WOODWORK by dalton

I ALWAYS figured carrying out the trash was the most menial of jobs a guy could do. At our house, we've always tried to get one of the teenagers to do it. Most of the time they do a pretty good job, so long as you remind them frequently and refuse to let them eat until they do it.

One of the reasons we always considered it such a lowly task was because it certainly isn't too aesthetic an artful to be embracing as you step off the back porch, stumble over the dog and try to open the back gate with your foot or your teeth. Another thing is that it just isn't very uplifting to know that the product you are handling is something that nobody wants any more, absolutely worthless, something to be discarded and removed from sight, so as to not offend the sensibilities of anyone who might have to look at it.

Now, suddenly, garbage may gain some respectability. The environmental health officials of the Texas State Health Dept. have come forth with the pronouncement that the nation's trash piles offer a vast, largely neglected treasure. "a challenging opportunity, a sensible, economical way to help overcome the shortages in raw materials that have plagued the nation."

They say, in other words, that there's money to be made in materials from garbage. They claim that much of the material in our garbage can be recycled, and with raw materials more valuable these days, its worthwhile to get the metal from cans, newspapers, and some other things from the garbage. And they even say that what is left can be used, pointing out that the electric utility in St. Louis, for example, used ordinary household garbage as fuel in the production of electric power.

In Connecticut, the entire state is tied into a single, massive recycling system. Garbage from everywhere in the state is taken to one of a number of centralized processing centers, where recoverable materials are removed, and the rest are to be shredded and burned to produce electrical power. Such a system reportedly is being considered in Texas.

Someday maybe the city will pay us for the privilege of picking up our beautiful, valuable garbage. Meanwhile, if anyone wants to dig in my trash can, he's welcome to do it. It's still a pretty yukky job.

A SUNDAY SCHOOL teacher was telling her class the story of Lot.

"Lot was warned to take his wife and flee out of the city, but his wife looked back and turned to salt," she said.

She looked around the room and one little girl tentatively raised her hand. "Yes?" said the teacher.

"I was wondering," said the little girl, "what happened to his flea?"

Telephone Rates To Increase

Rural telephone customers in the Sudan exchange will begin paying new telephone rates effective June 4, it has been announced by General Telephone district manager, Rad Richardson.

Richardson said the new rural rate schedule is the second step taken by the company in the last year to place as nearly as possible, the cost of providing service on the customers utilizing that service.

The manager explained the company started its repricing of services program last year by bringing the charges for business customers to the level required to pay for the large volume of usage by the business community.

"Business customers use telephone equipment to a much greater extent than residential customers and we feel they should pay the costs of providing the additional equipment required to handle the calls," he said.

The company has placed the new business rate structure in most of the areas it serves in Texas, according to Richardson.

He continued: "Now, we are inaugurating a new rate schedule that recognizes a portion of the higher costs of providing rural telephone service and we are adjusting rural rates in relation to this higher cost," he stated.

NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION WEEK SET FOR MAY 12-18

The week of May 12-18 has been designated as National Transportation Week.

In a broad sense, the economy and even the lifestyle of any nation is geared closely to its transportation system. In areas with an excellent transportation system, there is invariably an excellent economy and rudimentary lifestyle.

America grew from a wilderness with an agrarian economy into the mightiest industrial nation on earth - with the highest standard of living ever achieved - because it was far ahead of other nations in the development of its transportation facilities.

Railroads were the key to our country's rapid expansion and continue to this day to serve as the principal arteries of our national economy, providing as much inter-city freight service as trucks, barges and airlines combined.

As we observe National Transportation Week (May 12-18) and National Defense Transportation Day (May 17), the energy crisis now facing the nation has focused new interest on this particular segment of our transportation system.

Many transportation specialists have suggested that the nation must place greater reliance on its railroads for both passenger and freight traffic in the years ahead because of their recognized 4-to-1 advantage in fuel efficiency over highway carriers and the fact that railroads can expand their capacity two to seven times over without a major increase in land requirements.

With projections indicating our transportation demands will just about double by 1990 a general reappraisal of transportation priorities seems to be in order.

Fuel economy obviously should be a prime consideration in this equal number of lay clergy delegates in the 76 annual conferences in the nation.

The annual conferences of American Methodism have predominantly been clergy oriented. The first conference held in America, December 1784, was composed entirely of clergy delegates.

Equalization of lay-clergy delegates in this beyond the local church policy-making body is "an effort by the denomination to give greater voice to the person in the pew," said officials.

The annual conference for this area, Northwest Texas Conference, will be June 4-6 in Amarillo when new pastoral appointments will be made and will become effective at the close of the session.

Epsilon Delta of Delta Kappa Gamma joined the Gamma Iota chapter in Plainview, Texas on May 4, 1974 for the chapter's last meeting of the year.

Present at the meeting were guests from Delta Xi, Iota Eta and Iota Zeta.

A formal Founders Day dinner was served in the Slaughter Memorial Cafeteria at Wayland College at 7:15 p. m.

The beautifully decorated tables lent a festive air to the occasion.

Following the meal, a Founders Day tribute was given by Sue Burgess of Epsilon Delta. She was assisted by her sister chapter members.

Special music was presented by a Gamma Iota Ensemble composed of Mattie Ruth Nowlin, director; Gladys Whiteaker, Mae Ragle, Beverly Moorhead, Alma Ruth Patterson, Laverla Porter, Lucille Flowers, Dorothy Jamar and Zula Atwood, accompanist.

An impressive joint installation of officers followed the special music. Gracie Evins of Sudan was installed as second vice-president of the Epsilon Delta chapter.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Frances Lowrance, Alpha State President, was introduced by Monara Cummings of Springlake and of Epsilon Delta.

Mrs. Lowrance received a standing ovation for her outstanding achievements as state president and in appreciation of her thought-provoking and timely remarks and her gracious presentation as well.

Hostesses for the banquet were Minerva Stevill, Augusta Uhl, Mattie Lee Weaver, Clara Cowen, Mayme Lou Rayburn, Leola Lander and Florence Sawyer.

Margie Moran, Miss Universe, is congratulated on her title with a gift of jewelry from Rex Wood, President of Sarah Coventry, Inc., and Tim Barcomb, Vice President.

The presentation to Miss Universe marks the first time that official jewelry has been designated for the world-famous pageant. Sarah Coventry, long known for its fine fashion jewelry, will be supplying all official jewelry and crowns for both the Miss U.S.A. and Miss Universe pageants.

Ms. Moran, this year's reigning beauty, is enjoying her busy life and looks forward to a career in banking after she completes her year as the most beautiful girl in the universe. The next Miss Universe Beauty Pageant will be televised July 20.

Let you and me, my brother, be what we feel that we would want the other fellow to really truly be; Should I so much as mention what I would have you do, Unless I'm after then willing to do the same for you?
