OUR LITTLE VILLAGE

By R. L. Graves

Shall our little village progress? Shall we have lights and water and live in the enjoyment as others in like circumstances are?

Perhaps before you ask the above question you had better be introduced; for our manners are very rustic; we are the very soul of punctilio. Our village is situated in the very best of the most productive sections of the great and fertile western plains of Texas; and the most of us pioneers, raised at the back of the chuck-wagon, on prime beef (un-branded) and black coffee, a free and easy going people—so long as the going is our way—mild disposition and manners; always hospitable and always ready to drink and talk with anyone.

If you were to "date" our village 1830, it would be alright. Our furniture is golden oak, full of curves. On the walls of our home hangs colored enlargements of the photographs of our families. We feel that there is no carpet like Brussell, with plenty of pink and green and brown to match the roses on the wall paper, which appear as large as full grown cabbage.

Shall we have electric lights? After all there is comfort in a good kerosene lamp with a china shade, and its brass works kept shining by those remorseless housekeepers—our wives—so long as Tom and Bill handle the oil.

As for the architecture, our little cottages are square and unpainted with little porches. Down by the post office there is quite a piece of sidewalk, and the county dads "blowed" themselves for a curb to the court-house square; but for the rest a deep worn trail is ample; no accidents as yet; thanks to the town constable.

Now that you know us, ask us any thing you like. Would you care to know about our politics? By hereditarily, we of course, are democrats. Our politics are like our religion: it is taken for granted, and it would be as improper to start an argument in the post office about the racy as to question the Virgin's birth. It's probably just as well that we did not go into the League of Nations. At the time we were inclined to think it was a good thing, but now, things are different. The foreigners are a trick lot anyway.

Prohibition—why, yes—well prohibition is probably a good thing. Maine has had it for a half century, and it hasn't hurt Maine any. There is some look'ing, of course, always has been a little; but the boys of the village grow up without seeing a saloon, and there is no wife who needs to fear her husband.

Another problem which gives us no worry at all is the labor question. This is because our men work for themselves, or the wife and children do the work. Every man's effort is directly productive every day. To be sure, a few of us are shiftless, lazy; but our village regard these as natural causes. We read about these labor unions and strikes in the Herald, and though we all work with our hands, our sympathy as a whole is with the employer, right or wrong.

The high cost of living has not meant so much to us as the city dwellers, since we take a great part of our substance from the soil. The farm-

TERRY COUNTY FARMER WARNS BROTHER PLANTERS

Tolles, Texas, Dec. 13, 1921.
Editor Terry County Herald.

Dear sir:—You will please find clippings from the Star-Telegram which I believe to be worthy of your careful consideration, from the fact that we think you are interested in the development of the South Plains country, and especially Terry county, which is fast developing into a cotton country.

Some time ago the writer met a gentleman in Brownfield who had a car of cotton seed on the tract at Lubbock, who insisted that we should buy some of them for planting purposes, but on investigation we found they were shipped from the boll weevil district, and because of this fact, we refused to buy his seed for planting. Now we do not claim to be authority on the weevil, but think it would be advisable for farmers to investigate the matter before buying planting seed that have been shipped in from the boll weevil infested territory.

Let us hear from you through the columns of the Herald; the best paper in the west, and the farmer's friend.

Some people are able to put in their own lighting systems; others are not, and if they want electric lights they have to go in cahoots with their neighbors in like condition, and that just means: Vote for lights and a water system Dec. 30th.

Readers, as the custom has been with us ever since we have had control of the Herald, which has been for the past twelve years, there will be no paper Christmas week. Remember this and do not write in to us telling us you received no paper that week.

The last of the family that imported the "niggers" to Terry county last spring, left this week. The old man quit his wife and left with the "fuzzy" heads some time ago, and this week his wife packed her traps and left for old South Texas where the niggers are rank in growth and smell. We hope this is the last of this class of citizens—with all due respect for the prominent citizen of Lubbock, who so whole heartedly recommended this family.

Editor Buck of the Crosbyton Review recently told Editor Smith of the Lockney Beacon to a good, jam up cleaning for making some slight remark about President Harding and the disarmament conference at Washington. Editor Duck seems to think a country editor commits some sort of blasphemy in criticizing the present administration, and we demarcate felt the same way two years ago about the matter. We do not doubt that Uncle Warren is doing the best he knows, but that does not mean that we do not agree with most critics that the present arrangement is only a relapse of the League of Nations that the Republicans tore their hair so much about. We'll bet a ginger cake that Editor Duck can't tell the difference in Article 10 and Article 2 of the present conference, if one leaves out the territory covered, if they were shooed up in a basket.

Rev. J. F. Curry, Missionary for the Brownfield Baptist Association, was over this week looking after the gathering of a corn crop his boys made this year. He has just returned from the Baptist Convention at Dallas and informed us that the people in Central West Texas were certainly up against it for drinking water. Come to Terry—Terry County Herald.

Rev. Curry is a citizen of Lynn county, although Stricklin states in the above item that he was just "over". Bro. Curry moved from sandy Terry to Lynn county, although you notice that the Herald editor did not see fit to mention this fact. Come to Lynn the banner county of the great South Plains—Tahoka News.

Editor Haynes thinks he has climbed a high horse this time, and we have been letting him down easy here before, but we are going to drop him hard this time. Rev. Curry bought Lynn county land because you can't trade city property for Terry county land; he tried it. Yes the boys made a car of corn this year, which will probably be their last crop unless they move back to "sandy" Terry. The reason we did not mention Lynn county in connection with "water" was that Rev. Curry was regretting at that time that he did not have a well of real "water" on his place. He said the well was weak and the water almost unfit for use. As to the banner county, the judges at the South Plains Fair, Lubbock, Texas, have disagreed with Haynes two years in succession, and Lynn county stood in class four, and Terry in class three at the Dallas Fair last fall. Haynes, before God, if we were you, we'd hush that banner stuff. You've been knocked into the gutter enough not to realize it in you are wise. Another thing, a man as prominent as Rev. Curry, doesn't have to have his address attached every time his name is mentioned. We gave the readers of the Herald a long article of regrets for having to move from Brownfield to Lynn county, from the pen of Rev. Curry. The Lynn County News did not deem it wise to publish either. Come to Terry.

A wire from Elder C. B. Glasgow, of Anson was received Monday, announcing that he and family would be here by Jan. 1st or before. Therefore it is safe to announce that he will fill the pulpit at the Church of Christ on the 1st Sunday morning and night. The preacher is well under way now and if pretty weather prevails it is hoped to have it complete on his arrival.

Mrs. J. A. Cowan spent several days in Lubbock, shopping, last week.

Miss Frankie Freshbare filed suit in the county court last week against Mr. Onija Seeds, for $20,000 damages. Both parties are residents of Seagraves. Mr. Seeds is accused of inducing Miss Freshbare to come to Seagraves by promising her that the climate here would cause her hair to grow at the rate of thirty miles per minute. Mr. Seeds contends that the word used was not "grow" but "go," a detective is now at work trying to secure the letter that Mr. Seeds wrote to Miss Freshbare, and which is supposed to be in the possession of Miss Freshbare's sister.

Mrs. Marshall Kendrick entertained the Maids and Matrons Club, Tues. Dec. 18th.

Quite a lot of business was dispatched, after which Mrs. Bell took charge of the program.

Points on all the characters studied were well brought out. The bright prospects of Saul, Israel's first king, how by disobedience to God, he and all his sons were killed.

David, the shepherd boy, who succeeded Saul. David, as we know, was prone to sin, but was always repentant, and a "man after God's own heart."

Solomon, David's son, who built the beautiful temple, and when he was made king, prayed for wisdom to rule his people well, and because he asked for wisdom, riches, honor and glory were given him.

Elijah, the prophet, that stern man of God, who so fearlessly rebuked King Ahab and his wicked wife, Jezebel, but when threatened by Jezebel, fled for his life into the wilderness. There being fed by the "angel" went on the strength of that meal forty days and forty nights.

Club members who were unable to attend these meetings are missing very interesting lessons.

After the lesson, the hostess served delicious hot chocolate and cake.

The next meeting will be with Miss Dora Daugherty, Jan. 2, 1922.

SEAGRAVES NEWS

We thought of "Seagraves Sayings" just as we were getting ready for bed, so we prepared them and will now proceed to tramp half a mile through the sand to the post office—but ain't it worth it though?—Then after all that trouble have them to arrive here too late for publication.—Editor.

BEHIND THE BARS
(With apologies to Tennyson)
The night is cold,
Our jewels are sold;
Yet half of the story,
Has not yet been told.
The wind blows,
Our toe nails are froze;
Yet only half the story,
Has been unfolded.

For there's a rite
In the cottonwood tree
The fire lit.

And now we sit,
And dip our snuff
And spit and spit and spit,

Mesdames Lewellyn and Winslow entertained the "42" Club at the cozy home of Mrs. Lewellyn. Dainty sandwiches with hot chocolate and cake were served, after an hour and half of entertainment, on last Thursday afternoon. The club will meet next week at the home of Mrs. John Hudson, with Miss Bushburn as joint hostess.

Miss Oleta Herman arrived early Saturday morning to make a prolonged visit of probably 18 or 29 years with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hayes, of this city.

The first term of our school will have ended Friday night the 16th with a plump punchy program. "Red Rider Reid" of Rank River, will appear in the monologue, and entertain throughout the program.

The train comes into Seagraves 4 to 6 hours late almost every day. We were with the editor that it would be a wise plan for the railroad company to send down a special for the heavy shipments of cattle at this time of year. Not only is the train crew overworked everyday, but the citizens and merchants as well are greatly inconvenienced.

Bro. Weems filled his regular appointment Sunday morning and evening.

level me!"

Then to Dale, "Well, Bill, what're we going to do with this here cussed polecat Goff?"

Dale turned to the shyster coal man, who was still being closely watched by Heck.

"I told you I was pretty apt to thrash you the next time we met, didn't I?" slipped Dale. "Do you want to get out of this country for good, or do you want to fight me to a finish? I'm through talking right now, Goff."

"I'd guess I'd rather fade," acknowledged Goff.

"Then fade!"

Goff slunk off through the brush.

When they had covered a mile, John Moreland grasped Dale by an arm and said to him:

"I reckon you think we're sort of blood-thirsty, by us a-waitin' to kill off that polecat Goff, don't ye? Well, we ain't blood-thirsty, Bill. Them Bails and Turveys ain't worth nothin' to themselves, nor to their families, nor to nobody else. The sooner they're dead the better off they'll be, and the better off their families'll be, and the better off everybody else will be. You ain't safe, nor I ain't safe, as long as they're alive."

"We like you, Bill Dale," he continued gravely. "And you're shore worth it. You wouldn't sell out to that cussed polecat, even to save your own life, and that's what I call a nerve and principle in ye. Bill Dale, they ain't many men in this here whole outfit who wouldn't give ye the last drop o' blood in their bodies, if ye needed it. To the right, Bill--shere of us is a cliff."

GOOD MUSIC IN SUNDAY SCHOOL.

In planning this part of our Sunday School work, we should see to it that the very best hymns are sung. Ask the average adult what influence made the deepest impression on his childhood, and he will be apt to say: "The song I heard." Ask the middle aged person to name their favorite songs, and they will tell you the ones their mother sang and the ones they heard at Sunday School. These facts help us to see the importance of plenty and the best of singing at Sunday School. The songs we sing make a permanent impression on the memory and have a lasting influence on our children. What are you doing for the Sunday School in Brownfield? What have you ever done to make the old world better? What kind of memory will you leave for yourself? Will it be something that does not give happiness? Or will it be part of this great Sunday School work that will never die, and will remind men and women that when you lived you were a part of the Sunday School, and are missed by all?

As a teacher in the Brownfield Sunday Schools, I am praying that my Church and people will awaken to their duty and be about the Master's work. Come to our Sunday

WEDDING

Mr. Aubrey Thomas and Miss Verner Carter, of the Ropesville country drove down last Thursday, and were united in marriage by Rev. J. W. Baughman at the residence of A. J. Stricklin.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Carter of that community, and will make the groom a splendid helpmate.

The groom is a prominent young farmer of that community, and a nephew of the editor of this paper.

They were accompanied down here by the bride's brother, Bill Carter and wife, and her sister, Miss Florence Carter.

Rev. J. E. Anderson gave his audience at the Baptist church Sunday night a review of Dr. Norris' address at the First Baptist church at Fort Worth, recently, that caused the resignation of a Baylor University professor. This infidelity is now up to the common people of Texas, and it must be eradicated, root and branch by them, or in a few more decades we are going to be under the same "kultur" system that Germany found itself before the war. We are glad our ministers are taking up the gauntlet to wage the fight.

Mr. U. D. Smith, of the Tokio community left Wed. for Monday, where he will visit during the holidays.

Alex. Humphries and wife left on Wed. for Lubbock, where they will visit his parents during the holidays.

The Herald received a beautiful Christmas tree from one of its subscribers, Mr. C. C. Gooden last week. We are not sure, but believe it spruce. Anyway, it is beautiful and much appreciated. Mr. Cowder lives at Middleborough, Ky. and is chief dispatcher for the L. & N. Railroad. He owns considerable land in old Yoakum county.

Elder J. F. Smith, of Abilene, Texas, representing the Abilene Christian College gave those who attended the Church of Christ Sunday night, a talk worth the money. He showed those present the danger of the materialistic tendency of our present day text books and many professors in our colleges and universities are now teaching such stuff. He said that the college he represented had always exercised much care in selecting their instructors, and would be even more careful from now on since the recent exposures and resignations in other church schools. The speaker believed that teachers in the public schools from this on should be questioned as to whether or not they believed the story of creation as recorded in Genesis.

MY EXPERIENCE IN THE WORLD WAR

By Homer R. Winston

The zero hour came at 5 o'clock in the morning, and there was no holding back; hesitating all along the line it was moved uniformly across no man's land. On the other hand most of the supporting troops were hard to hold at the proper distance from the front wave, and restrained from joining their comrades on the fighting line.

One who has ever taken a look at No Man's Land on this front, and seen that twisting, treacherous maze of wire and the hundreds of pit falls of ancient trenches, has failed to ask how it was possible for human beings to cross such obstacles in the face of hostile fire. French staff officers sent by Marshall Foch to see this historic region in which thousands of the French gave up their lives to advance the lines a few inches, gasped in astonishment when they heard the news that the American "doughboys" had done, and some of the boys themselves afterward wondered just how they did it.

But it is sufficient to say that these men from the Southwest were natives of barbed wire states.

It was a pretty hard job to get plenty of wire cutters. In each platoon four men were equipped with wire cutters and told off with nothing else to do but cut wire, so that the remainder of the platoon could pass. This plan worked pretty well. The scheme to detail engineers with torpedoes to accompany the assault wave, for the purpose of blowing up the wire entanglements was carried out, but was not a great success for the reason that from the time American and hostile lines drew close together, and the battle waxed hot, all process of wire cutting proved too slow, and each soldier solved the problem for himself, without the aid of any officer telling him how to do it and without cadence. Here the physical prowess of the men in ranks saved the day, and the bands were cleared at one leap. In the melee the clothes of hundreds were torn to shreds, and some arrived on the objective so naked that it was necessary to send them to the rear for new clothes to keep them from freezing.

By 2 p. m. our troops had reached the objectives all along the line, and were mopping up the enemy's positions in the woods which had been overlooked in the rush, and pushing them out beyond the lines. Not until several days had all German prisoners been smoked out of their hiding places. When the big artillery preparations came down at 1 a. m., on the 12th many of them sought cover and remained out of sight until the news was broken to them that their part of the war was over.

All officers that I saw on the front being picked off by the Germans, and you could not tell an officer from a private. Major Moran Smith of the infantry told a wagon driver who was carrying hot chow to the fighting men after the battle, not to drive on a certain road on account of heavy shelling, and this old kid answered: "I am not taking any orders from a big fat private; my wagon is needed up there and I am going." So he went on and the boys got something to eat. I remember one night on the front "Skinnie Williams" got his truck stuck, and he had been trying to jack it up, but the ground was so soft, and Major Allen came along and said: "It is the order of Major Allen for you to get in under the truck and jack it up." You tell Major Allen that if he wants this truck jacked up to get under it and do it himself," replied "Skinnie." So the Major crawled under himself in the mud and water and help "Skinnie" telling him who he was after it was all over, when "Skinnie" looked as white as a sheet.

While driving along a shell swept road with supplies for the front, a wagoner was stopped by an M. P. who said: "You can't go up that road, it is too dangerous." You "road?" inquired the driver. "I am in charge of the M. P.'s." Well, the German is shelling the devil out of it back-ways and it is your job to get better go back and look after it." With these parting words he slapped his wheel team and was soon out of sight.

At another time we were coming up the hill this side of Vilecy sur Trey, and came upon an ambulance stuck in the mud with four crippled boys and the driver, major and lieutenant in the front seat. We stopped the trucks to pull them out, which would not have taken two minutes. A shell hit by the side of the road, smashed up the ambulance a little, but did not hurt anybody. The major made a run for a shell hole close by and slipped in the mud and fell down. "Skinnie" laughed; the lieutenant "howled" him out and asked him if he did not know that he was liable to be killed any minute, to which "Skinnie" replied: "I would laugh to see a major crawl if a shell killed me the next minute."

I just mention these few things to show the disregard the men had for danger under fire; and another thing is, that a man can get used to anything.
