FORTY-NINTH YEAR

THERE'S A SEQUEL to that story about the rancher's wife who is afraid of cows and who had to go to such lengths to try to take care of a newborn calf. After all that happened, the calf died, reports Mrs. Hildegard Kitten, mother of Mrs. Charles F. Schroeder, who wrote about her barnyard adventures.

In all my life, I've never had to take care of any cows. I've never even fed one or milked one, although I have eaten a few. My wife, though, used to help take care of them, she says, and had to milk them. To this day she doesn't like milk.

SOMETIMES a typographical error can come out to be more truthful than was intended. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce recently sent us a card-board plaque acknowledging that we finally paid our dues, and accompanied it by a letter which began this way: "It is our pleasure to hand you herewith the membership plaque of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce." Yes, "plague" is what it said. A number of years ago I recall an Avalanche-Journal headline which read "Area Gripped by Cold Spell", and I'm sure this was as accurate as the way it was supposed to have been, "Area Gripped, etc."

IF YOU sometimes feel crowded in your home, or crowded in the city, consider how it is in Japan and be thankful. In that country, according to the Japan Trade Center, a reasonably prosperous family has arrived when it builds a house with roughly 800 square feet of living area. This size house is considered adequate for a family of two or three children and perhaps a grandparent, in addition to the husband and wife.

The wester-style bedroom is found in only one out of four homes in Japan. Most Japanese still sleep on bedding which is stored by day in the few closets of the ordinary house. Since they have little closet room for clothing, most Japanese homes have wardrobes, free-standing pieces of furniture designed to store clothing.

Sound levels are regulated in Japan, and the average American teen-ager doubtless would feel contained if he had to keep his radio or stereo down to the limits allowed in Japanese cities.

Japanese workers, however, usually get two bonuses a year, one in the summer and one at year's end, which may be three or four times the monthly salary.

A couple of decades and more ago, the label "Made in Japan" was the symbol of some poorly-made device, but in recent years, the Japanese have been turning out high-quality items. And the big Japanese companies get into lots of different lines. They make musical instruments including pianos, guitars and saxophones, and all are considered good quality. You can really generate some smoke with a hot number on one of those two-cycle guitars.

Tractor Clinic Completed

The Amherst Agriculture building was the site of the FFA Tractor Driving and Safety Program which was taught by Donald Booth, Vocational Agriculture Instructor of Amherst, and Don Ham, Vocational Agriculture Instructor of Sudan. This program, held June 4-5, certified the participants to be eligible to drive tractors for area farmers and it emphasized safety and maintenance. Booth and Ham were each pleased at the turnout of young men from Amherst, Sudan, Earth and Littlefield. They stated that these young men are now qualified to be covered by the U. S. Department of Labor under the Agriculture Hazardous Occupation Law even though some are under 16 years of age.

We want to thank Jomeryl Harmon, George Tooley and the Sudan School for furnishing tractors for the course.

At the close of the course, the group visited the following tractor dealers: Case Power & Equipment, Armes John Deere, and the Massey-Ferguson Farm Equipment.

YOUNG HOMEMAKERS HAVE ELECTRICAL PROGRAM

Plans were made to have a bake sale June 16th at Pay & Save Grocery.

Stamps were given to help buy a kidney machine for a past state officer.

Refreshments were served to approximately fifteen members.

SUDAN SENIOR CITIZENS MEETING SET JUNE 8

The Senior Citizens will meet Friday, June 8 at 2:30 p. m. in the Sudan Community Center. Members of the ESA will present the program and ask that each one present bring their wedding picture or a picture of their first home. The group will also be serving refreshments. Everyone is invited.

This was the final meeting of the year for the organization.

RODNEY BOWLING

BOWLING WINS BEEF COOK-OFF

Rod Bowling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bowling, Rt. 1, Sudan, has "been made sport of" more than once about his cooking talents — especially by women when he reveals that he always cooks his meat from the frozen state.

Friends and co-workers laughed when Bowling, who is Assistant Victoria County Agriculture Agent, said he was going to enter a cooking contest. He received some good natured teasing as he wrote his recipe and sent it off for consideration.

But the joke was over when Rod was notified that of the 5,000 recipes submitted, his was one of the 24 finalists chosen to compete in the annual Texas Grain-Fed Beef Cook-Off coordinated by the Texas Department of Agriculture. Two other con-

SWPS STAGES ELECTRIC CAMP

Lamb County will have three representatives at the Future Farmers of America Farm Electrification Workshop to be held at the Episcopal Church Conference Center, north of Amarillo, June 11, 12 and 13. The conference, which is being held for the 11th time, is sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company.

David Aills, a student at Sudan High School, will take a course in farm wiring. Eddie Duvall, a student at Amherst High School, will also take farm wiring, while John Booth, another Amherst High School student, will take farm motors.

13 hours of instruction are offered in three subjects, farm wiring and controls, at the workshop. Five of the students, two from the wiring and motor courses and one from controls, are selected as outstanding and receive trips to the FFA national convention for their accomplishment. Each student who finishes the course in which he is enrolled is awarded a certificate. An alternate will be selected in each section in the event the winner is unable to attend the national convention.

FIREMEN HONOR NEW MEMBERS

The Sudan Volunteer Fire Department honored several members who had recently joined the organization at a family dinner Saturday night. Members of the fire department prepared the steaks and hot links at the City Park and served them to approximately 22 firemen and their families at the Community Center. Other honored guests included the city officials.

The department now has a total of 28 active members. Two alarms were sounded Tuesday when grass fires on the Santa Fe Railway right-of-way were discovered.

WOMEN TO ORGANIZE HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

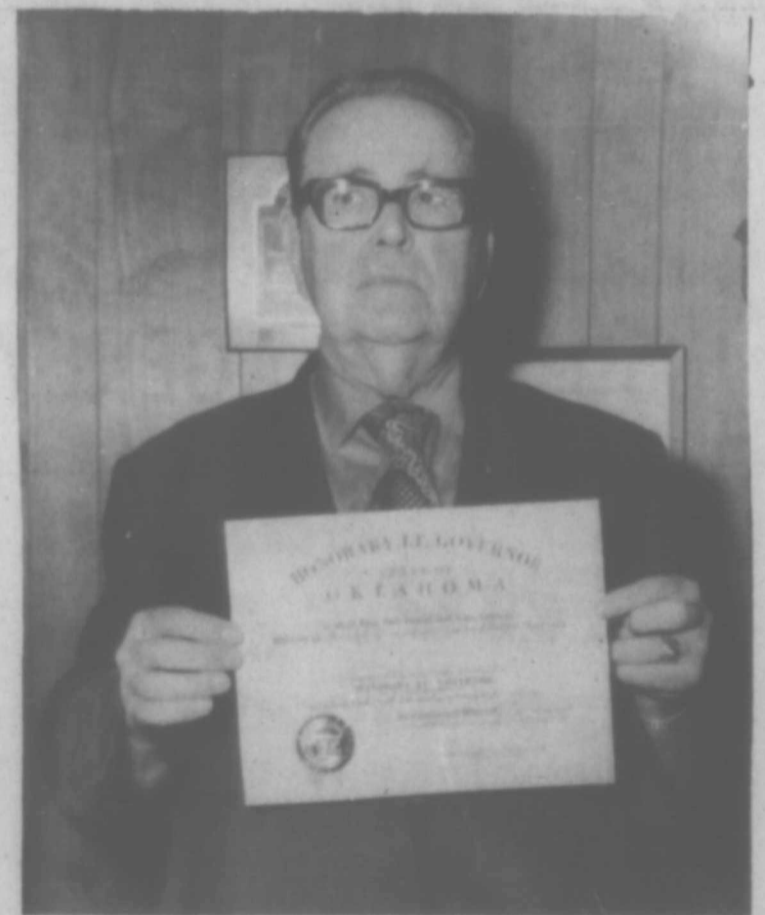

Eight Sudan women have begun plans for organizing a home demonstration club in Sudan. In cooperation with County Extension Agent, Mrs. Lynn Bowermon, these women are recruiting members.

They are Eugenia Muller, Jeanne Bartley, Frieda Humphreys, Nell Ingle, Myrtle Elms, Lila Lee Parrish, Belle Olds, Linda Powell and Kay Wiseman.

Are you interested in homemaking or just plain living? If you are, joining this home demonstration club could help you with both of these. This is a group of women who are interested in getting the latest information on what's new for your family and home. They will learn how to do things you want or need to know. Besides learning new things, they will have the opportunity to meet and get to know other homemakers with common interests.

Home demonstration clubs and all Extension Service programs are open to everyone without regard to race, color or national origin. If you are interested in being a member of this club, contact Mrs. Truman Parrish or Mrs. Lynn Bowermon, Box 432, Littlefield or call 385-4004.

TELEPHONE NEWS

COLLEGE STATION—General Telephone Company of the Southwest Wednesday (May 30) celebrated the installation of its one millionth telephone in ceremonies at Texas A&M University, site of the milestone installation.

L. Gray Beck, president of General Telephone of the Southwest with headquarters in San Angelo, marked the milestone with the presentation of a black leather Chestphone to Dr. Jack K. Williams, president of Texas A&M University.

Following the installation, Beck and Williams placed a call to Congressman Olin E. Teague.

The one millionth phone was installed on the first floor of the University Center Conference Tower. A plaque mounted on top of the telephone denotes it as the one millionth.

During the ceremony, Beck reviewed the growth of General of the Southwest since its beginning in 1926.

General grew from 7,000 telephones in 1926 to over 100,000 by 1950, an increase of 93,000 in 24 years. The large growth began in the 1950s during which General tripled the 100,000 telephones in service at the beginning of the decade. The company installed its 300,000 telephone at the ALCOA Plant at Point Comfort in 1969.

Five years later, on January 12, 1965, General installed the 400,000th telephone in ceremonies in the Garland (Texas) Memorial Hospital.

The next landmark in the continuing growth period for General occurred within three years when the company registered a gain of 35-,000 telephones, or an 88 per cent increase, to bring the company total to 750,000.

Today, Beck said, five years later, the company has added another 250,000 telephones into service to reach the one-million mark.

Open Season on Politicians

This seems to be open season for the hunting and trapping of politicians. And it isn't limited to one party. While Republicans are getting most of the publicity, because of the nature of the Watergate shenanigans, Democrats have not been overlooked.

Lieutenant Governor Tom Adams, of Florida, has barely escaped impeachment, the vote in the Florida House being 17 votes short of the required two-thirds majority.

He was censured, instead, for having had a state employee working for him, performing duties connected with the Adams ranch, while being paid by the state. Adams has repaid to the state $1,736 in salary and travel expenses since the matter was exposed.

Former Governor Otto Kerner, of Illinois, has been convicted of bribery, conspiracy, mail fraud, and perjury. Sentenced to serve three years in prison and pay a $50,000 fine, he is appealing the conviction, meanwhile withholding a decision as to whether he will or will not resign his present post as a federal appeals court judge.

In New Jersey, Congressman Cornelius E. Gallagher pleaded guilty last December to a charge of evading $74,000 in income taxes. Charges of perjury and conspiracy were dropped. Posthumously, Franklin Delano Roosevelt has been publicly branded as a man who, over a period of years, maintained an adulterous relationship with his secretary.

"Misay" Lehand. Many knew of this already, but now it has been blazoned abroad by his son Elliott and others.

Truth Not Yet Out And the Chappaquiddick incident, in which Mary Jo Kopechne drowned one night in Senator Ted Kennedy's car, hangs like a dark cloud over the head of the senator from Massachusetts. The full truth of this sad affair has not yet been brought to light.

This should not lead us to adopt the oft-stated view that "all politicians are crooked." But it might cause us to ponder the Scriptural statement that "There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed, neither hid that shall not be known."

Anyone who builds his career on a foundation of deceit and dishonesty should be aware that, some time, perhaps when it will be most embarrassing, the truth will come out.

There is in the Bible a statement which is worthy of attention: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Many who consider themselves to be wise in the ways of this world may scoff at this. They prefer to limit themselves to observing carefully the eleventh commandment, "Thou shalt not get caught."

But it doesn't always work out as they plan it. Isn't it obvious now that both the men involved in these shameful incidents and the nation would have benefited if the precepts of the Scriptures had been adhered to?

Visiting her were her daughters, Mrs. Robbie Rudd and Debbie Ritchie, Mrs. Wayne Doty, and Jo Gaye; her sisters, Mrs. Doris Matthews of Albuquerque and Mrs. Nona Watson and Crickett of Farmington, N. M., and her son-in-law, Arboth Rylant of Meridian, Miss, and Dwain Phillips.

YOUTH WORK PROGRAM PLANNED

Disadvantaged youth between the ages of 14 and 22 may not be idle this summer due to a program being operated by the South Plains Association of Governments. According to Association President Giles C. McCrory, mayor of Post, "The program can create 405 part-time temporary jobs in 75 local governments for disadvantaged youngsters between 14 and 22 within the 15 South Plains Region".

SPAG received a grant of $151,836 from the Texas Department of Community Affairs to cover the 15 counties, with the exception of the City of Lubbock that received a direct grant from the Department of Labor. The purpose of the program is to provide funds to local units of governments to pay wages of employees hired under the program for the summer. On May 15th letters were sent to all cities, counties, soil and water conservation districts, hospital districts, and school districts inviting them to apply for funding under the program.

Then on May 29th the SPAG executive committee, composed of the seven officers of the association, using 1970 census data by county, allocated proportionately 75 jobs to 7 counties, 19 cities, 3 soil and water conservation districts, 41 independent school districts and 5 hospital districts.

Jobs to be created from maintenance and custodial work to library aids and clerk-typists. All positions will be paid the federal minimum wage of $1.60 per hour. It is anticipated that the employing agencies selected will be hiring the first week of June.

Who Keeps All Ten?

The moral basis of American society is often alleged to derive from the ancient Hebrew law code called the Ten Commandments. Unquestionably no better standard could be adopted, but how closely, in fact, do American society and government adhere to these ageless commands?

The first three commands have never been, and—because of separation of church and state—could never be, part of our governmental system. They are, first, that the people are to honor no gods except Jahweh (Jehovah), and in consequence they ban the making of idols and the casual misuse of God's name.

Once upon a time Americans in general respected these standards, but no longer. Although the majority of Americans may still be nominally Christian, the percentage would be small indeed of those who give to God alone unrivaled allegiance.

The fourth commandment requires a day of rest at the end of each week. Sunday closing laws are steadily disappearing, yet paradoxically the "day of rest" idea has become for most people two days and for some three. Our overzealousness in fact has led to the "problem" of too much leisure time.

Honoring parents is required by the fifth commandment. The decline of concern for this is reflected in the increased orientation of our culture around the individual rather than the family. Psychologists and sociologists have rediscovered the value of the family, and the government still gives slight tax advantages to married couples but the public continues to experiment with other ways of life.

Commandments six through nine are stated simply as "You shall not" murder, commit adultery, steal, or bear false witness. These the government has incorporated into law. Adultery remains technically illegal but is losing ground judicially. The government's own behavior in the past year has demonstrated weak regard for the prohibitions against lying and stealing, and the Supreme Court's decisions concerning capital punishment have left smoldering serious questions about how the government regards the crime of murder.

The last command says, "You shall not covet... anything that belongs to your neighbor." Unlike the other nine which are partially observed or ignored, commandment ten is consciously and enthusiastically transgressed. So thoroughly has advertising inculcated in us the "keeping up with the Joneses" philosophy that coveting has become a form of compliment.

Socially, of course, there is a difference between wanting your neighbor's boat and wanting one just like it or better. But spiritually they're the same. When you evaluate yourself or your friend in terms of possessions, you have lost touch with the meaning of life.

So out of the ten commands the government scores a very shaky 4 and Americans in general fluctuate from 2 or 3 to 6. American life is not really founded on the Ten Commandments. Copyright Dave Llewellyn 1973 family. In this smoker Rod prepared his specialty, a boned and rolled prime rib roast which won for him the $200 first prize in the Tender Cuts category.

Bowling, who claims he is strictly an outdoor cook, is firm in his ideas on successful meat cookery. He uses only quality meat; cooks everything (including hamburger patties and 26 lb. turkeys) from the completely frozen state; and says the secret is in controlling the heat.

Rod does not hover over his meat and never sticks a fork in it. In fact, for the contest, he boned and rolled his meat the night before and put it in the freezer. He prepared the charcoal for the fire. Next day, dressed in suit and tie, he lighted his fire, threw the meat on when the coals were to his liking, and went off visiting and watching other contestants, returning hourly to baste his meat and check on his fire.

RIB ROAST

Prime rib is at its very best when roasted to a golden brown over a slow fire using hickory chips to lightly smoke the rib.

To cook and smoke the rib to a peak of perfection you will need a covered cooker that will hold heat and cook for an extended period of time. Build your fire and allow it to burn until all the charcoal is cherry red—ash when you start your fire, place 3 cups of hickory chips in a small bucket of water

TOPS NEWS

Texas Tops 634 met Monday afternoon, June 4 at 3:30 p.m. in Sudan Community Center.

Seven members weighed in with a weight loss of five pounds recorded.

Rosabel Coldiron was queen of the week and the monthly queen for May. She received the dimes.

New members are welcome.

to soak or chips may be soaked overnight for a slight smoke flavor.

Before starting to cook the rib, pour water off chips and place chips directly on the smoldering coals. Take the rib directly from freezer, remove wrapping and place meat 6 to 8 inches over the coals. Cover the cooker. Turn the rib after 20 minutes. Continue turning until rib has a complete surface glaze, holding moisture in meat—don't let flavor drip into the fire. Cooking time will start once the glaze is complete. For a 6 to 8 pound roast cook 6 hours for rare, 7 hours for medium and 9 hours for well done. (Cooking time varies for size of meat and amount of heat lost in your cooker. Times given are for use of charcoal and starting rib frozen.)

To this point no seasonings have been used. Texas grain-fed beef has wonderful flavor; be careful not to hide the true flavor of your beef. The following basic mix will add a light season and improve but not alter the texture and taste of your rib.

"SAUCE AU JUAR"
2 cups bacon grease (not burned)
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon horseradish salt

1/2 medium sized white onion
1 fresh clove of garlic
Paprika as needed to add color and light flavor to meat.
Heat grease slightly and add cinnamon, horseradish salt, chili powder and black pepper, let simmer slowly while you mince the onion and garlic. Add onion and garlic to mixture, bringing heat up slowly stirring until all ingredients have blended. Turn heat low as possible and simmer 5 minutes. Slice 3/4 inch thick; side dress with parsley and crab apple rings.
