Clyde Comedy, who writes "Cotton Country Comments" in the Haskell Free Press, last week printed some "Minimum Requirements for Ranching (or What It Takes To Be a Cowman)". She wasn't sure where it originated, nor am I, but I'll attribute it to her as the most recent source.

The list of things a person needs to be a rancher fits the average farmer around here, too, and it may have been compiled by someone who came into the southwest area from somewhere else to observe the actions of the farmers and ranchers. Here it is:

1. A wide-brimmed hat, one pair of tight pants and $20 boots from a discount house.
 2. At least two head of livestock, preferably cattle—one male, one female.
 3. A new air-conditioned pickup with automatic transmission, power steering and a trailer hitch.
 4. A gun rack for the rear window of the pickup, big enough to hold a walking stick and rope.
 5. Two dogs to ride in the bed of the pickup truck.
 6. A $40 horse and $300 saddle.
 7. A gooseneck trailer, small enough to park in front of a cafe.
 8. A little place to keep the cows, on land too poor to grow crops.
 9. A spool of barbed wire, three cedar posts and a bale of prairie hay to haul around in the truck all day.
- (For farmers, we suppose one might substitute three old batteries, some empty oil cans, set of battery cables, a few pieces of irrigation pipe, three spare tires, filthy gloves, some rope

Rites Held

Funeral services for Mrs. Lewis (Beatrice) McNeeley, 71, sister of Mrs. Edna Bellamy, were held at the First Baptist Church in Middleton, Tenn. Saturday, July 1. The pastor, Rev. Stiles, officiated.

Mrs. McNeeley had been in ill health some time and had died at 6 a. m. Friday, just prior to the arrival of Mrs. Bellamy and their brother, Charles Carruth of Andrews. She was hospitalized in the Ripley Mississippi Hospital at the time of death.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Holmes, of Middleton, Tenn.; one granddaughter, Lynn; five sisters, Mrs. Bellamy, Sudan, Mrs. Perry Pettyjohn of Ft. Worth, Mrs. Gaston Bishop of Kingsville, Mrs. Rex Barte of Jackson, Miss., and Mrs. Horace Holt of Muleshoe; a brother, Charles Carruth of Andrews.

Mrs. Holt was unable to attend the services due to illness.

and chain and a sack of any kind of feed. Pour some of the blackest oil you can find over the whole mess in the back of the pickup).

10. Credit at the bank.
11. Credit at the feed store.
12. Credit from your father-in-law.
13. A good neighbor to feed the dogs and cattle whenever the owner is out in Colorado fishing or hunting.
14. A pair of silver spurs to wear to barbecues.
15. A rubber cushion to sit on for four hours at the auction ring every Thursday.
16. A second-hand car for going out to feed the cows when your son-in-law borrows the pickup.
17. A good pocket knife, suitable for whittling to pass away the time at the auction ring.
18. A good wife who won't get

'HEY—LET'S PUT ON THE BRAKES FIRST!'

COST CUTTING IS CRITICAL NEED

There are numerous proposals being presented to Congress for "reforming" the federal tax system. Recently, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Rep. Wilbur Mills and Sen. Mike Mansfield proposed to set termination dates for fifty-four provisions of the Internal Revenue Code to ensure review of all so-called tax preferences.

Business confidence would be severely shaken by such a procedure, even if the provisions were re-enacted. Similarly, individuals would face great uncertainty in making their own plans. Tax reform consideration can be assured effectively without setting termination dates. This was done in 1969.

The real problem remains—unfettered growth in government spending. It makes more sense to set termination dates for various spending programs than for tax provisions.

upset when you walk across the living room carpet with manure on your boots:

19. A good wife who still believe you when you come in at 11 p. m. saying, "I've been fixing the fence."
20. A wife with a good full-time job.

Missing Facts

Two witnesses swore that Harry was the man who had robbed the supermarket, and a jury found him guilty of the crime. Not until after the verdict did Harry's lawyer find out that two other witnesses had told police Harry was definitely not the man.

Was this grounds for overturning the verdict? The prosecutor didn't think so.

"We are not obliged to do the other side's homework for them," he told the court. "If they failed to dig up this information on their own, that is just too bad."

But the court ruled that the verdict could not stand. The judge said the purpose of a trial is not merely to punish the guilty but also to free the innocent.

This is a general principle of law, reinforced by the Canons of Ethics of the American Bar Association. A prosecutor must not suppress evidence capable of establishing the innocence of the accused.

The principle applies not only to guilt itself but also to the degree of guilt. Consider this case:

A man was charged with murder. During the trial, the prosecutor withheld testimony that the defendant had been drunk at the time of the slaying.

Admittedly, this testimony could not have cleared the defendant. But at least it could have reduced the crime from first to second degree murder. Reversing the guilty verdict, a higher court said the trial was incomplete without the missing fact of intoxication.

Still, the prosecutor does not have to bring out everything he knows. In an arson trial, the prosecutor kept quiet about a chemical test that had been performed by the FBI.

Challenged later on this omission, he pointed out that the FBI test merely confirmed other tests already known and available to the defense.

Result: the verdict was upheld. The court said the missing information simply was not important enough to make any great difference.

Pleased! In a word, that describes the reaction of Water, Inc., officials to announcements in Washington that the money for completion of the West Texas-New Mexico import project study is included in the Public Works bill passed out of the House Appropriations Committee. The recommended appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation, Corps of Engineers and the Mississippi group is making a determination of surplus water in that river, and the Corps and Bureau have been investigating possible canal routes and distribution systems for the West Texas-New Mexico area.

The big question, and key to the future of the proposed project is "Is there indeed any surplus water in the Mississippi?" That question will not be completely answered until next June. Meanwhile, Water, Inc., officials point out that preliminary reports conclude that water will be available from the Mississippi. In a paper delivered at the Ninth Annual West Texas Water Conference in Lubbock last year Fred H. Bailey III, the assistant chief, Planning Division, Mississippi River Commission said "Some preliminary figures have been developed which indicated that a surplus above the 50-year demands (of all interests in the Lower Mississippi Basin) will occur in some high-flow months..."

Gaston Wells, president, Water, Inc., noted that this was the news we have been waiting for. "We have very definite reason to believe that the reports next year will substantiate Bailey's remarks," Wells said.

Assuming the reports are favorable and Congress gives the project its blessing, next on the agenda is the feasibility study, the detailed engineering and design work. Ordinarily this phase is time consuming, however, in the case of the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico Project, the studies now underway approach the feasibility level, a fact that will save time in the next step.

Congressman George Mahon, addressing the annual Water, Inc., membership meeting in Plainview last February, warned that the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico project will run into some real competition with other proposals before Congress. But he added, "Nothing must be permitted to block our efforts to find a way to meet adequately our water needs."

By a margin "thin enough to send chills up the spine of a fence post" House members in Washington June 29 voted down a move to lower the payment limitation under federal cotton, wheat and feed grain programs from $55,000 to $20,000 per crop per farmer. The final vote, which required breaking of an initial 191 to 191 tie, was 192 to 189.

The "chills up a fence post" quote is from Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock. Johnson, along with PCC President Donnell Echols of Lamesa, was in Washington to join forces with other cotton industry leaders who mounted the major opposition to the lower limitation figure.

The move to lower the limitation level came, as usual, in the form of an amendment by Representative Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) to the annual Agricultural Appropriations Bill.

Conte or one of his city-minded colleagues has offered a similar amendment each year since enactment of a direct-payments-type farm program in 1965. Votes on the amendments from 1965 through 1970 were of the non-record variety in which each Congressman's vote does not become a matter of public knowledge, and the limit-lowering effort failed each year.

But the 1971 vote was a record vote and Conte's amendment carried in the house by a vote of 214 to 198. However the Senate in 1971 failed to go along with the House and the lower limit was deleted in Senate-House conference.

The vote June 29 was also a record or "teller" vote and therefore marks the first time a $20,000 limitation amendment has been defeated in the House under those conditions.

The Texas Delegation played a significant role in the amendment's defeat, with Lubbock's Congressman George Mahon, Waco's Bob Poage, Bob Price of Pampa, and Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls making effective speeches on the House floor. Mahon is chairman of the House Appropriations Committee; Poage is chairman and both Price and Purcell are members of the House Agriculture Committee.

Another strong ally in the farmer's camp on the issue was Agriculture Secretary Earl Butts, who wrote a strong letter to each Congressman opposing the lower limit.

The Appropriations Bill now goes to the Senate where the $55,000 payment limit written into the Agriculture Act of 1970 will meet another test. Should the Senate adopt a lower limit-

COFFEE HONORS MISS CHISHOLM

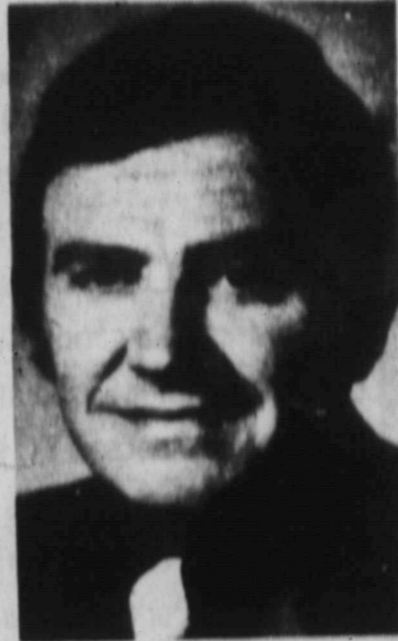

Miss Elizabeth Ann Chisholm of Sursay, bride-elect of Gary Jack Bain, also of Sursay, was honored at a bridal coffee Saturday morning, July 1, in the home of Mrs. Boby Markham.

Serving refreshments of breads, punch, coffee and fruit tidbits were Misses Rene Markham and Carol Ann Chisholm of Littlefield, cousin of the bride-elect, from a table laid with a white linen lace trimmed cloth. An official multi-colored spring floral arrangement centered the table. Silver and milk glass appointments were used.

The hostess gifts were the floral arrangement and a four place setting of Centara Corningware narrow white rimmed. Special out-of-town guests were mothers of the bride-elect and prospective groom, Mrs. Tyra Bain and Mrs. Gerald Chisholm, both of Sursay. Hostesses included Mmes. Glenn Cardwell, Waymon Bellar,

Coppedge

Don Coppedge, publisher of the Waxahachie Daily Light, was elected new chief executive of the Texas Press Association at its annual summer convention held recently in Corpus Christi.

The 41-year-old publisher and general manager of the Waxahachie Daily Light was elevated from first vice-president to president of the Austin-based state newspaper organization.

Coppedge is a personable young man who is as much at home with a tennis racket or back pack as he is with a typewriter or gavel.

A vigorous and interested man, Coppedge likes being in the middle of things. He has no private office at the Light—only a big desk in the center of activities near the news, advertising and business areas of the newspaper.

He still likes the feel of complete participation—like sitting in for the city editor while the latter is on summer vacation.

Tennis maintains a high level of interest in his life. He also likes to fish, hunt, hike, coached public classes in Brownwood and now is coaching the Waxahachie Junior High team. Last summer he coached the YMCA adult women's class. In addition, Coppedge is both player and coach for one of the basketball teams in the church league. He also likes bridge and is a director for the Lariat Duplicate Bridge Club in Waxahachie. His love of canoeing has taken him up ever changes it deems necessary, including the adoption of a lower payment.

HEART DISEASE? DON'T BLAME SUGAR, EXPERTS SAY

A leading expert in nutrition and heart disease says "a mountain of nonsense" has been built up about coronary heart disease and sugar. Writing in the international medical journal, Atherosclerosis, Dr. Ancel Keys of the University of Minnesota finds it impossible to accept the claims that sugar causes heart trouble. One of these theories holds that countries where people eat a lot of sugar have high rates of coronary disease. Dr. Keys points out that many big sugar consumers, like Venezuela and Cuba, have low rates of coronary heart disease. Several countries whose sugar consumption is about equal have greatly different rates of heart disease. The Swedes eat more sugar than the Finns, but deaths from coronary heart disease in Finland are about double the figures for Sweden.

Faulty Evidence Dr. Keys feels that the British nutritionist Dr. John Yudkin's theory that sugar consumption encourages heart trouble is not based on scientifically acceptable evidence. Yudkin claims that men hospitalized with coronary heart disease ate more sugar than other patients or healthy people. Other scientists tried unsuccessfully to duplicate Yudkin's findings using questionnaires. People with coronary heart disease have not been shown to be higher sugar users than the rest of the population. Many people think that eating sugar raises the amount of fat in their blood. If an enormous amount of sugar is eaten some blood fats rise temporarily. However, the average person, on a normal well-balanced diet doesn't consume an enormous amount of sugar. Experiments with high sugar diets have failed to produce any rise in the cholesterol level in the blood.

Second Scientist Agrees Another well-known scientist, Dr. A. R. P. Walker of the South African Medical Research Council also turns thumbs down on the theory that sugar causes coronary heart disease. According to Walker, investigators still don't have precise knowledge of how much sugar is eaten in various countries. Second, they lack exact information on the prevalence of coronary heart disease. Accurate comparisons are therefore almost impossible to develop at present.

Finally, Dr. Walker emphasizes that you can't prove that sugar is the cause of coronary heart disease until you can show that when sugar intake is reduced, coronary heart disease drops. No large-scale study has ever been made of this.

Census Bureau
To Take Survey

Questions on consumer buying and home improvement expectations will be asked in this area by Bureau of the Census interviewers during the first two weeks of July, according to Percy R.
Millard, Director of the Bureau's
Data Collection Center in Dallas.
The survey is taken four times yearly as part of a nationwide effort to collect information as a guide to Federal agencies and other groups in developing programs on consumer spending patterns.

A sample of residents here will be asked if they expect to buy a house, car, or major appliance during the next year and if they have made recent purchases of these items. Homeowners will be asked about home improvements and repairs during the last three months and any planned for the future.

Results of the last survey, taken in April, showed an increase in the number of households expecting to buy houses, major appliances, furniture, and carpets over expectations reported in the January survey. However, expectations to buy new cars and to make home improvements were not significantly changed.
Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept confidential by law, and will be published only in the form of statistical totals.

The Census Bureau representative in this area is Mrs. Rosemary McNeese, Rt. 1, Amherst, Tex. 79312.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Morris and their son and family, the Jery Morris' of Grants, N.M., were in Palo Duro Canyon on Wednesday of last week on an outing.
