MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapian

The Baptist brethren held a very successful meeting here the past week. There were twenty-five conversions with twenty-four accessions to the church. The meeting was conducted by the pastor, Bro. Heath, assisted by Rev. Harvester, of Slaton. The attendance was large and the preaching excellent. It is to be hoped that those joining the church will remember their vows and conduct themselves in a manner becoming the followers of Christ. The country needs a revival of all that is best in our nature, and a rapid return to the higher ideals of the past.

Mrs. D. J. Harris has just returned from Stephenville, Texas, where she was called by the death of a niece. She reports things dry and dull.

The new depot at this place is quite an acquisition and reflects great credit on the Santa Fe people. Such an outlay by the company at this time was very unexpected, and they are to be commended for their foresight.

One land transfer the past week. Mr. McDonald sold to Mr. Montgomery, of Hollis, Okla., half section two miles southeast of Meadow. Consideration $3000 per acre.

Dr. Moorehead is digging the foundation for a shack on the north side of town and Mr. McDonald is building on his farm near town. Mr. G. M. Watkins has just finished a dwelling on his farm west of town.

R. M. Moorehead left this morning for Stephenville and Evans, Texas. He will be absent several days.

THERE ARE SCIENTIFIC REASONS WHY

Eminent Specialists recommend Holstein Milk above all other kinds for Babies and Invalids. Medical practitioners everywhere are now demanding Holstein Milk with the result that careful producers are receiving twenty-five and thirty cents a quart for Holstein Milk in cities where ordinary milk sells for only ten and fifteen cents.

No less an authority than Dr. Thomas Morgan Rotch, whose fame as a specialist in infant feeding is international, said:

"The Holstein cow represents the most perfect milking animal known, having every characteristic of a cow suitable for an infant's milk supply. Its milk is good and nourishing and comes nearer to human milk than any other breed of cows."

The milk Commission, of Chicago, Hon. Julian Mack, President, says in its report:

"The Holstein Milk is characterized by fat globules of small and uniform size, separating slowly by the gravity method and carrying very little color. The small and uniform size of the fat globules insure ease of digestion and assimilation. NO BREED EXCELS THE HOLSTEINS IN GREAT CONSTITUTIONAL VIGOR. The Holstein milk therefore fulfills most completely all the requirements when the food of infants and invalids is under consideration."

HARRIS HAPPENINGS

By Sand Bur.

Brit Clare made a business trip to town this week.

The singing at J. R. Hill's Sunday night was well attended and enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Jennie Reith, of Dallas, is visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. McLane, and her brother-in-law, Arthur Cobb and children, this week.

Mrs. Sharp, from Wheeler county, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Appie Taylor.

Floyd Ellington, from Meadow, spent Monday night with his brother, F.M., and helped him take a bunch of cattle to Meadow to ship out Friday.

Miss Ida May Sharp, from Wheeler county, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Taylor.

M. Taylor vaccinated his calves one day this week. A number of his neighbors with their families helped him and enjoyed a most bountiful dinner.

J. M. McMillan, bridled and vaccinated Saturday. Mrs. McMillan's good dinner disappeared at an amazingly rapid rate, when the workers sat down to the table.

OFFICERS HAVE LONG CHASE SATURDAY NIGHT

The sheriff's department got word here Saturday afternoon to arrest a young man, wanted in Fisher county on a statutory charge, and it was not long until Deputy A. E. Graham had his man located. Owing to the fact that the young man has a lot of kin folks of splendid reputation in this county, the officers were as quiet as possible about the matter, and few in town knew of the arrest.

It was not long however, until the prisoner wanted to go in a local store to talk with some one, and the officer only went to the door, but the young man passed through the store and just kept "ahiking."

After an all night chase he was located in a big corn field in the north part of the county, and brought to town and landed in jail.

Two Fisher county officers came for him Sunday afternoon.

SOLVED

Uncle Hi had just passed his first night in a hotel and was still curious. "Son," he inquired of a bell hop, "what's that fancy contraption out the window?"

"That's the fire escape," replied the youth.

"By hickory! I wondered what made it so dad blamed cold in here last night."

TEXAS TO CELEBRATE 100TH ANNIVERSARY

The Womens Clubs of Brownfield, have asked the Herald to co-operate with them in giving publicity to the general celebration of the 100th anniversary of Anglo Saxon settlements in Texas, which will come on Thursday, Nov. 10th, this year.

Inasmuch as Armistice Day comes on November 11th, the day after the proposed celebration, why not put the two together on one or the other days and have a big celebration of the two. For really they are both of a patriotic nature and belong together, and we believe this will comply in every way with the intentions of the clubs mentioned above.

However, we would like to hear from others in the matter and especially the local Legion boys in the matter, and if it will suit them.

COUNTY COURT IN SESSION

County Judge D. J. Broughton called a jury for Monday of this week, and County Attorney R. L. Graves being on rap, business began to pick up. This will be one of the most busy sessions of County Court for a long time in Terry County, several cases being on docket for disposal, and a full report will be given in these columns next week.

BROWNFIELD HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 12

Nine of the ten teachers for the Brownfield High School have been elected, and the trustees think everything will be in readiness for the annual opening, Sept. 12th. They have so far failed to secure a Spanish instructor, but they are hot on ones trail. It seems Spanish teachers are about as scarce as the famed "chicken teeth."

All are looking forward to a good term, as the teachers already secured are good ones, and come highly recommended.

W. D. Shaw, of Midland will be the Superintendent; Miss Elizabeth Winnes Miss Epic Castleberry, and Misses Nancy and Lizzie Dumas of this city; Miss Lucile Langshorne, Henderson, Texas; Misses Emma and Maurine Hardesty, Slaton, Texas; and Miss Beulah Jones, music teacher, of Lometa, Texas.

Right now is the time to begin the preparation for a good school.

CHINESE GIRL STUDENT

Austin, Aug. 20.—There will be a Chinese girl enrolled among the students of the University of Texas during the next session, according to information received from Miss Nancy Lee Swann, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in the Shantung field. Mosling Ma is the prospective student who has already sailed from China with the intention of entering this institution. She is a graduate of the Shantung Normal School and also of the Young Women's Christian Association Physical Training Normal School in that city. She is making a specialty of physical training work.

Miss Ma will be accompanied as far as San Francisco by Mrs. W. D. Boone, a missionary from Shantung, who is returning to the United States on furlough. From San Francisco, the Chinese girl will make the rest of the trip to Austin alone. She will dress in native costume.

OLD WHITE, COLORADO WOLF MEETS DEATH

Details of the capture and death of "Old White" the ferocious leader of a pack of wolves that for years have caused great destruction of live stock on Bear Springs Mesa, Col., are contained in a report received recently by the Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture. The capture lacked some of the more spectacular elements that marked the passing of the now famous "Custer Wolf," but in many ways it is looked upon as among the notable kills made through the skill and patience of Government hunters in their work of ridding the cattle ranges of the West of predatory animals.

Early in the spring, by the clever strategy of one of the hunters, the mate of this animal and one of the leaders of the pack was captured and it was thought that "Old White" would then fall a ready victim. But he proved more difficult, for although several good chances to get the old fellow occurred, on each trip to the Government traps he would "step lucky" as the hunter described it. Finally the hunter selected a favorable spot and placed four traps in a blind set, and it was in these that the marauder was caught.

"Old White" has a black history and caused losses in live stock that amounts to many thousand of dollars. For twelve years he roamed the Bear Springs Mesa country. One rancher alone lost about $6,000 worth of live stock through his depredations.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE ON AMERICAN BUSINESS

"I am amazed to find you American business men so nervous, so pessimistic. You certainly have far better reasons for feeling easy and confident than we British," says Lord Northcliffe, the greatest self-made man in the British Empire, who is now among us.

"Your bank reserves are colossal, much higher than ours. You have close to one-half of all the gold in the world, and it is still rolling in on you. Except for the fact that your bankers charge more for the use of money than ours, I see no legitimate reason why business should be slow in this country."

Northcliffe is dead right. There is no valid reason for our stagnancy. We have contracted the pessimistic habit, that's all. And we are merely slaves of bad habit. With the highest grade, gilt edge securities in the nation paying the highest returns on record—securities that can be snapped up now at bargain figures.

The Lynn County News is having a big cylinder press installed by the foreman of the Lubbock Avallanche. Mr. W. C. Edwards, Well, Edwards knows how to do the job.

Governor Neff seemed to think just about as much of the re-districting bill as the Herald, and in the third called session, has resubmitted the matter in the hopes the Senate will turn out one that will have some of the appearance of being constitutional and in line with justice.

Some of our neighboring cities, Am-... among them we believe, are aching about the price of ice, which ranges from 50c to 75c per hundred pounds. Wonder what would be their crying yelp if they had to plunk down from $2.00 to $2.50 per hundred like Brownfield folks?

The Canadian Record gives the Herald and Lynn County News a little fatherly advice about our quarrel over our respective ball teams, and intimates that maybe some of our boys are "throwing" the game, or our umpires have "up" money, and that all is fair in love and war, or words to that effect. But nothing like this in the ranks of Brownfield and Taboka sluggers, and we'll bet we can prove it by Haynes, even though we are at sword's edge, and the fact that a lot of "bull" and blood may be shed at first sight we have of each other.

U. OF T. HAS RID ITSELF OF INFIDELS

Austin, Aug. 20.—Religious life in the University of Texas is the subject of a survey to be issued soon in the form of a bulletin from the University Press. According to the information assembled, there is not an atheist in the faculty of that institution. On the contrary, a large majority of the faculty are church members and many are prominent workers in behalf of religion. The president is a minister of the gospel, two deans are superintendents of Sunday Schools, and at least twenty of the staff are Sunday School workers.

Excellent attendance and hearty participation in religious activities on the part of the students is reported on the part of the several University churches. About 80 percent of the students are church members, and 14 per cent are non-church members, but with decided church preferences. The Young Men's Christian Association has a large membership, and carries on a broad work in its own building. The Young Women's Christian Association is smaller, but none the less effective, it is asserted. Although the University itself is debarred by law from direct religious teaching, the work has been taken up by the various churches, and has been carried on with surprising energy. The work of the Texas Bible Chair of the Church of the Disciples led to the establishment of similar work by the Presbyterians, the Catholics, Methodist, Baptist and Conservative Disciples. All of these activities are located within three blocks of the campus, so that the opportunities for religious life can hardly be said to be equalled anywhere else in the country.

CHAPTER I—Graham Norcross, railroad manager, and his secretary, Jimmie Dodd, are pronounced at a "tea" given by a young lady, Sheila Macrae, and her small courtier, Ursula, they meet a peculiar train holdup, in which a special car is carried off.

CHAPTER II—Norcross recognizes the car stolen as John Chadwick's, a maniac, whom he was to meet at Fort Collins. He and Dodd rescue Chadwick, who offers Norcross the management of the Pioneer Short Line, which is in the hands of a party of speculators, headed by Breckenridge Linton, president of the line. Norcross, learning that Sheila Macrae is stopping at Fort Collins, accepts.

CHAPTER III—Dodd overhears conversation between Ursula and Gustave Henckel, Fort Collins financier, in which they discuss completely the kidnapping of their own child, and Chadwick's from attending a meeting of directors to organize the Pioneer Short Line, which would separate their interests.

CHAPTER IV—To curb the monopoly controlled by Hatch and Henckel, the latter corporation, Norcross forms the Citizens' Storage and Warehouse company. He begins to manifest a deep interest in Sheila Macrae. Dodd learns that Sheila is married, but living apart from her husband. Norcross does not know this.

CHAPTER V—Hatch, aware that Dodd has knowledge of his and Henckel's participation in the Chadwick kidnapping, offers Ursula money to leave Norcross. Dodd refuses. Leaving the office, he is knocked senseless by a mysterious man. He is taken to a hospital, where he is discovered and believed to have resigned and gone east.

CHAPTER VI—Dodd connects Norcross' disappearance with machinations of Hatch and Henckel, and on recovering strength sets out to solve the mystery.

CHAPTER VII—With Kirgan, the road's master mechanic, Dodd gets a tip on the recent disappearance of a missing locomotive.

CHAPTER VIII—The rescue party finds and releases Norcross from captivity to which he had been subjected. He resumes control of the Pioneer Short Line, relating to give peace to man whom Dunton has sent to take charge.

CHAPTER IX—Dodd follows an emissary of the Red Rover people, spying on Norcross, to a coal yard, where he overhears a plot to put Norcross out of business, and at the risk of his life fractures it.

CHAPTER X—At the home of Sheila Macrae Dodd is witness of strange actions of a man he believes has designs on the life of his friend and boss. He prepares to defend him.

CHAPTER XI—The sudden return of Sheila's uncle drives the intruder away. Later Dodd recognizes him as Howard Collingwood, nephew of President Dunton of the Pioneer Short Line, and a man of means on the line, impossible to explain, cause alarm to the management.

CHAPTER XII—Dunton, night dispatcher, routes passenger and freight trains to a single track. The passenger is narrowly averted. Dunton commits suicide, leaving evidence that he was bribed to bring about collision.

CHAPTER XIII—Evidence accumulates that Norcross' enemies are plotting his death, but against all odds he escapes on a trip on a special train over the line. A plot against him is discovered, and a special train is dispatched to meet him on a mountain side. Norcross escapes for the first time that Sheila Macrae is married. He refuses to believe it.

CHAPTER XIV—Hatch and other owners of the Red Rover corporation call Norcross and inform him they have proof that he is the recent kidnaper. He leaves from Sheila that Collingwood is her husband, and feels the ground has been cut under his feet.

CHAPTER XV—Hatch secures control of Citizens' Storage and Warehouse company, and engineers a strike to embarrass the railroad line. Norcross shows Collingwood how Hatch has used him for his own ends, to down him (Norcross), and Collingwood threatens to kill Hatch.

CHAPTER XVI

The Deserter
 Mr. Norcross chased out and tried to overtake Collingwood, going as far as the foot of the stairs. I went, too, but got only far enough to meet the boss coming up again. There was nothing doing. The station policeman had seen the crazy rounder jump into a taxi and go spinning off up-town. There was another jolt waiting for us when we got back to the office. While we were both out, Mr. Van Britt had blown in from his room at the foot of the hall and we found him lounging comfortably in the chair that Collingwood had just vacated. "I thought maybe you'd turn up again pretty soon, since you'd left the doors all open," was the way he started out. Then "sit down, Graham; I want to talk a few lines." Mr. Norcross took his own chair and twirled it to face the general superintendent. "Say it," he commanded briefly. Mr. Van Britt looked his thumbs in his armpoles. "I've just been figuring a bit on the general outlook; you have a decently efficient operating outfit here, what with Perkins and Brant and Conway answer was six; that the young New Yorker hadn't been seen since dinner. On the way out we saw Mr. Van Britt at the telegraph alcove. He was handing in a thick bunch of telegrams for transmission, and he rather pointedly turned the sheet face down upon the marble slab when we came along, as-much as to say "it's none of your business what I'm doing."

It struck me as sort of curious that he should have so much wire correspondence when he claimed to be taking a rest, and why he was so careful not to let a glimpse of what it was all about. But the whole thing was now so horribly muddled that a little mystery more or less on anybody's part couldn't make much difference; and that was the thought I took to bed with me a little later after we reached our rooms in the railroad club.

CHAPTER XVII

The Beginning of the End

However much the Hatch people may have wanted avoid publicity regarding the change of ownership and policies in the Storage & Warehouse reorganization, the prompt announcement of a general strike of the employees was enough to make every newspaper in the state sit up and take notice.

We had the Mountaineer at the breakfast-table in the club grill-room on the morning of the day when the strike was advertised to go into effect. There was a news story, with big headlines in red ink, and also an editorial. Control didn't see anything against the railroad company. His comments were those of an observer who wished to be straight-forward and fair to all concerned, but his editorial did not spare the silly local stockholders whose swapping and selling had made the company possible.

Control, himself, milder-eyed and looking as if he had got out of bed about three hours too early, drifted into the grill-room and took a seat at our table before we were through.

"I wanted to be decent about it, Norcross," he said, forestalling anything that the boss might be going to say about the editorial in the Mountaineer. "I'm trying to believe that the men higher up in your railroad councils haven't fathered this Hatch scheme of consolidation—which is more than some of the other public pushers will do for you, I'm afraid. Thanks to your publicity measures, everybody believes that you still hold the whip-hand over the combination with your ground leases. I'm not asking what you propose to do; I am merely taking it for granted that you are going to stick to your policy, and hoping that you will come and tell me about it when you are ready to talk."

"I shall do just that," the boss promised; and I guess he would have been glad to let his master drop at this, only Control would.

"I lost three good hours' sleep this morning on the chance of catching you here at table," the editor went on. "A little whisper leaked in over the wire last night, or, rather, early this morning, that set me to thinking. You haven't been having any trouble with your own employees lately, have you, Norcross?"

"Not a bit in the world. Why?"

"There is some little excitement, with the public, taking a hand in it. There were indignation meetings held last night in a number of the towns along your lines, and resolutions were passed protesting against the action of the new combination in cutting wages, and asserting that public sentiment would be with the C. S. & W. employees if they are forced to carry out their threat of striking at noon today. The whisper that I spoke of intimated that the protest might extend to the railroad employees."

"There's nothing in it," said the boss decisively. "I suppose you mean in the way of a sympathetic strike, and that is entirely improbable. I imagine very few of the C. S. & W. employees belong to any of the labor unions."

"A strike on the railroad would hit your purse hard, just now, wouldn't it?" Control asked.

Mr. Norcross dodged the question. "We're not going to have a strike," he averred; and since we had finished our breakfast, he made a business excuse and we slid out.

When we reached the office we found Mr. Van Britt on hand, reading the morning paper.

"You don't get around as early as you might," was the little millionaire's comment when the boss walked in and opened up his desk. "I've been waiting nearly a half-hour for you to show up. Seen the papers?"

The boss nodded.

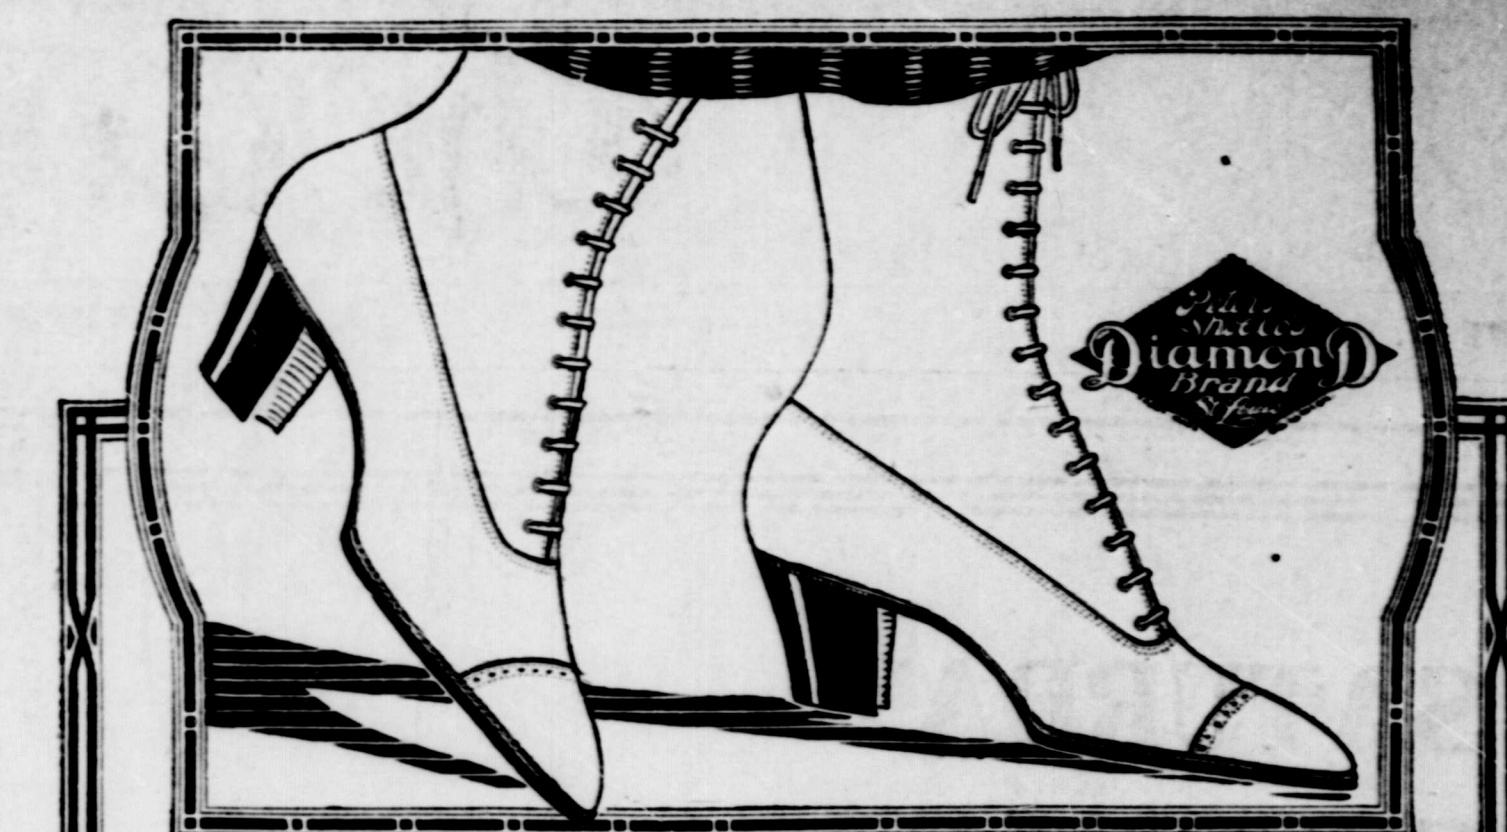

"I don't mean the strike business; I mean the market quotations."

"No, I didn't look at them."

"They are interesting. P. S. L. Common went up another three points yesterday. It closed at 38 and a fraction. You know what that means, Graham. It means that Uncle Breckinridge and his crowd are already joyfully discounting your coming resignation. Somebody has given them a wire tip that you are as good as down and out, and unless a miracle of some sort can be pulled off, I guess the tip is a straight one. Strong as he is, Chadwick can't carry you along."

"Drop it," snapped the boss irritably. And then: "Have you come to tell me that you have reconsidered that fool letter you wrote me last night?"

"Not in a million years," returned the escaped captive airily. "I am here this morning as a paying patron of the Pioneer Short Line. I want to hire a special train to go—well, anywhere I please on your jerkwater railroad. The Eight-Fifteen will do, with Buck Chandler to run it."

 "Pshaw! take your own car and any crew you please. We are not selling transportation to you."
 "Yes, you are; I'm going to pay for that train, and what's more, I want your written receipt for the money. I need it in my business. Then, if Chandler should happen to get say and dump me into the ditch somewhere, I can sue you for damages."
 "All right; if you will persist in joking with me it's going to cost you something. How far do you want your train to run?"
 "Oh, I don't know; anywhere the notion buds me—say to the west end and back, with as many stops as I see fit to make, and perhaps a run over the branches."
 I saw the boss make a few figures on a pad under his hand.
 "It would cost anybody else, roughly, something like five hundred dollars, on account of your little joke it's going to cost you a cold thousand."
 Mr. Van Britt took out his check-book and a fountain pen and solemnly made out the check.
 "Here you are," he said, flipping the check over to the boss' desk. "Now shell out that receipt, so that I'll have it to show if anybody wants to know how much you've gouged me. Since you're making the accommodation cost me a dollar a minute, how long have I got to wait?"
 Mr. Norcross said something that sounded like "d—n," scribbled a memorandum of the thousand-dollar payment on a sheet of the scratch-pad and handed it over, saying: "The order for the car includes my cook and porter, and something to eat; we'll throw these in with the transportation, and if the car is ditched and you sue for damages, we'll file a cross-bill for hotel accommodations. Now go away and work off your little act of lunacy. Tm busy."

 An no one can ever change the thing that happened last week or last year. The only time we have under control is the present.
 You have been planning and intending and expecting to have an Abstract of Title made of some certain piece of property for a long while, but simply have not got to it.
 Why not obey the impulse to take action in the matter and let us perform this necessary act for you?
 We hope to hear from you soon.

ton crowd had been deliberately trying to wreck the property, they couldn't have gone about it in any surer way." "That is the way it looked to me, Ripley, at first; but I've had a chance to sleep on it—as you haven't. The gun that can't be spiked in some way has never yet been built. I have the names of the eleven men who were bribed. Hatch was daring enough to give them to me. Holding the affidavits which they were foolish enough to give him, Hatch can make them swear to anything he pleases. But if I could get those affidavits I'd go to these men separately and make each one tell me how much he had been paid by Bullock for his vote."

"Well, what then?" "Then I should make every mother's son of them come across with the full amount of the bribe, on pain of an exposure which the dirtiest politician in this state couldn't afford to face. That would settle it. Hatch couldn't work the same game a second time."

We were closing our desks to go to dinner when Fred May came in to say that a delegation of the pay-roll men was outside and wanting to have a word with the "Big Boss." Mr. Norcross stopped with his desk curtain half drawn down.

"What is it, Fred?" he asked. "I don't know," said the Pittsburgher. "I should call it a grievance committee. If it wasn't so big. And they don't seem to be mad about anything. Bart Hoskins is doing the talking for them."

"Send them in," was the curt command, and a minute later the inner office was about three-fourths filled up with a shuffling crowd of P. S. L. men.

The chief looked the crowd over. There was a bunch of train and engine men, a squad from the shops, and a bigger one from the yards. Also, the wire service had turned out a gang of linemen and half a dozen operators.

"You Men Don't Want to Let Your Sympathies Carry You Too Far."

"Well, men, let's have it," said Mr. Norcross, not too sharply. "My dinner's getting cold."

"We'll not be keepin' you above the hollow half of a minute, Mister Norcross," said the big, bearded freight conductor who acted as spokesman. "About this C. S. & W. strike that went on today: we ain't got no kick comin' with you, n'r with the company, Mister Norcross, but it looks like it's up to us to do something, and we didn't want to do it without hittin' square out from the shoulder. There ain't nobody knows yet what's goin' to be done, but whatever it is, we want you to know that it ain't done against you n'r the railroad company."

The boss had handled wage earners too long not to be able to suspect what was in the wind.

"You men don't want to let your sympathies carry you too far," he cautioned. "When you take up another fellow's quarrel you want to be pretty sure that you're not going to hit your friends in the scrap."

Hoskins grinned understandingly, and I guess the boss was a little puzzled by the nods and winks that went around among the silent members of the delegation; at least, I know I was.

"That's all right," Hoskins said, "in the big boss, you've got to talk that way. But what I was aintin' to say is that there'll be a train-load o' two of strike-breakers a-comein' along here in a day or so, and we ain't figurin' on lettin' 'em get past Portal City, if that far."

"That's up to you," said Mr. Norcross brusquely. "If you start anything in the way of a riot—"

"Excuse me. There ain't goin' to be no riotin', and no company property washed up. Mr. Van Brit, he—" It was right here that an odd thing happened. Con Corrigan, a big two-footed freight engineer standing directly behind Hoskins, reached an arm around the speaker's neck and choked him so suddenly that Hoskins' sentence ended in a gasping chuckle. When the gagging arm was withdrawn the conductor looked around sort of foolishly and said: "I'm thinking that's about all we wanted to say, ain't it, boys?" and the delegation fled out as solemnly as it had come in.

I guess Mr. Norcross wasn't left wholly in the dark when the trumping footfalls of the committee fled away in the corridor. That unintentional mention of Mr. Van Brit's name looked as if it might open up some more possibilities, though what they were I couldn't imagine, and I don't believe the general manager could, either.

COUNTY TREASURER'S QUARTERLY REPORT

In the matter of County Finances in the hands of Mrs. Lula Smith, Treasurer of Terry County, Texas:

Commissioners' Court Terry County, Texas, in Regular session, August term, 1921.

We, the undersigned County Commissioners within and for said Terry County, and the Hon. D. J. Jay Barrett, Commissioner Precinct No. 2
W. D. Winn, Commissioner Precinct No. 3
W. H. Black, Commissioner Precinct No. 4

Sworn to and subscribed before me by D. J. Broughton, County Judge and D. S. Cunningham and Jay Barrett and W. D. Winn and W. H. Black, County Commissioners of said Terry County, each respectively, on this, the 8th day of August, A. D. 1921.

about, but after a little while, when the boss got up to go, I heard him say something that gave the key to the most of what had gone before. I guess,

"Have you seen or heard anything of Collingwood since yesterday?" The good old major shook his head. "They're tellin' me that he's over in his rooms at the Bullard, drinkin' himself to death. If he wasn't altogether past redemption, sah, he would have had the decency to get out of town befo' he turned loose all bolts that way; he would, for a fact, Graham."

At that, Mr. Norcross explained in just a few words why Collingwood hadn't gone—why he couldn't go. Whereupon the old Kentuckian looked graver than ever.

"That thar spells trouble, Graham. Hatch is simply invitin' the undertaker. How's isn't what you'd call a dangerous man, but he is totally irresponsible, even when he's sober."

"We ought to get him away from here," was the boss' decision. "He is an added menace while he stays." I didn't hear what the major said to that, because Little Rags, Mr. Perkins' office boy, had just come in with a note which he was asking me to give to Mr. Norcross. I did it; and after the note had been glanced at, the chief said, kind of bitterly, to the major,

"You can never fall so far that you can't fall a little farther; have you ever remarked that, major?" And then he went on to explain: "Perkins, our Desert Division superintendent, says that the 'locals' of the various railroad labor unions have just notified him of the unanimous passage of a strike vote—the strike to go into effect at midnight."

"A strike?—on the railroad? Why, Graham, son, you don't mean it?" "The men seem to mean it—which is much more to the purpose. They are striking in sympathy with the C. S. & W. employees. I fancy that settles our little experiment in good railroading definitely, major. Dunton doesn't want a membership, but he'll have to take one now. The bottom will drop out of the street and break the market when this strike news gets on the wire, and that will end it. I wish to God there were some way in which I could save Mr. Chadwick; he has trusted me, major, and I— I've failed him!"

Then and Now.

Women in the home used to be ashamed to sit down; there seemed to be a virtue in wearing themselves out! The housekeeper who saved herself, who did not dust every few moments, scrub on her hands and knees and do such tasks, was called lazy. The habit now is that the most intelligent housekeeper, the one who studies every new invention and saves every step and motion, is the most conscientious and sensible one. Sit down to vegetable paring and all tasks where it is practicable.

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality—and DEMAND it.

They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy—because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTY AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills! These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons.

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!

HEALTH NOTES

By Dr. Manton M. Garrick, State Health Officer.

Every available means should be used to impress upon all mothers in the community, the need of careful attention to the children during the summer months.

Babies do not want silks and satins, but they do want sunlight and sanitation.

Health is something you care nothing about until it is mistaid, like your tooth brush or your fountain pen.

Live cleanly. Live your best and you will not be a victim of vice. Many degenerative diseases are due to infection from bacteria. Exercise, care of the teeth and gums, the prevention of constipation by proper food are great helpers to avoid disease.

It will be a red letter day in human progress when all forces of every community are mobilized for the preservation of its child life.

It is more important to establish regular habits in the baby than it is to wind the clock.

Better save yourself in youth and young adult years than suddenly wake up at 45 with high blood pressure, bad kidneys, hardened arteries, and a falling heart.

A new circular on Summer Care of Babies by the State Board of Health for free distribution, is just off the press. It will be sent to citizens of Texas upon request. Address the State Health Officer, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas.

THE SMILE THAT DOES!

A smiling worker is a smiling doer. Smile stimulates smile. Grouch does not. If you lose a trade you think you should have won, smile—smile sincerely—and the next trade is your own. One smile will accomplish more than a hundred grouches. You can't capitalize a grouch, but you can a smile.—Ex.

Mrs. Ed Holt was here last week from western New Mexico visiting her mother, Mrs. M. E. Kinard. Another daughter of Mrs. Kinard, Mrs. Oscar Allen, of Plainview, was also here visiting her.

WHY APPARENTLY GOOD POP CORN SOMETIMES WON'T POP

It is a matter of common experience that pop corn varies greatly with respect to popping. A lot of popcorn may pop alright at one time and not at all at some other time. Again a lot of apparently good pop corn may not pop satisfactorily at any time.

The two main requisites for good popping are: (1) Good corn that has a moisture content of about 12 percent; (2) heat sufficient to cause the kernels to begin to pop in about 1/2 minutes.

A number of causes may interfere with the popping of pop corn. The principal ones are: (1) Having the corn too dry; (2) having the heat too great, or not great enough; (3) harvesting pop corn before it has ripened; and (4) allowing pop corn to mix with the field or sweet corn.

Pop corn should ripen fully on the stalk and should not be harvested until the husks are white and the stalk is dead and has lost its sappy condition. The ears should then be stored in a cool, well ventilated place. Small wire crates are good receptacles in which to store them. If stored in a warm room in the house, the ears will soon dry out so much that they will not pop. Pop corn that has become too dry for popping may be restored to condition again by putting it in a cool, well ventilated place, preferably under doors, for a few weeks. It should however, be protected against mice.

Pop corn will of its own accord take on or retain the right amount of moisture under natural or suitable atmospheric conditions, as on a shaded porch, on the north side of a building.

Exposing ears to the hot sun for awhile will cause them to dry out too much for good popping. They will also dry out too much in a kitchen or other warm room. If pop corn has become too dry, that is wanted for immediate use, it may be improved somewhat by sprinkling it with water before trying to pop it.

The body of William Guyton Howard, for whom the local Legion camp was named, was shipped from Hoboken, N. J. last Saturday, and is expected this week sometime. William Guyton Howard fell mortally wounded soon after the Ninetieth Division reached the front, and died in a few days in a base hospital. The local Legion will bury him with military honors upon arrival.

BROTHERS & Brothers delivers your groceries to your kitchen.

W. C. Smith left last Saturday for the State Sanitorium at Carlsbad, with his son, Mumford and family. Mumford will enter the institution for a course of treatment, but his wife and baby will go on to Ft. Stockton to visit her granfather and a couple of aunts.

C. E. Dean, of Ralls, one of the proprietors of the Bird & Dean store at this place, was here this week looking after business matters. He was pleased with the sales and condition of the store at this place. We are always glad to have Mr. Dean with us.

A. W. Enderse of the Holgate-Enderse Hardware Co. got in this week from Sweden. His wife and children are visiting for a few weeks in Ohio, before coming home.

P. W. Watts was in this week with a load of fine melons, and he traded three of them for six months of the Herald. W. P. is a trader and he ran up against another.

"I smiled—and he shot me"

AFTER MONTHS and months, MY WIFE persuaded me, TO HAVE it done. SO I went around. TO the photographer. AND GOT huffed. WHEN the pictures came. I SHOWED them to a gang. OF AMATEUR art critics. AND PROFESSIONAL crabs. DISGUISED AS friends. WHO FAVORED me. WITH SUCH remarks as, "DOESN'T HE look natural?" "HAS IT got a tail?" "A GREAT resemblance." AND THAT last one MADE ME sore. SO WHEN friend wife ADDED HER howl I TRIED again.

THIS TIME they were great. FOR HERE'S what happened. THE PHOTOGRAPHER said, "LOOK THIS way, please." AND HELD up something. AS HE pushed the button. AND NO one could help. BUT LOOK pleasant. FOR WHAT he held up. WAS A nice full pack. OF THE cigarettes, THAT SATISFY.

LIGHT up a Chesterfield and sense the goodness of those fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in that wonderful Chesterfield blend. Taste that flavor! Sniff that aroma! You'll register "They Satisfy." You can't help it.

Did you know about the Chesterfield package of 10?
