BROWNFIELD WANTS PLAINS TO FORT WORTH RAILROAD

Special to Star-Telegram
Brownfield, Texas, Jan. 11.—This city has not placed her name in the cities wanting to be on the line of the proposed Plains railroad, but arrangements are now being made to organize this city and territory in a strong effort to assure the construction of the railroad thru the Brownfield territory.

Brownfield is on an almost direct line between Fort Worth and Roswell. Local parties interested in the construction of this line have mapped out a route that would enable the builders to grade to the top of the cap rock on the eastern Plains at a minimum cost.

Brownfield proposed the following route:

From Fort Worth to Mineral Wells over the Texas & Pacific and the Mineral Wells & Northwestern; then the construction of a line from Mineral Wells via Breckenridge to Stamford; then the use of the Katy tracks to Rotan. Construction should then go from Rotan to Fluvanna, up the Moore's Draw to Bull Creek to the top of the Cap Rock, and from there via Tahoka, Brownfield, Plains City, and Tatum, N. M. to Roswell.

A survey made several years ago by Bull Creek and Moore's Draw route, and it was ascertained that the excavation could there be made at a cost little in excess of the ordinary grades below the caprock.

An enormous tonnage could be secured by any line of railway using this route, as it would penetrate the heart of the richest agricultural portion of the South Plains.

Aside from the various agricultural products it has now been definitely proven that both Terry and Lynn counties contain inexhaustible deposit of potash and kindred minerals. It is only a question of transportation and time before these deposits of such valuable minerals will be developed.

The city of Roswell offers extraordinary inducements to any bona fide railroad project and can be depended upon to do its part.

ELDER GLASGOW MOVES TO BROWNFIELD

Elder C. B. Glasgow closed a meeting with the Church of Christ in Brownfield on the South Plains, last week. There were six additions to the church by baptism. The church unanimously called Elder Glasgow to preach for them during the year 1922, and he and his family will move to Brownfield the first of January to take up local work with the church there. Elder Glasgow moved with his family to Anson the first of the year and has been preaching for three places in the county, Union, Truby and the Tabernacle congregation, and has conducted several protracted meetings with goodly numbers added to the church.

The friends of the family are expressing their regret at having to give them up, but our loss is Brownfield's gain.—Anson Enterprise.

EXPERTS COMING TO BROWNFIELD JAN. 27TH

The joint dairy-livestock-poultry campaign meeting to be held here on January 27th at 2:30 P. M., 1922, under the auspices of the local business men and farmers, should prove to be one of the largest attended and important meetings in the history of the county.

Having for its purpose the stimulation of the poultry industry, thru increased production and the better breeds; the propagation of practical plans for the importation of dairy cows and successful plans for the feeding of sorghum grains to livestock and baby beef. The experts on the team are expected to bring a message to the people here of commanding importance.

C. C. French, representing the Stockyards Co., and who is a member of the party, is well known as one of the foremost experts in the United States on cattle feeding. For more than 30 years he has been both a student and practitioner of the art of cattle feeding. He delivers a practical, comprehensive address.

J. W. Ridgeway, of the Midwest Creameries Co., of Amarillo and Ft. Worth, is a graduate of the A. & M. College and is an expert on dairy cow development. His address, always brings response.

Miss Merry will talk on poultry and Mr. Whitaker will talk on exhibits. They are both able speakers and know their subjects.

A LITTLE BOOKLET EVERY TEXAS FARMER SHOULD HAVE

The 3rd annual report of the Texas A. & M. College, has recently come from the press and contains the very newest and best information for the farmers of Texas, who are engaged in a business amounting to more than 25 million dollars annually. If one desires proper information about feeding and breeding of animals or treatment of animals suffering from disease or insect pests; proper fertilizer and cultivation of field crops or their protection from the ravages of plant disease and insects; what is best to do to provide ample fruits and vegetables for home or for market; how to study the fertility of the soil or the value of feeding stuff or fertilizers; how different varieties of corn, of cotton and various other field products compare with one another in production under fair tests in different sections of the State; how higher yielding strains of different crops are being developed and distributed by the Station; or, in general, information on the economics of farming and ranching, he should, by all means, read this report, which contains eighty pages describing in general and in simple language, the diverse activities of the Experiment Station activities.

As long as the supply lasts, this report will be mailed free to any person in Texas, if request is made to B. Youngblood, Director, College Station, Texas.

Mr. Motorist Where Headed In 1922?

A LARGER OR SMALLER CAR EXPENCE

Are you going to continue paying big repair bills? Or eliminate their cause? Will you keep on clogging your engine with carbon? Or stop this source of needless expence? Will you stand for losing one fifth of your car investment each year through depreciation? It all depends on whether you buy lubrication or just "OIL" whether the oil you use is the proper lubricant for your particular engine. Faulty lubrication is the chief cause of carbon, scored cylinders leaky valves, burned out bearings, weakened engine power, waste of gasoline and oil and high operating costs.

How can you be certain of getting the right oil? Ask for TEXACO the oil of four distinct types but only one quality, the highest.

MAN STEALS COTTON—PAYS FINE—RELEASED
A man by the name of Remes, who has worked for several different farmers in Lynn county, was lodged in a jail the past week charged with stealing cotton from the field of J.T. Wade. SEMINOLE BAPTISTS CALL PASTOR
The members of the local Baptist church have called Rev. L. McHan, of Eden, Texas, to pastor the Seminole church. It is not known at this time whether he will accept or not. We understand that this church is formulating plans to build a church building in the near future.—Seminole Sentinel.

Oh! if we could but gain a view with our physical eyes, into that Heavenly land and see our lambs under the care of the great Shepherd; see them in their spotless robes in the palace of the New Jerusalem surrounded by joys unspeakable; could we wish them back with us, to grow up under the temptations of sin and subject to the disappointments and the grievances, sickness and death that so surely awaits the wanderers in this wilderness of woe? Then dry your tears bereaved parents and turn them into floods of joy. The voice that called him away was his who said: "They belong to my Kingdom." The hand that took him away from you was His who once layed his benediction on the infant's head. He has set him in the midst of His admiring disciples above. He is now the darling little one of His Heavenly Father's house. The angels who watched over his bed are now rejoicing over his immortal beauty, as a lamb safely folded where the spoiler can never come. Heed them not who would bid you doubt; point them to the recorded censure of the Master, displeased at so unmerciful an unbelief. Out of the mouth of your babe, Christ's praise is perfected in the temple on High.

Prepare to meet him and your God in the abiding city, where Christ is the light thereof. I commend you to God and His comforting grace.

...nite all ready for the match—and he chose every step with great care for fear of jarring the explosive too much. He had not been gone an hour when Bill Dale heard a dull, smothered roar from somewhere to the northward. Dale sprang up from his desk, ran to his ready and waiting horse, mounted and rode like a streak toward the lowland.

Dale arrived at John Moreland's big white farmhouse a little before the middle of the day, and halloed lustily at the gate. John Moreland and his two sons hurried out in response to the call. Dale waved aside all greetings and inquiries after his health, and told that which he had come to tell. The elder Moreland turned quickly to his two stalwart sons—

"Guns and horses, boys! I'll be our last fight, and let's be at it and make it a good fight."

Less than five minutes later the three erstwhile mountaineers rode out at the barnyard gate with full belts of cartridges around their waists and with repeating rifles across the pommels of their saddles, and joined Dale. The four hastened to the homes of the other Morelands; and not long afterward, rode toward the big, dim-blue hills with Bill Dale acting as their leader. It was to be the clan's last fight, and a fight for a good cause, and every man of it was eager for the fray.

(To Be Continued) Worth Trying, Anyway.

If you want to insure yourself good luck, wear your new dress for the first time to church, so says old Doctor Lore, Doctor Folk Lore, to be more exact. Maybe the old gentleman was laughing up his sleeve the way he said this, believing in his heart that the good luck would follow attending church; but then it's just as well not to go to analyzing the whys and the wherefores of these old superstitions, because after all they are "just for fun."

CANCER

By the State Health Officer

Cancer is of greater frequency at ages over forty than tuberculosis, pneumonia or typhoid fever.

One woman in eight and one man in fourteen over forty years of age, dies of cancer. Cancer respects neither race, creed or social position.

It is the common enemy of all mankind. It attacks rich and poor alike.

Cancer is almost invariably at first a local disease.

It is easily cured if promptly recognized and at once removed by proper treatment.

It is almost always incurable in its later stages.

The disease usually begins in some unhealthy spot or some point of local irritation.

In cancer on the outside of the body there is something to be seen or felt, such as a wart, a mole, a lump or a scab, or an unhealed wound or sore. Pain is rarely present.

Cancer inside the body is often known by symptoms before a lump can be seen or felt. Constant indigestion, with loss of weight and a change of color, is always a danger sign.

The early and hopeful stages of cancer are usually painless.

Fear the beginning of cancer! Never be afraid to know the truth! Any painless lump or sore appearing upon the body should be examined by your doctor.

By the time a cancer has become painful the best chance for its cure has passed.

But even a painful cancer can be removed permanently if it has not extended too far beyond the place where it began.

If you notice that a wart, mole or other "mark" begins to change in appearance or to become sore, go to the doctor and have it completely removed. Do not wait until you are sure it is cancer.

All lumps on the breast should be examined.

Increased flowing or discharge when the change of life occurs may be a danger sign. So is the return of flowing after this time.

Medicine which relieves pain does not have any effect upon the disease itself; it simply delays the proper treatment.

The only cure for cancer is to remove every trace of the disease.

The only way to do this is by a surgical operation.

If taken at the beginning, the majority of cases of cancer are curable.

All cases will end in death if left alone.

Records of our best hospitals prove that the chances of cure are very high with early operations, and that these chances decrease with every day of delay.

Early diagnosis is therefore all-important.

You should consult your doctor as soon as you find a condition that is not normal.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BROWNFIELD, TEXAS

MY EXPERIENCE IN THE WORLD WAR

By Homer R. Winston

From the 22nd day of October, 1918 until the 11th of November we had a wild and snappy time. The French did not believe we could ever get through the Argonne, and believe me they were nearly right, but there is nothing impossible in the army. That sure is some muddy country. The way we got over some of the country was about like this: The engineers would lay trees crossways of the road, about 6 trees deep and then let the truck run over them at the rate of about two miles per hour, for about two days and then you have them mashed clean under the mud, then pile on gravel; then keep on piling on more gravel until you get it about five feet thick and then you have a road you might make ten miles per hour on. I have seen a shell hit in the middle of a good road; the boys would throw in several logs, about 20 or 30 spools of wire (for it was generally handy) and then pile on a few more logs and then let you pass.

There is one thing that minds me I shall never forget, just a little north of Montfaucon is a graveyard, at least there was one there then, and one night the Germans shelled, and blew up several bodies that had been buried six or seven days, and believe me things did not smell as they should, and I thought a hospital a better place than a battlefield. Round this town and Septarges was some of the largest shell holes I ever saw, and fact of the business, I don't think they were shell holes, but were mines. At Septarges the boys buried 28 horses in one hole, and then had about three feet left at the top.

About 400 yards north of the last above named place was a hospital, and I remember that the Germans sent over enough shells to kill eight men in one tent. A dentist I was acquainted with (the one that worked on my teeth at Camp Travis) was among them and several others were wounded. That night they sent over about 50 more that in and around Septarges, and set off the ammunition dump. If you don't believe they shelled that town, just ask any old boy that was through there from the 1st of Nov. to the 7th, and he will tell you that the town was a magnet for the purpose of drawing shells. Along in those days it looked like that everywhere you went, the Germans were right after you.

The 9th had to change ration dumps every few days, and it looked like to me the Major in charge was not satisfied unless he could pick a spot in plain view of the enemy. The first place was about one-half mile south of Nantillois; here they shelled us. Two boys of the 4th Div. (the division we relieved) were sleeping in about 50 yards from where they were unloading. A shell hit in about three feet of them; blown their tent stobs and tent out of existence, covered them with mud and gravel, and we had a good laugh after it was over about the boys looking so white. The next move was right north of the same town about one-half mile on top of a hill, and we had to unload our rations right in plain view of the Germans (and they were not blindfolded either) and about three days of this and we had our full, and so the Major moved it to Camel, down under the hill, but the blooming Germans must have seen us, for they knew exactly where we were and tried to see how close they could shoot to us and not kill anybody. The next move was to Sassy, and in about two or three days the Amistice was signed.

The above locations were merely the locations of the ration dumps; we were getting so far from Verdun that Headquarters had to be moved, so on the 5th of November, the supply train moved up a little north of Cierges and camped right out in the middle of a French battlefield, and before cooking supper had to move a few Germans that had been dead 4 or 5 days, off a couple of hundred yards and then wash and get ready for supper. (Such is active service.) The Germans were very stubborn on giving up land along this front, for all the machine gunners that I saw was the Prussian guard, and I imagine the orders were to die at their posts, for that is the way many of them died. So they would leave the machine gunners in the rear to hold back the infantry while their infantry retreated and looked like it took several of our boys to get two of them, for they were generally two to the hole.

On the evening of Nov. 2nd, I noticed several of the holes about one-fourth mile south of Villers De Dun, and several letters along in them, and most of them was the same old short story: "I am well and doing fine," and maybe you could go fifty steps in the direction of the enemy and find the boy that wrote the letter, dead. The V. M. C. man or the army chaplain would come along and pick the letter up and mail it to the beloved one. Headquarters would wire word to Washington that so and so was dead, and then in about three or four weeks this letter would show up and the folks would still have some hopes of him being alive. This is just an idea of mine hatched up, but still I believe it is true.

gives and camped right out in the middle of a French battlefield, and before cooking supper had to move a few Germans that had been dead 4 or 5 days, off a couple of hundred yards and then wash and get ready for supper. (Such is active service.) The Germans were very stubborn on giving up land along this front, for all the machine gunners that I saw was the Prussian guard, and I imagine the orders were to die at their posts, for that is the way many of them died. So they would leave the machine gunners in the rear to hold back the infantry while their infantry retreated and looked like it took several of our boys to get two of them, for they were generally two to the hole.

On the evening of Nov. 2nd, I noticed several of the holes about one-fourth mile south of Villers De Dun, and several letters along in them, and most of them was the same old short story: "I am well and doing fine," and maybe you could go fifty steps in the direction of the enemy and find the boy that wrote the letter, dead. The V. M. C. man or the army chaplain would come along and pick the letter up and mail it to the beloved one. Headquarters would wire word to Washington that so and so was dead, and then in about three or four weeks this letter would show up and the folks would still have some hopes of him being alive. This is just an idea of mine hatched up, but still I believe it is true.

TOKIO DOTS

By Grasshopper.

We are having some cool weather; ice thick enough not to melt during the day, but if we lived as far south as Sage Brush, it wouldn't bother us very much.

Bro. Oden passed through Tokio with a very sick baby taking it to the doctor at Brownfield. We learn since that it had pneumonia, but hope it will recover soon. It is unhandy to live so far from a doctor as Plains.

Roy Taylor went to Seagraves on business, Monday.

Jim Sullivan, son of Sam Sullivan, one of our old Terry neighbors, is visiting his uncle and aunt, Ed Spear and Mrs. Add Cox.

S. F. Lane is looking for the sheller out to shell his big corn crop.

Mr. Smyth, on uncle of Tom Yates' place, visited at A. V. Taylor's Sunday. Come again please.

Well, it does not look like the parson would jump on a little judge that did not have a tooth in his head, except manufactured ones, and who know but what his ideas are that scarce too. But we cannot but feel proud of the 2N4 preachers that will stand pat for religion on any occasion and we can't help but say Amen; ask the judge to go to church and Sunday School once a month anyway.

Howard King left for Raal's to make that his home in the future. Hop they succeed in their new home.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapian

We are still wishing for rain and wondering at the seeming partiality of the Rain Maker. The north Plains seems to have gotten the advantage this time.

Our barber, Rich Bennett, packed up a few evening since and pulled out leaving us with long hair and a weeks beard. At last account he had reached Brownfield, where he will gather the winter crop of fur on that delectable village. We will miss Rich's jolly face as well as his tonsorial skill. Here's hoping he will prosper and finally come back to us.

Mr. C. W. Avery, one of our enterprising merchants is at Lubbock having his appendix vermiformis repaired, and at last accounts was doing nicely.

Another of our business men, J.W. Pecker had a little dispute with an unruly steer, and is now wearing his good right arm in a sling. The steer however, seems no worse for the encounter.

Mr. George Hammack and son-in-law, Mr. Lucas, of Vernon, Texas, purchased 320 acres of land from Mr. Tharp the past week and will move here at an early date.

Mr. W. D. Smith has been quite sick for several days, but is better at his writing.

Dr. Watson, of Leonard, Texas was visiting here the past week, and talked as if he might move here in the not distant future.

TREACHERY DISCOVERED

The sun shone warm and brightly. As I was wondering thru the pines; For all life's joy was mine. My dreams were bright and pleasant. Of a day that was soon to come. But all my joy turned to sadness. When I wondered upon a tomb. It sat so still under the pine. That swayed and sobbed in grief; I stood mute and terror stricken.

For none could come to my relief. Who was the occupant of that coffin? Who dared to raise the lid? Who dared to stand in silence. And think the things I did? All the awful terror and horror In the silence there was mine; I dared not stir nor one leaf rustle. But the stillness was broken by the pine.

As I gazed upon the garnished whiteness Of that coffin I dared not bat an eyelid. None before ever stood so haunted. To dream the things I did. A shadow from heaven then sailed ever. Me, hurrying all sunlight from my life.

All was blackness in which the pine swailed. But it was only I who heard its cries. Then my courage grew much stronger. And lest I should wake the dead, I stole noiselessly toward the coffin. Down the path which to it led. My fingers trembled as they touched it.

And in my throat my heart did beat But was struck dumb when from the Lips of the corpse the word "retreat"

Though I heard the corpse thus whisper. Not one word could I utter. I could only stand in silence. While I heard the creature mutter. Ah! he muttered syllables every One so full of horror.

That when this vision comes back to me. I am struck with fear and terror. Not one sentence dare I utter; Not one word dare I repeat. Save the first word of warning. Save that ghostly ward "retreat!"

But I heeded not the warning. With trembling fingers I raised the lid— None ever gazed upon such As at that moment I did. Not the corpse I dreamed of seeing. Neither man nor woman before me lay.

But visions of things to come, yes Things to come in a future day. But I faced it all undaunted; Faced it there with bated breath. Every moment I was dying. Yet I never tasted death.

Never can I screw the lid upon that Coffin, nor shut the vision from my eye: I can never forget its horrors. Though this moment I should die. I can never forget those I loved. Whose names across those pages ran.

I can never forget their deceitfulness Nor their undermining plan. Tho' I loved them with deeper devotion.
