year olds. She tried to limit the workshop to eight youngsters but was forced, because of its popularity, to double the enrollment.

For local information concerning the 4-H bread program, contact the county extension office.

"Plant" A Putting Green This Spring

Along with the nursery catalogs comes a new thought for the home gardener who enjoys his golf game — a five-hole putting green designed for do-it-yourself installation.

Specially created by the Ozite Corporation for use with Lawnscape, their new artificial turf, the home putting course can be installed in two weekends. A three page construction blueprint includes suggestions for landscaping the putting green, which is the focal point of the yard. The plans also give detailed instructions and hints on each step of the construction process.

Plans are available as part of a package offered by building supply dealers. Also included are 24 yards of Lawnscape and five professional putting cups and flags. The package price is under $300 excluding foundation, and dealers are prepared to advise prospective builders on the kind of foundation materials best suited to their needs and their budgets.

In addition to providing fun for the whole family, the putting green provides a focus for the yard and has the extra, added attraction of requiring very little maintenance. Ozite recommends washing the artificial turf with the garden hose and using either a broom or an outdoor vacuum to clear off leaves, twigs and other debris. Wintertime maintenance is non-existent, as all materials will withstand both snow and freezing temperatures without extra care.

Thanks to modern agricultural techniques and machinery, combined with scientific methods of planting and harvesting, United States' crop production per acre has soared by 69 percent since 1960.

SAFE SCOUR POWER

You shake out a dash of scouring powder in the sink, on pots, pans, the counter top. It's routine. But consider the consequences. According to Consumer Reports, "Over a period of months or years, whatever you clean regularly with scouring powder will be noticeably the worse for wear." Scouring powders are too abrasive for most surfaces.

They contain bleach. That means you can't scrimp on rinsing surfaces that touch food if you're concerned with the safety of your family.

Many scourers contain phosphates. Phosphates down the drain help fertilize the water they reach, accelerating the growth of algae.

What's the alternative? Baking soda. Used dry on a damp sponge or on a plastic mesh pad, it offers three-fold safety. It won't scratch so it's safe to use on any surface. It's a pure, natural product which is used in baking as a dentifrice, an antacid remedy, so it leaves no harmful residue on those critical food service areas.

Environmentally it's safe, too, for it's free of phosphates.

CUTTING CALORIES WITH CELERY

If the dial of the bathroom scale has been making disapproving faces and you're calorie-counting, try the Florida celery "diet." It's a collection of ways to bring the satisfying flavor and crunchiness of celery into your menu and take advantage of a dainty 82 calories per pound.

• Eat it "neat" just before meals to cut your craving for food.

• Stuff celery ribs with cottage cheese seasoned with onion juice, herbs or Worcestershire sauce for a snack.

• Bulk out soups and stews with celery chunks—you can allow a larger serving if celery is used liberally in the mixture.

• Cook a quartered stalk of celery in chicken or beef bouillon, in tomato juice cocktail or clam juice. Or cook it in water flavored with sliced onion, dill or fennel seeds.

• For lunch create a salad—mostly fresh celery slices—and chunks of cooked chicken, turkey, shrimp, lean fish. Use the celery leaves too—they're crisp and attractive.

Along with delicious flavor, celery supplies useful amounts of vitamins and minerals, particularly vitamins A and C.

ESA HOBO SUPPER HELD

Local ESA members and their husbands were honored at a "Hobo" supper held Thursday night when the meal was served in a box car parked near Sudan Elevators.

The group met at the Community Center where they were taken via truck to the elevator. They rode the lift inside the elevator before entering the box car. The motif was carried out by using newspaper for table covers, tin can lids for place cards and the meal was served from foil plates.

A Ping Pong tournament was held in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church following the meal when "cancelled" cigarette butts were awarded to the winners, Eddie Wilson and Waynette Fisher.

Attending were Messrs. and Mesdames Donnie Cowart, Edward Fisher, Eddie Wilson, Emery Bidme, Tom King III, Bob Markham, Darwin Reid, Kenneth Wiseman, Marvin Tollett, Eldon Nichols, Ron Dunaway, Robin Davis, Mike Nix, Ardell Black, Mrs. Al Harrison and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vincent.

ENMU GRADUATES NAMED

Among the candidates for graduation are Mrs. Ellen Dunaway, who will receive a BSE degree in elementary education; and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Ward.

Mrs. Ward, the former Loretta Damon, will also receive a degree in elementary education.

Combined baccalaureate and commencement services will begin at 8 p.m. May 4 in the Physical Education Complex Arena. William M. Dyal Jr., executive director of the Inter-American Social Development Institute, will deliver the main commencement address.

Texas purchased $18,288,542 in Savings Bonds during the month compared to March 1971 sales of $17,180,080 — an increase of 6 percent. Quarterly sales totaled $56,927,138 for 28 percent of the state's goal of $202.3 Million.

National sales of E and H Bonds amounting to $582 Million were reported for March, 13.3 percent above 1971 sales of $513 Million. Sales for the three-month period totaled $1,640 Million — 31 percent of the National goal of $5.3 Billion.

Output per man hour for the nation's agricultural producers is 3.3 times higher than 20 years ago, while output per man hour in U.S. manufacturing has increased only 1.7 times in that period, according to the Farm Bureau Federation.

"COOL RISE DINNER ROLLS (Makes 2 1/2 to 3 Dozen Rolls)

5 to 6 cups unbleached flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup milk

2/3 cup water
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine
2 eggs (at room temperature) vegetable oil

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120°F - 130°F). Margarine does not need to melt.

Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 3/4 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap, then a towel. Let rest 20 minutes.

Punch dough down; Divide into 3-equal pieces and make into various shapes as desired — pan rolls, cloverleaf rolls, lucky clover rolls, fan tans, twists.

Brush rolls with oil. Cover baking sheets or pans loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator. Uncover rolls carefully. Let stand at room temperature 10 minutes.

Bake at 375°F 15 to 20 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking pans or sheets and cool on wire racks. If desired, brush with melted margarine. Serve warm.

The heat is regulated manually so there is no need to move a grill up or down.

You can write or telephone your objection to the television station and it will be forwarded to the agency. The same procedure is recommended for misleading advertising on radio, or in newspapers and magazines.

Isn't there a law that punishes businesses that advertise items at low prices and then try to sell consumers a more expensive model?

This is called "bait and switch" advertising which is considered a deceptive practice and should be reported to the Better Business Bureau or other consumer protection

Hungry Bugs

The United States Department of Agriculture reports that insect pests, unless stopped by pesticides, cause a 25 to 30% decrease in the annual production of fruit and vegetables. This figure becomes even more serious when combined with facts given by the Food and Agricultural Office of the United Nations. FAO found the 1969 world food production showed no increase over that of 1968 - even though the population grows. Without the use of pesticides, there will not be enough food to feed the world.

4-H'ers Multiply Safety Efforts Through Club & Group Action

SPECIAL - Spring is here. Millions of young people are out riding bicycles, driving tractors, mowing lawns and being more active in countless ways. All that activity puts them in the way of becoming an accident statistic. But there are nearly 400,000 boys and girls who have a better chance than most to avoid that fate. They are the young people enrolled in the 4-H safety program supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Sponsored nationally by General Motors, the program encourages young people to learn basic safety habits and how to pass their knowledge on to others - their friends, family and community.

In many areas throughout the country the 4-H'ers join together in county activities to give the safety message an even greater impact.

In Weber County, Utah, for instance, the local 4-H clubs got together and presented three puppet shows on pedestrian safety to over 18,000 people.

The 4-H'ers and their adult and teen leaders contacted police, city officials, schools and parent-teacher organizations. They taped their efforts in the county, reduced pedestrian accidents.

In Will County, Illinois, 4-H'ers came up with the idea of "using non-motorized water wells for contamination." According to George J. Young, county extension agent, the county health department helped the Cooperative Extension Service teach the junior 4-H leaders to collect water samples. The young leaders then demonstrated proper sampling techniques to members in their clubs. "This 4-H activity will serve as a base study on well water quality in Will County," Young explained.

4-H clubs in Caldwell County, Kentucky, concentrated their efforts on fire-arms safety.

Ken Carpenter, county extension agent, summarized the results by saying, "As with most safety programs, the full results may never be known. However, it is assuring to know that these young people can now more safely handle fire-arms and multiply their concern for safety by instructing others.

"Those passing the course are now eligible to move on to study more advanced courses in gun handling, mechanics and to qualify as an instructor themselves," Carpenter noted.

Last year 4-H groups in 31 counties throughout the United States earned special $25 cash awards from General Motors for having outstanding 4-H safety programs. Cash awards are limited to one county per state and are to be used in furthering safety efforts. Hundreds of 4-H clubs also received certificates recognizing their safety program efforts.

In addition to club and group awards four members per county are eligible for gold-plated medals and the top state winner receives a trip to the 51st National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. Eight $1,000 scholarships also are offered by GM to national winners.

The 4-H safety awards program is arranged and announced by the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago.

For information on the safety program or any of the other local 4-H programs, contact the county extension office.

SCOUT DRIVE

the ages of eight and eighteen are eligible to become scouts. At the present time there are two Cub packs for third grade boys and one Tenderfoot troop for junior high school boys.
Marvin Tollett, drive chairman, stressed the need for leadership for this age boys on the local level. He said that more interest needs to be inserted by the parents to prepare local youth in the role of good citizenship for God, Country and fellowman.

WHAT ARE ULCERS?

A peptic ulcer starts with a small break in the mucous lining protecting the stomach and intestinal walls. Once an ulcer appears, it is irritated by the gastric juices involved in digestion. Studies by Smith Kline & French Laboratories show that ulcer pain can be relieved by controlling the acid content in the gastric juices. In clinical testing, "Ducon," a non-prescription antacid, kept the acidity level in the desirable range for an average of 67 minutes.

Good News For Brunettes

Who says blondes have more fun? Things are looking up for brunettes, too, with the debut of new hair coloring chemistry that helps prevent brassy highlights and reddish overtones.

The new breed of True Brunette shampoos in color that resists the fading and brassiness caused by exposure and by normal scalp perspiration.

Clairor colorists, who've been working with the new formula in research salons, see it as a boon to women who want hair "make-up" without looking made-up. With most of us having "hair color" hair, the color range—running from deep brunette to light ash browns—is just right for picking up color without a drastic change.

Guy Waklen, precinct chairman for precinct 5 at Sudan, announced that all democrats living and voting in this precinct are urged to attend a precinct meeting Saturday, May 6, at 2 p.m. in the First National Bank building for the purpose of electing delegates to the county convention.

Other issues needing your decision on the ballots Saturday will be the issue of busing. The Republicans are more clear on this issue. It simply states whether you are for or against an amendment which would do away with forced busing. On the democratic ballot, you must vote for if you are against forced busing and mark the against box if you are in favor of the forced busing issue. Also on the Republican ballot you may vote for or against daylight saving time.

All voters must be 18 years of age and must have their registration receipts with them at the time of voting. All persons eligible are urged to exercise their right in the voice of government by casting their vote on Saturday.

By Mr. Lawn Mower Safety

Fast and Safe

Your lawn has a consistent habit. The warmer the weather, the faster it grows. Just when you'd rather be relaxing or swimming, it's time to cut the grass. Now, you can't change this cycle but you can shorten lawn care time by using a power mower. Here are some safety tips to make sure you finish the job safely as well as speedily.

- Read the owner's manual thoroughly before you begin.
- Learn how to stop the mower fast in case of an emergency.
- Children and power tools don't mix. Keep them out of the yard while you're mowing.
- Dress for the job. Don't wear loose, floppy clothing that could get caught in the moving parts. Wear sturdy shoes so you won't slip.
- Your mower needs repairs? Don't make them in a closed garage where carbon monoxide fumes can collect.
- Stop the engine whenever you leave the machine... it only takes a minute for someone to get hurt.
- Keep feet away from the blades when starting and running the engine.
- Stop the engine before pushing the mower across drives, walks or roads.
- See your local power mower retailer for a free copy of all the mowing rules. He's Mr. Lawn Mower Safety in your neighborhood.

Lawn Mower Safety

It's time to dust off your power mower again. But before you start work review the safety rules and avoid accidents. 1) Clear the lawn of sticks, stones, wires and debris—they could be thrown by the blade. 2) Don't lend your machine to anyone who doesn't know how to operate it. 3) Never let children use a power mower—or any power tool. 4) Don't operate the engine where carbon monoxide fumes can collect (i.e., the garage). 5) Have further questions? Contact your local power mower retailer—he's Mr. Lawn Mower Safety in your neighborhood, and will give you a free copy of the safety rules.

1880. The use of pesticides often represents the slender margin between crop production and crop failure and between economic profit and economic loss. In developing countries, where food supplies are marginal, pesticides use may represent the difference between survival and starvation.

THURSDAY BRIDGE CLUB MEETS

The Thursday Bridge Club met recently in the home of Joyce Nix. Present were Sue Chester, Maureen Barnett, Melba Bowling, Mary Lena Maxwell, Bonita West, Nell Lane, Margaret Smith, and Joyce Nix.

Why Pesticides?

Robert L. Metcalf, chairman of the Department of Zoology, University of Illinois, reports that "Pesticides are a major reason why a farmer is able to feed and clothe 46 persons today, compared with 25 persons in 1960 and only 4 persons in

IT IS A WOMAN'S WORLD

One statement heard frequently these days is that "American business can sell anything—except itself!" Certainly various opinion polls show that business has lost favor with the public. Polls also indicate that young people particularly have a serious lack of factual information on which to base a belief in business.

Yet anyone who thinks twice about the subject will agree that a prosperous, healthy America depends on a successful and respected business community. To overcome the lack of knowledge about industry and business, the National Association of Manufacturers and the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi are jointly encouraging students and businessmen to form Student/Industry Action Committees.

The action committees will be comprised of students and business representatives in all local college communities. The broad aim will be to stimulate discussion and explore areas of mutual concern to the community. Hopefully, these meetings will lead to active solutions of local problems as well as a deeper understanding and mutual respect for one another.

Today one-third of our population is enrolled in schools and colleges, and eight million students are now, or soon will be, eligible to vote. Seldom in history have citizens faced so many challenges to long-accepted beliefs. If our democratic, private enterprise, free society is to survive, these differences must be resolved.

The support and basic understanding of business by the younger generation is vital to our well-being. Active participation in this program will provide the opportunity for discussion of the benefits and the weaknesses of our economic and social systems. It can be the first step in resolving our problems.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

It's Costing Money

Other people's dishonesty is costing you money.

Last year, Norman Jaspas, head of a company that specializes in detection and prevention of crime within large companies, said in an interview reported in U. S. News and World Report that business crime "far exceeds crime in the streets."

Employees steal," Jaspas stated, "more than $10 billion a day in cash and merchandise—about $3 billion a year. . . . It means that 15 per cent of the price you and I pay for goods and services goes to cover the cost of dishonesty."

Theft Overlooked

While the dishonesty that Mr. Jaspas was talking about is the kind that occurs within companies, employees stealing small or large items from their employers, there is another kind of dishonesty which is perhaps equally important—shoplifting.

The Philadelphia Better Business Bureau says, "Shoplifting cost stores nearly $3 billion last year and the losses are passed on to consumers, who must pay higher prices. Some retailers estimate that prices could be cut 10 to 15 per cent if it were not for thefts."

Yet we seem to be complacent about the lack of honesty among the people of our present-day society. Apparently, people are willing to overlook petty thievery.

But when such thievery adds up to billions of dollars every year, I wonder whether we should continue to overlook it!

We used to have a saying, "Honesty is the best policy," but now we speak of "old-fashioned honesty."

The Bible still says, "Thou shalt not steal."

All Lame

If both sets of figures quoted above are right, we—you and I—are paying from 25 to 30 per cent more for everything we buy than we should have to. A high price to pay for someone else's dishonesty.

Should we then adopt the attitude that if that's the way the game is played, we'll play it that way, too? Some have done this.

Does it pay to disregard the principles of morality and honesty? Many think it does, when their own selfish interests would be directly benefited. But, in the long run, when cheating becomes prevalent in a society, we all lose.

When the majority of the people in any society abandon the principles of honesty and morality, that society is doomed.

Some believe that we are far down that road already and that only a return to the principles on which our nation was founded will save us. Can we tolerate dishonesty?
