FACTS

A fact is like a shadow—tags you all around as persistently as a Texas Oil stock man who has just heard you have sold your farm for cash.

Folks here are some clothing facts that may prove interesting to a few men who seem to think $25 to $35 for clothing too high—

It only requires about 3 1-2 lbs. of scoured wool to make a suit—a small item of course—but the labor from the SHEEP'S back to YOURS is the "big noise" and is double what it was in 1914—

Clothing shows the greatest reduction from peak prices of any commodity, and we want to assure you that future reductions on clothes will be only in the same ratio to other things we consume or use. There will only be a gradual reduction for many years—

There are good, reliable, all wool clothes here at from $25 to $35, and let us impress you with this—in order to get back to "normalcy" we should all buy what we need and forget the "has-beens" for its only in the consumption of goods, can materials we produce be used, and mills and factories with their millions of laborers kept moving—

MISS MATTIE MAE WOFFARD

DR. TREADAWAY ENJOYING BOTH WORK AND CHICAGO

Chicago, July 4th, 1922
Mr. A. J. Stricklin.

Dear friend—I am getting all the work I want from 8:30 A. M. to 4:00 P. M. I am perfectly delighted with the hospital work. I have to do a great deal of diagnosing and treating myself.

I was told that it would be too hot or me here in July, but so far it has been too cool for me. An overcoat would be comfortable today.

I may be in the midst of a street car strike tomorrow. The employees have passed a resolution to go out at 5 o'clock if the owners do not come to their terms prior to that time. The cause of the threatened strike is a cut of 25 per cent in wages. With prospective strikes in street cars and the railroads, and already a strike in the railroad shops, it seems I may be up here awhile.

I have not met anyone I ever knew since I arrived here, and have not seen a Texas paper, hence I will kindly as you to send me your paper while I am here.

Yours respectfully,
T. L. Treadaway

EVANGELIST E. CHRISTIAN

Is conducting a series of meetings under the auspices of the Church of Christ, at the Tabernacle, July 2nd to 16th. Services at 10:30 A.M. and at 8:30 P.M., daily.

Brother Christian is one of our best preachers. The church extends to everybody a cordial invitation to hear him.

N. S. Copeland, of Meadow, is leading the singing.
C. B. Glasgow, Minister.

MRS. WATTS PASSED AWAY ON LAST LORD'S DAY

Grandma Watts has at last been released from years of suffering, for on last Sunday morning at 10:40 o'clock her tired spirit took its flight to God who gave it, at the age of 80, had she lived until the 25th of this month. A Methodist preacher from Lamesa, an old friend of the family conducted the funeral services at the cemetery, and the body was consigned to its last resting place at 2:0 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Grandma Watts joined the Methodist church in early life and lived a consistent Christian life from then on, and was said to have been very regular in attendance when she had good health. During her short residence in this county she formed a afternoon. Funeral services were conducted at the grave by Rev. J. W. Baughman, assisted by Rev. Wheatley and C. B. Glasgow.

To the parents we would say, sorrow not as those who have no hope, for this little innocent babe is as sure for the pearly gates as there is a heaven, for Christ himself said: "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness and cheer rendered us during the long illness and death of our dear old mother and grandmother.

We shall always remember you and have a warm feeling in our heart for you.

MR. AND MRS. UMPHRESS LOSE 12 MONTH OLD BABY

It is with much sadness that we have to chronicle the death of the 18 month old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Umphress, which occurred last Saturday morning at about six o'clock. It had only been sick a few days.

The little body was laid to rest in the Brownfield cemetery Saturday number of warm friendships, and she was loved and respected by all who knew her. She leaves two sons, one of them, B. W. of this place, another in Mississippi, and a daughter, Mrs. Clingingsmith of the north Plains.

The Herald deeply sympathizes with the family in their great loss.

R. A. BALDWIN

Candidate for Re-Election to the Legislature, 119th Representative District

R. A. BALDWIN
Of Station, Lubbock County

Mr. Baldwin is our present representative in the Legislature having served one regular and four special sessions, or about one full term. We point with pride to his splendid record of service in behalf of this district and of West Texas.

He is one of the leading lawyers of West Texas, honest, courageous and aggressive, and on the right side of every moral question. Mr. Baldwin is preeminently fitted by education, training and experience for the important office of lawmaker. His experience and familiarity with the machinery of the State government will equip him for even more efficient service.

If anyone can secure laws favorable to our agricultural, educational and industrial interests and a square deal for West Texas, we believe Mr. Baldwin is that man.

The work to come before the Legislature the next two years demands men of sound judgement and genuine ability. The people pay the price of foolish laws, inefficiency and inexperience. As a man, as a lawyer, and as a wise, cautious and efficient legislator, we commend Mr. Baldwin to your favorable consideration in the Primary July 22nd.

A vote for him is a vote for the best interests of West Texas.

Very sincerely yours,
Baldwin Campaign Committee

A CLEAR TITLE ISN'T ANY TRIFLE

No, indeed! It's one of the most important things connected with the buying or exchanging of property. A clear title is the passport through the years; it's a clear mirror which reflects solace to you and those who come after you.

You will never be able to realize what you paid for a piece of property if the title isn't perfectly clear. You will never be free from the clutches of law unless your property claim is flawless.

What are you going to do? Not simply trust that the fates will be on your side, surely. Your better judgement will tell you to see the abstract specialists right away—before your property is taken right away from you.

We will consider it a pleasure to show you how completely ready we are to draw abstracts that go into the life of property thoroughly—a TRUE analysis of the property is the only abstract of title worth while—because.

An abstract that's true will work FOR YOU.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Lucie LeLan, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Anselmy, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably dressed as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Anselmy, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbiad, seemingly known to her, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball.

CHAPTER II—Lucie LeLan, recently the ward of her uncle, Joseph Maillard, is the Columbiad.

CHAPTER III—In his library Joseph Maillard and a group of friends are held up and robbed by the Midnight Masquer.

CHAPTER IV—Lucie LeLan, the last of an old family, is in straitened circumstances. Joseph Maillard's handling of her funds has been unfortunate. Fell is an old friend of her parents and deeply interested in the girl. Henry Gramont, really the prince de Gramont, son of a French father and an American mother, but who carries the title of prince, is enamored of Lucie and believes himself not unloved.

CHAPTER V—Gramont's chauffeur, Hammond, sergeant in the American army, is in love with Lucie. He was the original Midnight Masquer, and Gramont, for a particular purpose, after discovering Hammond's activities, assumes the role. Where Hammond had been a robber for financial gain, Gramont, of course, is not. He arranges to return the "loot" to those whom he has robbed. The jewels and money, in individual packages, are got ready for delivery next day to their original owners. That night they are stolen from Gramont's auto.

CHAPTER VI—Ben Cacherre, an industrial of mysterious character, appears to be associated with Joseph Fell. He has a peculiar interview with one Memphis Izzy Gumbert, notorious industrialist, in which there is a significant reference to a mysterious "box."

CHAPTER VII

In the Open.

In New Orleans the carnival season is always opened by the ball of the Twelfth Night Revelers soon after Christmas, and is closed by that of the Krewe of Comus on Mardi Gras night. Upon this evening of "Fat Tuesday," indeed, both Rex and Comus hold forth. Rex is the popular ball, the affair of the people, and is held in the Atchoufama. From here, about midnight, the king and queen proceed to Comus ball.

Comus is an assembly of such rigid exclusiveness that even the tickets to the gallery are considered social prizes. The personnel of the Krewe, on this particular year, as in all previous ones, would remain unknown; there is no unmasking at Comus. This institution, a tremendous social power and potentially a financial power also, during decades of the city's life, is held absolutely above any taint of favoritism or commercialism. Even the families of those concerned might not always be certain whether their sons and brothers belonged to the Krewe of Comus.

Henry Gramont did not attend the ball of Proteus on Monday night. Instead, he sat in his own room, while through the streets of the French quarter outside was raging the carnival at its height. Before him were maps and reports upon the gas and oil fields about Bayou Terrebonne—fields where great domes of natural gas were already located and in use, and where oil was being found in some quantity. Early on Wednesday morning Gramont intended to set forth to his work. He had been engaged to make a report to Bob Maillard's company, and he would make it. Then he would resign his advisory job, and be free. A smile curled his lips as he thought of young Maillard and the company.

"The young gentleman will be sadly surprised to discover that I've gotten out from under, and that his respected father holds my stock," he reflected. "That was a good deal; I lost a thousand to old Maillard in order to have the balance of thirty thousand!"

A knock at his door interrupted the thread of his thought. Gramont opened, to find the concierge with a note which had been left at the door below by a masked Harlequin, who had then disappeared without awaiting any reply.

Gramont recognized the writing on the envelope, and fastened to the note inside. His face changed, however, as he read it:

"Please call promptly at eleven tomorrow morning. I wish to see you again a matter of business."

"LUCIE LEDANOIS!"

Gramont cast long at this note, his brows drawn down into a harsh line. It was not like Lucie in its tone, somehow; he sensed something amiss, something vaguely but mostly decidedly out of tone. "Eleven tomorrow morning, eh?" he murmured. "That's queer, too, for she's to be at the Proteus ball tonight. Most girls would not be conducting business affairs at eleven in the morning, after being up all night at Proteus! It must be something important. Besides, she's not in a class with anyone else. She's a rare girl; no nonsense in her—full of a deep, strong sense of things."

He forced himself from thoughts of Lucie, forced himself from her personality, and returned to his reports with an effort of concentration.

When Gramont went to bed that night it was with a startling and audacious scheme well defined in his brain; a scheme whose first conception seemed ludicrous and impossible, yet which, on second consideration, appeared in a very different light. It deserved serious thought—and Gramont had made his decision before he went to sleep.

The following day was Tuesday—Mardi Gras. Since Tuesday, the last day before Lent began, and the final culminating day of carnival, Henry Gramont, however, was destined to find little in its beginning of much personal pleasure.

At eleven in the morning Hammond drove him to the Ledanois home, where Gramont was admitted by one of the colored servants and shown into the parlor. A moment later Lucie herself appeared. At first glance her smiling greeting removed the half-suspected apprehensions of Gramont. Almost immediately afterward, however, he noted a perceptible change in her manner, as she led him toward the rear of the room, and gestured toward a mahogany tilt-top table which stood in a corner.

"Come over here, please. I have something which I wish to show you." She needed to say no more. Gramont, following her, found himself staring blankly down at the symbol of consternation which overwhelmed him. For upon that table lay all those boxes which he himself had packed with the loot of the Midnight Masquer—the identical boxes, apparently unopened, which had been stolen from his automobile by the supposed thief, Chacherre!

For a moment Gramont found himself unable to speak. He was then derestricted by the sight of those unmistakable boxes. A glance at the calm features of the girl showed him that there was nothing to be concealed from her, even had he wished it. He was further stunned by this realization. He could not understand how the packages had come here. It seemed as if his voice with an effort, he managed to break the heavy silence.

"Well? I suppose you know what is in those packages?"

She nodded. "Yes. One of them was opened, and the note inside discovered. Of course, I gave a general explanation. Will you sit down, please? I think that we had better talk it over quietly and calmly."

Gramont obeyed, and dropped into a chair. He was absurdly conscious of his own confusion. How had Lucie come into the affair? This staggered him more than all else. Was she behind the

"If you can give me ten minutes..." "My dear Lucie, you are the most charming object in New Orleans at this minute! Why attempt to make yourself still more attractive? Gliding the lily is an impossible task." "Well, wait for me. Is your car here? Good! I want to see Hammond's face when he sees us carrying out those boxes." Laughing, the girl started toward the stairs. At the doorway she paused. "One thing, M. le prince! Do you solemnly promise, upon your honor, that the Midnight Masquer is dead forever?" "Upon my honor," said Gramont, seriously. "The farce is ended, Lucie." "All right, I'll be right down. Smoke if you like." In her own room upstairs Lucie

One thing more: Henry Gramont is going to see you after luncheon, I think—on business. And I want you to be nice to him, Uncle Jaehin.

"Most assuredly," said the other, dryly. "I should like to be associated in business with that young man. The firm would prosper."

Smiling, she hung up the receiver. Ten minutes later, when Gramont and Miss Leonard entered the waiting car, Hammond saw the boxes that they carried. He stood beside the open door, paralyzed, his eyes fastened on the boxes, his mouth agape.

"To the post office, sergeant," said Gramont, then affected to observe his stupefaction. "Why, what's the matter?"

Hammond met his twinkling eyes, saw the laughter of Lucie, and swallowed hard.

"I—nothing at all, cap'n," he answered, hoarsely. "A—little chokin' spell, that's all. Post office? Yes, sir."

LAMESA TO HAVE NINE MONTHS SCHOOL TERM

By a vote of 13 to 12, the voters of the Lamesa Independent School District expressed themselves in favor of giving the board the authority to raise tax rates from 50c to $1.00 on the $100.00 valuation. The vote was tight but the majority so decisive that it leaves no ground for doubt as to what the people want. Now let us stand by the school board and do all we can to give Lamesa a first class school.—Lamesa Journal.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesulpapias

The Glorious Fourth has passed into history. One hundred and forty-six years have gone since that memorable day that "men were declared free and equal." Of the conflict that followed, how very few of the names that took part are remembered by the masses of the people? None of those who went bare footed, half naked and hungry are remembered by name. Asked to name a dozen of them, of even the most notable actors in the struggle, would tax the memory of most of us. What a blow to the desire of very many men and women for posthumous fame. If we could return after an absence of a few years, we should cause our families real inconvenience. "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" Judge Copeland, an old settler of this county, died last Wednesday morning the 5th, at the home of his son in the village of Ropes. He had been in bad health for a number of years.

The sheriff was in our community Saturday night after supposed law breakers, but didn't find the nest.
