PLUNGE GETTING READY FOR OPENING

For the past two or three weeks heavy blasting has been heard in the southern edge of the town near the Big Plunge, swimming pool. The editor went down Monday morning and investigated and found that a large dug well was being made to the everlasting sheet water found about 60 feet under the surface. When completed a large engine will be placed on top of the surface with a large Cyntrifical pump of the latest type will be placed near the water and connected up. This favorite swimming pool can be filled within 10 to 12 hours.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.-Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settle-ment near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Marcus Mac-Kenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude.

CHAPTER II.-Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, as she supposed, but practically liv-ing on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin.

CHAPTER III.—Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money, and urging him to be patient. She already bitterly regrets her infatuation with and marriage to the ignorant farmer.

CHAPTER IV.—Polly conveys her mes-sage, and Oscar makes threats. He in-sists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter who has suffered from the enmity of MacKenzie, take an oath to do him no

The two women carry him from the road into the to get a doctor. She meets Percival, who accompanies her back to the hut. Evelyn tells Robert she is there on a visit to small Jerry. She insinuates that Bennett is Polly's sweetheart. Robert believes her, since the girl, true to a promise to Evelyn does not describe the second statement. ise to Evelyn, does not deny it. He conducts Evelyn from the hut, after bitterly denouncing Polly for her duplicity. Bennett dies and Evelyn is free.

"Yep, sure!" said Polly, "But sister's got to put on her boots. She can't go this way. It's too cold and the walk to Ithaca's too long, honey." Her brow puckered into a frown as she drew on her father's heavy boots and slipped into his ragged coat. Then she tucked the dress into the top of the boots that it might show as little as possible and went out again. It was a long climb to the boulevard; and the boy was heavy. But he was very quiet, and a sudden rush of tears almost blinded her as she turned toward the city. In her frightened state she threw the hand off; and another ejaculation came to her ears. Then two hands came under and groped for a grip. She fought strenuously to hold her place; but the person pulled her out by main force. Polly Hopkins was almost fainting wnen Robert Percival placed her on Rapidly she examined every corner: but all the places large enough to hold them both were in plain sight of anyone walking through. At the extreme end she discovered the stateroom; and when she went into it, a thankful feeling swept over her. Why Go Shopping?

When you want a pair of shoes or a fine hat or a suit of clothes why don't you order it over the phone? Just say send me a hat or a pair of shoes. No, that would be foolish, you would want to see what you were buying, and that is good business -but has it ever occured to you that you should see the kind of oil and gas you are buying, for your car-the one you took so much pains to look over and try out before you said: "I'll take 'er." I treat this old tin Lizzie with respect; she needs a good oil and gas worse after she gets worn than when new. Fill her up with Magnolia the DEPENDABLE oils and gas.
