GRANDMOTHER GREEN DEAD

On Saturday morning at 3 o'clock, the death angel called to the Father's house, Mrs. Mary Green, the mother of our beloved townsman, J. C. Green.

Grandmother Green was born in Washington county, Texas, Nov. 26, 1852, and was married in 1869 to J. M. Green. To this union was born nine children; six of which are now living. Mr. J. C. Green of city is the oldest of the children.

Mrs. Green was converted in her young girlhood and joined the Methodist church, from which time she lived a most beautiful and faithful Christian life. Thirteen months ago Grandmother Green came to live with her oldest son in Brownfield. Her sweet devoted Christian life has cheered the hearts of all of those who knew her. She always had a kind word for everyone, as Mrs. Randall has often remarked: "She made everyone better who knew her. Her room where she stayed seemed to be the brightest spot anywhere, because of her cheerfulness. In all of her affliction she never complained, resigning completely to the will of God, expressing the words again of the great Apostle, when he said: "For our light affliction which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

Mrs. Green had a most wonderful memory. Even up to the last hour she spoke, she knew the folks by name who came to her bedside. If she ever met a person, she knew them by name after that.

Mrs. Green's life has been a benediction to us all, and we want to live truer, brighter lives because of her example she set while she was here. Even though the body has been laid to rest until the resurrection morn her spirit lives on to bless the world until Jesus comes again.

Funeral services were conducted at the family residence Saturday afternoon by Rev. J. E. Anderson, many friends of the family being in attendance to pay their last respects to this beloved woman who was a friend to everyone. Burial took place in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery at 4 p. m.

MY EXPERIENCE IN THE GREAT WORLD WAR

By H. R. Winston

About this time one of my cousins moved to San Antonio, and life was made quite a bit brighter for me. I went to see them the first afternoon and she asked me what I wanted for supper, and I answered "Just plain biscuits" as I had been eating light bread for the last two months without a change. Believe me, those were the best biscuits I ever tasted, and melted in my mouth worse than good chocolate candy.

The people of San Antonio treated us very cold at first, but after about two months, they found out that we were human beings, and from then on entertained us in various ways.

In the latter part of January, 1918, we walked to the target RANGE at Camp Bull, a distance of about 24 miles. One thing I well remember about this was, that one quart of water was all you was allowed to make the trip on. Most of us drank all of that at the noon hour, and made the balance of the walk without water, which learned us a good lesson afterwards, that when we had only a small amount of water, just to drink a small low every hour or two and make it go a long way. We had lots of fun out there as everyone enjoyed the shooting. We slept in tents and carried our wood for one to two miles. Those tents seemed very cold in comparison with the good barracks we left at Camp Travis. Then we did not wonder at the boys dying in Camp Bowie with pneumonia. I had a cousin there and he liked to have passed them in, but these tents were a paradise to some of the places we slept in after reaching the range. I took the mumps and was sent back to Camp Travis to the Mump Ward, where a sick man was treated very nice. Had to eat rice and sweet milk all the time I was there. Sure had attentive nurse to two old boys to wait on about 250 men who were kept very busy. Here I fell in LOVE with the Army Chaplain, as he would bring us our mail from home to cheer us up every day, and such other niceties as we craved. Here I want to give praise to all Chaplains, for they had tremendous jobs on their hands all the time. In the U. S. A. they had the assistance of the various church women. For instance, the various churches in San Antonio would come out to the Y. M. C. A. and give out a nice, clean program, which made us feel that here were some good people left in the old world. This was under the direction of the Chaplains. On the other side of the pond, they had all this to do without the help of these good women.

On March 25th, 1918, most of our men were transferred to Camp Logan near Houston, and other places. In May we received a full quota of men from Camp Dodge, Iowa and other places. These were all rookies and we had to drill them every day. Wednesday and Saturday evenings were cut out, and we were certainly thankful that the good Lord left Sunday for rest. We had sham battles every day nearly, and sometimes at night. One night we were making a charge on a bunch of men, and the M. P.'s were making a charge right across our territory on horses. I was afraid some of my men might get hurt, and I gave the command "Fire" and maybe those horse did not stop, when those blank cartridges fired into 'em. This gave away our identity, and my whole bunch got captured, but no one hurt. They would tell us to do things that looked almost impossible, but they taught us that "nothing is impossible in the army," and we soon got to where we believed it.

We paraded at various times in San Antonio, for the Liberty Loan; was inspected by the Governor of Oklahoma, who said we were a typical bunch of men of the Great Southwest, and was sure that we would be equal to the occasion that confronted us.

In December 1917, General Allen went Overseas to get a personal view of the Western Front and returned in the Spring, and everyone was looking forward to the day when we would leave for "Overseas."

SCHOOLS GET THIRTEEN DOLLARS PER CAPITA

At a recent meeting of the State School Board of Education, the appropriation was fixed at $13.00 per capita. The total number of scholars in the State was reported by the State Superintendent at 1,298,282. The estimate of expenses for the purchase of free textbooks for the scholastic year 1920-21 was given as $1,681,603. The balance in the text-book fund on Sept. 1st, was $300,000. The board set aside $1,381,603 as a text book fund, the board being required to include each year the balance in the text book fund to meet the expenses of the ensuing year.

The production of a 15c tax for the text books was estimated at $4,044,503. Deducting from this the amount set aside for the text book fund, it was found that from this 15c tax there would remain in the available school fund for the session of 1920-21 $2,662,959.

a thing that Bill Dale could not understand.

It was after midnight before he slept. He woke at the break of day, arose and dressed himself, and went out. Going toward the flower-filled front yard, he found himself facing a very angry John Moreland.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Matter enough," clipped the mountaineer. "Bill Dale, you ought to hear the noise 'at pap and the rest of 'em is a-makin'!"

"You'll get the truth if you get anything. Shoot the question."

"All right. What do you know about my gun?"

"About as much as you know of the left hind wheel of Ben Hur's chariot. What's wrong with it?"

Moreland's eyes were steady and Moreland's Eyes Were Steady and Cold.

cold. He thrust his hands into the pockets of his corduroy trousers. Then his face softened a trifle.

"I reckon I ought to ax your pardon," he said in a low voice. "Ye see, my gun's plumb gone."

"You had it only last night," Dale said. "Did it disappear?"

"Whist! I slept," cut in the hillman. "Both of my guns is gone. And Luke's repeater is gone, and so is Cale's, and we hain't got nuthin' at all to fight them 4—Littlefords with."

"Gone!" Dale exclaimed wonderingly and it seemed to him—insanely.

"It must ha' been the Littlefords, I guess," frowned Moreland. "Fo' because who else would ha' done it? But to save the life of me I can't see how they got in and took my rifle without wakin' me up, Bill Dale. I slept twice as light as a sick mouse."

Within ten more minutes, every man of the Morelands was gathered there at the house of their chief—and every man of them had lost their weapons during the night!

John Moreland called Dale aside and said to him:

"You're high on the good side of them that triffin' Heckes, and so for as they know, you ain't interestin' in the feud. I wish you'd t'own that and see by and his mother, and see if ye can find out whar our rifles went."

When Dale had gone off down the dusty oxwagon road, Caleb Moreland climbed a tall ash that grew behind his father's cabin and kept a watch toward the Littleford side of the river. He saw a group of men standing in Ben Littleford's cabin yard, and nothing else.

A little more than a quarter of an hour after Dale left John Moreland entered by the gateless gateway at the cabin of the Heckes. It was a dilapidated place, and it stood not far from the river. By sat in the front doorway, he was lazily cutting a new midway sun mark in the place of the worn old one. Behind him sat his mother, who was busily knitting a gray yarn stocking.

The moonlight looked up and started quickly to his feet.

"Hi, thar, Bill, old boy?" he greeted cordially. "My gosh, but ye've come at the right time, shore. We're a-goin to have your squires fo' dinner, and a biled hamshank with string beans and cavabread made with the yellow 'ole aigs. Live whilst ye do live says I. Come right in, Bill, old boy."

"La, la, la!" cried Granny Heck looking over the brass rim of her spectacles. "How glad I am to see ye, Mr. Bill! Come right in and tell us the news."

Bill Dale crossed the threshold and accepted a creaking chair. His eyes took in at a sweeping glance the home-made dining table with its cover of red oilcloth, the broken cast-iron stove, the strings of dried peppers hanging on the log walls, the broken stillwurm lying in the corner.

"The Littlefords," said Dale, "have declared war."

"Sakes!" laughed the old woman. "We knowed that last night when we heered them ten shots."

"And all the Moreland rifles are missing," Dale watched the effect of his words.

"Whatt!" the Heckes cried in one voice.

Their surprise seemed genuine. Dale pressed the subject further and learned only that if they knew anything concerning the disappearance of the rifles they were not going to tell. Then he started homeward by way of the pool above the blown-down sycamore.

There was a chance that Ben Littleford's daughter would be there fishing. Dale told himself, and it was barely possible that she could throw some light on the mystery of the rifles.

He crossed the river by means of the prostrate tree. Babo was there; she sat on the stone on which she had been sitting the morning before; her back was to him, and her bare feet were in the water to her ankles. Dale went up close, stopped and gathered a handful of violets and dropped them over her shoulder and into her lap.

Babe looked around and smiled.

"What luck, Miss Littleford?"

"Nothin'. I don't much want to ketch anything," she said slowly, a spirit of sadness in her musical voice.

"—I just come out down here to be whar it's quiet. You ought to hear the noise 'at pap and the rest of 'em is a-makin'!"

Dale narrowed his eyes. "Are they—er, making a noise? And what about?"

"My goodness gracious alive! You'd think if ye could hear 'em! You'd ought to hear pap cuss John Moreland!"

She shrugged her pretty shoulders, lifted the small end of her rod to its proper place, and went on, "I never did see pap half as mad as he was when he got home last night from a-follerin' me."

"Mad at you?" asked Dale.

There is no more loyal bunch of women anywhere to their county than the Terry county women. Mrs. W. H. Dallas said to the editor when we met at the Terry County booth last week that she almost felt like shouting when she learned that Terry had won first prize. Her expression was typical of others. A Lubbock professional man who visits Terry county a great deal remarked that it was amusing to watch Terry county women float over the Terry county booth and it mattered not where they live in Terry now or had some time lived there, it was all the same. With such a bunch of ladies, is it any wonder the men go in to win?

Remember the County Sunday Convention at Gomez Saturday night and Sunday. The Gomez folks are putting forth every effort to make this the greatest convention yet held, and they are expecting a bunch of good singers and song leaders from several adjoining counties.

B. J. Leedy, proprietor of the Leedy Market, left Tuesday for Dallas, where he accompanied the Terry county exhibit. Jake will arrange and decorate the booth for this county, and it will no doubt be Al when completed, for this Tahoka citizen is in a class to himself when it comes to this line of work. Brownfield citizens made a special trip to Tahoka the past week to secure Mr. Leedy for this work—Tahoka News.

HARRIS HAPPENINGS

By Sand Bur.
The many friends of Walter (Pony) Potts, will be deeply grieved to hear of his death, which occurred in a hospital in Wichita Falls, Thursday, Oct. 6th. He was stricken with paralysis about a month before and was unable to be moved home. Pony was raised in Kentucky, but came West several years ago and made his home in the Harris community most of the time until recently. He was noted for his jolly disposition and for his ability to see the humor in any and every situation. He was ever faithful to his convictions of right and always obedient to the demands of honor and justice. These, together with his many other sterling qualities of character made him greatly admired and liked by all. His body was taken to Kentucky by one of his brothers. He is survived by his mother and several brothers and sisters there. We, his closest friends of latter years, extend to them our deepest sympathy.

And let us all remember that life is uncertain, and may we no longer postpone that all important preparation for eternity, but let us live so that when our summons comes we shall go to meet our loved ones in that land where separation and death are known no more forever.

J. A. Taylor went to Lubbock Friday to meet his wife and little son, who have been visiting her mother in Wheeler county.

Our schools have one month of work in now, and are moving along nicely. The pupils seem much interested and so do the teachers.

Glen Harris from Brownfield came out Saturday, and Sunday, accompanied by Miss Thelma Latham, he went after his wife and baby who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Latham in New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark and the children were Brownfield callers this week.

Mr. Harris and Miss Ethel vaccinated their calves Saturday.

Marlin Ellington and wife and little Evelyn, spent Saturday night and Sunday with F.M. Ellington and family.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. French, Wade and H. P. Jr., visited Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hill, Sunday.

Miss Fern Harris is still unable to attend school.

Mrs. McMillan spent Monday with Mrs. French.

MRS. ADAIR DEAD
Mrs. Cornelia Adair, owner of the famous J. A. Ranch, near Clarendon, died yesterday at her home in London, England, according to press dispatches in today's papers. She was past 84 years of age and was one of the largest ranch owners in the country, and an annual visitor to Clarendon.—Hedley Informer.

The Maids and Matrons Club have a library at the First National Bank. Come look over our books. We are going to get some new ones in soon.

TOKIO TALKINGS

By Grasshopper.
Well, Jack Frost made a short visit, but didn't stay long enough to do any damage. Hope he won't return for several days.

A. V. Taylor went to Brownfield, Saturday and sold eighteen gallons of Terry county syrup and made a deal with W. M. Parks to feed his two year old steers, as Terry has a surplus of feed. Why not feed it and save freight.

Uncle Johnnie Knox is visiting A. V. Taylor a few days.

Sunday school was dismissed for next Sunday on account of the Singing Convention at Gomez.

Mr. McCulloch is cutting feed for J. S. Day.

J. C. Scudday and son Arthur made a trip to Seminole.

Messrs Hight and Waters returned part of the seats, as they did not have room in the school house for them. These men are hustlers when it comes to school work. We wish for Happy a successful term.

Tokio school has dismissed to gather the crops.

Norman Lovelace and Mr. Pippin went to the gin, Saturday.

Several people claim they are nearly done picking cotton. This early to get through gathering cotton was never known in Terry county before.

FIND HISTORIC CORN IN TENNESSEE STONE GRAVE

Corn that grew in Tennessee in pre-historic times, possibly before Joseph put away his seven years supply in Egypt, was unearthed recently by W. E. Meyer, of the Bureau of American Ethnology, and sent to the United States Department of Agriculture for classification and identification. During recent excavations in Davidson county, Tenn., Mr. Meyer came upon a number of stone slab graves containing mortuary vessels. Some of these held specimens of charred maize in fairly good condition. From the size and shape of the grains it was possible to identify the variety as Many-Rowed Tropical Flint and popcorn.

The same type of Indian corn occurs in the West Indies, and there is no question in the minds of scientists but that there was a very early communication between the West Indies and North America. Not only corn, but beans, squash, pumpkin and tobacco are of tropical and subtropical origin. These staples, now so important throughout both hemispheres, found their way into North America and were cultivated beyond the Great Lakes in Canada long before the discovery of America. There is abundant evidence of communication between the West Indies and Florida, and up the Mississippi and its tributaries.

A number of the school children are now out of school and helping nearby farmers get out the fleecy staple.

J. E. Fitzgerald of the Harris community was in this week and became a reader of the Herald. Mr. Fitzgerald has been in poor health for the past year or two.

POTASH IS A VALUABLE MINERAL

Like many other minerals, new uses are constantly being found for it. It has a great value now because the United States government is trying to develop a sufficient quality to make it independent of the rest of the world. In 1913, the United States imported from Germany alone over 500,000 tons of Potash valued at approximately $180,000,000.

It is used in surgery for destroying warts and fungus growths. In the form of lapis informis, or lapis causticus, it may be applied beneficially to bites of dogs, venomous insects, serpents, etc. In chemistry, it is extensively used, both in manufacture and as an agent in analysis.

It is the basis of common soft soaps and it is also used in the compounding of a valuable medicinal water, Chloride of Potassium, known as murate of potash, closely resembles our common salt. It enters into the manufacture of salt petre, alum, fertilizer, dyes, drugs, matches, calico, printing, dyeing, filling friction tubes for firing cannon, photography, gunpowder, tanning leather and other uses.

It is a well known source of oxygen, liquifies at 150 degrees and conducts electricity like the common metals. It may be mined from a shaft like coal or copper, or it may be liquified and pumped out as an ordinary oil well. When found at all it is usually found in large deposits, and substantial development is an asset in any community for years to come.

CARE OF THE MOUTH AND THE TEETH

By Manton M. Carrick, M. D., State Health Officer.

Infected gums and tooth sockets can cause the following diseases: acute rheumatism, chronic rheumatism (so called arthritis deformans), (chronically deformed joints), exophthalmic goitre, ulcer of the stomach, duodenal ulcer, functional and organic heart disease, acute and chronic kidney disease, diabetes and diseases of the pancreas, infection of the cavities of the face and head, brain abscess, anemia, Hodgkins disease (glandular affection) and neuritis.

Do not clean the outer surface of the teeth with a back and forth motion, but with a circular motion.

The inner surface may be cleaned with a back and forth motion.

Take at least two minutes to clean the teeth.

The tongue as well as the teeth often needs cleaning.

Pull the tongue forward with napkin or clean handkerchief and clean the root with tongue scraper or tooth brush and soap.

Infection in tonsils, nose and ears may cause serious troubles, as do infected teeth.

Strong antiseptic washes are harmful.

If gum infection, or root infection, or pyorrhea, exist and cannot be cured, it is better to remove the teeth than to suffer ill health.

Remember in protecting against disease, a tooth brush is a mighty weapon, but it can be misused to the injury of the gum.

A medium brush should be used and pure white soap instead of powders and pastes.

Experts to Mexico jumped from less than $50,000,000 prior to 1917 to $280,000,000 in 1921. The fact that thousands of Americans are daily going into Mexico that the trains are running through Pullmans and that a silver service has been inaugurated in honor of the belief of many Americans in the future of Mexico.

President Obregon Very Popular.

Mexico recently celebrated its Centennial. One hundred years ago the country became an independent nation and although it has been torn many times by internal strife there is every indication that the period of revolutions has passed and that Mexico is settled upon an era of commercial and industrial growth. That Mexico has safely passed the crisis in this possibility is most plainly shown in the open manner in which President Obregon participated in the festivities incident to the Centennial celebration and the fact that no uprising of any kind was even rumored.

September 27th when 16,000 soldiers passed in review before the President and his staff would have been an admirable opportunity for some person to have made the effort. Nothing occurred however, and following the ceremony, without escort of any kind, President Obregon with his children rode through the streets to Chapultepec. He was greeted on every side in a manner most cordial to any observer; this more than he had the rumors that Mexico is ready to meet him aside, which have been constantly circulated by persons and interests to whom the Mexican government have failed to make sense.

OPPORTUNITIES ARE NUMEROUS IN MEXICO

POSSIBILITIES FOR COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT INCREASING DAILY.

DEPARTMENTS WILL HELP

Department of Commerce, Industry and Labor Urges Inquiries on All Questions.

Consular reports compiled show that more than thirty thousand people recently crossed the Rio Grande into Mexico from the United States upon the occasion of the celebration of the Centennial Exposition of that country. Those who have been following closely the commercial and industrial situation in Mexico believe that this is the indication of a development along the lines unprejudiced in Mexico's history. Business conditions in Mexico have more or less reflected similar conditions in the United States but during the past few months Mexico has been visited by some of the most important financiers in the world with the result that possibilities for an early recognition of that country have been growing brighter each month.

Adjustment of matters pertaining to oil holdings, the extension of long lines of credit by some of the most powerful commercial organizations in the world, the possibility of an early payment of interest on national debt have all contributed to the advance of Mexican interests.

The United States has been offered an opportunity of developing a strong commercial tie in Mexico and many manufacturers and exporters have been taking advantage of the opportunity. During the year 1920 the trade between the two countries amounted to $388,045,272, of which Mexico bought from the United States $207,834,197 and sold to the United States $180,191,075. This has been increased during 1921 so that the total business between the two countries for the twelve months ending June 30, 1921, was $422,202,330, of which Mexico bought $267,269,366 and sold $154,932,964.

Mexico bought during these twelve months $751,133 worth of automobiles and parts; $4,474,078 worth of locomotives; $941,418 worth of sewing machines; $6,097,735 worth of lumber for building; $1,511,675 worth of flour; $5,410,544 worth of corn and $387,432 pounds of barbed wire. The sale of lumber and barbed wire indicate the fact that ranching is coming back strong.

Exports to Mexico jumped from less than $50,000,000 prior to 1917 to $280,000,000 in 1921. The fact that thousands of Americans are daily going into Mexico that the trains are running through Pullmans and that a silver service has been inaugurated in honor of the belief of many Americans in the future of Mexico.

Mexico expended in the United States last year for meals and meat foods $7,184,899, of which amount more than five million was expended for hard and large compounds and the balance for hams, beans and sausage. Fresh meat is being imported into Mexico on the hoof and every day several trains of cattle from Texas arrive in Mexico City or other points of slaughter.

There is a good market in Mexico for dairy cattle and many haciendas are stocking their ranches again with cattle to replace those destroyed during the revolutions.

A decree has been issued providing for a fifty per cent decrease in the present import and export duties on cattle effective September 1st. While the decree is especially aimed at increasing the import of stock for meat and breeding purposes it also aids American livestock owners by enabling them to pasture in Mexico.

Department Furnishes Information.

The Department of Commerce, Industry and Labor of the Mexican government welcomes any questions as to conditions in Mexico with reference to any commercial or industrial pursuit. Letters should be addressed to the Secretary of the department and they will then be referred to the proper departments. There has been much information advanced with reference to Mexico that has not been authentic and the department is desirous of giving first hand information to any person interested.
