SOME FOLKS aiready are talking about gasoline going up to 60 or even 75 cents a gallon by this summer, and of course, there's a lot of yak about adding a big tax on gasoline, or rationing gasoline to keep motorists from wasting the stuff.

We always felt that last year's big gasoline shortage was an artificially-created thing designed to get gasoline prices up at the retail level, and it certainly succeeded in doing that. We very well could experience the same sort of thing as the weather gets warmer this year and people want to go more places. Again I feel that this would be at least partially an artificial, contrived thing, but whether the shortage is real or controlled by the big companies makes no difference to the guy who can't find gasoline to put in his tank.

Someone recently introduced a bill to compel the automakers to design cars which would get at least 25 or 30 miles per gallon (or some such figure) within the next few years. It's doubtful that such a bill would pass against the opposition of the oil companies, but most of us are sure that the auto manufacturers could, if they wished, make engines which would operate on much less fuel than they do

What would be nice would be to figure out some way we could burn our trash in the fuel tank and run the car on the fumes. With a high proportion of Mexican food in the garbage, this might work. Anyway, it would solve problems of waste disposal and fuel shortage at one time.

Controls Feared

"We are well into a recession but list or 'official' prices remain high because all business fears new price controls. As a result of that fear, most businesses are hedging and are not reacting as swiftly as they should to new and different demands. While customers welcome the recent wave of rebates, the form of those rebates is the symptom of a sick fear by business that price controls may be reenacted."

The Bible Says

By Art Lynch

The Law of Exclusion is a basic Bible theme and principle. As well as obeying the direct commands of God, we must also honor the silence of the Scriptures on any given subject. When God told Noah to build an ark out of gopher wood and to some exact dimensions He eliminated all other wood and dimensions. God didn' say "Don't use pine, ash cedar, etc.," but God did say USE A PARTICULAR WOOD, GOPHER, thereby eliminating all other kinds. Genesis 6:22 informs us that Noah did "according to all that God commanded him. " both the Old and New Testament one can easily find this principle stated over and over again: Deuteronomy 4:2; "Ye diminish "Every word of God is tried: He is a sheild unto them that take refuge in him. thou be found a liar. " 2 John of Christ, hath not God..." Revelation 22:18 19 "I testify unto every man that heareth thy words of the prophecy of this book, if any man shall add unto them, God shall add unto them the plagues which are written in this book; and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, which are written in this book. " God is not interested in what we think he wants, or our ideas in the matter of spiritual things, he is only interested in what He has commanded being observed. If God is silent on a particular matter, then we would do well to follow the example of our predecessors and remain silent as well. If God gives a do equally well to observe it to the end that we might be found faithful. That which we cannot do by faith is done "of sin. " (Romans 14:23)
