DROWNING OF MISSIONARY IN JAPAN CONFIRMED

Dallas, Aug. 15.—Confirmation of the first unsigned cablegram announcing the death by drowning of Harry Lyle Hughes, missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Kobe, Japan, was obtained Monday by S. R. Hughes, brother of the dead man, from the American Consul at Kobe. The Consul's message read: "Brother drowned while swimming. Cremated. Family will arrive Seattle Aug. 26th with ashes. Notify wife's family."

Mr. Hughes was a graduate of the Southwestern University at Georgetown and of Vanderbilt University at Nashville. He took post-graduate work in the Southern Methodist University at Dallas and during that time preached at the Cole Avenue Methodist Church. He went to Japan as a missionary under the special care of the First Methodist church here—Dallas News.

We have been requested by the local pastor of the Methodist church to announce that appropriate memorial services will be held at the Methodist church, Sunday, Sept. 3rd, for Harry L. Hughes, a former pastor of the Methodist church at this place, and which was among his first charges, we believe.

TERRELL'S TURN FOR STATE TREASURER

Wise county is vitally interested in the selection of a State Treasurer. Hon. C. V. Terrell, the present incumbent was born and reared in Wise county, and has resided here all of his life, the home of his father and mother, honored pioneer citizen of good old Wise county.

Judge Terrell was educated in the public schools of Wise county and is a graduate of the A. & M. college and is a man of wide experience and a life long democrat. He has held many positions of trust, having been City Attorney for Decatur, County Attorney for Wise county, County Judge of Wise county for two terms, and twice State Senator from this district, in all of which positions he served with credit to himself and his constituents as well as to the county of his birth. It was through his influence and persistent effort while he was in the State Senate, that Denton secured the State Normal, and Denton county, as well as the surrounding counties will join Wise county in an effort to give Judge Terrell the largest majority in the coming runoff primary, of any candidate in the field. Wise county gave him about a seven to one vote over his opponent in the first primary. Let's make it unanimous in the second.—Wise County Messenger.

SOUTH PLAINS ODD FELLOWS HOLD FORTH AT SLATON

The South Plains Association of Odd Fellows met in the ninth annual session at Slaton Monday and Tuesday, August 14-15.

Visitors and delegates met in the Odd Fellows hall in the Shoppell building where they were duly registered and badges provided. They were then assigned rooms in homes that had been tendered not only by members of Slaton Odd Fellows and Rebekahs lodges, but by non-members. Practically the entire citizenship of Slaton threw the doors of their homes open to the large number of visitors. All business places were appropriately decorated bearing banners welcoming the visitors.

At 10 o'clock Monday, an open meeting was held at the Methodist church. All places of business were closed and everybody turned out en masse.—Slaton Stationer.

TWO NEW MEXICO BOYS ARE JAILED HERE

A boy known as J. A. (Wompos) Hite and two other characters were jailed at Colorado City last week on a charge of forgery, or at least that was the charge against Hite. Hite informed Colorado City officials that he knew who robbed the Bird & Dean store at Brownfield on the night of July 22nd. Sheriff Wood Johnson of this place was notified, and he went after Hite, at the same time sending his deputy, E. A. Graham to Plainview, N. M. after West and Less Permenter (twins) named by Hite as the burglars.

Sheriff Johnson says Hite maintained an unshakable story of how he was picked up by the Permenter boys this side of Plains, and came on here, but on account of the election night crowd, had to wait at the edge of the town until the crowd went to their home, when the Permenter boys came on in and kicked the back door of the store open. But when he was informed that the Permenter boys were in jail here, he began to tell it different.

The Permenter boys proved to the satisfaction of local officers that they attended church in New Mexico that night, and spent the rest of the night at home, and were released Sunday morning. Wompos is still behind the bars here and will be carried to Colorado City to answer the forgery charge pending against him.

MAN AT SNYDER DECORATED WITH TAR AND SAND

Snyder Signal.—Monday night at about eleven o'clock, it was said, three cars drove up in front of the Snyder Hotel. The occupants, which were said to be masked men, went up the stairs, which ran on the outside of the hotel to the porch balcony where several men were asleep. One of the men was heard to say: "Here he is." They took the man down to the cars, drove away and was gone for awhile, and returned with the man, who, it is said, was Jim Sellers, of Kottan, a carpenter on the new school building at Snyder. The next day was seen of him was near the post-office on the southeast corner of the square, where he was standing in a coat of tar and sand. Mr. Wills, the night watchman, went up to him and asked him a question, but he did not speak and in a short time was seen to go down the sidewalk on the south side of the square and back to the hotel. It was said that after returning to the hotel, he was asked if he recognized any of the men, but he did not answer. He was seen to leave in a short time in a car going east.

A good many rumors were current on the streets of Snyder the next day regarding the affair, but no one seemed to know anything about it, save that it was seen.

WOMENS TEMPERANCE UNION FOR MAYFIELD

Austin, Texas, Aug. 21.—Interest of National W. C. T. U. leaders in the prohibition results of the Texas Senatorial race was shown by telegram sent to the State W.C.T.U. President, Mrs. Claude De Van Warts of Austin, by Mrs. Lena Lowe Yost, National Superintendent of Legislation of that order. Mrs. Yost said: "Women in America believing in prohibition now the fundamental laws of the land are looking to the voters of Texas to nominate and elect a United States Senator who will oppose modification of prohibition laws to permit wine and beer as such modification would only mean nullification. Let Texas stand true."

CONSTRUCTION WORK STARTED ON GIN

The machinery for Seminole's cotton gin arrived the first of the week, and is now on the building site. A large force of workmen is at work putting up the necessary buildings, and Mr. Renfro, the owner, states that he expects to be ready for business in plenty of time to care for the cotton in this territory.—Seminole Sentinel.

JACK BENTON SERIOUSLY CUT IN AN AFFRAY

As a result of a quarrel last Friday night just after dark, Jack Benton is in the local sanitarium recovering, and an Atkinson boy, of the same community, Tokio, is in jail, his father saying that he needed to stay in a few days and cool off.

It seems that the quarrel started in the school house, and the Atkinson boys asked Jack out and the cutting began. Several deep knife wounds were inflicted around the body, mostly in the back and side. A local surgeon informed the Herald that between 80 and one hundred stitches were required to close the wounds.

H. A. CASTLEBERRY BITTEN BY RATTLE-SNAKE

H. A. Castleberry, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Castleberry, aged 13, was bitten by a rattle-snake Saturday afternoon, while reaching in a prairie dog hole after a rabbit.

We understand that his sister, Miss Epine, sucked the poison from her brother's arm, and her father being away taking a post graduate course in Chicago, other physicians of the town were called in. He is reported to be doing well, but with a very sore arm.

ROBERTS THANKS SUPPORTERS

Seagraves, Texas, Aug. 15, 1922. To my friends and supporters.—To every man and woman of the 119 legislative district who cast their ballot for me for representative in the recent primary, I wish to extend my sincerest thanks and appreciation. Although I did not receive the nomination I did make new friends, and to more than repay me for all the time and effort put forth. I shall never forget you nor the encouragement you so heartily gave me.

And some day, if the time and circumstances seem favorable I may again place my political destiny in your hands, and perhaps, the next time the gods of politics will smile more kindly upon my efforts. To those who voted against me, I bear no malice or ill will. I probably deserved to lose. Ella Wheeler Wilcox summed up my philosophy of life when she said: "Whatever is, is best." I have no swan song to sing. I made a clean race and lost.

I shall go to the University as intended, and while there try to prepare myself for a larger and broader field of service to the people of West Texas. I shall be glad to be counted as an humble private in the ranks of those who are seeking to build a great civilization on these broad and fertile plains. It shall be my aim and purpose to help uphold the hands of our representative in his fight for a fair and just consideration of the needs of West Texas. I remain, Gratefully yours, Charles W. Roberts.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION IS THE REAL ISSUE

Beaumont, Texas, Aug. 21.—Laric B. Mayfield opened the final week of his senatorial campaign in an address here tonight with a smashing drive against the campaign of personalities injected by James E. Ferguson, his opponent.

"The issues were clearly drawn" he declared, "and in next Saturday's primary, you voters of Texas will be called upon to say who will serve you in the U. S. Senate—a man pledged to strengthening and enforcing the national prohibition laws, or a man pledged to weakening and tearing them down; to shatter respect for law enforcement.

"The issue is between selection of a friend of union labor or a man who has been branded for his official acts by a signed statement of the Palestine Labor and Trades councils as 'giving aid and comfort to enemies of organized labor.'" Mr. Mayfield declared.

"You are called upon to say whether or not you will cast your ballot alongside those of 1500 negroes who voted at San Antonio to help Ferguson get into the second primary. Will you vote for a man who uses these votes to balance those of law-abiding citizens of Texas?"

"You are called upon to express your choice as between a platform on the one hand to a serious discussion of the big national issues which your senator will have to face, and on the other with a mud-slinging attack on personal abuse and attack never before descended to by any man in a race for public office.

"You are called upon to say whether or not the democratic party shall place its leadership in the hands of a man who has for two years attacked, derided and done everything possible to destroy this same party, and who only hung onto it to claim its benefits when he wanted to run for an office."

Mr. Mayfield charged Ferguson had tried to cover up his prohibition record of the first primary, when he advocated a "wet" interpretation of dry laws, and favored wines and beer but that he now declares he is opposed to the open saloon.

"The people in their devotion to their government in their respect for its constitution and laws, and their disgust of the debauchery and lawlessness of the saloon and its evil will not elect next Saturday a man branded with the taint of such associations of friends," Mr. Mayfield declared.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapias.

This correspondent has been so busy the past week with the affairs of others that he has had little time to furnish items for the paper.

The Methodist people have just closed a protracted meeting. There was considerable interest manifested and some five or six conversions with several additions to the church.

It is rumored, that as a result of some of the sermons preached that a challenge for debate was made to the pastor at the close of the services. The proposition was accepted and it is presumed that articles governing the same will be signed at an early date. Then watch the hair fly. There will be cats on the back yard fence.

"Behold, how they love one another." The writer would much prefer the orthodox twenty-four foot ring, Marquis of Queensberry rules without gloves. It would be infinitely more interesting and convincing, and inspire greater respect for each other. There would be no doubt as to the winner and it would be comparatively easy to agree with this adversary quickly. Besides, there would probably be a little work for the miserable make-shift doctor that resides in this burg. Last but not least, the gate money would pay the debts of the churches and seat them in the latest style. The scriptural debates of the past were models of thoroughness and the losing side kept quiet ever afterwards. Consult I Kings 13: 40.

There was one land transfer reported last week. J. A. Longley sold a quarter section to Miss Zenobia Jones of Desdemonia, Texas. Consideration, $35 per acre.

J. L. Jones, wife and daughter were visitors at the home of E. H. Jones and S. W. White, the past week.

Forrest Smith has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, and was carried to Lubbock Saturday morning. We sincerely hope that the young man will be able to return fully recovered.

Quite a number of the citizens attended the Commissioners' Court last Monday to oppose the application of two of the citizens asking removal of the windmill and tank obstructing the two principal streets of the town. The two sides were turned loose on each other to the detriment of the crowd about the court room. Much latent talent was displayed by the opposing forces: Blackstone, Coke and Kent were tyros at law; Pitt and Webster knew nothing of oratory; Gorgas was ignorant of sanitation; and Boss should have listened to the fulminations on malaria. Only a few were wise enough to keep quiet. On your next trip perhaps we shall be able to play to a larger house.

A flock of storks have visited the community the past week and in view of possible hostilities in the near future, he left a soldier at the home of George Longley, Sam Branch and Put D. J. Harris. The first two had similar visits; not so with Put. Harris. He has suddenly assumed an air of importance that is not in keeping with his past modest behavior. He has advanced rapidly through all the grades and is now a full general with epaulets, shoulder straps and stars, with the Cross de Guerre and the Medal of Distinguished Service. He insists that his name be read at the head of the regiment, and that the ordinary individuals stand at salute as he approaches. Well, well, he will sign articles of capitulation the first time he starts in search of soothing syrup for the young man with the colic.

The Baptist brethren are holding a meeting here at this writing. Rev. Fronbarker of Canyon, Texas is assisting the pastor. The congregations are large and much interest is manifested. The world needs a revival, not only of interest in religion, but in good citizenship, better morals, and a more profound respect for the law. The churches have been the chief exponent of all that is best in life and it is to be hoped that they will again recover the ground lost by our participation in the late war.

It is reported that our editor was on our streets Saturday. We did not see him but presume he spent his time in West Meadow, beyond Lake Peeler. The continued dry weather and light wind has favored its drying up and he might have reached our side without difficulty—Merely passing thru, Aesculapias—Editor.

"dis," said Hearne. "What's stirring, anyhow?"

"Plenty. Memphis Izzy's coming down today. When'll he get in?"

"He'll go direct to the other place, won't come here. Oh, I reckon he'll get there along about nine this morn'ing. Why?"

"We'll have to go over there to meet him," said Gramont. "I stopped in here to pick you up. Hammond is still safe in jail?"

"Sure," Hearne laughed evilly. "I don't guess he'll get out in a hurry, neither."

"Chachere was pinched last night for the murder," said Gramont, watching the other.

"The h—h—" Hearne looked astonished, then relaxed and laughed again. "Some fly cop will sure lose at his buttons, then! They ain't got nothin' on him."

"I heard they had plenty," Hearne waved a hand grandiloquently. "The boss is solid with the bunch up to Baton Rouge, and they'll take care of everybody. So old Ben got pinched, huh? That's one joke, man?"

Gramont's worst suspicions were confirmed by the attitude of Hearne, who plainly considered that the entire gang had nothing to fear from the law. Chachere's boasts were backed up solidly. It was obvious to Gramont that the ramifications of the gang extended very high up, indeed.

"Better cut out the talk," he said curtly, "until we get out of here."

Hearne nodded and rolled a cigarette. When his hasty meal was finished, Gramont paid at the counter and led the way outside. He motioned toward the car, and Hearne obediently climbed in, being evidently of so little account in the gang that he was accustomed to taking orders from everyone.

Gramont headed out of town and took the Parais road. Before he had driven a mile, however, he halted the car, climbed out, and lifted one side of the hood.

"Give me those rags from the bottom of the car, Hearne," he said briefly.

The other obeyed. As Gramont made no move to come and get them, Hearne got out of the car; then Gramont rose from the engine unexpectedly, and Hearne looked into a pistol.

"Hold out your hands behind you and turn around," snapped Gramont. "No talk!"

Hearne uttered an oath, but as the pistol jerked at him he obeyed the command. Gramont took the strip of cloth, which he had previously prepared, and bound the man's wrists.

"These are better than handcuffs," he commented. "Too many slick individuals can get rid of bracelets—but you'll have one man's job to get rid of these." Oh! a gun in your pocket, eh? Thanks."

"What'll you do?" exclaimed the bewildered Hearne.

"Placing you under arrest," said Gramont, cheerfully.

"Here, where's your warrant? You ain't no dick—"

Gramont cut short his protests with a long cloth, which effectively bound his lower jaw in place and precluded any further idea of talk.

He then tied Dick Hearne securely, hand and foot, and then lashed him to one of the top supports of the car. When he had finished, Hearne was reasonably safe. He then climbed under the wheel again and proceeded on his way. Hearne's lashings were inconspicuous to any one whom the car passed.

It was a little after eight in the morning when Gramont drove into Parais. He noticed that two large automobiles were standing in front of the post office, and that about them were a group of men who eyed him and his car with some interest. Paying no attention to these, he drove on through the town without a halt.

Sweeping out along the north road, he encountered no one. When at length he reached the Ledanos farm he drove in toward the deserted house, and parked the car among some trees where it could not be seen from the road.

Leaving the car, Gramont took his way toward the bank of the bayou and followed this in the direction of the adjoining property.

He went on to an opening in the bushes which, over the low rail fence, gave him a clear view of the Gumberts property. There he gazed quickly down back and gained a point whence he could see without danger of his presence being discovered. He settled into immobility and watched.

That Memphis Izzy himself had not yet arrived, he was fairly certain.

HOME TALENT CHAUTAUQUAS
A brand new idea is being tried out in several localities this season for the first time and the reluctant report is being eagerly watched for by the localities that have experienced the usual troubles and dissatisfactions with high priced chautauquas.

The new idea is for the community to stage a regular chautauquas, using only home talent entertainers. At first suggestion the idea went get very far under your hide, but if you will just keep thinking over the possibilities with the available talent in your home community that can be arrayed for such an event you become so enthusiastic that you are eager to have the local folks give it a try.

If you have doubts as to the idea being an excellent one, just make a mental list of all those in the community who could be persuaded to furnish numbers for the program. It will surprise you to learn of the large number of real good musicians, vocal and instrumental, speakers and readers and reciters that would be willing to lend their services.

The average chautauqua company always exacts a large guarantee with a number of responsible citizens back of the agreement, and usually those back of the guarantee have to come across with a tidy sum to cover the deficiency.

With the home talent chautauquas the admission receipts could be divided among the talent after expenses were paid. Or if agreeable to the talent, the entire receipts could be turned to some local public institution, such as the library, playground, community building or any such institution that is financially supported by local donation.

Aside from the many arguments favorable to the home talent chautauquas is the all important fact that it would open the avenue of training to local talent, an value of which is inestimable.

Why not a home talent chautauqua in this town next season?

CHANCE TO FIND OUT

Just now a belated effort is under way to find out some of the facts about government business and government employment. The Bureau of the Budget has been organized and is in operation under the direction of Charles G. Dawes.

Both houses of congress are working on the problem of reclassification of government positions and salaries. The Veterans' bureau has been organized and has taken over the bureau of war risk insurance, that part of the public health service which had to do with veterans, and all of the work of the federal board for vocational education except that part which had to do with the treatment of persons injured in the industries.

There is also the inquiry being made by the joint committee on the reorganization of the administrative branch of the government of the two houses of congress, of which I have spoken. Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, is chairman of this committee, representing President Harding. The members of the committee are, on the part of the senate, Senators Smoot of Utah, Harrison of Mississippi and Watkins of New York. The members on the part of the house are Representatives Reavis of Nebraska, Temple of Pennsylvania and Moore of Virginia.

The job of this joint committee is to "make a survey of the administrative services of the government for the purpose of securing all pertinent facts regarding their powers and duties, their distribution among the several executive departments, and the overlapping and duplication of authority."

In reporting the resolution to the judiciary committee to the house the members were told:

It is a matter of common knowledge that millions of dollars are wasted by the government by the almost endless duplication of activities. There has been no fundamental change in the administrative activities since the organization was devised by Alexander Hamilton, and the result is that agencies entirely out of harmony with the functions of departments have grown with the passing years until the government of the United States has become not only the biggest business in the world, but the world's worst managed business.

The purpose of the resolution is to ascertain as far as possible the extent of the overlapping and duplication of activities, with the view that numerous commissions and bureaus may be eliminated and a great saving effected in the governmental expenditures. The committee feels that no more constructive legislation is possible under existing conditions than the legislation proposed by the resolution. With the present condition of the nation's finances and the burden the people suffer because of excessive taxation, any legislative measure looking to real economy should commend itself to the sympathetic attention of the house, and we feel that the passage of this resolution and the work of the committee which will be done under its authority will result in the saving of millions annually.

It can be predicted with considerable assurance that nothing will come of this proposed voyage of discovery unless we, the shareholders in the enterprise, maintain an active, lively, sus-several large water melons and some muskmelons were cut and quickly disappeared, all but the rinds. More ice cream and cake were next in order, after which the guests disappeared, wishing that some one else would have a birthday soon. Lovely refreshments in two courses were served the members present: Meses. Alexander, Anderson, Brownfield, Dallas, Downing, Graham, Harding, King, May, McGowan, Rutherford, Snodgrass, Shelton, Smith, Randall, and Misses Bell and Richards.

The club will next meet with Mrs. May.—Reporter.

Interest in it. One thing is always true of the house of representatives—it is representative. If we breathe warmly upon it, it glows. If we are indifferent it becomes cold.

This isn't the first time that a plan has been set in motion to find out something about how the government's business is conducted.

The earliest inquiry into the administrative methods of the executive departments was made by the Cokrell commission in 1887. Six years later, in 1893, a joint commission, of which Representative Dockery was chairman, was appointed to examine the status of the laws organizing the departments. President Roosevelt in 1905 named an interdepartmental committee, of which C. H. Keep, assistant secretary of the treasury, was chairman, to consider department methods. President Taft in turn, in 1910, named a commission on economy and efficiency of which Frederick Cleveland was chairman.

Recently and generally speaking, nothing has come of these inquiries. You and I—commonly and vaguely known as the public—were not interested, and neither was congress. That ended it.

But just now, at this moment, we have the best chance we ever had to find out about our common business and how to improve it and lessen its cost to us. The burden of supporting it is heavier than ever before.

You will perhaps notice all through these articles that the information supplied me about the general facts of government employment and government business are in terms of estimates and approximations. This is one of the defects of government organization. It is so large and so formless, and its parts so unrelated that exact and precise information about the whole is virtually unobtainable.

It is of the greatest urgency and need that the people shall know about their government, but they will find it difficult to learn until the government knows about itself.

COTTON YIELD PLACED AT 11,449,000 BALES

Washington, Aug. 1.—This year's cotton crop was placed at 11,449,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight in the second forecast of the season announced today by the Department of Agriculture, basing its estimate on the condition of the crop July 25th which was 70.8 per cent of normal.

There was a decline of four points in condition from July 25th to July 25th, the condition June 25th having been 71.2 of normal on which the first forecast of the season, 11,053,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight was based.

The average change in the last ten days between June 25 and July 25 was a decline 3.9 points.

The condition of the crop July 25 by states was as follows:

Virginia 80, North Carolina 72, South Carolina 60, Georgia 54, Alabama 70, Florida 65, Mississippi 75, Louisiana 70, Texas 72, Tennessee 85, Arkansas 81, Missouri 90, Oklahoma 75, California 95, Arizona 86, New Mexico 85.

The acreage of cotton abandoned to July 1st was summarized as 7.1 per cent, the Department announced in a supplemental statement issued in response to Senate resolutions.

County agents report 82.2 per cent and the reporters of the crop reporting board estimated 71.3 per cent of the total acreage was infested by the boll weevil.

The final outcome of the crop, the department announced may be larger or smaller than forecast today as conditions developing during the remainder of the season prove more or less favorable than the acreage.

Scattered among many men are quantities in spring suits we meet with pleasure some tried, old friends in suits of navy point twill, trimmed with braid and buttons. Here is one of them, living up to the dictates of the mode as to silhouette, length of coat and skirt and giving new interest by virtue of a novel trimming of loose fringe made of the material. Bands of silk braid about the waist, pass under these straps and six half buttons serve to fasten and adorn the coat.

Varnish to Imitate Ground Glass.

To make a varnish to imitate ground glass, dissolve 75 grams of sand in 20 grams of alcohol in two ounces washed methylated ether, and add, in small quantities, sufficient benzine to make it dry with a suitable grain, too little making the varnish too transparent and an excess making it craggy. The quantity of benzine required depends upon the quality, from one-half to one and one-half ounces, or even more. The best results are obtained from a medium quality. It is important to use pure washed ether, free from spirit.

Kill is His Motto.

No mammal in the entire world, great or small, can compare with the weasels as hunters. They hunt their prey incessantly, following it by scent, and take the lives of a far larger number of victims than they need for food, save the American Forestry Magazines. They kill, and keep on killing, just for the fun of it; and it is only during the cold winter weather, when game becomes scarce, that they congregate for future consumption the bodies of some of the animals they have slain.

Leather From Rat Skin.

That the skin of the rat can be used for leather has been proved, even though an experiment with some thousands of skins imported from France proved in the nineteenth century that the manufacture was not commercially worth while. A pair of shoes made from the skin of the rat proved as soft as the finest kid, but it took six skins to make the one pair, only the back being stout enough for use.

Blood Pressure.

Blood pressure is the pressure of the blood against the walls of the large arteries. It is determined by the force of the heart and the resistance in the small blood vessels. These latter either expand or contract according to conditions. This action is influenced by various factors, namely, excitement, nervousness, poisons in the system and hardening of the arteries.

Curious Pottery.

The use of dried fruit in bread, such as the ground and crushed, for holding water and other substances is familiar, but it is not generally known that copper shavings and jars to take the place of ordinary earthenware are made in the form of a glutinous and plastic material entirely of vegetable origin, which is easily moulded and dried.
