Damage Placed At '$5,000 To $6,000'

Winter Wracks Havoc On Floyd County Highways And Streets

Weather had dealt a severe blow this Winter to roads and streets in Floyd County!

Donnell Gowens, Maintenance Foreman for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Floydada, said Thursday that "we have had about three times as much damage as normal this Winter."

Two weeks ago he estimated damage to Floyd County highways at "about $20,000, but more and more damage is showing all the time." He now places the loss at "$50,000 to $60,000."

Most extreme road destruction has been along Highway 62 south of Floydada, in the Dougherty community, north of Floydada and on state highway 207, and in the northeast portions of the county on Farm Roads 97 and 1065 toward Flomot and Quitaque. "There are other scattered areas of damage," Gowens said, including streets and roads in Floydada.

DAMAGE EXPLAINED

Gowens explains that freezing and thawing of moisture causes the major damage. Moisture gets under the pavement and seeps through cracks. This allows the base material (caliche) to become soft, causing a "spongy reaction which just breaks up the pavement."

The damage is most evident when thawing occurs.

Half in jest, Gowens wondered aloud "if the roads probably wouldn't have been better to have stayed frozen..... but I guess people in Northern states would argue otherwise."

The highway official says that the ground "was just beginning to thaw" when he made his estimate two weeks ago. "Additional adverse weather" since that time has continued to plague roadways.

Efforts by the Highway Department to make repairs have been stymied by reoccurring Winter weather. "When it get dry enough to cover up the cracks, here comes another spell," Gowens noted.

Just enough moisture falls to create "soft shoulders and wet ditches. The ditches catch moisture when farmland doesn't."

Gowens said "quite a bit of damage" resulted last Winter, "but not near this severe."

HIGHWAY FUNDS

The Highway Department budget "is set up for Winter damage," although the budget will be strained to make necessary road repairs this year. Gowens feels that "the biggest percent of the loss" will come from the local maintenance budget. He noted that applications have been made to the state legislature for emergency funds to help defray damage expenses this Winter in northern Texas counties.

Highway Department personnel have spent "much more time than usual this Winter" salting curves and bridges to make roads as safe as possible. The snow machine has been pressed into duty several times.

When weather conditions permit, crews will "level low places in the highways and seal this over with asphalt and rock."

Gowens notes that Highway Department employees spend many hours during the Spring, Summer and early Fall conditioning roadways so that a minimum amount of damage will result the ensuing Winter. This is termed "preventative maintenance."

For now, Gowens and his staff continue to survey the mounting damage and await improved weather conditions to begin repair work.

Eligible Taxpayers May Sign School Homestead Exemptions

Persons who own their residential homestead may apply for the homestead exemption in the amount of $5,000.

"If anyone has questions, please come by my office and discuss them with me," Cathey states.

Eligible taxpayers in the Floydada Independent School District are encouraged by Business Manager Tommy Cathey to go by the central school office, 208 South Main, and sign a residential homestead exemption affidavit.

"WHAT COULD his surprise be?" Kara Copeland seems to be wondering as Rick Day holds a box of Valentine candy behind him. The scene being depicted by Miss Copeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Copeland, and Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Day, will be reenacted dozens of times by Floydada residents, young and old, next Wednesday, Valentine's Day.

Airport Fund Passes $5,000

A citizens committee accepting funds for improvement at the Floydada Airport had collected $5,050 as of Monday afternoon. These funds have been deposited at the First National Bank of Floydada.

Chairman Tom Farris said "at least another $1000 I know of," has been pledged.

Anyone wishing to assist with the airport improvement may leave their check with a committee member: Farris, Dr. Charles Craig, Lon Davis, Babe Jones, or Aldine Williams.

Date For Sheep Shearing Changed

Date and time for sheep shearing at Lockney and Floydada in preparation for the Floyd County Junior Livestock Show has been changed, according to Orville Harris, vo-ag teacher for Floydada High School.

Sheep are to be sheared in Floydada at 1 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 11. Lockney's day is Monday, Feb. 12.

'Enthusiastic' Group Informed About Community Education

Community education is a priority of the 1979 legislature," Lawrence Stovall told Floydada residents attending a Monday night meeting of the Caprock Community Action board. Approximately $200,000 is available for programs which qualify, Stovall said.

"Community education is a step-by-step process and with the meeting Monday we feel we have made a beginning," Kathy Green, director of the Caprock Community Action, told The Hesperian. She notes that "the steps can take from six to 12 months and will involve the entire community."

Stovall pointed out that in communities where the schools are utilized 12 months each year vandalism is reduced.

There is a critical need in many communities for more public facilities and for a closer relationship between the school and the community, the group was told Monday.

Professional educators agree that the school, in order to serve the child, must be able to relate to the total family and to the community, the gathering was told. A community school offers an almost unlimited number of opportunities. "Most of all it is what you want it to be," state Stovall, manager of the West Texas Training Center.

FUTURE MEETING Tentative plans call for another meeting when Dr. Robert I. Berridge, director of the Center for Community Education at Texas A&M University, can be present.

"The community school, with its emphasis upon all citizens, young and old, may offer promise of meeting the special educational needs of the aging," The Hesperian was told. "If Floyd County wants to become part of the puzzle and make community education our bag, we must all get together and start working."

The Monday meeting at the A&M West Texas Regional Training Center was called to order by Mrs. Mary Martinez. Stovall addressed "an enthusiastic group of listeners."

Monday Night In Duncan School Cafetorium

Summerall To Address Floydada Chamber Banquet

PAT SUMMERALL

"Hey, Look Us Over" will be the theme Monday evening for the 31st annual Floydada Chamber of Commerce Banquet. Pat Summerall of CBS Sports, one of the nation's elite sportscasters, will be the speaker.

The banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m. in Duncan Elementary School Cafetorium. However, Chamber of Commerce Manager Lance Barrow says that serving will begin "about 6:45." He encourages banquet guests to arrive before 7 o'clock.

Barrow expects a capacity crowd in excess of 400 persons.

In addition to hearing "the nation's number one sportscaster last year," banquet guests will view presentation of the "Employer of the Year Award" by the Women's Division of Floydada Chamber of Commerce. The recipient's identity is to remain a secret until the banquet.

PROGRAM OUTLINED

Following opening remarks by Fred Thayer, outgoing CofC president, the invocation will be voiced by Dennis Swearngin. After guests are introduced, Linda Matsler is to present directors. Mrs. Matsler is past president of the Women's Division.

Attention then will shift to presentation of the "Employer of the Year."

Nancy Willson will present the past president plaque to the retiring Women's Division prexy.

After the gavel exchange, incoming president Melvin Lloyd will hand the past president's plaque to Thayer.

Barrow is to introduce Summerall. A personal friend of the speaker, the Floydada CofC manager is Summerall's spotter for football games and tennis matches covered by CBS Sports.

Summerall is due to arrive in Lubbock by plane Monday afternoon. He will be accompanied to Floydada by Barrow.

'GOOD OPPORTUNITY' FOR YOUNGSTERS

Barrow encourages parents to bring their offspring to the banquet. "This will be a good opportunity for youngsters to see in person Pat Summerall, a man they view regularly on TV sports."

Barrow says that persons interested in purchasing banquet tickets may phone the chamber office (983-3434) "Saturday, Sunday or Monday . . . day or night." The CofC office phone also rings at the manager's residence.

CHAMBER OFFICIALS

In addition to Lloyd, the president-elect, officers of Floydada Chamber of Commerce for 1979 are: Carolyn Stovall, vice president, and Joe Cluck, board secretary. Thayer, as immediate past president, will be ex-officio member.

Other directors include: Anne Willson, Bob Gilliland, Alton Higginbotham, Buddy Lutrick, Ray McDonald, Don Hardy, and Tanya Covington.

Retiring from the board this year are: Frank Barrow, Bob Alldredge, Carl Jarrett, Donnie Galloway, Jack Gregory, Gene Ehler, and Art Ratzlaff.

Nancy Willson is to serve as Women's Division prexy for the ensuing year. Other officers are: Louise Turner, vice president; Sue Moore, treasurer; Kathy Burk, secretary; and Linda Matsler, past president. They are joined on the board by directors Jan Thayer, Gail Ramsey, Rebecca Burns, Joy Smitherman, and Anne Willson.

Pioneering in the opening of a new mission station, only to be driven out by fighting, seemed to be the story of John and Jewell Abernathy's lives. Meeting as each was on his way to China to serve as a missionary in 1920, the young couple married on the field and served in the Orient until their retirement in 1959. Little Dribblers Boys Teams Divided Feb

Deadline Nears For Volleyball Tourny Entries

Less than three weeks remain for entries in the volleyball tournament scheduled for March 29-31 in Graves Gymnasium in Floydada. Both men's and women's teams will participate.

Alpha Mu Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi in Floydada is sponsoring the tournament as a fund-raising project.

Deadline for the $15 entry fee is March 1. Only the first 16 teams can be accepted.

Persons wishing additional information concerning the tournament may contact Julie Hickerson at 983-5226 after 5 p.m. weekdays or send entries to her at 507 West Georgia Street, Floydada, Tex. 79235.

Boys (4th, 5th, 6th graders) who are interested in participating in the Floydada Little Dribblers program should meet with the coaches and try out on Thursday February 15 at 6:30 at the junior high gym. At that time the boys will be divided into teams.

Floydada Tennis Fares Well In Tour

The Floydada tennis team scored team points in every division entered except girls singles in the Lubbock Valentien Tournament.

Bobby Green made it to the quarterfinals of B division (division for AAA varsities and AAAA junior varsities) before falling to top seed.

Remainder of team played in small school division and fared well for first time out.

Esmeralda Gonzales and Tracy Tyer made it to the semifinals of the girls doubles before they had a bad run of luck with their groundstrokes. Pair from Lubbock Dunbar took advantage of the bad day by the Floydada pair to eliminate them 6-3, 6-4, one round short of the finals. This was the first time in two years FHS has scored points in the girls division of a Lubbock tournament.

James Hale and Bill Moore also made the semifinals by eliminating two opponents before falling prey to Lamesa. The Floydada boys were entered as the no. 3 doubles team but showed good hustle in all their matches.

With Green moved up in the higher division, Tommy Myrick came through for FHS in the C Boys singles. The Floydada sophomore also won his way to the semifinals before bowing to the eventual winner from Colorado City.

The nine points scored by the team was the most in the past few years for a Floydada team in the Lubbock tournament. The younger players are beginning to come through and give us a balanced team.

The best finish in girls singles came from freshman Treva Hambright who made it out of the first round.

Next action for the FHS varsity is a dual Feb. 27 against Ralls. Next tournament is March 9-10 in Brownfield.

Al Galloway, in his ninth year of instructing jr. high and high school students in General Mechanical Repairs, Welding, and Steel Construction, has maintained the thrill and challenge of meeting the needs of young men of today. He is more convinced than ever that the future of the community/nation lies in giving all students the opportunity of training in the area in which they can have a feeling of accomplishment. "Each student has the right to expect the privilege of developing earning power, which in turn gives dignity and self-respect to the individual!"

Students of the classes (the classroom is in Della Plains School) have built storage houses which are in use at White River Lake. Floydada Country Club (housing golf carts), Lockney, Cone Baptist Church, at a local farm, and another at Ralls. They build grates for fireplaces, repair bicycles, do minor mechanical repairs on cars and pickups, and build stock panels. They have remodeled their classroom, gaining much needed storage space. The students maintain the tricycles at the Day Care Center and have done extensive repairs to the chairs at R.C. Andrews Elementary School Cafeteria. Auto body repair instructions will begin in March.

Al and his wife Sally, live at 914 S. Main. They have two sons, Randall of L.A., and Dana Scott, who with his wife, Rebecca, lives in Dallas. Al teaches a Sunday School Class at First Baptist Church, where he also serves as a Deacon. He served three years in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, as a Flight Engineer on B-12, B-29's. He holds teacher's certification in his teaching field and is currently working toward a BSOE degree at Wayland College, Plainview. In 1975 and 1976 he was selected to participate in Career Education Curriculum Writing Workshops, sponsored by the Texas Education Agency, under the direction of Dr. G. Woodie Coleman.

An invitation to visit the classes at Della Plains is extended to everyone. Vocational Education Week is Feb. 11-17, and this will be an opportune time for a visit from parents, friends, all interested persons.

Maintain Quality Of Stored Grain

Good management of grain crops in storage will minimize quality deterioration after harvesting, says an agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"When grain is harvested at a moisture content higher than that recommended for safe storage, mechanical drying must be done," notes Richard Withers. "The higher the grain temperature and moisture content, the quicker the grain must be dried mechanically to prevent mold."

"For example, when grain is at 90 degrees F. and has a moisture content of 18 percent, moisture content must be reduced to 15 percent within about six-to-eight days," explains the Texas A&M University System specialist. "If temperature is reduced to 70 degrees F., the allowable time to reduce moisture is about 30 days. Of course, we are assuming that grain is being aerated during this period."

Moisture contents for safe storage vary with crops. Withers suggests these moisture percentages for safe storage: corn, 13; sorghum, 12-14; soybeans, 11-12; and wheat, 12-14.

He points out that an aeration system for grain cooling and moisture migration control is needed if grain is stored more than two to three months, even if safe storage moisture requirements are met.

According to Withers, aeration systems for cooling grain and controlling moisture migration within grain should supply about one-tenth cubic foot per minute (cfm) of air flow per bushel. "Fans must be designed to provide this flow rate against pressures developed in pushing air through grain. Higher air flow rates are required if the storage bin is also used for drying," points out the engineer.

Withers also suggests some simple precautionary measures before storing crops.

Check potential sources of water leaks into bins and seal them with a good non-drying caulking compound. Also, make sure air vents are protected from blowing rain.

Where rust spots exist on galvanized bin surfaces, clean the surface with a wire brush and apply a good quality zinc or rust inhibiting paint.

Finally, plan for alternatives in your harvest and storage operation in case emergency drying or protection against insects is needed.

FEEDING GRAIN TO STOCKER CATTLE ON WHEAT PASTURE

Prolonged below freezing weather has reduced the available forage on most wheat pastures on the High Plains. This will result in lowered gains by the cattle and/or reduced stocking rate. Many producers are supplemental feeding grain to the cattle in order to boost gain for the remainder of the grazing season. Demonstrations conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service have shown the most beneficial use of both the forage and the grain occurs when the cattle consume .75-1.0% of their body weight in grain each day (ex. 3.75-5.0 lb. for a 500 lb. animal.)

One method to regulate consumption is to hand feed the grain each day. This method requires increased labor and adequate bunk space to allow all cattle to eat at one time. Many producers have had good success by regulating grain intake with salt. The following table shows the salt: grain ratios that have worked well to regulate consumption for various weights of cattle.

This can be self-fed, but adjustments in salt level need to be made periodically as the forage conditions change and as the cattle get heavier. It is recommended that salt-grain mixes be hand-fed for a few days until it is apparent that the cattle are consuming the desired level.

Salt: Grain Ratios
Cattle Weight	300 lb.	500 lb.	700 lb.
Corn Per Day	3 lb.	5 lb.	7 lb.
% Salt	12%	10%	8%
% Corn	88%	90%	92%

If intake is to be regulated with salt, it is recommended that the grain be rolled or coarsely ground in order to reduce fines and facilitate thorough mixing. Corn, milo, wheat, barley, and oats can be used in a supplemental feeding program. Producers should use those grains available at the cheapest cost per energy. Many producers have reported less bloat with wheat pasture cattle on a grain supplement.

Bloat is generally one of the biggest management problems we have in the spring months when the wheat begins to produce more forage. If bloat does become a problem, the producer can add Poloxylene to the grain mix. This product has been shown to be very effective in reducing bloat on wheat pasture and alfalfa if consumed by the grazing animal.

In incidence of bloat can be reduced immediately if Poloxylene is added to a grain mix that the cattle are already consuming. Other feed additives such as Rumensin and mineral premixes can be added to the mix. The practice of supplemental feeding grain to wheat pasture cattle appears to be economically feasible in most stocker operations due to the depressed feed grain market and relatively high cattle prices.

The average feed efficiency on the grain consumed has been 7.5 lb. of grain per 1 lb. of additional gain. The efficiency will vary according to the forage quantity and quality, the level of grain consumption, weight of the cattle, flesh condition of the cattle and the weather. The following is an example of the economics of this approach to supplementing on wheat pastures.

Example:
600 lb. steer that consumes 6 lb. of a 90% corn, 10% salt mix each day with an efficiency of 7.5:1.

Ingredient	Lb./Day	Cost/Lb.	Cost/Day
Corn	5.4	$.0475	$.257
Salt	.6	.032	.019
			$.276

Cost of 1 lb. of additional gain $.345
Based on corn at $4.75/cwt., salt at $3.20/cwt.

Add own costs for grinding, mixing, labor, etc.

This management practice will help many producers maintain projected levels of grain that might otherwise be lessened due to cold weather and reduced forage supply. Others might be interested in using it to get additional grain above what they normally expect.

If the cattle are heavier at marketing time, they generally are sold at a cheaper price per pound, so this must be considered when deciding whether or not to incorporate this technique into your management system. Cattle that have been fed grain on pasture generally go on feed quicker when they enter the feedlot, but some buyers discriminate against fatter cattle.

When the pasture is covered with snow it is recommended that consumption be monitored closely to make sure the animals do not consume excessively high levels. Many producers have been able to do this by offering a book quality hay during this time so that the cattle do not have to depend entirely upon the grain for a feed source.

Producers should evaluate all of the factors involved in such a management program, apply their own costs and see if such a program has the potential to increase the returns on their stocker cattle operation.

Calfhood Vaccination For Brucellosis Free

Thanks to programs adopted in Texas and Oklahoma, calfhood vaccination for brucellosis is free.

In both states, vaccine is provided free to veterinarians and the veterinarians are reimbursed for their services. Thus, the cowman doesn't shell out any money for vaccinations. In both states, heifer beef calves must be vaccinated between 2 and 10 months of age, and dairy heifers between 2 and 6 months. Cattlemen can schedule their brucellosis vaccination program to correspond with other work such as preconditioning or spraying.

The goals of both programs are to vaccinate 70% of the replacement heifers annually. According to animal health officials, this rate would provide the level of immunity needed to show improvement in solving the brucellosis problem.

But the big question is whether or not calfhood vaccination works. It has worked for many producers who follow a rigid vaccination program plus traditional testing and slaughter programs. In Wharton County, Tex., a hotbed for bovine brucellosis in recent years, two producers have virtually wiped out brucellosis in their herds by vaccinating all replacements.

W.A. Harrison of Wharton runs a 1,000-cow operation scattered through four counties on six ranches. He has vaccinated his replacement stock for 24 of the past 25 years. Harrison has had some reactors show up at slaughter—five to be exact. But each time state veterinarians checked his entire herd, the report came back negative—no brucellosis.

"I've had to make sacrifices. I've kept pretty much of a closed herd, buying only cows which have been vaccinated for brucellosis. Also, I try to vaccinate the calves at the same time each year during weaning."

Edgar Hudgins of J.D. Hudgins, Inc., of Hungerford, Tex., is co-manager of a Brahman breeding operation. He's been calfhood-vaccinating since 1945. "It's been years since we had a reactor," Hudgins says.

"A purebred producer has got to control brucellosis in his herd. Cattle are a lot easier to sell if they have been calfhood-vaccinated," he adds.

Hudgins, a former official of the Texas and Southwestern Cattlemen's Association, recommends these steps for a successful brucellosis control program:

1. Don't buy cattle that aren't vaccinated for brucellosis.
2. If an animal is over 24 months old and has not been vaccinated, have it tested for brucellosis before you buy it.
3. Vaccinate with Strain 19 all heifer calves that are saved for replacements.
4. Cooperate with federal and state officials if one of your cows shows up as a reactor.

Dr. Frank Mann, a practicing veterinarian for Wharton, agrees with Hudgins' proposals. "Introducing cows with unknown health status into your herd is probably the most common error among cow-calf men," says Mann.

The veterinarian recommends that cattlemen isolate newly purchased animals for 60 to 120 days. This gives you a chance to observe the animals for disease as well as time to acclimate the animals to the surroundings and perform necessary testing procedures, Mann notes.

"Is calfhood vaccination the answer? It's a most important part of the answer," Hudgins affirms. The other part is the test and slaughter requirement. Many of today's cattlemen can't remember when 11% of this nation's cattle were infected with brucellosis in the 1930's. Now, less than 1% are infected, but this small percentage still takes a $30 million bite out of cowmen's pockets each year.

FEED BEEF HAND ACCORDING TO NEED—

For proper maintenance and production, cattle must be fed according to their nutritional requirements, says a livestock specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service. This means separate feeding of cattle of different ages and production status high productivity at minimum feed costs.

Changing Fiber Business Climate In 80's

A "desperate situation" facing many of the world's synthetic fiber producers today will lead to a different business climate in the 1980s for both cotton producers and textile mills, says a Cotton Incorporated economist.

For the mills, says M. Daniel Troxler, associate director for demand economics, it will mean significantly higher prices for synthetic fibers. For cotton producers, he adds, it will mean an opportunity to recapture and rebuild markets in many parts of the world.

The "synthetic fiber scene" is described by Troxler in the June issue of the Cotton Summary, monthly publication of Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers.

Pointing out that "good decisions regarding cotton require an understanding of the synthetics," Troxler says the severe problems facing the synthetic fiber industry can be traced back to a series of events beginning with the Arab oil embargo in late 1973.

This blow, he points out, was quickly followed by the worldwide recession in 1974-75. "In rapid succession, synthetic fiber producers saw their petroleum-based raw material costs soar and world demand for their products turn down for the first time in their 35-year commercial history."

Many synthetic fiber producers, says Troxler, underestimated how severe the recession's impact would be on their business and moved ahead with ambitious expansion plans. At the same time, he adds, they failed to anticipate an important shift in consumer purchasing of textile products. The strong consumer preference for natural fiber appearance and comfort "has played an important role in restricting synthetic fiber growth," he points out.

All of these factors combined, says the Cotton Incorporated economist, have kept synthetic fiber prices very weak. "Many synthetic fiber producers," he points out, "have had little opportunity to pass along higher raw material and energy costs so that losses, rather than profits, have been the rule."

The situation is especially bleak for synthetic fiber producers in areas, such as Western Europe, that depend heavily on export sales, Troxler adds. Many of the nations that have been traditional markets for imported synthetic fibers, are making great strides in developing their own chemical fiber industries, he points out.

Troxler says the synthetic fiber industry in the United States has fared better than its counterparts in industrialized nations because manufacturing costs are lower here and it is not as dependent on exports. Even so, he notes, the industry utilized only 72 percent of total plant capacity in 1978 and climbed to a still sluggish 77 percent in 1977.

All in all, says Troxler, synthetic fiber producers have lost sums of money. Textile mills have enjoyed a period of extremely high synthetic fiber prices. Cotton producers have seen a strong assault on their markets.

Looking ahead, the Cotton Incorporated economist says that producers realize they must make adjustments and do not intend to rest on their laurels.

"Conditions for the near future will remain little changed in the markets, but then a shift is evident. As demand for synthetic capacity, synthetic fiber prices are able to raise prices dramatically. James Lee, 983-3446 or 983-314

Once the prices go up, it's unlikely that they will soon come back down because the lesson of the 1970s is painful, and undoubtedly remembered.

"With synthetic fiber prices much less accommodating, availability and pricing of synthetic fiber producers will have an opportunity to recapture and rebuild parts of the world if they market their fiber aggressively."

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Poor crops exceed expectations; good crops fall short. That's an old saying in High Plains cotton circles that is far more often right than wrong.

And it's now no secret that, true to form, the poor crop is turning out better than earlier expected.

Production figures for the 25 High Plains counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., in 480-pound weight bales, are steadily inching toward the two million bale mark, as opposed to commonly held pre-harvest estimates that ranged from 1.3 million to a little over 1.8 million.

Bales classed and on hand at USDA's cotton classing offices at Brownfield, Lamesa, Levelland and Lubbock through Thursday, February 1, came to 1,810,000. Samples were being received at the rate of 10,000 to 15,000 per day, and Paul Dickson, USDA's Director of Area Classing Offices, expects to class "at least another 50,000 and possibly as many as 100,000 more."

The final production figure for the 25 PCG counties will include all but about 10,000 (from eastern New Mexico and Scurry County) of the total received by the four classing offices, plus an estimated 50,000 bales from the four PCG counties that send cotton to classing offices in Memphis and Abilene.

Howard, Martin and Midland Counties will probably send a combined total of about 30,000 bales to the Abilene office, and the Memphis office may receive about 20,000 from Motley County. Dickens County, which formerly used the Memphis classing facility, now sends its cotton to Lubbock.

Putting all these figures together, including the 50,000 to 100,000 samples still expected by Dickson, would bring the 25-county running bale total up to between 1,900,000 and 1,950,000.

Net compress weights on High Plains cotton normally average from three to five percent heavier than 480-pound weight bales. Using a four percent conversion factor would bring the county net weight bale total to between 1,976,000 and 2,028,000 bales.

In its final estimate January 11 USDA had the 25 counties on the Plains, made early in December, put production at 1,777,000 bales.

Official county-by-county net weight figures will be released in June or July, by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.
