Mrs. Price Rites Held

YOU CAN tell quite a bit about a person, even a stranger, by looking at his or her hands, but sometimes you will be fooled. Still, maybe not too often, if you train yourself and know what to look for.

You can detect a nervous person by the unevenly bitten off fingernails. You can tell a volleyball player (or sometimes a baseball or basketball player) by the finger splints where they have been jammed. Callouses on the palms means one who has been handling a hoe, or a lawnmower handle.

The hands of a printer or a mechanic are pretty easy to spot because of the dirty stuff that never seems to wash out completely. A person with long fingernails and soft hands probably won't be a typist or a guitar player. You can determine the latter, anyway, by the callouses on the three middle fingers of the left hand.

A chain smoker usually has two fingers that are yellow and have a yucky odor. A welfare recipient's hands often are in his pockets. A politician's hands often are in someone else's pocket. One with four fingers closed and the thumb sticking straight up is either a hitchhiker or the first base umpire.

A hand with an extra long index finger could be that of a preacher. One with long, graceful fingers probably is either a pianist or a pickpocket. A hand balled into a fist can reasonably be deduced to belong to an angry person, especially when he places it against your mouth.

These suggested indicators won't always work, though. Sometimes the guy with the big blunt fingers and skinned knuckles will be the best dogged piano player you ever heard, and the little old lady with the dainty fingers will drive a gravel truck.

I read with interest an article in Monday's daily about how women can keep their hands well-groomed. I deduced from Mary Sue Miller's article that all you need for beautiful hands are mild soap, nail brush, orange-wood stick, emery board, hand lotion and six or seven hours a day with nothing to do but baby your hands. Said she:

"For a procedure that beautifies along with cleansing, start with a sudsy brush-scrub of knuckles, nails and wrists. While wet, run orangewood stick under nails."

That ought to get your attention. The Indians used to do something like that to the white-eyes.

"Rinse thoroughly," Miss Miller continued, "dry vigorously and gently push back cuticles with towel. Finish with hand lotion massaging fingers and wrists as though squeezing on tight gloves."

She mentioned some other things a person could do, and suggests that these operations be performed at least twice a day.

Of course, all this was for women, but in this great era of equality in all areas, some men may be trying such things.

What's the best exercise for a person's hands? Well, Miss Mil-

Services for Mrs. Letha Price, 66, of 2626 St. Lubbock were conducted at 10 a. m. Friday in College Avenue Baptist Church. Burial was in the Sudan Cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home of Lubbock.

Mrs. Price died Tuesday in Methodist Hospital where she had been a patient several days. She had been in ill health for several months. She had been an area resident since 1932 residing in Circle Back from 1932 to 1941 and in Sudan from 1941 until 1966 when she moved to Lubbock. She was an employe of the Lubbock public schools cafeterias until she retired in 1971.

Survivors include two sons, Lester Bryan Price Jr. of Good-year, Ariz., and Joe Henry Price of San Antonio; four daughters, Mrs. Tommy Cate of Franklin, La., Mrs. Bennie Arnold of Lubbock, Mrs. Harley Fields of Goldsboro, N. C., and Mrs. Ralph Bellamy of Irving; three brothers, W. B. Gage of Littlefield, Raymond Gage of Circle Back, and E. G. Gage of Avondale, Ariz.; and 18 grandchildren.

Stokes Rites Held

Harry G. Stokes, 73, father of Mrs. Elizabeth Mudgett and former Slaton judge, died about 10 a. m. Sunday in Mercy Hospital there after an apparent heart attack. Services were at 4 p. m. Monday in the First Baptist Church of Slaton with the Rev. John Cartrite, pastor, officiating.

Burial was in Englewood Cemetery under direction of Englund's Funeral Home.

Stokes was a native of Cisco, and after serving in the U. S. Marine Corps, he moved to Slaton in 1919. He owned a car agency there until 1962. From 1963 to 1969 he owned a car dealership.

He served on the Lubbock County Draft Board, Slaton's school board, the city commission and the chamber of commerce. He was city judge at the time of his retirement.

Stokes was a deacon in the First Baptist Church and a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Other survivors include his wife, Aileen; a son, Gerald of Denver, Colo.; a sister, Mrs. Frances Sargent of Slaton; a brother, Van L. Stokes of Dallas; three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

FEDERAL AID IS URGED FOR BUSINESS HURT BY POLICY

Government assistance should be broadened for workers, firms and communities harmed or seriously threatened by increased imports, Senator Robert Taft, Jr. told a National Association of Manufacturers meeting in Washington, D.C. "Americans whose jobs or businesses are threatened due to import competition should not have to bear the full cost of a free trade policy intended to benefit all Americans," the Ohio Republican said. His proposed measure, the Trade Adjustment Assistance Act of 1973, the Senator said, provides "a better approach than imposing across-the-board tariff increases or import quotas, because such measures would lead to higher prices and invite a trade war that would cost American jobs in export-related industries."

Senator Taft said the bill provides speedier relief, in the form of low-interest loans, tax credits and grants, to help hard-pressed companies trying to shift into different markets. It also provides for the first time federal adjustment assistance for communities whose industries are damaged by imports. It would raise the benefits paid to workers left jobless by import competition and provide incentives for re-training for other jobs. office in the City of Littlefield, this the 14th day of March, A. NATIONAL FHA WEEK APRIL 1-7

The Texas Association of Future Homemakers of America will observe NATIONAL FHA WEEK, April 1-7. Focusing on the theme EXPLORE ROLES - EXTEND GOALS, they join half-a-million other members throughout the country in exploring the multiple roles individuals play in family, community and career life.

The results of their efforts are active involvement in home, civic and school projects, growth in individual leadership, team work experience and vocational orientation.

For more than a quarter of a century, the organization through its FHA and HERO-FHA chapters has provided worthwhile experiences which have helped young men and women prepare for the important responsibilities of their future as parents and adult citizens.

Paula Julian, president of the Texas FHA State Association explained why there is a NATIONAL FHA WEEK. "We observe NATIONAL FHA WEEK," she said, "because we are proud of our organization and wish to develop a public consciousness of some of the values we gain from membership. Future Homemakers of America serves as a bridge between the classroom, the home and the community and is the key for developing the potential of each individual member for a productive life in our society."

According to Jayellen Wilson, adviser of the local FHA chapter, several activities are being planned for the week.

"If you think you have influence, try ordering someone else's dog around." - Lois W. Matson, The Kiester (Minn.) Courier.

THE WORD FOR TODAY BY CHARLES ROBINSON
Peace.
Are you spending your money for that which does not satisfy you? True happiness and inner peace do not come from the accumulation of material things. It takes more than a new home, color TV, and modern appliances to create peace of mind. This day of abounding prosperity is also the day of tranquilizers, alcoholism, and a rising suicide rate. You can never find deep, settled peace by feeding your soul upon the husks of this world. If this is all that life is to you, you are missing something. You haven't found true happiness and inner peace because you haven't been looking for them in the right places. Peace of mind can come to you only through the forgiveness of sin and a right relationship with God. "The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your heart and mind through Christ Jesus."
